START

Microfilmed By:

NORTHEAST DOCUMENT
CONSERVATION CENTER
Andover, MA 01810

August 1994

Camera Operator:
John Sullivan

MASTER NEGATIVE NUMBER:
BSO-56-061

MICROFILMED
August 1993 - April 1994

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA SCRAPBOOK MICROFILMING PROJECT

Funded in part by

THE NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

Grant No. PS-20709-93

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA MICROFILMING PROJECT

A Cooperative Project Between the Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives and the Boston Public Library
(August 1993 - April 1994)

The Microfilming Project incorporates two collections of scrapbooks housed in two separate repositories. The first set of scrapbooks (80 volumes) resides within the Allen A. Brown Collection of the Boston Public Library (BPL) Music Department. Their call number is M.125.5. The second set of scrapbooks (132 volumes) resides within the Press Clippings collection of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (BSO) Archives. They have the designation Pres 56.

The BPL scrapbooks begin with the founding of the BSO in 1881 and continue, through 79 seasons, to 1960. Articles consist mainly of reviews and feature stories from Boston and New York newspapers. Occasionally, magazine articles and press releases are also included. The scrapbooks cover most aspects of the BSO.

The BSO scrapbooks run from 1889, the Orchestra's 9th season, to 1973. In addition to local reviews and features, the volumes contain articles culled from national and international publications. The scrapbooks document, in detail, all aspects of the BSO: The Symphony Orchestra (including subscription concerts, tours, and trips), the Boston Pops, the Tanglewood Festival, the Tanglewood Music Center, and Symphony Hall.

The two sets of scrapbooks have been filmed as two separate entities. Researchers wanting to look at specific seasons or subjects must examine both sets of films to ensure full coverage.

The scrapbooks do not represent the complete holdings of either location on the subject of the BSO.

Requests for positive microfilm copies of individual rolls, or of film sets, should be directed to the respective repository:

Music Department
Boston Public Library
Post Office Box 286
Boston, MA 02117

Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives
Symphony Hall
Boston, MA 02115

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA SCRAPBOOKS

1889 - 1973

132 VOLUMES

Source: Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives

FINDING AID

Boston Symphony Orchestra Scrapbooks (Series 56, Sub-Series 1)

Source: Press Office (Office of the Public Relations Director)

The BSO scrapbooks comprise part of one series in the BSO Archives. Series 56, Press Clippings, is divided by format into 3 sub-series: 1) Scrapbooks, 1889-1973 (132 volumes); 2) Loose Clippings, 1931-1991 (9 record cartons); and 3) Oversize Newspapers and Journals, 1919-1979 (1 oversize box). Each sub-series is arranged chronologically.

The scrapbooks contain concert notices and reviews, record reviews, and feature articles. Early scrapbooks may also contain programs, tickets, and subscription orders. Materials are organized by concert season into the following categories: BSO (including tours); Kneisel Quartet (and later Boston Symphony Chamber Players); Boston Pops (referred to in early years as Promenade concerts); and Tanglewood (including the Tanglewood Music Center, the Tanglewood Festival, Tanglewood-on-Parade, and the Fromm Festival of Contemporary Music).

Reviews and articles cover a wide range of subjects: Founder H.L. Higginson; BSO conductors, players, trustees, and other personnel; guest artists and composers; BSO and Pops performances and recordings; U.S. and overseas tours; BSO/Cecilia Society joint performances; open rehearsals; and special events connected to anniversary celebrations and fundraising.

Feature stories document changes in the size, composition, and location of the orchestra. Topics include the hiring of women and minorities; the unionization of players; controversies (such as the internment of conductor Karl Muck during World War II); the sale of the old Music Hall; and the construction of Symphony Hall and other structures (such as the Koussevitsky Music Shed at Tanglewood).

Reproductions of the materials in the collection may not be made without permission from the Boston Symphony Orchestra Archives.

GUIDE TO CONTENTS

Institution: BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Series Name: PRESS CLIPPINGS
Series Number: 56
Series Dates: 1889-1991

Sub-series Name: SCRAPBOOKS
Sub-series Number: 1
Sub-series Dates: 1889-1973

VOLUME LISTING

VOL	TITLE	DATES
1	BSO	1889-1890
2	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1890-1891
3	BSO	1891-1892
4	Promenade (Pops)	1892
5	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1892-1893
6	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1893-1894
7	BSO Kneisel Quartet	1894-1895
8	BSO	1895-1896
9	Promenade (Pops)	1895-1896
10	BSO	1896-1897
11	BSO	1897-1898
12	Promenade (Pops)	1897-1898
13	BSO	1898-1899
14	BSO	1899-1900
15	Pops	1899-1900
16	BSO	1900-1901
17	BSO	1901-1902
18	Pops	1901-1903
19	BSO	1902-1903
20	BSO	1903-1904
21	BSO	1904-1905
22	Pops	1904-1905
23	BSO	1905-1906
24	BSO	1906-1907
25	BSO	1907-1908
26	BSO	1908-1909
27	BSO Pops	1909-1910
28	BSO Pops	1910-1911
29	BSO Advertisements	1910-1911
30	BSO Pops	1911-1912
31	BSO Pops	1912-1913
32	BSO Pops	1913-1914
33	BSO Pops	1914-1915
34	BSO Pops	1915-1916
35	BSO Pops	1916-1917
36	BSO Pops	1917-1918
37	Karl Muck	1918
38	BSO Pops	1918-1919
39	BSO Pops	1919-1920
40	BSO Advertisements	1919-1920
41	BSO Pops	1920-1921
42	BSO Pops	1921-1922
43	BSO BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1922-1923
44	BSO Pops	1922-1924
45	BSO Pops	1924
46	BSO BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1924-1926
47	BSO Pops	1925-1926
48	BSO Advertisements Pops Advertisements	1926-1927
49	BSO Pops	1926-1928
50	BSO	1928
51	BSO Pops	1928-1929
52	BSO Pops U.S. Tour	1929-1930
53	BSO	1930-1931
54	BSO Pops	1931-1932
55	BSO Pops	1932-1933
56	BSO	1933-1934
57	BSO	1934-1935
58	BSO	1935-1936
59	BSO	1936-1937

VOL	TITLE	DATES
60	Pops
	Tanglewood	1936-1937
61	BSO	1937
62	BSO	1937-1938
63	Pops
	Tanglewood	1938
64	BSO	1938-1939
65	Pops
	Tanglewood	1939
66	BSO	1939-1940
67	Tanglewood	1939-1941
68	BSO
	Pops	1940
69	BSO	1940-1941
70	Tanglewood	1940-1944
71	BSO	1941-1942
72	BSO	1942-1943
73	BSO	1943-1944
74	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1944-1945
75	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1945-1946
76	BSO
	Pops
	Tanglewood	1946-1947
77	Tanglewood	1947-1948
78	BSO	1947-1949
79	Tanglewood	1949-1950
80	BSO	1949-1951
81	Tanglewood	1950-1951
82	BSO
	Pops	1951-1952
83	BSO
	Pops	1952-1953
84	Tanglewood	1952-1953
85	BSO	1953-1955
86	Tanglewood	1953-1954
87	Tanglewood	1954-1955
88	BSO
	Pops	1955-1956
89	Tanglewood	1955-1956
90	Tanglewood	1955-1956
91	European Tour	1956
92	European Tour	1956-1957
93	BSO
	Pops	1956-1957
94	Tanglewood	1957
95	BSO	1957-1958
96	BSO
	Pops	1958-1959
97	BSO	1958-1959
98	Tanglewood	1958-1959
99	Tanglewood	1959
100	BSO
	Pops	1959-1960
101	Tanglewood	1959-1960
102	Far Eastern Tour	1959-1960
103	BSO
	Pops	1960-1961
104	Tanglewood	1961
105	BSO
	Pops	1961-1962
106	Tanglewood	1962
107	BSO
	Pops	1962-1963
108	Tanglewood	1963
109	BSO
	Pops	1963-1964
110	Tanglewood	1963-1964
111	BSO
	Pops	1964-1966
112	Tanglewood	1965
113	BSO 85th Anniversary	1965
114	BSO
	Pops	1965-1966
115	Tanglewood	1966
116	BSO
	Pops	1966-1967
117	Tanglewood	1967
118	BSO
	Pops	1967-1968
119	Tanglewood	1968-1969
120	BSO
	Pops	1968-1969
121	Tanglewood	1969
122	BSO
	Pops	1969-1970
123	Tanglewood	1970
124	BSO
	Pops	1970-1971
125	Tanglewood	1971
126	BSO
	Pops	1971-1972
127	European Tour	1970-1971
128	European Tour	1971
129	Tanglewood	1972
130	BSO
	Pops	1972-1973
131	Tanglewood	1973
132	BSO
	Pops	1973-1974

MATERIALS NOT FILMED

SUB-SERIES NUMBER	SUB-SERIES NAME	SUB-SERIES DATES
2	Loose Clippings	1931-1991
3	Oversize Newspapers and Journals	1919-1979

COPYRIGHT STATEMENT

The copyright law of the Unites States - Title 17, United States Code - concerns the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or other reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copy order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of the copy-right law.

TECHNICAL DATA

IMAGE PLACEMENT: [✓ IA] IB IIA IIB

REDUCTION RATIO: 14X

FILM STOCK:

Kodak
IMAGELINK™ HQ
MICROFILM
35 mm x 30.5 m · 100 ft
Sp 425
DEVELOP BEFORE 05/1996
1461-0341-015-03
CAT 840 3594
34-16

REEL 61

Volume 98

Tanglewood

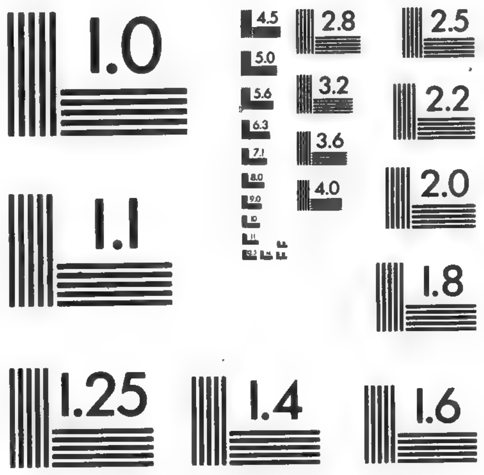
1958 - 1959

PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

1.0 mm

1.5 mm

2.0 mm

2.5 mm

A5

A4

A3

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P 1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

MULTIPLE EXPOSURES DUE TO COLOR VARIATIONS AND OVERLAPPING MATERIAL

VOLUME 98

Tanglewood

1958 - 1959

NATIONAL FLAT BACK SCRAP BOOKS

NATIONAL Made in U.S.A.

FULL DUCK COVER, MANILA PAPER
Without Index, Ruling, Paging or Title

NUMBER	THICKNESS	SIZE
1032	72 Leaves	12⅝ × 10¼
1033	72 Leaves	15 × 10
1034	100 Leaves	15 × 10
1036	90 Leaves	16 × 11⅜
1038	150 Leaves	16 × 11⅜
1039	90 Leaves	18 × 13
→ 1041	150 Leaves	18 × 13
1042	150 Leaves	25 × 20

To duplicate this book Order Number indicated by arrow

BLANK PAGE

[1]

News (e)
NEWBURYPORT, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 6,828

FEB 12 1958

Munch, Monteux Will Share Tanglewood Music in Summer

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra announces ~~plans for the~~ orchestra's 1958 Bershire festival at Tanglewood, Lennox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood will share the concerts with Dr. Munch conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (Aug, 8, 9, 10).

Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the theatre-concert hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the week end of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conduced by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6 in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral society with the Boston Symphony orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor.

Dr. Munch has invited Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the theatre-concert hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart).

The last four week ends by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brams); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the theatre-concert hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund of the Berkshire Music center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 42,585

MAR 1 1958

MUSIC

Young American Pianists Will Star at Tanglewood

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL—An imposing array of young American pianists will be among the list of guest artists scheduled to appear at the 1958 Berkshire festival. Dr. Charles Munch has invited Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario to provide the setting for a concerto list of works by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven.

For the seventh successive year, Pierre Monteux will visit Tanglewood as guest conductor. He will conduct one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music center at Tanglewood will be observed. The season will cover a period of six weeks. It will run from June 30 to Aug. 10.

Dr. Munch heads the music center. It is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony orchestra musicians.

Founded By Orchestra

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitwill offer this season, five rtments of study. This will de instrumental, orchestral, ber and choral music.

mong the directors will be zar de Carvelho, Richard in, William Kroll, Hugh Ross Aaron Copland. At in past s, Boris Goldovsky will direct lepartment of opera.

ul Fromm, president of the nm Music Foundation of Chi-, will sponsor a program for study of contemporary music.
Fromm program, which will resented for the second year, be part of the composition artment and will be under the ervision of Aaron Copland.

x chamber music concerts will given on Wednesday evenings ing the festival season in the atre-Concert hall. These cons, which benefit the Tangled Revolving Scholarship Fund the Berkshire Music center, be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, nd Aug. 6.

he highlights of the weekend certs will be programs of ic by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, ussy, Ravel, Wagner and thoven.

racts Music Lovers

ach year more and more peocome to Massachusetts to t this world famous music
ter. Those who have attended ularly find, with the passing each year, more and more structural development.

If one can think back to the early years, there comes to mind the original small and much restricted area. Today the whole panorama of the lovely hills of western Massachusetts opens into one of the most inspiring and cultural settings anywhere in the world.

Tanglewood is fast bringing to America the most active and largest seat of musical art anywhere. It seems fitting that several of the most noted and honored centers of musical education in the state should have a horizon that towers as a brilliant pinnacle to all that these centers stand for.

ROCHESTER CIVIC MUSIC NEWS February 25, 1958

1958 BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL AT TANGLEWOOD ANNOUNCED

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner [illegible] 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug[illegible] 10). Significant contempora[illegible]s will be performed in each s[illegible] The first two weekends of conce[illegible] the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20) and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel); August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Berkshire Cour
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

FEB 27 1958

Munch Lists 1958 Festival Programs

Boston Symphony at Lenox July 2 to August 10

Pierre Monteux Will Be Guest Conductor During Last Four Weeks.—Each Weekend Will Feature Work of Great Composers—Zino Francescatti to Be Heard

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox between July 2 and August 10.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week-end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week-ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti, who has a summer home in Monterey, will be heard during the week-end of July 25, 2 and 27.

Choral works to be performed a Tanglewood in the 1958 season in clude Brahms "Requiem" (week-en of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven' Ninth Symphony at the closing con cert of Sunday, August 10, both t be conducted by Charles Munch There will be a special performanc of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunda afternoon, July 6, in the Music She by the Harvard Glee Club and Rad cliffe Choral Society with the th Boston Symphony Orchestra an soloists (Adele Addison, sopran Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to hon or the Glee Club's 100th anniversar this year and the 25th anniversar of G. Wallace Woodworth, its co ductor. Dr. Munch has invited M Woodworth to conduct the concer which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted t music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years include six week-ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week-ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4, 5, 6 (Bach) and July 11, 12, 13 (Mozart). The last four week-ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are July 18, 19, 20, Brahms; July 25, 26 and 27, Debussy and Ravel; August 1, 2 and 3, Wagner; and August 8, 9 and 10, Beethoven.

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts which benefit the Tanglewoo Revolving Scholarship Fund of th Berkshire Music Center, will be giv en on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug ust 6.

Information for the Berkshi estival at Tanglewood is availab rom the Festival Office, Symphon all, Boston 15.

Dr. Munch Lists Program Highlights For 1958 Festival

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July and Aug. 10.

Six Piano Soloists

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. The concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 46[illegible] Mozart, on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July [illegible] which will be held in the [illegible] Foss and Mr. Lip[illegible] soloists in Mozart's [illegible] Concerto in E-flat (K. [illegible] During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Zino Francescatti

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club, this year celebrating its 100th anniversary, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

Festival Chorus

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4, and the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Sumphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,541

MAR 12 1958

[1]

News (e)
NEWBURYPORT, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 6,328

FEB 12 1958

Munch, Monteux Will Share Tanglewood Music in Summer

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra announces ~~plans for the~~ orchestra's 1958 Bershire festival at Tanglewood, Lennox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood will share the concerts with Dr. Munch conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10).

Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the theatre-concert hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the week end of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conduced by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral society with the Boston Symphony orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor.

Dr. Munch has invited Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the theatre-concert hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart).

The last four week ends by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brams); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the theatre-concert hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund of the Berkshire Music center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

ROCHESTER CIVIC MUSIC NEWS February 25, 195

1958 BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL AT TANGLEWOO

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20) and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th worth, invited the cor first w voted

Anniver
The followi includ
Friday and S first t a sm
Conc and four Sym
Shed
July
Aug
8-9-
S be ing
Cor give August

[redacted]

Dr. Munch Lists Program Highlights For 1958 Festival

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July and Aug. 10.

Six Piano Soloists

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. The concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart, on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July [illegible], which will be held in the [illegible] Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. [illegible]). During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Zino Francescatti

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club, this year celebrating its 100th anniversary, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm. bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

Festival Chorus

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4, and the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Sumphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

(e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,541

MAR 12 1958

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 42,535

MAR 1 1958

MUSIC

Young American Pianists Will Star at Tanglewood

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL—An imposing array of young American pianists will be among the list of guest artists scheduled to appear at the 1958 Berkshire festival. Dr. Charles Munch has invited Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario to provide the setting for a concerto list of works by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven.

For the seventh successive year, Pierre Monteux will visit Tanglewood as guest conductor. He will conduct one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music center at Tanglewood will be observed. The season will cover a period of six weeks. It will run from June 30 to Aug. 10.

Dr. Munch heads the music center. It is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony orchestra musicians.

Founded By Orchestra

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season, five departments of study. This will include instrumental, orchestral, chamber and choral music.

Among the directors will be Eleazar de Carvelho, Richard Burgin, William Kroll, Hugh Ross and Aaron Copland. At in past years, Boris Goldovsky will direct the department of opera.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the Theatre-Concert hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6.

The highlights of the week-end concerts will be programs of music by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven.

Attracts Music Lovers

Each year more and more people come to Massachusetts to visit this world famous music center. Those who have attended regularly find, with the passing of each year, more and more structural development.

If one can think back to the early years, there comes to mind the original small and much restricted area. Today the whole panorama of the lovely hills of western Massachusetts opens into one of the most inspiring and cultural settings anywhere in the world.

Tanglewood is fast bringing to America the most active and largest seat of musical art anywhere. It seems fitting that several of the most noted and honored centers of musical education in the state should have a horizon that towers as a brilliant pinnacle to all that these centers stand for.

Berkshire Cour
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

FEB 27 1958

Munch Lists 1958 Festival Programs

Boston Symphony at Lenox July 2 to August 10

Pierre Monteux Will Be Guest Conductor During Last Four Weeks.—Each Weekend Will Feature Work of Great Composers.—Zino Francescatti to Be Heard.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox between July 2 and August 10.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week-end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week-ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti, who has a summer home in Monterey, will be heard during the week-end of July 25, 26 and 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week-end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week-end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week-ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week-ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4, 5, 6 (Bach) and July 11, 12, 13 (Mozart). The last four week-ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are July 18, 19, 20, Brahms; July 25, 26 and 27, Debussy and Ravel; August 1, 2 and 3, Wagner; and August 8, 9 and 10, Beethoven.

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

[21]

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,541
FEB 18 1958

Tanglewood Festival Opens July 2, Dr. Munch Announces

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced yesterday that the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, will take place between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Music Center Season

At the same time he announced that the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, training school for young musicians, will open its season June 30 and continue until Aug. 10 when the Festival ends.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner, Beethoven. Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to perform piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25, 26, 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" the weekend of July 18, 19, 20, and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists, Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass, to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six Weekends

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4, 5, 6 (Bach), and July 11, 12, 13 (Mozart.) The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18, 19, 20 (Brahms); July 25, 26, 27 (Debussy and Ravel); Aug. 1, 2, 3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8, 9, 10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23 30 and Aug. 6.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788
FEB 16 1958

Young American Pianists To Perform at Tanglewood

Fleischer, Foss, Istomin, Janis, Lipkin and Pennario Invited for Concerts Next Summer

Boston, Feb. 15—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Following last season's successful pyan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the Theater Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

American Pianists

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's ninth symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B-minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor.

Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Dates Arranged

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel); Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner), and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

News (e)
RINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. [illegible]
FEB 10 1958

1958 Berkshire Festival Program Is Announce

Young American Pianists to Be Featured at Ta glewood This Summer; Adele Addison to Soloist for Bach's B-Minor Mass

Boston, Feb. 10 — Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his 7th annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week-end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the theater concert hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

ADELE ADDISON

Young Pianists

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concerts by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmainoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

The noted violinist Zino Franc catti will be heard during weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be perform at Tanglewood in the 1958 sea include Brahms "Requie (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), Beethoven's Ninth Symphony the closing concert of Sund Aug. 10, both to be conducted Charles Munch. There will b special performance of Bach' Minor Mass on Sunday afterno July 6, in the Music Shed by Harvard Glee Club and Radcl Choral Society with the Bos Symphony Orchestra and solo (Adele Addison, soprano; Eu Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, ten Donald Gramm, bass) to ho the Glee Club's 100th annivers this year and the 25th anniv sary of G. Wallace Woodwor its conductor. Dr. Munch has vited Mr. Woodworth to cond the concert, which will be p of the first week-end series concerts devoted to music Bach.

Festival Dates

The dates of the Berksh Festival, following a pattern previous years, include six we ends of concerts on Friday Saturday evenings at 8.30 Sunday afternoons at 2.30. T first two week-ends of conce are by a small orchestra in t Theater-Concert Hall on Ju 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12- (Mozart). The last four we ends by the full Boston Sy phony Orchestra in the Mus Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms July 25-26-27 (Debussy a Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); a Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music conce will be given on Wednesday e nings during the Festival sea in the Theatre-Concert H These concerts, which benefit Tanglewood Revolving Schola ship Fund of the Berksh Music Center, will be given July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug.

Ticket information for t Berkshire Festival at Tangl wood is available from the Fest val Office, Symphony Hall, Bos ton 15.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271
FEB 16 1958

1958 Berkshire Festival At Tanglewood Announced

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchesrta's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Bethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporar yworks will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the [illegible] Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, [illegible], Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Bethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher Lukas Foss, [illegible], Byron Janis, [illegible] Lipkin and Leonard Pannario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms 'Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Bethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre - Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner), and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292
FEB 13 [illegible]

Plans Announced For Tanglewood Concert

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem' (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a [illegible] in the Theater-Concert [illegible] on July 4-5-6 (Bach) [illegible] July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The [illegible] four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Augus t8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159
FEB 28 1958

~~Dr~~ Munch Announces Tanglewood Schedule

Berkshire Festival Series Will Open July 2

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27,); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week-ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of t h e [illegible] Festival performing pi[illegible] Bach, Mozart, Brah[illegible]nioff and Beetho[illegible] pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard PennarhT.oid vioil nstn ZrF -naTienoet oi io. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25, 26, 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr Munch has invited Mr Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revovling Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

22

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,541
FEB 18 1958

Tanglewood Festival Opens July 2, Dr. Munch Announces

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced yesterday that the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, will take place between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Music Center Season

At the same time he announced that the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, training school for young musicians, will open its season June 30 and continue until Aug. 10 when the Festival ends.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner, Beethoven. Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to perform piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25, 26, 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" the weekend of July 18, 19, 20, and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists, Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass, to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six Weekends

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4, 5, 6 (Bach), and July 11, 12, 13 (Mozart.) The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18, 19, 20 (Brahms); July 25, 26, 27 (Debussy and Ravel); Aug. 1, 2, 3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8, 9, 10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23 30, and Aug. 6.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788
FEB 16 1958

Young American Pianists To Perform at Tanglewood

Fleischer, Foss, Istomin, Janis, Lipkin and Pennario Invited for Concerts Next Summer

Boston, Feb. 15—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Following last season's successful pyan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the Theater Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

American Pianists

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's ninth symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B-minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor.

Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Dates Arranged

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two week ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel); Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner), and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

News (e)
RINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
FEB 10 1958

1958 Berkshire Festival Program Is Announced

Young American Pianists to Be Featured at Tanglewood This Summer; Adele Addison to Be Soloist for Bach's B-Minor Mass

Boston, Feb. 10 — Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his 7th annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week-end will feature the works of the great composers including

ADELE ADDISON

Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the theater concert hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Young Pianists

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concerts by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmainoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week-end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Festival Dates

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six week-ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 and Sunday afternoons at 2.30. The first two week-ends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms), July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271
FEB 16 1958

1958 Berkshire Festival At Tanglewood Announced

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchesrta's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Bethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporar yworks will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the [illegible] Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Bethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms 'Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Bethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre - Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292
FEB 13 [illegible]

lans Announced For anglewood Concert

harles Munch, Music Direc- of the Boston Symphony Orestra announces plans for the chestra's 1958 Berkshire Fesal at Tanglewood, Lenox, ass., between July 2 and Aust 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monux, making his seventh annual isit to Tanglewood, will share he concerts with Dr. Munch, onducting one conc[illegible] weekly uring the last four [illegible] he Festival. Following last [illegible]on's successful plan, each weeknd will feature the works of he great composers including rahms (July 18, 19, 20); Deussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 7), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); nd Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). gnificant contemporary works ill be performed in each series. he first two weekends of conerts in the Theater-Concert all by a small Orchestra will e devoted to music of Bach and ozart and will be conducted y Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited everal outstanding young merican pianists to appear in he concerts of the Berkshire estival performing piano con[illegible] Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Ra[illegible] and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleis[illegible], Luk[illegible] Eugene Istomin, Byr[illegible], Seymour Lipkin [illegible] Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of Ju[illegible]5-26-27.

Choral works to be performed t Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July [illegible] in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor, Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, [illegible] a pattern of previous [illegible] six week ends of conce[illegible]day and Saturday [illegible]30 and Sunday a[illegible] 30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a [illegible] in the Theater-C[illegible] on July 4-5-6 (Bach[illegible] 11-12-13 (Mozart). [illegible] four weekends by the ful[illegible] Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Augus t8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159
FEB 28 1958

Dr Munch Announces Tanglewood Schedule

Berkshire Festival Series Will Open July 2

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27,); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week-ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the [illegible] Festival performing pia[illegible] Bach, Mozart, Brahm[illegible]nioff and Beetho[illegible] pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard PennarhT.oid vioil nstn ZrF -naTienoet oi io. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25, 26, 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (week end of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will [illegible] a special performance of Bac[illegible] B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr Munch has invited Mr Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first week end series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revovling Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

[3]

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
Circ. D. 97,224 - S. 143,181

JUN 29 1958

Tanglewood Will Open This Week

Complete programs for the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been announced as follows:

Wednesday, July 2—Chamber music concert, Budapest String Quartet, Haydn, Bartok, Beethoven; theater at 8:30.

Friday, July 4—Charles Munch and members of Boston Symphony, four Bach suites; theater at 8:30.

Saturday, July 5—Munch, Boston Symphony in Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor, Lukas Foss soloist; "The Art Of The Fugue," Bach, arranged for strings; theater at 8:30.

Sunday, July 6—Bach B Minor Mass, Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society, Boston Symphony, G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor; shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 9—Chamber music concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Beethoven, Faure, Mendelssohn; theater at 8:30.

Friday, July 11—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Musical Joke," Sinfonia Concertante, "Linz" Symphony, Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale soloists; theater at 8:30.

Saturday, July 12—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Two-Piano Concerto (K365), Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss soloists, Serenade No. 10 for winds, Symphony No. 40; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 13—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Haffner" Symphony, Piano Concerto in C Major, Seymour Lipkin soloist; Kyrie (K341), Graduale (K273), Mass (K317), Hugh Ross conductor; theater at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 16—Chamber music concert, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, music of Flanders and Spain; theater at 8:30.

Main Series Opens July 18

Friday, July 18—Opening of main concert series: Munch, Boston Symphony, Brahms Serenade No. 1, Copland Variations for Orchestra, Brahms Symphony 4.

Saturday, July 19—Koussevitzky Memorial Concert: Brahms Requiem, Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm, Festival Chorus, Munch and Boston Symphony; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 20—Pierre Monteux, Boston Symphony, Brahms "Academic Festival" Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1, Leon Fleisher soloist, Stravinsky "Petrouchka"; shed at 2:30.

Friday, July 25—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Glinka "Russlan and Ludmilla" Overture, Tschaikowsky Symphony No. 4, Milhaud "Eumenides" Overture, Debussy Three Nocturnes, Ravel "La Valse"; shed at 8:30.

Saturday, July 26—Munch, Boston Symphony, Stravinsky Canticum Sacrum, Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto, Byron Janis soloist, Debussy "La Mer"; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 27—Munch, Boston Symphony, Bartok Music For Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Ravel "Daphnis And Chloe" Second Suite, Tschaikowsky Violin Concerto, Zino Francescatti soloist; shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 30—Chamber music concert, Kroll Quartet, Mozart, Blackwood, Brahms; theater at 8:30.

Wagner Weekend

Friday, August 1—Munch, Boston Symphony, Wagner "Meistersinger" Prelude, "Siegfried" Idyll, Prelude and Love - Death, "Tristan And Isolde," Immolation Scene, Piston Viola Concerto, Joseph de Pasquale soloist; shed at 8:30.

Saturday, August 2—Munch, Boston Symphony, Wagner "Tannhaueser" Overture and Bacchanale, Liszt Piano Concerto No. 1, Leonard Pennario soloist, Vaughan Williams Symphony No. 8, Wagner "Siegfried's Rhine Journey"; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, August 3—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Wagner excerpts "Flying Dutchman," Lohengrin," "Walkuere," "Parsifal," "Tannhaueser," "Rienzi;" shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, August 6—Chamber music concert, Kroll Quartet, Haydn, Bartok, Beethoven; theater at 8:30.

'Parade' Opens Last Week

Thursday, August 7—Tanglewood On Parade, Arthur Fiedler, Boston Pops Orchestra.

Friday, August 8—Munch, Boston Symphony, Honegger Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, Beethoven Symphony No. 7 and Piano Concerto No. 5, Eugene Istomin soloist; shed at 8:30.

Saturday, August 9—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Beethoven music from "Prometheus" and Violin Concerto, Berl Senofsky soloist Hindemith "Nobilissima Visione," Beethoven "Leoenore" Overture No. 3; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, August 10—Munch, Boston Sympohny, Walton "Johannesburg" Festival Overture, Beethoven Ninth Symphony, Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff, Donald Gramm, Festival Chorus; shed at 2:30.

For tickets and information one may inquire at the Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, phone Lenox 600.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
Circ. D. 212,879 - S. 283,351

JUN 22 1958

FESTIVAL Of Music Set

July 2-August 10 At Lenox —Berkshire Program Hefty With Talent

THIS YEAR'S Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's "B Minor Mass" Sunday, July 6, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff.

Violinists will include Zino Francescatti and Berl Sonofsky, Viola Players, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale.

De Pasquale will be soloist the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate theater-concert hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to friends of the center, including student performance of orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

HARTFORD CONN. TIMES

JUN 23 1958

At Tanglewood

Berkshire Festival Sets 6 Soloists

Soloists for this Summer's Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will include six young American pianists on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

* * *

THE FOUR following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Violinist Zino Francescatti will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

* * *

CHORAL WORKS will include a special performance of Bach's B minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the last 25 years, winn conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

* * *

THE MUSIC of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, included by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fuue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe"; Suite No. 2; by Waner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 7.

ALTAMONT, N. Y.
ENTERPRISE
Circ. W. 3,150

JUN 27 1958

Berkshire Musical Festival

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Pierre Monteux, veteran director, will conduct concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival by the Boston Symphony during the forthcoming season which opens July 2 in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., continuing through August 10. Other conductors in certain programs: G. Hugh Ross, known as conductor of the Schola Cantorum, New York, and G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe Glee clubs. "Tanglewood on Parade" on August 7 will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops orchestra.

Concerts in Tanglewood take place in the Theater Concert hall, setting for chamber music programs and operas, and in the great Music Shed, where thousands can be accommodated. Soloists engaged for the 1958 season: Violinists Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky, Ruth Posselt; violinist Josepf De Pasquale; pianists Leon Fleisher, Eugene Istomin, Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and singers Margaret Harshaw and Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and Donald Gramm, basso. Composers represented in the several concerts: Bach, Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Brahms, Beethoven and Liszt.

Approximately 5,000 young musicians have received training in Tanglewood and many of the alumni now are on rosters on America's symphony orchestras and opera companies. Others are members of faculties of principal music schools.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

FEB 20 1958

Boston Symphony Announces 1958 Summer Plans

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Bostony Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Langlewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Sunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
PRESS
Circ. D. 37,128 - S. 27,530

FEB 16 1958

This Week In Music

by William McMahon

It was South Jersey night at the Academy of Music Friday evening, when a capacity audience gave a rousing ovation to Camden and Ocean City tenor Walter Fredericks after a thrilling 'Vesta la Gubba" in the first act of Leoncavallo's 'Il Pagliacci." And it was a rush back stage after the performance as friends of the popular tenor from our sister resort, where he makes his summer home, and another crowd from his Camden neighborhood crowded through the "no admittance" door to offer congratulations.

It is understood a sizeable group from Ocean City piled into sort of a car pool to make sure their favorite son got the reception he deserved. Fredericks is one of the headliners at the annual summer concerts on Garden Pier here, as well as a regular in the summer services of an Ocean City church and in local hotel concerts.

It was to have been a double-barreled night for Ocean City in that another of its singing sons, Thomas Perkins, baritone, was to have done the role of Silvo. However, last minute illness kept him from appearing and a substitute was used. Perkins became victim of the still floating virus which has been plaguing the district.

DOUBLE BILL

The performance was given by the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company in a double bill with the perennial "Cavalleria Rusticana." Director was Vernon Hammond, making his only appearance as a director with the Philadelphia Grand this season. Regular conductor Giuseppe Bamboschek did the chores for 'Cavalleria."

Sharing honors with Fredericks was Dolores Mari as Nedda, giving to the role some of the life it needs to make it believable. Philip Maero as Tonio seemed to be having trouble all night with a voice which seemed a bit too husky.

Fredericks, putting considerable spirit into the role, was given several rounds of applause during the performance, but the real ovation was after the 'Vesta," in which he soared into the high ranges with firmness and conviction. His final line of the opera "It is finished," usually lost, was perfectly timed and gave the opera the proper "punch line" before lowering of the curtain. This is the role with which Fredericks captured audiences in San Francisco and which has placed him in the hall of fame with the great Canios, including Caruso.

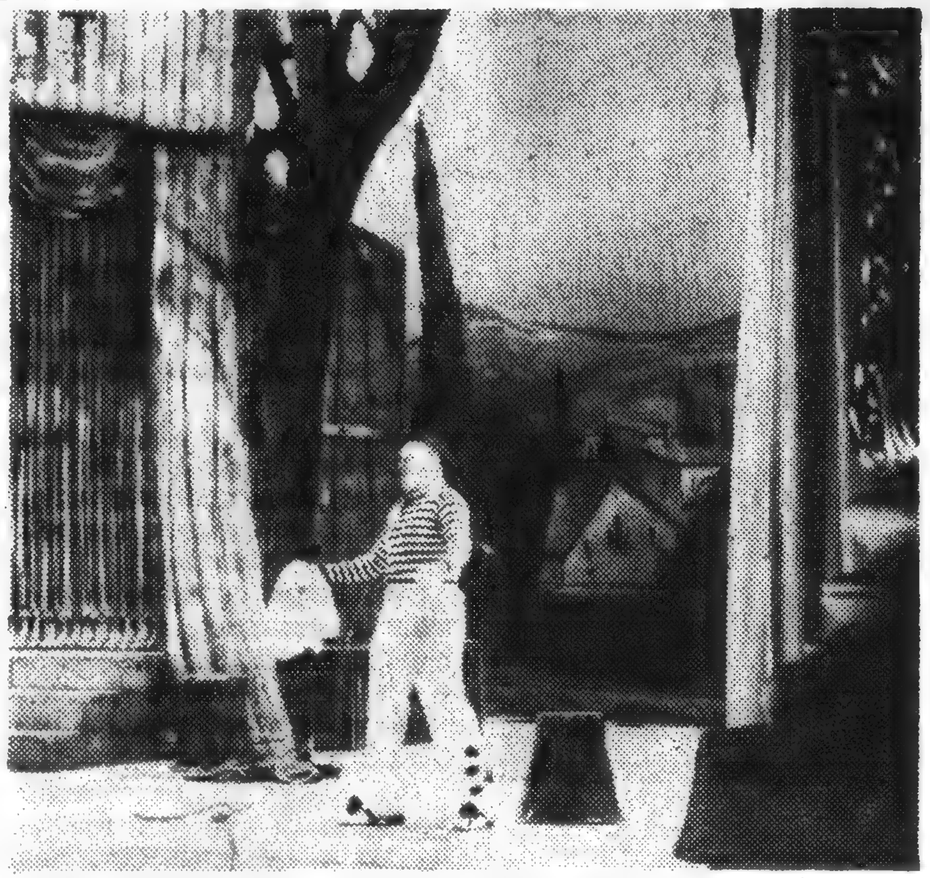
After the end of the current opera and concert season, Fredericks plans to again return to Ocean City where he perfects his many roles, combining work with daily hours on the beach.

THE MISSING AUDIENCE

A handful of resort faithful turned out for the visit of the Obernkirchen Children's Choir in the High School auditorium, the past week. The rest of the ticket holders of the Community Concerts series just didn't give a hoot. A part of the missing audience no doubt felt they had done their "civic duty" by buying the tickets in the first place; the remainder must have found TV commercials more interesting.

At any rate it was a poor showing for such a wonderful organization which has been breaking house records in every other part of the country and it must have been rather discouraging to the youngsters. But this seems to be the history locally of anything demanding a higher mentality than minstrel shows and bingo games.

Whether this will have any effect upon continuation of the series is not known. A part of the Community Concerts planners have already asked a tentative "hold" on a couple of outstanding musical attractions. Others in the organization are talking about a reappraisal of the entire effort.



STARRING IN the role of "Canio," the clown, in the Philadelphia Opera Company's production of "Pagliacci" at the Academy of Music Friday night was Walter Fredericks, of Camden and Ocean City. He is shown above in the white clown costume. (Leone Photo)

— — —

Harry Chazin, concertmaster for William Madden at Garden Pier, and long identified with the Ice Capades orchestra, is undergoing a series of operations in the Graduate Hospital, 19th and Lombard Sts., Philadelphia. Cards would be welcomed.

— — —

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony, announced last week the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., would be held between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Pierre Monteaux will make his seventh annual visit as guest conductor. A number of young American pianists have been invited to appear. They will include Leon Fleisher, Eugene Istomin, Burton Janis and Seymour Lipkin.

— — —

"LA FORZA" NEXT

"La Forza del Destino", Verdi's powerful masterpiece of intrigue and revenge, is next on the program of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Co. and slated for Friday evening, Feb. 28, at the Academy of Music in the Quaker City.

Baritone Cesare Bardelli, whose vocal and histrionic powers have earned him an ever increasing operatic audience, will sing the role of the vengeful brother, Don Carlo. Soprano Herva Nelli will be Donna Leonara, and Met tenor Kurt Baum will be Don Alvaro. In the supporting cast will be Maria Doulis of Atlantic City, who recently made her debut as a principal with the company.

— — —

The scheduled debut of the Atlantic City Symphonette Feb. 27 has been cancelled due to some sponsor troubles. However, director Harold Ferrin stated that the organization has been formed and is going to keep its rehearsals going with an eye on future operations, now in the planning stage.

— — —

EMIL GILELS, Russia's foremost pianist and the first Soviet artist to break the cold war sound barrier when he made his American debut in 1955, will be soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the concerts slated this weekend at the Academy.

Conductor Eugene Ormandy will interrupt his mid-winter vacation in Arizona to return to the podium for this performance. The Russian pianist will give his first Philadelphia performance of Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in G major, for piano and orchestra.

— — —

Musical Notebook — The Pleasantville High School will attempt the musical, "Meet Me in St. Louis", as its annual offering this year under direction of Benjamin Censuello . . . ACHS' student revue "Co-Ed Capers", combining the Drama Guild and music organizations of the school, was held last night . . . The local chapter, American Guild of Organists, is preparing a series of Lenten concerts. Definite announcements next week.

TOPEKA, KANS.
STATE JOURNAL
[illegible] 63,269

[illegible] 1958

As a tribute to George Washington, members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, attired in costumes of that period, will serve as hostesses in a special Washington's day program at New York City's Jumel mansion Saturday, February 22. This beautifully preserved Georgian colonial structure served as General Washington's headquarters during the fall of 1776, according to the New York Convention and Visitors bureau.

* * *

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

* * *

The Positano Art workshop in Italy announces a European summer art tour which imaginatively combines seeing and doing. After six years of experience with artists and tourists from all over the United States, the workshop has planned 56 days of selective sightseeing followed by a Mediterranean holiday for painting, scultpure and mosaics in the workshop studios.

* * *

Descriptions of the top sightseeing attractions in Manhattan, the Bronx, Queens, Brooklyn and Staten island are listed in the latest edition of the Visitors Guide to New York City, compiled annually by the New York Convention and Visitors bureau to assist visitors in planning their vacations in New York City.

One of the most popular of the Bureau's many folders, it contains a detailed four-color map on the reverse side, which is designed expressly for the visitor who is not familiar with the locations of New York's hundreds of sightseeing possibilities. Distributed free upon request, this handy guide may be obtained by writing or visiting the bureau's Official Visitor Information center at 90 East Forty-second Street, New York 17, New York, open daily from 9 am to 6 pm.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 271,019

FEB 18 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival to Open July 2

Highlights of the 1958 Berkshire Festival, which opens July 2, will include week-ends devoted to the works of special composers and emphasis upon young American pianists as soloists. The Festival, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch, will operate at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for its usual six-week season, closing Aug. 10.

Included in the list of keyboard artists scheduled for appearances are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week-end of July 25.

Monteux to Conduct

The veteran maestro Pierre Monteux will share the Tanglewood podium with Munch for one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. The first two week-ends will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart with the concerts held in the 1200-seat Theater-Concert Hall. Beginning July 18, the events take place in the 6000-seat Music Shed.

The music of Brahms will be featured for the initial week-end in the Music Shed. Debussy and Ravel are the composers for July 25, 26, 27; Wagner, Aug. 1, 2, 3; Beethoven, Aug. 8, 9, 10.

Choral works to be heard include the Brahms "Requiem," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and a special performance of Bach's Mass in B Minor to be held in the Music Shed, Sunday afternoon, July 6. The Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, together with the Bostonians and soloists, will honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and the 25th anniversary of its conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth. On this occasion Woodworth will conduct the event.

For further information, contact the Festival Office at Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

ATLANTA, GA.
Journal & Constitution
Circ. S. 493,042

MAR 16 1958

Berkshire Festival To Start July 2

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will begin July 2.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share conducting responsibilities with Dr. Charles Munch, musical director of the orchestra. Composers featured during the six-week series will be Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven.

The festival will continue through Aug. 10.

KANSAS CITY, MO.
STAR
Circ. D. 344,070 - S. 361,620

FEB 16 1958

Musical Vignettes

JOSEPH KAYE, from New York sources, reports the influx of Russian artists is continuing. Word comes from the Sol Hurok office that next season three more artists from the Soviet Union will make their American debuts. They are Vladmir Ashkenazy, pianist; Igor Besrodni, violinist, and Zara Doloukhanova, described as coloratura mezzo soprano. Ashkenazy, who is only 21, will appear first with the Washington National Symphony orchestra. All three will tour extensively. Besrodni is 27, and considered the outstanding member of the younger generation of Soviet violinists.

Through the wintry gusts that have beset the East there appear signs of summer in the announcements concerning Tanglewood. The date of the Grand Festival is July 2-August 10. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor with Dr. Munch. The choral works to be performed will be the Brahms "Requiem," the Bach B Minor Mass, and Beethoven's 9th Symphony will be on the closing program.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

FEB 16 1958

Berkshire Festival

Partial plans for the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in the town of Lenox, are at hand from Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Festival will run from July 2 through Aug. 10.

The first two weekends will consist of music from Bach and Mozart, for small orchestra, to be conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's B minor Mass will be conducted July 6 by G. Wallace Woodworth, with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

The concerts by the full orchestra will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux, of whom the latter will take one program a week. Music by great composers will be featured: Brahms, July 18, 19 and 20; Debussy and [illegible] July 25, [illegible] 27; Wagner, Aug. [illegible] Beethoven, [illegible] ending with the Ninth Symphony.

DAYTON, OHIO
JOURNAL-HERALD
Circ. D. 93,290 - S. 182,238

FEB 15 1958

Boston Orchestra In Berkshires

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, announces that the 1958 Berkshire Festival will open July 2 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., and come to a close Aug. 10.

Pierre Monteux, sharing concerts with Dr. Munch, will concerts with Dr. Munch, will conduct one concert weekly during the four final weeks of the festival.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts. They are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

[4]

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
PRESS
Circ. D. 37,128 - S. 27,530

FEB 16 1958

This Week In Music

by William McMahon

It was South Jersey night at the Academy of Music Friday evening, when a capacity audience gave a rousing ovation to Camden and Ocean City tenor Walter Fredericks after a thrilling 'Vesta la Gubba" in the first act of Leoncavallo's 'Il Pagliacci." And it was a rush back stage after the performance as friends of the popular tenor from our sister resort, where he makes his summer home, and another crowd from his Camden neighborhood crowded through the "no admittance" door to offer congratulations.

It is understood a sizeable group from Ocean City piled into sort of a car pool to make sure their favorite son got the reception he deserved. Fredericks is one of the headliners at the annual summer concerts on Garden Pier here, as well as a regular in the summer services of an Ocean City church and in local hotel concerts.

It was to have been a double-barreled night for Ocean City in that another of its singing sons, Thomas Perkins, baritone, was to have done the role of Silvo. However, last minute illness kept him from appearing and a substitute was used. Perkins became victim of the still floating virus which has been plaguing the district.

DOUBLE BILL

The performance was given by the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company in a double bill with the perennial "Cavalleria Rusticana." Director was Vernon Hammond, making his only appearance as a director with the Philadelphia Grand this season. Regular conductor Giuseppe Bamboschek did the chores for 'Cavalleria."

Sharing honors with Fredericks was Dolores Mari as Nedda, giving to the role some of the life it needs to make it believable. Philip Maero as Tonio seemed to be having trouble all night with a voice which seemed a bit too husky.

Fredericks, putting considerable spirit into the role, was given several rounds of applause during the performance, but the real ovation was after the 'Vesta," in which he soared into the high ranges with firmness and conviction. His final line of the opera "It is finished," usually lost, was perfectly timed and gave the opera the proper "punch line" before lowering of the curtain. This is the role with which Fredericks captured audiences in San Francisco and which has placed him in the hall of fame with the great Canios, including Caruso.

After the end of the current opera and concert season, Fredericks plans to again return to Ocean City where he perfects his many roles, combining work with daily hours on the beach.

THE MISSING AUDIENCE

A handful of resort faithful turned out for the visit of the Obernkirchen Children's Choir in the High School auditorium, the past week. The rest of the ticket holders of the Community Concerts series just didn't give a hoot. A part of the missing audience no doubt felt they had done their "civic duty" by buying the tickets in the first place; the remainder must have found TV commercials more interesting.

At any rate it was a poor showing for such a wonderful organization which has been breaking house records in every other part of the country and it must have been rather discouraging to the youngsters. But this seems to be the history locally of anything demanding a higher mentality than minstrel shows and bingo games.

Whether this will have any effect upon continuation of the series is not known. A part of the Community Concerts planners have already asked a tentative "hold" on a couple of outstanding musical attractions. Others in the organization are talking about a reappraisal of the entire effort.

— — —

Harry Chazin, concertmaster for William Madden at Garden Pier, and long identified with the Ice Capades orchestra, is undergoing a series of operations in the Graduate Hospital, 19th and Lombard Sts., Philadelphia. Cards would be welcomed.

— — —

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony, announced last week the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., would be held between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Pierre Monteaux will make his seventh annual visit as guest conductor. A number of young American pianists have been invited to appear. They will include Leon Fleisher, Eugene Istomin, Burton Janis and Seymour Lipkin.

— — —

"LA FORZA" NEXT

"La Forza del Destino", Verdi's powerful masterpiece of intrigue and revenge, is next on the program of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Co. and slated for Friday evening, Feb. 28, at the Academy of Music in the Quaker City.

Baritone Cesare Bardelli, whose vocal and histrionic powers have earned him an ever increasing operatic audience, will sing the role of the vengeful brother, Don Carlo. Soprano Herva Nelli will be Donna Leonara, and Met tenor Kurt Baum will be Don Alvaro.

In the supporting cast will be Maria Doulis of Atlantic City, who recently made her debut as a principal with the company.

— — —

The scheduled debut of the Atlantic City Symphonette Feb. 27 has been cancelled due to some sponsor troubles. However, director Harold Ferrin stated that the organization has been formed and is going to keep its rehearsals going with an eye on future operations, now in the planning stage.

— — —

EMIL GILELS, Russia's foremost pianist and the first Soviet artist to break the cold war sound barrier when he made his American debut in 1955, will be soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the concerts slated this week-end at the Academy.

Conductor Eugene Ormandy will interrupt his mid-winter vacation in Arizona to return to the podium for this performance. The Russian pianist will give his first Philadelphia performance of Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in G major, for piano and orchestra.

— — —

Musical Notebook — The Pleasantville High School will attempt the musical, "Meet Me in St. Louis", as its annual offering this year under direction of Benjamin Censuello . . . ACHS' student revue "Co-Ed Capers", combining the Drama Guild and music organizations of the school, was held last night . . . The local chapter, American Guild of Organists, is preparing a series of Lenten concerts. Definite announcements next week .

STARRING IN the role of "Canio," the clown, in the Philadelphia Opera Company's production of "Pagliacci" at the Academy of Music Friday night was Walter Fredericks, of Camden and Ocean City. He is shown above in the white clown costume. (Leone Photo)

TOPEKA, KANS.
STATE JOURNAL
Circ. D 63,269

FEB 15 1958

[illegible]AVEL

As a tribute to George Washington, members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, attired in costumes of that period, will serve as hostesses in a special Washington's day program at New York City's Jumel mansion Saturday, February 22. This beautifully preserved Georgian colonial structure served as General Washington's headquarters during the fall of 1776, according to the New York Convention and Visitors bureau.

* * *

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

* * *

The Positano Art workshop in Italy announces a European summer art tour which imaginatively combines seeing and doing. After six years of experience with artists and tourists from all over the United States, the workshop has planned 56 days of selective sightseeing followed by a Mediterranean holiday for painting, scultpure and mosaics in the workshop studios.

* * *

Descriptions of the top sightseeing attractions in Manhattan, the Bronx, Queens, Brooklyn and Staten island are listed in the latest edition of the Visitors Guide to New York City, compiled annually by the New York Convention and Visitors bureau to assist visitors in planning their vacations in New York City.

One of the most popular of the Bureau's many folders, it contains a detailed four-color map on the reverse side, which is designed expressly for the visitor who is not familiar with the locations of New York's hundreds of sightseeing possibilities. Distributed free upon request, this handy guide may be obtained by writing or visiting the bureau's Official Visitor Information center at 90 East Forty-second Street, New York 17, New York, open daily from 9 am to 6 pm.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 271,019

FEB 18 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival to Open July 2

Highlights of the 1958 Berkshire Festival, which opens July 2, will include week-ends devoted to the works of special composers and emphasis upon young American pianists as soloists. The Festival, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch, will operate at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for its usual six-week season, closing Aug. 10.

Included in the list of keyboard artists scheduled for appearances are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week-end of July 25.

Monteux to Conduct

The veteran maestro Pierre Monteux will share the Tanglewood podium with Munch for one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. The first two week-ends will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart with the concerts held in the 1200-seat Theater-Concert Hall. Beginning July 18, the events take place in the 6000-seat Music Shed.

The music of Brahms will be featured for the initial week-end in the Music Shed. Debussy and Ravel are the composers for July 25, 26, 27; Wagner, Aug. 1, 2, 3; Beethoven, Aug. 8, 9, 10.

Choral works to be heard include the Brahms "Requiem," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and a special performance of Bach's Mass in B Minor to be held in the Music Shed, Sunday afternoon, July 6. The Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, together with the Bostonians and [illegible] will honor the Glee C[illegible] [illegible]0th anniversary and th[illegible] anniversary of its conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth. On this occasion Woodworth will conduct the event.

For further information, contact the Festival Office at Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

KANSAS CITY, MO.
STAR
Circ. D. 344,070 - S. 361,620

FEB 16 1958

Musical Vignettes

JOSEPH KAYE, from New York sources, reports the influx of Russian artists is continuing. Word comes from the Sol Hurok office that next season three more artists from the Soviet Union will make their American debuts. They are Vladmir Ashkenazy, pianist; Igor Besrodni, violinist, and Zara Doleukhanova, described as coloratura mezzo soprano. Ashkenazy, who is only 21, will appear first with the Washington National Symphony orchestra. All three will tour extensively. Besrodni is 27, and considered the outstanding member of the younger generation of Soviet violinists.

Through the wintry gusts that have beset the East there appear signs of summer in the announcements concerning Tanglewood. The date of the Grand Festival is July 2-August 10. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor with Dr. Munch. The choral works to be performed will be the Brahms "Requiem," the Bach B Minor Mass, and Beethoven's 9th Symphony will be on the closing program.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

FEB 16 1958

Berkshire Festival

Partial plans for the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in the town of Lenox, are at hand from Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Festival will run from July 2 through Aug. 10.

The first two weekends will consist of music from Bach and Mozart, for small orchestra, to be conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's B minor Mass will be conducted July 6 by G. Wallace Woodworth, with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

The concerts by the full orchestra will be [illegible] by Dr. Munch [illegible] [illegible]nteux, of whom [illegible] [illegible]ke one program a we[illegible] [illegible] great composers [illegible] [illegible]red: Brahms, July 18, 19 a[illegible] [illegible] Debussy and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and 27; Wagner, Au[illegible] [illegible] and Beethoven, Aug. 8, 9 and [illegible] [illegible]ing with the Ninth Symphony.

ATLANTA, GA.
Journal & Constitution
Circ. S. 493,042

MAR 16 1958

Berkshire Festival To Start July 2

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will begin July 2.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share conducting responsibilities with Dr. Charles Munch, musical director of the orchestra. Composers featured during the six-week series will be Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven.

The festival will continue through Aug. 10.

DAYTON, OHIO
JOURNAL-HERALD
Circ. D. 93,290 - S. 182,238

FEB 15 1958

Boston Orchestra In Berkshires

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, announces that the 1958 Berkshire Festival will open July 2 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., and come to a close Aug. 10.

Pierre Monteux, sharing concerts with Dr. Munch, will concerts with Dr. Munch, will conduct one concert weekly during the four final weeks of the festival.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts. They are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of [illegible] [illegible]7.

Tickets [illegible] [illegible] for the Berks[illegible] [illegible]val is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

FEB 16 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Six American Pianists Share Majority Of Solo Work at Berkshire Festival

By ROSS PARMENTER

THE Berkshire Festival has engaged six young American pianists to appear as soloists with the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood this summer. What makes this large-scale opportunity for native artists of special interest is that, with the exception of Zino Francescatti, the six may well form the complete roster of the instrumental soloists. And the orchestra has declared that if one or two more are added they also will be young Americans.

Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis and Leonard Pennario will be the pianists appearing at Tanglewood for the first time. Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin and Seymour Lipkin will be the ones reappearing there. All these men, incidentally, were engaged before last Sunday's article insisting that more such opportunities should be given to young prophets in their own country.

The structure of the Berkshire Festival will follow the pattern of other summers. A Bach week-end will open it on July 4-6. A Mozart week-end will follow the next week, and most of the programs of these first two week-ends will be in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Starting on July 18 there will be four week-ends of concerts by the full Boston Symphony in the 6,000-seat Shed. Charles Munch will conduct eight of the Shed concerts and Pierre Monteux four, with Mr. Monteux appearing once a week. Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven will be the composers to be featured.

who receives all telephone calls. Dr. Maurice P. Yunne ther.

News
WEST HARTFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,076

FEB 20 1958

Schedule Is Set At Tanglewood

Plans for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood were announced this week.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The schedule includes:

July 4-6, Bach, including B Minor Mass by Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, July 6; July 11-13, Mozart; July 18-20 Brahms, including the Requiem; July 25-27, Debussy and Ravel; Aug. 13, Wagner, and Aug. 8-10, Beethoven, including the 9th Symphony, Aug. 10.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,496

FEB 11 1958

Tanglewood Plans Ready

Plans for the Boston Symphony orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood between July 2 and Aug. 10 have been announced by Charles Munch, music director.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18-20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27); Wagner (Aug. 1-3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart, conducted by Dr. Munch.

Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the Festival, including Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18,-20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Sunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Woodworth will conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weeksnds of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4-6 (Bach) and July 11-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-20 (Brahms); July 25-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-3 (Wagner); and August 8-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 348,393 - S. 484,956

MAR 2 1958

Big Year for Festivals

IN WASHINGTON, Senator Alexander Wiley is one of the most active proponents of legislation to support the arts. The Wisconsin Republican also works to see that his constituents back home are alive to their value. Recently he prepared a special report for music students in Wisconsin's schools. He commended to them the proposed National Cultural Center in Washington, the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., the Waukesha Symphony and the Merriweather Post Contest of the National Symphony that will give $2,000 in prize money to high school pianists, violinists and cellists. And the senator asked the boys and girls to tell him what they think of his letter.

* * *

Festivals, festivals everywhere! Tom Patterson, founder of the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespeare festival and now a top administrator, will take three months off to be co-ordinator of a festival of West Indian arts in Trinidad, capital of the British West Indies federation. It will be held in early May.

The foremost festival of the western hemisphere, that in the Berkshires at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug. 10, with Charles Munch and his Boston symphony orchestra as headliners. Pierre Monteux again will be a guest conductor. Guest artists will include Zino Francescatti, violinist, and these pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The conductors and all instrumentalists except Foss are familiar to Milwaukee audiences.

* * *

Six American orchestras have commissioned as many American composers to write works which will be performed in the 1958-'59 season. The orchestras and composers for each are Boston, Robert Moevs; Knoxville, Gilbert Trythall; Minneapolis, Paul Fetler; Oklahoma City, Edmund Haines; San Francisco, Halsey Stevens; Washington, John LaMontaine. This operation is carried on by a Ford foundation grant to the American Music center, a 19 year old nonprofit institution of New York set up to encourage American composition.

* * *

Deems Taylor's first opera in 17 years, "The Dragon," had its world premiere recently in the Hall of Fame playhouse on the uptown campus of New York university campus. Taylor adapted his own libretto from a play by Lady Gregory of Ireland. Taylor is an alumnus of NYU and his first professional score, written for a college show, moved to Broadway in 1911.

* * *

Sir Eugene Goossens, after nine years in Australia, has resumed his conducting career in England. One of his own compositions, which he wrote especially for members of his family, is a Concert Piece for two harps, oboe and English horn. His sisters, Marie and Sidonie, played the harps, and his brother, Leon, played the oboe and the English horn. The family picture was completed by a 91 year old gentleman in the audience. He was Eugene Goossens, the father of the conductor and the three soloists. The younger Eugene Goossens conducted the Cincinnati symphony orchestra in a Milwaukee concert in 1941, in which the Milwaukee baritone Earl Thiel was guest soloist.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD
Circ. D. 89,399 - S. 101,254

FEB 16 1958

Monteux Baton To Thrill Fans

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux. making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

FEB 16 1958

Berkshire Festival Is Scheduled

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival will follow the general plan of the 1957 series at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with concerts on the six Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 4 through Aug. 10. Charles Munch will conduct five of the six chamber orchestra concerts on the first two week ends, with programs devoted to Bach and Mozart.

Eight of the full orchestra's concerts on the remaining four week ends will be conducted by Mr. Munch and the other four by Pierre Monteux. The usual chamber music series will be held on six Wednesday nights, beginning July 2.

Brahms' music will be featured in the full orchestra's concerts of July 18, 19 and 20, and Debussy's and Ravel's on July 25, 26 and 27. The other featured composers are Wagner, Aug. 1, 2 and 3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8, 9 and 10. Significant contemporary works are also promised for each of these series.

Francescatti Soloist

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will sing Bach's B minor Mass on Sunday, July 6, under the direction of their conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth. Brahms' "Requiem" is scheduled for a concert of that composer's week end, and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony for the closing program on Sunday, Aug. 10.

Ticket information may be obtained from the Berkshire Festival office at Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN
Circ. S. 222,157

FEB 16 1958

Monteux, Munch to Conduct Berkshire

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., July 2 - Aug. 10. Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to "Tanglewood," will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the theater Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Outstanding young American pianists will appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-27.

Choral works to be performed in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18-20) and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass; to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

This date in music: 1848, Chopin plays his last concert, in the Salle Pleyel, Paris, an event of note.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
Circ. D. 623,024 S. 1,140,409

FEB 16 1958

Munch Lists Berkshire Fete

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Pierre Monteux will conduct one concert weekly during the last four weeks. Each week end will feature the works of Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3) and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10). Contemporary works will also be performed.

The first two week ends of concerts by a small orchestra will be devoted to Bach and Mozart, conducted by Munch.

Piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven will be played by Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard the week end of July 25-27.

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

MAR 1958

Musical Notes

by Walter F. Loeb

Profile of A Composer

Norman Dello Joio is an American composer. We have had several occasions to hear his well developed music, and at various times this young composer was honored. In 1943 he received the Town Hall Composition award for his "Magnificat for Orchestra". The Music Critics Circle awarded him an annual prize in 1949. The Pulitzer Prize for Music was awarded to him in 1957 for his "Meditation on Ecclesiastes". Several radio programs contained his music, including the CBS television series "Air Power." In 1956 his opera "The Trial of Ruen" was premiered over the NBC Television network, and received critical acclaim.

On Feb. 16, 1958, Dello Joio was the subject of the CBS television program "The Seven Lively Arts." The program honored the composer, by tracing his heritage, illustrating his music and giving a fine world-premiere of his "Ballad for the Seven Lively Arts." In essence, however, the program was an examination of the art of composing. It showed the makeup of an American composer. It narrated, through the composer who spoke throughout the program, the ethnological, spiritual and intellectual developments. The importance of Gregorian chant, which had a powerful influence on Norman Dello Joio, is contrasted with the rhythmical influence of the jazz environment of New York. The melodic strains of Italian opera he heard on streetcorners in his youth are recalled with equal vividness as the folk-dancing at Italian holidays. All these different influences found a reflection in the "Ballad" which gave the subject matter tight unity.

The American composer was well served and well represented through the efforts of Norman Dello Joio, who together with Perry Wolff wrote most of the script himself. "The Seven Lively Arts" program was produced by Robert Goldman and directed by Mel Ferber.

Theme and Variations

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood between July 2 and Aug. 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch. Each weekend will feature the works of the great composers. The first two will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart conducted by Dr. Munch. Several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the Festival will be Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Violinist Zino Francescatti will also be heard. Choral works include Brahms' "Requiem" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6 to honor the 100th Anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club.

The first season of opera ever underwritten by a private Foundation and the first anywhere to be composed entirely of American opera will be presented in a 5-week season beginning April 3, by the New York City Opera, under the $105,000 grant received last Fall from the Ford Foundation. The world-premiere of "The Good Soldier Schweik," composed by the late Robert Kurka, to a libretto by Lewis Allen as staged by Carmen Capalbo, will be performed April 15. The New York premieres are: "The Ballad of Baby Doe," by Douglas Moore and the late John LaTouche, "The Taming of the Shrew," composed by Vittorio Giannini to a libretto jointly by him and Dorothy Fee, and "Tale for a Deaf Ear," by Mark Bucci, who wrote both the score and libretto. The balance of the repertory will consist of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti," which will be given on a double-bill with "Tale for a Deaf Ear," Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah," which won the New York Critics Award after its New York premiere with the company two seasons ago, Mark Blitzstein's "Regina," based on the hit Broadway play, Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," Kurt Weill's "Lost in the Stars," for which playwright Maxwell Anderson provided the libretto, and a second double-bill comprising two Gian-Carlo Menotti works, "The Old Maid and The Thief," and "The Medium."

Arnold Gamson, Musical Director of the American Opera Society, and Evan Whallon, Conductor of the Columbus (Ohio) Symphony Orchestra, have been signed by Julius Rudel, General Director of the N. Y. City Opera. Both conductors will make their debuts during the season of American Opera this spring.

Jean Madeira will make her La Scala, Milan debut in April. Other European stops include Brussels World's Fair, Vienna Festival, and the famed Wagnerian Festival in Bayreuth . . . Mildred Dilling, the "First Lady of the Harp" replaced Carlos Salzedo on a moment's notice in an appearance with the Tulsa Philharmonic Orchestra. Salzedo had suffered a back injury . . . Maria Callas will return to Dallas, Tex., for its 1958 season to do four performances. The season will open on Oct. 31 with a performance of "Medea" with Miss Callas in the title role. She will also do two performances of a yet undecided opera . . . Roman Totenberg, violinist, has been invited to concertize in Poland during the month of March. Raymond Hanson, pianist, will accompany Mr. Totenberg . . . Husband and wife, Irmgard Seefried, first soprano of the Vienna State Opera, and violinist Wolfgang Schneiderhan, arrived from Vienna for joint recitals . . . Negotiations are under way to import the Comedie Francais and the Paris Opera Ballet for next season.

On March 23, Benno Moiseiwitch will be soloist with the Symphony of the Air under the baton of Leon Barzin . . . S. Hurok announced that three Soviet concert artists will make their debut next season. They are Vladimir Ashkenazy, pianist, Igor Besrodni, violinist, and Zara Boloukhanova, mezzo-soprano . . . Louis Kentner was reengaged by the Philadelphia Orchestra for four performances during the 1958-59 season . . . On Feb. 26, Bruno Walter made his only New York appearance of the year, conducting the first of this season's Philharmonic Pension Fund Benefit Concerts.

Richard Strauss' opera "Ariadne auf Naxos" will be given three performances in the Juilliard Concert Hall on March 21, 22, 23, to benefit the scholarship fund. The work will be given in a new production by the Juilliard Opera Theater with Frederic Cohen as stage director, and Frederic Waldman as conductor. Ariadne will be produced in a revised English version by George and Phyllis Mead.

The Musical Fund Society of Philadelphia launched its contemporary composers series "Music In Our Time; 1900-1958" with a concert in the Barclay Hotel, Feb. 27. The contemporary music programs have been selected as the Musical Fund Society's project for this season. The programs are free to the public.

---

[6]

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

MAR 13 1958

Munch Announces Festival Highlights

Six Young U. S. Pianists Are Among Soloists

Foss, Lipkin, Fleisher, Janis, Pennario and Istomon Will Be Featured With Boston Symphony Orchestra At Tanglewood This Summer.—Harvard Glee Club to Be Heard.

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, this week announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox between July 2 and August 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteâux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed. Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concertos in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

Tanglewood Turn to seventh page

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Triston and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary), and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. [illegible] minor; by Brahms, Symphony [illegible] by Debussy, Le Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to 'Meistersinger'; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine's Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 12 1958

Berkshire Festival Program Includes Six Young Pianists

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Continued on Page Three

Continued from Page One

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera. Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS
Circ. D. 142,228 - S. 116,509

FEB 23 1958

Berkshire Plans Are Announced

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, has announced plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., July 2 to Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Mr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Several outstanding young American pianists, including Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, have been invited to appear.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
OBSERVER

MAR 16 1958

Tanglewood Opens June 30

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to August 10.

The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

[6]

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

MAR 1958

Musical Notes

by Walter F. Loeb

Profile of A Composer

Norman Dello Joio is an American composer. We have had several occasions to hear his well developed music, and at various times this young composer was honored. In 1943 he received the Town Hall Composition award for his "Magnificat for Orchestra". The Music Critics Circle awarded him an annual prize in 1949. The Pulitzer Prize for Music was awarded to him in 1957 for his "Meditation on Ecclesiastes". Several radio programs contained his music, including the CBS television series "Air Power." In 1956 his opera "The Trial of Ruen" was premiered over the NBC Television network, and received critical acclaim.

On Feb. 16, 1958, Dello Joio was the subject of the CBS television program "The Seven Lively Arts." The program honored the composer, by tracing his heritage, illustrating his music and giving a fine world-premiere of his "Ballad for the Seven Lively Arts." In essence, however, the program was an examination of the art of composing. It showed the makeup of an American composer. It narrated, through the composer who spoke throughout the program, the ethnological, spiritual and intellectual developments. The importance of Gregorian chant, which had a powerful influence on Norman Dello Joio, is contrasted with the rhythmical influence of the jazz environment of New York. The melodic strains of Italian opera he heard on streetcorners in his youth are recalled with equal vividness as the folk-dancing at Italian holidays. All these different influences found a reflection in the "Ballad" which gave the subject matter tight unity.

The American composer was well served and well represented through the efforts of Norman Dello Joio, who together with Perry Wolff wrote most of the script himself. "The Seven Lively Arts" program was produced by Robert Goldman and directed by Mel Ferber.

Theme and Variations

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced plans for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood between July 2 and Aug. 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch. Each weekend will feature the works of the great composers. The first two will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart conducted by Dr. Munch. Several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the Festival will be Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Violinist Zino Francescatti will also be heard. Choral works include Brahms' "Requiem" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6 to honor the 100th Anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club.

The first season of opera ever underwritten by a private Foundation and the first anywhere to be composed entirely of American opera will be presented in a 5-week season beginning April 3, by the New York City Opera, under the $105,000 grant received last Fall from the Ford Foundation. The world-premiere of "The Good Soldier Schweik," composed by the late Robert Kurka, to a libretto by Lewis Allen as staged by Carmen Capalbo, will be performed April 15. The New York premieres are: "The Ballad of Baby Doe," by Douglas Moore and the late John LaTouche, "The Taming of the Shrew," composed by Vittorio Giannini to a libretto jointly by him and Dorothy Fee, and "Tale for a Deaf Ear," by Mark Bucci, who wrote both the score and libretto. The balance of the repertory will consist of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti," which will be given on a double-bill with "Tale for a Deaf Ear," Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah," which won the New York Critics Award after its New York premiere with the company two seasons ago, Mark Blitzstein's "Regina," based on the hit Broadway play, Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," Kurt Weill's "Lost in the Stars," for which playwright Maxwell Anderson provided the libretto, and a second double-bill comprising two Gian-Carlo Menotti works, "The Old Maid and The Thief," and "The Medium."

Arnold Gamson, Musical Director of the American Opera Society, and Evan Whallon, Conductor of the Columbus (Ohio) Symphony Orchestra, have been signed by Julius Rudel, General Director of the N. Y. City Opera. Both conductors will make their debuts during the season of American Opera this spring.

Jean Madeira will make her La Scala, Milan debut in April. Other European stops include Brussels World's Fair, Vienna Festival, and the famed Wagnerian Festival in Bayreuth . . . Mildred Dilling, the "First Lady of the Harp" replaced Carlos Salzedo on a moment's notice in an appearance with the Tulsa Philharmonic Orchestra. Salzedo had suffered a back injury . . . Maria Callas will return to Dallas, Tex., for its 1958 season to do four performances. The season will open on Oct. 31 with a performance of "Medea" with Miss Callas in the title role. She will also do two performances of a yet undecided opera . . . Roman Totenberg, violinist, has been invited to concertize in Poland during the month of March. Raymond Hanson, pianist, will accompany Mr. Totenberg . . . Husband and wife, Irmgard Seefried, first soprano of the Vienna State Opera, and violinist Wolfgang Schneiderhan, arrived from Vienna for joint recitals . . . Negotiations are under way to import the Comedie Francais and the Paris Opera Ballet for next season.

On March 23, Benno Moiseiwitch will be soloist with the Symphony of the Air under the baton of Leon Barzin . . . S. Hurok announced that three Soviet concert artists will make their debut next season. They are Vladimir Ashkenazy, pianist, Igor Besrodni, violinist, and Zara Bolоukhanova, mezzo-soprano . . . Louis Kentner was reengaged by the Philadelphia Orchestra for four performances during the 1958-59 season . . . On Feb. 26, Bruno Walter made his only New York appearance of the year, conducting the first of this season's Philharmonic Pension Fund Benefit Concerts.

Richard Strauss' opera "Ariadne auf Naxos" will be given three performances in the Juilliard Concert Hall on March 21, 22, 23, to benefit the scholarship fund. The work will be given in a new production by the Juilliard Opera Theater with Frederic Cohen as stage director, and Frederic Waldman as conductor. Ariadne will be produced in a revised English version by George and Phyllis Mead.

The Musical Fund Society of Philadelphia launched its contemporary composers series "Music In Our Time; 1900-1958" with a concert in the Barclay Hotel, Feb. 27. The contemporary music programs have been selected as the Musical Fund Society's project for this season. The programs are free to the public.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

MAR 13 1958

Munch Announces Festival Highlights

Six Young U. S. Pianists Are Among Soloists

Foss, Lipkin, Fleisher, Janis, Pennario and Istomon Will Be Featured With Boston Symphony Orchestra At Tanglewood This Summer.—Harvard Glee Club to Be Heard.

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, this week announced some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox between July 2 and August 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteaux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed. Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concertos in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

Tanglewood Turn to Seventh page

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Triston and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary), and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. [illegible] minor; by Brahms, [illegible] by Debussy, Le Mer; by [illegible] Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine's Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 12 1958

Berkshire Festival Program Includes Six Young Pianists

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Continued on Page Three

Continued from Page One

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performances of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera. Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS
Circ. D. 142,228 - S. 116,509

FEB 23 1958

Berkshire Plans Are Announced

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, has announced plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., July 2 to Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Mr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Several outstanding young American pianists, including Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, have been invited to appear.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
OBSERVER

MAR 16 1958

Tanglewood Opens June 30

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the [illegible] season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to August 10.

The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

CHICAGO, ILL.
NEWS
Circ. D. 588,576
APR 19 1958

[7]

HERE'S A RUNDOWN ON MUSIC EVENTS

Festivals to Keep Fans Hopping

BY DON HENAHAN
Daily News Music Critic

Festival-hopping, which has become a major summer activity all over the world is a sport that takes a keen eye, cool judgment and careful planning.

In this country most of the music festivals are crammed into two months, July and August. With distances what they are in the New World, a determined festival-hopper must be as much a connoisseur of train and flight schedules as of music.

certs are in progress, red searchlights poke into the sky to warn away noisy planes. Maybe our own Grant Park ought to try this trick.

• • •

BACK EAST, another cluster of festivals. At Tanglewood, in Lennox, Mass., the Berkshire Festival (July 2-Aug 10) offers Munch, Monteux and the Boston Symphony, plus a young American pianist" series starring Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

Also violinist Zino Francescatti, and contemporary music by the Fromm Players.

MUSIC AND ART May 1958

PAGE SIX

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plan for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianist will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous year, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revovling Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

ALLENTOWN, PA.
CALL
Circ. D. 70,798

JUN 6 1958

Berkshire Festival To Open on July 2

LENOX, Mass. — The annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood conducted by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch is conductor.

The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place Aug. 7 and will highlight Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

PATERSON, N. J.
CALL
Circ. D. 36,241

JUN 6 1958

Berkshire Music Festival Events Are Announced

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinist will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola.

Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts in a performance of Brahams' "Requiem". The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evening and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK CITY

MAY 1958

Berkshire Festival

Lenox, Mass.—Charles Munch has invited several young American pianists to appear at the Berkshire Festival, which will take place between July 2 and Aug. 10. They include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Pierre Monteux will make his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival, and Zino Francescatti will be heard during the July 25-27 weekend.

Other soloists will be Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, Hilde Gueden, Margaret Harshaw and Berl Senofsky.

In a special performance of Bach's B minor Mass on July 6, the soloists will be Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, and Donald Gramm. G. Wallace Woodworth, celebrating his 25th anniversary as conductor of the 100-year-old Harvard Glee Club, has been invited to conduct Brahms's "Requiem" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony are other choral works scheduled.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 101,553

MAY 11 1958

MUSIC FOR EVERYBODY

Composers Often Ignored, Singers Usually Well Paid

By SIGMUND SPAETH

The relative importance of the creator of music as compared with various interpreters, arrangers, adapters, publishers, promoters and merchandisers may remain indefinitely a subject for argument and even litigation. The Congress has been wrestling with this problem for some time in its relation to the huge business of the so-called jukeboxes, as well as the possibilities of monopoly and even conspiracy on the part of commercial interests.

There is a strange tendency on the part of the American public to ignore creative talents, not only in music and the other arts, but in science and the practical inventions that are the heart and soul of business in general. Composers of popular songs have long ago accepted the fact that their names will seldom if ever be mentioned in connection with the public performance of their hits. Serious creators of orchestral and chamber music, even operas, are generally delighted to achieve performances of any kind, regardless of publicity or financial rewards.

Meanwhile the popular singers as well as the famous artists and conductors of concerts and operas are consistently exploited and generously paid for their services. In any listing of records, including both classics and pop numbers, the names of the interpreters are almost always featured at the expense of the creators.

Whose Success?

It is actually difficult at times to decide who is really responsible for the success of a composition, particularly in the popular field. Music publishers are well aware that a song may become a hit largely because it is recorded and sung in public by a popular personality, sometimes even a "song stylist," whose interpretation completely distorts the composer's melody and may make it almost unrecognizable. The composer can hardly object if such manhandling results in big record sales, and the publisher naturally tries to line up as many discs as possible, representing a variety of interpretations.

Here the arranger also plays an important role, for he is largely responsible for whatever individuality a record may possess. It is a recognized fact that a new arrangement of an old tune has often resulted in its revival and a substantial new life for the composition.

Finally there are the infinite details of promoting and merchandising a piece of music, including the engineering skill lavished on hi-fi recordings, the artistic phases of packaging, the attractiveness of sheet music and cover designs, etc. the fact remains that all of these efforts and skills would be wasted, perhaps nonexistent, if some creative genius had not provided the basic material to make them worth while.

Complications

Another complication is the division of credit between the composer of a melody and the writer of the words. The latter often feels slighted in his lack of public recognition (with a few striking exceptions such as Oscar Hammerstein II and Alan Jay Lerner), and it is not uncommon for either a lyricist or a composer to refer to a song as his own, completely overlooking the fact that he had an important collaborator in creating the finished product.

Most culpable of all is the now common habit of taking credit for material in the public domain, as in the case of "Love Me Tender," published in 1861 as "Aura Lee" and now calmly labeled "by Elvis Presley." He must have been a very young man when he wrote it!

The National Federation of Music Clubs' second annual award of $1,000 for the individual or organization accomplishing the most for American music abroad during the preceding concert season has been presented to the Westminster Choir, conducted by Dr. John Finley Williamson. In its tour of 22 countries in the Far and Middle East and Europe, this organization sang 41 American compositions, each of which was heard between 60 and 75 times.

HALF-NOTES — Leonard Bernstein receiving the Alice M. Ditson Award of $1,000 for advancing the interest of American music and musicians. . . . The American Ballet Theater now on tour abroad under ANTA and State Department auspices. . . . The New York University Medal presented to Nadia Boulanger. . . . William Schuman's "Credendum" to be featured by the Philadelphia Orchestra in its tour of Europe, including Russia. . . . Soloists at New York's Stadium Concerts will include Hilde Gueden, Guiomar Novates, Benno Moiseiwitsch and Elisabeth Schwarzkopf. . . . Melvyn Douglas and Eileen Herlie to appear in Marc Blitztein's musical version of "Juno and the Paycock." . . . The adventures of Peter Freuchen to furnish material for a Broadway musical. . . . Haverford College Glee Club and Smith College Choir combining in a Bach Motet at St. Thomas' Church, New York. . . . Amato Opera Theater currently presenting "Aida." . . . The Metropolitan Opera's new production of "Butterfly" featured in most of the cities toured. . . . Thor Johnson awarded Laurel Leaf by American Composers Alliance for service to contemporary music.

The Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 through August 10, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, as well as the Budapest and Kroll Quartets and such soloists as Margaret Harshaw, Berl Senofsky, Adele Addison, Donald Gramm, Lukas Foss, Leon Fleisher, Zino Francescatti, Byron Janis, Leonarl Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

Today's Question—Horace Walpole: "A careless song, with a little nonsense in it now and then, does not misbecome a monarch."

CHICAGO, ILL.
NEWS
Circ. D. 588,576
APR 19 1958

[7]

HERE'S A RUNDOWN ON MUSIC EVENTS

Festivals to Keep Fans Hopping

3

BY DON HENAHAN
Daily News Music Critic

Festival-hopping, which has become a major summer activity all over the world, is a sport that takes a keen eye, cool judgment and careful planning.

In this country most of the music festivals are crammed into two months, July and August. With distances what they are in the New World, a determined festival-hopper must be as much a connoisseur of train and flight schedules as of music.

...certs are in progress, red searchlights poke into the sky to warn away noisy planes. Maybe our own Grant Park ought to try this trick.

• • •

BACK EAST, another cluster of festivals. At Tanglewood, in Lennox, Mass., the Berkshire Festival (July 2-Aug 10) offers Munch, Monteux and the Boston Symphony, plus a young American pianist" series starring Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

Also violinist Zino Francescatti, and contemporary music by the Fromm Players.

MUSIC AND ART May 1958

PAGE [illegible]

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plan for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianist will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and solo[illegible] (Adele Addison, soprano; [illegible] Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, [illegible]enor; Donald Gramm, [illegible] to honor the Glee Club's [illegible] Anniversary this year and [illegible] 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous year, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revovling Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and August 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

ALLENTOWN, PA.
CALL
Circ. D. 70,79[illegible]
JUN 6 1958

Berkshire Festival To Open on July 2

LENOX, Mass. — The annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood conducted by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch is conductor.

The [illegible] annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place Aug. 7 and will highlight Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

PATERSON, N. J.
CALL
Circ. D. 36,241
JUN 8 1958

Berkshire Music Festival Events Are Announced

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinist will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola.

Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts in a performance of Brahams' "Requiem". The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evening and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK CITY
MAY 1958

Berkshire Festival

Lenox, Mass.—Charles Munch has invited several young American pianists to appear at the Berkshire Festival, which will take place between July 2 and Aug. 10. They include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Pierre Monteux will make his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival, and Zino Francescatti will be heard during the July 25-27 weekend.

Other solo[illegible] be Ruth Posselt, Joseph de [illegible] Hilde Gueden, Margaret Ha[illegible] and Berl Senofsky.

In a special [illegible]ormance of Bach's B minor Mass on July 6, the soloists will be Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, and Donald Gramm. G. Wallace Woodworth, celebrating his 25th anniversary as conductor of the 100-year-old Harvard Glee Club, has been invited to conduct Brahms's "Requiem" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony are other choral works scheduled.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. [illegible]
MAY 11 1958

MUSIC FOR EVERYBODY

Composers Often Ignored, Singers Usually Well Paid

By SIGMUND SPAETH

The relative importance of the creator of music as compared with various interpreters, arrangers, adapters, publishers, promoters and merchandisers may remain indefinitely a subject for argument and even litigation. The Congress has been wrestling with this problem for some time in its relation to the huge business of the so-called jukeboxes, as well as the possibilities of monopoly and even conspiracy on the part of commercial interests.

There is a strange tendency on the part of the American public to ignore creative talents, not only in music and the other arts, but in science and the practical inventions that are the heart and soul of business in general. Composers of popular songs have long ago accepted the fact that their names will seldom if ever be mentioned in connection with the public performance of their hits. Serious creators of orchestral and chamber music, even operas, are generally delighted to achieve performances of any kind, regardless of publicity or financial rewards.

Meanwhile the popular singers as well as the famous artists and conductors of concerts and operas are consistently exploited and generously paid for their services. In any listing of records, including both classics and pop numbers, the names of the interpreters are almost always featured at the expense of the creators.

Whose Success?

It is actually difficult at times to decide who is really responsible for the success of a composition, particularly in the popular field. Music publishers are well aware that a song may become a hit largely because it is recorded and sung in public by a popular personality, sometimes even a "song stylist," whose interpretation completely distorts the composer's melody and may make it almost unrecognizable. The composer can hardly object if such manhandling results in big record sales, and the publisher naturally tries to line up as many discs as possible, representing a variety of interpretations.

Here the arranger also plays an important role, for he is largely responsible for whatever individuality a record may possess. It is a recognized fact that a new arrangement of an old tune has often resulted in its revival and a substantial new life for the composition.

Finally there are the infinite details of promoting and merchandising a piece of music, including the engineering skill lavished on hi-fi recordings, the artistic phases of packaging, the attractiveness of sheet music and cover designs, etc. the fact remains that all of these efforts and skills would be wasted, perhaps nonexistent, if some creative genius had not provided the basic material to make them worth while.

Complications

Another complication is the division of credit between the composer of a melody and the [illegible] of the words. The latter often [illegible] slighted in his lack of public recognition (with a few striking exceptions such as Oscar Hammerstein II and Alan Jay Lerner), and it is not uncommon for either a lyricist or a composer to refer to a song as his own, completely overlooking the fact that he had an important collaborator in creating the finished product.

Most culpable of all is the now common habit of taking credit for material in the public domain, as in the case of "Love Me Tender," published in 1861 as "Aura Lee" and now calmly labeled "by Elvis Presley." He must have been a very young man when he wrote it!

The National Federation of Music Clubs' second annual award of $1,000 for the individual or organization accomplishing the most for American music abroad during the preceding concert season has been presented to the Westminster Choir, conducted by Dr. John Finley Williamson. In its tour of 22 countries in the Far and Middle East and Europe, this organization sang 41 American compositions, each of which was heard between 60 and 75 times.

HALF-NOTES — Leonard Bernstein receiving the Alice M. Ditson Award of $1,000 for advancing the interest of American music and musicians. . . . The American Ballet Theater now on tour abroad under ANTA and State Department auspices. . . . The New York University Medal presented to Nadia Boulanger. . . . William Schuman's "Credendum" to be featured by the Philadelphia Orchestra in its tour of Europe, including Russia. . . . Soloists at New York's Stadium Concerts will include Hilde Gueden, Guiomar Novates, Benno Moiseiwitsch and Elisabeth Schwarzkopf. . . . Melvyn Douglas and Eileen Herlie to appear in Marc Blitzstein's musical version of "Juno and the Paycock." . . . The adventures of Peter Freuchen to furnish material for a Broadway musical. . . . Haverford College Glee Club and Smith College Choir combining in a Bach Motet at St. Thomas' Church, New York. . . . Amato Opera Theater currently presenting "Aida." . . . The Metropolitan Opera's new production of "Butterfly" featured in most of the cities toured. . . . Thor Johnson awarded Laurel Leaf by American Composers Alliance for service to contemporary music.

The Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 through August 10, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, as well as the Budapest and Kroll Quartets and such soloists as Margaret Harshaw, Berl Senofsky, Adele Addison, Donald Gramm, Lukas Foss, Leon Fleisher, Zino Francescatti, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

Today's Question—Horace Walpole: "A careless song, with a little nonsense in it now and then does not misbecome a monarch

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAR 1

Munch Programs Young Pianists For Tanglewood

Six outstanding young American pianists will appear on the six successive weekends of this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, disclosed yesterday in announcing some of the highlights of the annual musical program. The 1958 season will run between July 2 and Aug. 10, with Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux sharing the conducting duties at the various concerts.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E flat (K. 365).

Continued on Page Twelve

Continued from Page One

During the following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, gust 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat. On the closing weekend, devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. [illegible]; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger;" Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey, by Beethoven, Symphony No. [illegible].

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts.

MUSIC JOURNAL APRIL-MAY 1958

address their inquiries to the Central City Opera House Association, 1440 Court Place, Denver, Colorado.

◆

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., occuring July 2 through August 10, will have as its conductors Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux. Contemporary compositions and established classics will be heard in a series of symphonic, choral and ensemble concerts in performances by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. The roster of outstanding soloists will include six young American pianists, Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, and the noted violinist, Zino Francescatti. Ticket information is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

◆

The 65th annual Ann Arbor Festival, May 1-4, will feature six concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, Thor Johnson and William Smith. Guest artists with the Orchestra will be Lily Pons, George London, Glenn Gould and Gyorgy Sandor, each in individual appearances, as well as Claramae Turner, Brian Sullivan and Martial Singher in a concert version of Saint-Saëns' Samson and Delilah.

News Advertiser
WESTFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2700

APR 3 1958

SIX YOUNG AMERICAN PIANO SOLOISTS WILL BE FEATURED AT TANGLEWOOD

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed. Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K.365). During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concert No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikowsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday after- in addition to those with soloists, in- a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those woth soloists, include: by Bach, Suites, 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. [illegible] by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. [illegible]

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, 15, Mass.

FT. WAYNE, IND.
NEWS-SENTINEL
Circ. D. 76,443

MAR 7 1958

Charles Munch Lists Plans For '58 Berkshire Festival

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25, 26, 27.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

FEB 15 1958

Opens July 2

BSO Releases Festival Plans; Young Pianists To Be Heard

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Monteux Returning

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival.

Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series.

The first two weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

Zino Francescatti

The noted Monterey violinist Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms' "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists, Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass, to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six Weekends of Music

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30.

The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart).

The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, in Boston.

Gazette
EAST HARTFORD
Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,725

FEB 19 1958

Schedule Is Set At Tanglewood

Plans for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood were announced this week.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The [illegible] includes:

July 4-6, Bach, including B Minor Mass by Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, July 6; July 11-13, Mozart; July 18-20 Brahms, including the Requiem; July 25-27, Debussy and Ravel, Aug. 1-3, Wagner, and Aug. 8-10, Beethoven, including the 9th Symphony, Aug. 10.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAR 13 1958

Munch Programs Young Pianists For Tanglewood

Six outstanding young American pianists will appear on the six successive weekends of this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, disclosed yesterday in announcing some of the highlights of the annual musical program. The 1958 season will run between July 2 and Aug. 10, with Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux sharing the conducting duties at the various concerts.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists [illegible] Mozart's Two-Piano Con[illegible]to in E flat (K. 365).

Continued on Page Twelve

Continue from Page One

During the follow[illegible] [illegible]ends in the Music [illegible] will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat. On the closing weekend, devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony [illegible] 4; by Debussy, La Mer; [illegible]vel "Daphnis and Chloe [illegible] 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger;" Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Jo[illegible]; b[illegible] Beethoven, Symphony [illegible] 4.

Further information may be obtained [illegible] the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Massachusetts.

MUSIC JOURNAL APRIL–MAY 1958

address their inquiries to the Central City Opera House Association, 1440 Court Place, Denver, Colorado.

◆

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., occuring July 2 through August 10, will have as its conductors Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux. Contemporary compositions and established classics will be heard in a series of symphonic, choral and ensemble concerts in performances by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. The roster of outstanding soloists will include six young American pianists, Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, and the noted violinist, Zino Francescatti. Ticket information is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

◆

The 65th annual Ann Arbor Festival, May 1-4, will feature six concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, Thor Johnson and William Smith. Guest artists with the Orchestra will be Lily Pons, George London, Glenn Gould and Gyorgy Sandor, each in individual appearances, as well as Claramae Turner, Brian Sullivan and Martial Singher in a concert version of Saint-Saëns' Samson and Delilah.

FT. WAYNE, IND.
NEWS-SENTINEL
Circ. D. 76,443

MAR 7 1958

Charles Munch Lists Plans For '58 Berkshire Festival

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each week end will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two week ends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the week end of July 25, 26, 27.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

FEB 15 1958

Opens July 2

BSO Releases Festival Plans; Young Pianists To Be Heard

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Monteux Returning

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival.

Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series.

The first two weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

Zino Francescatti

The noted Monterey violinist Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms' "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass, to honor the Glee Club's 100th anniversary this year and the 25th anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music of Bach.

Six Weekends of Music

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30.

The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart).

The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) Aug. 1-2-3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theater-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, will be given on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is available from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, in Boston.

News Advertiser
WESTFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2700

APR 3 1958

SIX YOUNG AMERICAN PIANO SOLOISTS WILL BE FEATURED AT TANGLEWOOD

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed. Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365). During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concert No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week-end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikowsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday after in addition to those with soloists, in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those woth soloists, include: by Bach, Suites, 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, [illegible] and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by [illegible], Prelude to "Meistersinger"; [illegible] Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. [illegible].

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Gazette
EAST HARTFORD Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 4,725

FEB 19 1958

Schedule Is Set At Tanglewood

Plans for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood were announced this week.

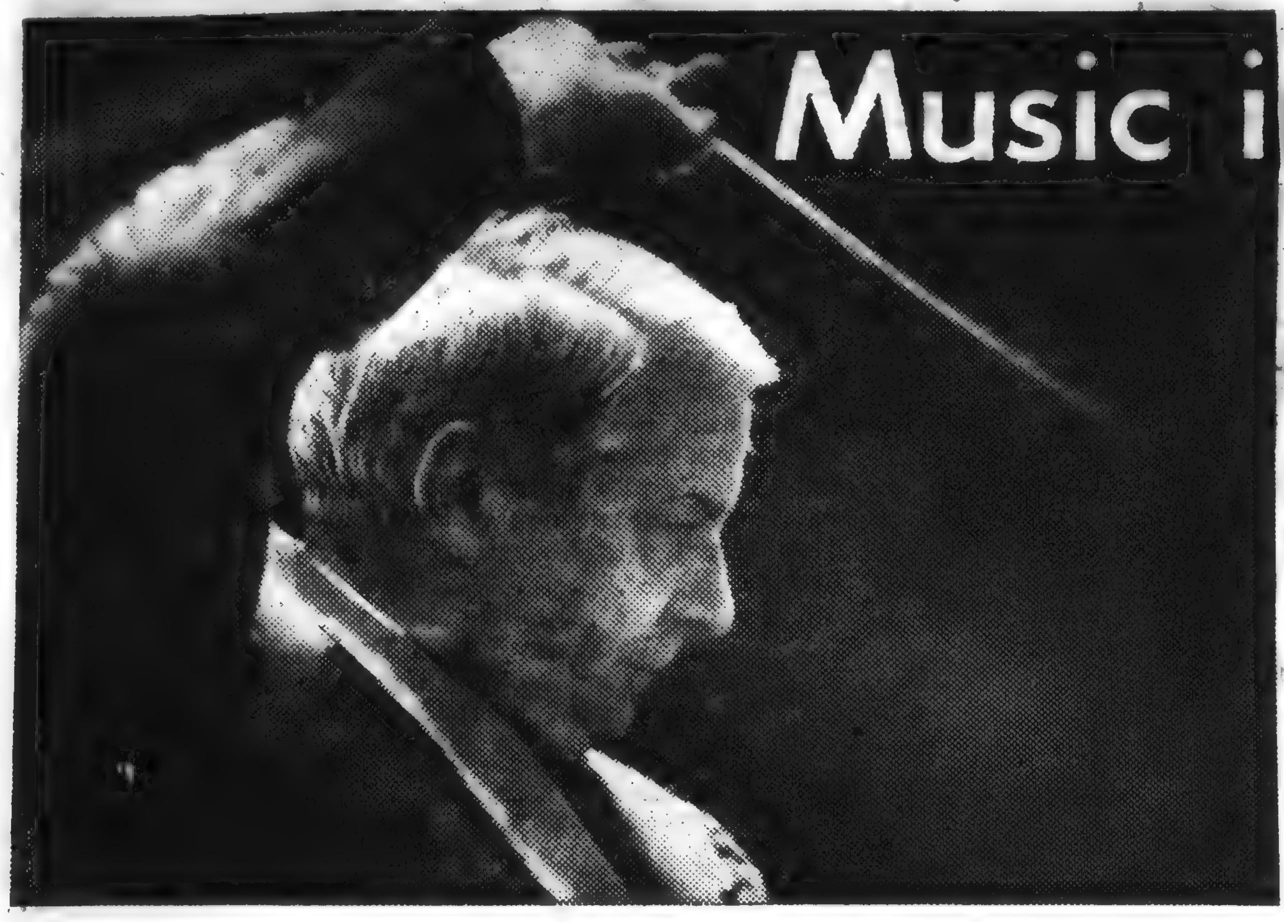
Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The [illegible] includes:

July [illegible] Bach, including B Minor M[illegible] Harvard Glee Club and [illegible] Choral Society; J[illegible] Mozart; July 18 [illegible] the Re[illegible] [illegible]ssy and R[illegible] [illegible], and A[illegible] including the [illegible]hony, Aug. 10.

[9]

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178
APR 26 1958



CHARLES MUNCH—He'll return to Tanglewood for another season.

Music in the Summer Air

By ORMONDE PLATER
Knickerbocker News Staff Writer

This is the second of two articles on the summer season of drama and music.

In addition to being one of the jumpingest summer-theater areas in the nation, the countryside about Albany thrives with music in the months of June, July and August.

Take your pick: Symphony, chamber music, opera, jazz, the dance (not exactly music, but related to it). About an hour's drive will bring you to any of these.

They flourish in two main regions: Across the border in Massachusetts and south of Albany at Woodstock and beyond. Each region contains one of the two largest and most respected music festivals in America.

In the Berkshire Valley is the Berkshire Music Festival, which runs for six weeks and has as its main force the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Composers to be emphasized this summer will be Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven.

The festival will also have some outstanding young American pianists as soloists. They are Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Fleisher.

Close to Tanglewood, the festival's home, is the Berkshire Music Barn, a haven of jazz and folk music. Famous jazzmen of the modern, swing and classic schools give concerts there on Sunday nights, and there is folk music a couple of other days a week.

In August the barn is host to the School of Jazz, which has as a base for its faculty the Modern Jazz Quartet. Jimmy Giuffre, Dizzy Gillespie, Wilbur de Paris and others of their ilk will also be around.

In the mountains to the east of the valley is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, run by Ted Shawn. It runs a school and gives programs of classical ballet, modern dance and ethnic dance over a nine-week season. As a dance festival, Jacob's Pillow is on a par with the Berkshire Music Festival.

The South Mountain Temple, a building resembling a meetinghouse on a mountain top near Pittsfield, Mass., presents chamber music by some of the foremost chamber groups on Saturday afternoons.

The New York Pro Musica, which plays antique music on antique instruments, is likely to be in the area again, as it has been for the last two summers.

To the north of the Berkshire Valley, at Bennington College in Vermont, is the annual composers' conference and chamber music center.

That other fine institution, the Empire State Music Festival, is at Ellenville, some 60 miles below Albany. (But it's easily accessible by the Thruway.) The main course is the Symphony of the Air, conducted by Leopold Stokowski.

Further north, at Woodstock (also near the Thruway), there is a cluster of music events in summer. In the Maverick Hall, an old wooden building, chamber music groups give concerts on Sunday afternoons, and there are many recitals, not to mention lectures and poetry readings, during the week.

Other music may be heard from time to time in this artists' colony, but the Turnau Opera Players are prime. They perform in another old wooden building, this time on a mountainside overlooking the village, in July and August.

The small company does a few of the popular operas, some of the rare ones, and also tries to get in an opera premiere.

Those are the two main centers of music, but scattered about the countryside you may find other events. One is at Rensselaerville, in the mountains southwest of Albany. The village library sponsors a series of programs, mostly symphonic and vocal music.

At Manchester, Vt., admittedly a far hike from here, the Southern Vermont Art Center sponsors a similar series.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271

MAR 16 1958

Berkshire Festival Lists '58 Program Highlights

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466, by Mozart, on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

Young Pianists

During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Lenoard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week-end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral Works

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six week-ends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

JUN 23 1958

At Tanglewood

Berkshire Festival Sets 6 Soloists

Soloists for this Summer's Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will include six young American pianists on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

* * *

THE FOUR following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Violinist Zino Francescatti will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

* * *

CHORAL WORKS will include a special performance of Bach's B minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the last 25 years, winn conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

* * *

THE MUSIC of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, included by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fuue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe"; Suite No. 2; by Waner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 7.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,052

FEB 12 1958

Tanglewood Plans For The Summer

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch conducting one concert weekl during the last four weeks o the festival. Following last se son's succesful plan, each wee end will feature the works the great composers includi Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debu sy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27 Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); a Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). S nificant contemporary works w be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has [illegible] eral outstanding youn pianists to appear in the of the Berkshire Fes forming piano concertos by Mozart, Brahms, Rachm and Beethoven. The pianis include Leon Fleisher, Foss, Eugene Istomin Janis, Seymour Lipkin ard Pennario. The note Zino Francescatti will during the weekend of Ju 26-27.

Today & Thurs.—Nana [illegible]

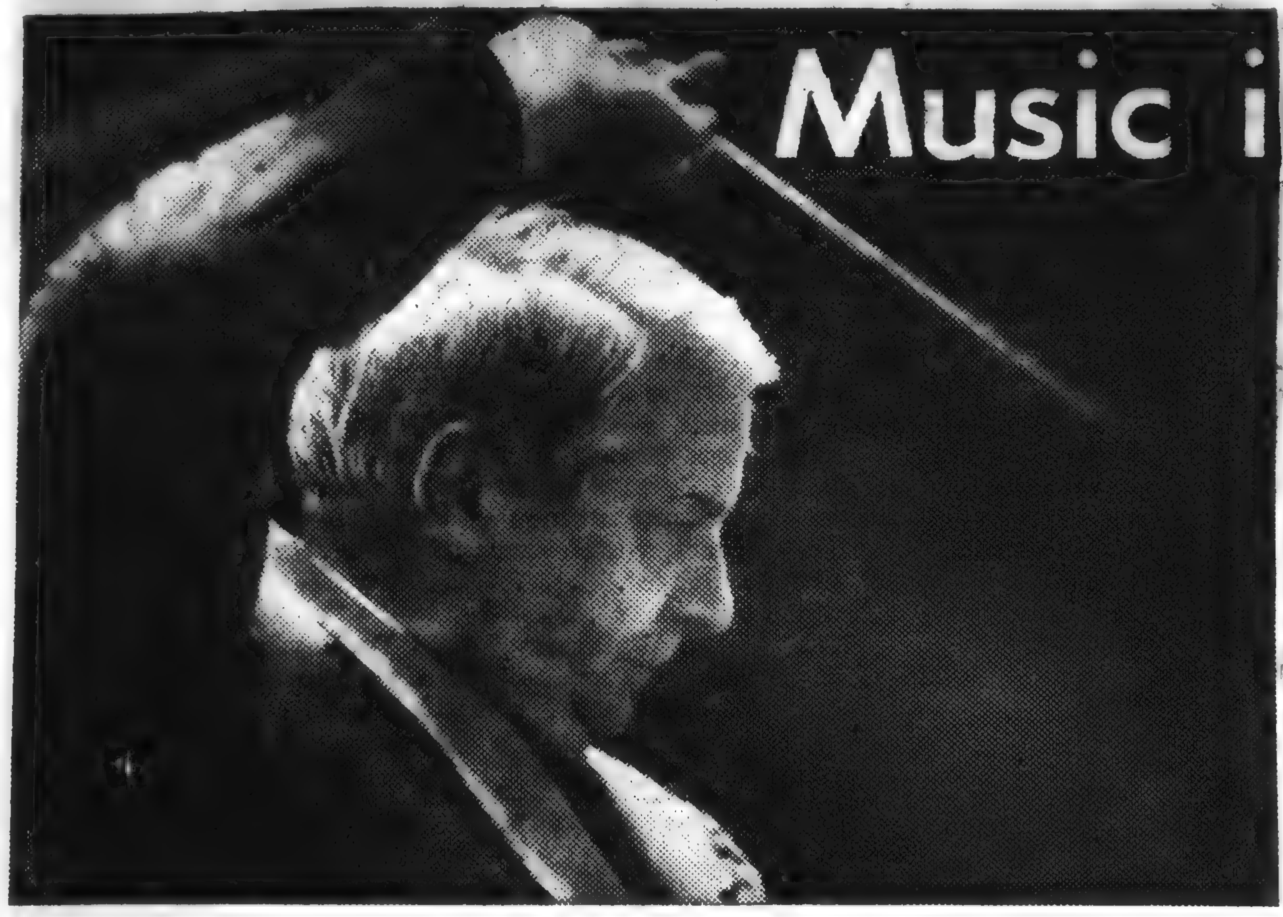
[9]

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178
APR 26 1958



CHARLES MUNCH—He'll return to Tanglewood for another season.

Music in the Summer Air

By ORMONDE PLATER
Knickerbocker News Staff Writer

This is the second of two articles on the summer season of drama and music.

In addition to being one of the jumpingest summer-theater areas in the nation, the countryside about Albany thrives with music in the months of June, July and August.

Take your pick: Symphony, chamber music, opera, jazz, the dance (not exactly music, but related to it). About an hour's drive will bring you to any of these.

They flourish in two main regions: Across the border in Massachusetts and south of Albany at Woodstock and beyond. Each region contains one of the two largest and most respected music festivals in America.

~~In the Berkshire~~ Valley is the Berkshire Music Festival, which runs for six weeks and has as its main force the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Composers to be emphasized this summer will be Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven.

The festival will also have some outstanding young American pianists as soloists. They are Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin and Leo Fleisher.

Close to Tanglewood, the festival's home, is the Berkshire Music Barn, a haven of jazz and folk music. Famous jazzmen of the modern, swing and classic schools give concerts there on Sunday nights, and there is folk music a couple of other days a week.

In August the barn is host to the School of Jazz, which has as a base for its faculty the Modern Jazz Quartet. Jimmy Giuffre, Dizzy Gillespie, Wilbur de Paris and others of their ilk will also be around.

In the mountains to the east of the valley is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, run by Ted Shawn. It runs a school and gives programs of classical ballet, modern dance and ethnic dance over a nine-week season. As a dance festival, Jacob's Pillow is on a par with the Berkshire Music Festival.

The South Mountain Temple, a building resembling a meetinghouse on a mountain top near Pittsfield, Mass., presents chamber music by some of the foremost chamber groups on Saturday afternoons.

The New York Pro Musica, which plays antique music on antique instruments, is likely to be in the area again, as it has been for the last two summers.

To the north of the Berkshire Valley, at Bennington College in Vermont, is the annual composers' conference and chamber music center.

That other fine institution, the Empire State Music Festival, is at Ellenville, some 60 miles below Albany. (But it's easily accessible by the Thruway.) The main course is the Symphony of the Air, conducted by Leopold Stokowski.

Further north, at Woodstock (also near the Thruway), there is a cluster of music events in summer. In the Maverick Hall, an old wooden building, chamber music groups give concerts on Sunday afternoons, and there are many recitals, not to mention lectures and poetry readings, during the week.

Other music may be heard from time to time in this artists' colony, but the Turnau Opera Players are prime. They perform in another old wooden building, this time on a mountainside overlooking the village, in July and August.

The small company does a few of the popular operas, some of the rare ones, and also tries to get in an opera premiere.

Those are the two main centers of music, but scattered about the countryside you may find other events. One is at Rensselaerville, in the mountains southwest of Albany. The village library sponsors a series of programs, mostly symphonic and vocal music.

At Manchester, Vt., admittedly a far hike from here, the Southern Vermont Art Center sponsors a similar series.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271
MAR 16 1958

Berkshire Festival Lists '58 Program Highlights

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week-ends of the festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466, by Mozart, on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

Young Pianists

During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Lenoard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week-end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral Works

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six week-ends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644
JUN 23 1958

At Tanglewood

Berkshire Festival Sets 6 Soloists

Soloists for this Summer's Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will include six young American pianists on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

* * *

THE FOUR following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Violinist Zino Francescatti will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

* * *

CHORAL WORKS will include a special performance of Bach's B minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the last 25 years, winn conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

* * *

THE MUSIC of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, included by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fuue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe"; Suite No. 2; by Waner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 7.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,052
FEB 12 1958

Tanglewood Plans For The Summer

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and August 10.

Guest Conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's succesful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27); Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

[10]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News
FAIRFIELD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,850

MAY 22 1958

Berkshire Festival . . .

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

(Continued on Page 5)

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past twenty-five years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; and Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

FEB 6 - 1958

Live Broadcasts From Tanglewood Planned by WQXR

NEW YORK — Nine concerts of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra and six concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., will be broadcast live to New Yorkers over radio station WQXR from May 3 through Aug. 9.

Elliott M. Sanger, executive vice president of WQXR, said that the success of present live Saturday night broadcasts of the Boston Symphony's concerts had prompted the move. The current season will end on April 26. The new series will be presented at the same time: Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.

WQXR, according to Sanger, has the largest audience rating of any New York radio station during these broadcasts from Boston. Arthur Fiedler and occasional guests will conduct the "Pops" series. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the Tanglewood concerts.

DAVENPORT, IOWA
Democrat & Times
Circ. S. 48,790

MAR 23 1958

Catching The Beat In The Music World

BY INA WICKHAM

> "How many of us ever stop to think
> "Of music as a wondrous magic link
> "With God, taking sometimes the place of prayer —
> "When words have failed us 'neath the weight of care.
> "Music, that knows no country, race or creed,
> "But gives to each, according to his need"!
> — Anonymous

THREE TOP NAMES in the music world will appear on the Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, campus May 1, 2 and 3 all part of the school's annual May Music Festival. They are Cornell MacNeil, baritone, of the Chicago Lyric Opera, Thursday, May 1; Julian Olvesky, violinist, Friday, May 2 and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the direction of George Schick, music co-ordinator of the NBC Opera, Saturday, May 3. In addition to the guest performers, the Cornell Oratorio Society will join the Chicago Symphony orchestra and soloists in a performance of "Requiem" by Faure. It will be the 60th annual festival and will conclude with an orchestral concert on May 3.

Ansermet

ERNEST ANSERMET, conductor of l'Orchestre de la Suis-Romande in Geneva will conduct the CBS radio broadcast of the New York Philharmonic orchestra this afternoon for the first time. As his soloist he will have the distinguished English pianist, Dame Myra Hess, playing the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor. Mr. Ansermet will present the first American broadcast of "Corales Criollos," a recent work by the contemporary Argentinian composer, Juan Jose Castro. The work is in the form of a theme and six variations. Mr. Ansermet founded the Swiss orchetra in 1918 and has remained as its permanent conductor ever since.

WHEN THE NEW YORK Philharmonic orchestra concludes its current season in April it will leave immediately for an eight week tour of South and Central America. It will open the tour with a concert in Panama City on April 29 and will complete it on June 22. The tour will present 44 concerts in some 30 cities in 12 or more countries.

Monteux

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra has announced some of this summer's Berkshire festival programs at Tanglewood Mass. between July 2 and August 10. Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the concerts. Soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists, Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleislier, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 185,173

MAY 18 1958

3 Music Festivals List Plans

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as afterthoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the fourth begins the mixing of the old-but-less old masters — Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B. minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

The Aspen (Colo.) Festival, which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the same problem of audience preference of composers and compromised. It will give equal emphasis to the works of the old master, Franz Schubert, and to those of the living master, Paul Hindemith. The Aspen festival opens in that Rocky Mountain town June 25.

The Schubert will be largely his "great" C major symphony and his three mighty song. cycles. The Hindemith will be featured by the American premiere of his cantata, "Ite Angeli Veloces." It's not a new work. You see how it is when a major work of a major living composer has its U.S. premiere in the summer up in the mountains.

Leonard Bernstein, new music director of the New York Philharmonic will open New York City's famous open-air Lewisohn Stadium concerts June 23, conducting the Stadium Concerts Orchestra, which actually is the New York Philharmonic itself. That is interesting because it will be his first Stadium concert since 1953. Since then Bernstein has become the glamour boy of the longhairs by wowing the national TV audience not once but several times. He has been and remains, of course, an exceedingly effective musician.

Next season will be Bernstein's first as the sole musical head of the Philharmonic. So his plans, as they have developed so far, are of particular interest. There will be a performance of Elgar's big-scale oratorio, "The Dream of Gerontius," with Sir John Barbirolli, conducting. It's a piece rarely given in this country.

There also will be a concert performance of Debussy's opera, "Pelleas and Melisande," and two Handel works not well known, "Ode for St. Cecilia's Day" and the St. John Passion. Bernstein plans also an all-Bach Christmas program.

[10]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News
FAIRFIELD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,850

MAY 22 1958

Berkshire Festival . . .

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

(Continued on Page 5)

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past twenty-five years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll; and Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235
FEB 6 - 1958

Live Broadcasts From Tanglewood Planned by WQXR

NEW YORK — Nine concerts of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra and six concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., will be broadcast live to New Yorkers over radio station WQXR from May 3 through Aug. 9.

Elliott M. Sanger, executive vice president of WQXR, said that the success of present live Saturday night broadcasts of the Boston Symphony's concerts had prompted the move. The current season will end on April 26. The new series will be presented at the same time: Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.

WQXR, according to Sanger, has the largest audience rating of any New York radio station during these broadcasts from Boston. Arthur Fiedler and occasional guests will conduct the "Pops" series. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the Tanglewood concerts.

DAVENPORT, IOWA
Democrat & Times
Circ. S. 48,790

MAR 23 1958

Catching The Beat In The Music World

BY INA WICKHAM

> "How many of us ever stop to think
> "Of music as a wondrous magic link
> "With God, taking sometimes the place of prayer —
> "When words have failed us 'neath the weight of care.
> "Music, that knows no country, race or creed,
> "But gives to each, according to his need"!
> — Anonymous

THREE TOP NAMES in the music world will appear on the Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, campus May 1, 2 and 3 all part of the school's annual May Music Festival. They are Cornell MacNeil, baritone, of the Chicago Lyric Opera, Thursday, May 1; Julian Olvesky, violinist, Friday, May 2 and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the direction of George Schick, music co-ordinator of the NBC Opera, Saturday, May 3. In addition to the guest performers, the Cornell Oratorio Society will join the Chicago Symphony orchestra and soloists in a performance of "Requiem" by Faure. It will be the 60th annual festival and will conclude with an orchestral concert on May 3.

ERNEST ANSERMET, conductor of l'Orchestre de la Suis-Romande in Geneva will conduct the CBS radio broadcast of the New York Philharmonic orchestra this afternoon for the first time. As his soloist he will have the distinguished English pianist, Dame Myra Hess, playing the Beethoven Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor. Mr. Ansermet will present the first American broadcast of "Corales Criollos," a recent work by the contemporary Argentinian composer, Juan Jose Castro. The work is in the form of a theme and six variations. Mr. Ansermet founded the Swiss orchetra in 1918 and has remained as its permanent conductor ever since.

Ansermet

WHEN THE NEW YORK Philharmonic orchestra concludes its current season in April it will leave immediately for an eight week tour of South and Central America. It will open the tour with a concert in Panama City on April 29 and will complete it on June 22. The tour will present 44 concerts in some 30 cities in 12 or more countries.

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra has announced some of this summer's Berkshire festival programs at Tanglewood Mass. between July 2 and August 10. Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the concerts. Soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists, Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleislier, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

Monteux

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 185,173

MAY 18 1958

3 Music Festivals List Plans

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as afterthoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the fourth begins the mixing of the old-but-less old masters — Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B. minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

The Aspen (Colo.) Festival, which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the same problem of audience preference of composers and compromised. It will give equal emphasis to the works of the old master, Franz Schubert, and to those of the living master, Paul Hindemith. The Aspen festival opens in that Rocky Mountain town June 25.

The Schubert will be largely his "great" C major symphony and his three mighty song cycles. The Hindemith will be featured by the American premiere of his cantata, "Ite Angeli Veloces." It's not a new work. You see how it is when a major work of a major living composer has its U.S. premiere in the summer up in the mountains.

Leonard Bernstein, new music director of the New York Philharmonic will open New York City's famous open-air Lewisohn Stadium concerts June 23, conducting the Stadium Concerts Orchestra, which actually is the New York Philharmonic itself. That is interesting because it will be his first Stadium concert since 1953. Since then Bernstein has become the glamour boy of the longhairs by wowing the national TV audience not once but several times. He has been and remains, of course, an exceedingly effective musician.

Next season will be Bernstein's first as the sole musical head of the Philharmonic. So his plans, as they have developed so far, are of particular interest. There will be a performance of Elgar's big-scale oratorio, "The Dream of Gerontius," with Sir John Barbirolli, conducting. It's a piece rarely given in this country.

There also will be a concert performance of Debussy's opera, "Pelleas and Melisande," and two Handel works not well known, "Ode for St. Cecilia's Day" and the St. John Passion. Bernstein plans also an all-Bach Christmas program.

[11]

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

MAY 21 1958

Six Young American Pianists Will Play At Berkshire Festival

Six outstanding young American pianists are among the highlights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, July 2 to Aug. 10.

The pianists will appear on six successive weekends of the festival at concerts to be conducted by Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Pierre Monteux.

For the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor Saturday night, July 5. Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart Sunday afternoon, July 13.

Leon Fleisher will be soloist for the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor Sunday afternoon, July 20, in the Music Shed. The following weekend, Byron Janis will play Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 Saturday night, July 26.

Leonard Pennario will be heard Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, also in the shed. During the closing weekend devoted to Beethoven, his Piano Concerto No 5, the "Emperor" Concerto will be performed by Eugene Istomin Friday night, Aug. 8.

Other outstanding events include the violinist, Zino Francescatti, in a concert Sunday afternoon, Judy 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday night, Aug. 1.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PRESS
Circ. D. 309,685

JUN 14 1958

Music, Drama Fests Again Lu

Now solidly established as an American tradition, summer festivals will once again come to life shortly to give culture-happy tourists a full quota of music and drama.

All things are not bright on the festival circuit, however. Some have been curtailed while others do not seem to have the variety and vigor of the past. After a decade of development, the boom seems to have ended and a little retrenchment probably was to be expected.

Nonetheless, the programs lined up appear evenly calculated for widest appeal. Jazz as a musical form is making even more impressive moves into the field.

Some of the better festivals within an easy drive from Cleveland are:

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL: July 2-Aug. 10 at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux and Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony. 510 miles.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL: Shakespeare drama, opera, chamber, folk and jazz music and international films highlight the sixth season of summer culture across the lake at Stratford, Ontario. June 23 to Sept. 13. 315 miles.

RAVINIA FESTIVAL: Symphony, chamber, jazz, ballad and dance concerts July 1 to Aug. 10 in Chicago's suburban Highland Park. 350 miles.

CINCINNATI SUMMER OPERA: Eleven traditional operas in the Queen City's Zoo Pavilion, for the 37th season. July 5-Aug. 2. 250 miles.

CHAUTAUQUA: The oldest culture camp in the U. S., the center in upstate New York will open its 85th season June 29, program of six operas runs July 11 to Aug. 18. 150 miles.

* * *

BERKSHIRE: Most respected of all music festivals in this country, Tanglewood moves into the Shed on weekends for the full symphony concerts. Bach's B Minor Mass is featured at the first big concert July 6.

The following weekends go chiefly to Mozart, Brahms, the Romantics (Tchaikovsky, Debussy, Ravel, Rachmaninoff), Wagner opera excerpts and Beethoven. Opera, choral and chamber music in the Theater-Concert Hall Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Conductors for choral presentations are G. Wallace Woodworth and Hugh Ross. Instrumental soloists are violinists Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky and Ruth Posselt, violist Joseph De Pasquale and a sextet of young American pianists—Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario.

Vocalists include Margaret Harshaw, Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm, Adele Addison and Eunice Alberts. Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops visit Aug. 7.

STRATFORD: The B
One), "Much Ado Abo Winter's Tale" with Ch leen Herlie and Douglas let plays Macheath in gar's Opera."

New York Pro Music and Marais and Miranda and Jacques Labrecque tunes. The jazz scene wi bur de Paris, Dizzy Gil

SOPRANO Dorothy Kirsten sings Madame Butterfly at Cincinnati Summer Opera.

VIOLINIST Berl Senofsky plays Beethoven with the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,366

MA 2 1958

Highlights of Berkshire Festival Are Announced

Six Outstanding Pianists to Appear at Tanglewooc Between July 2, Aug. 10

Boston, March 11—Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Outstanding Soloists

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive week ends. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart week ends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5 and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, Juy 13.

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365). During the four following week ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Feisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

Francescatti On July 27

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

Chorus to Perform

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six week ends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4, the Art of Fugue; by Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 i G minor; by Brahms, Symphon No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; b Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelud to "Meistersinger"; Siegfrie Rhine Journey; by Beethoven Symphony No. 4.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

[12]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675

MA[illegible] 1958

Programs for Berkshire Festival

Six American Pianists To Play at Tanglewood

Six young American pianists will appear on successive weekends at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, being held this year between July 2 and Aug. 10.

During Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466, by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat; and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

♪ ♪ ♪

The violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Götterdämmerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glée Club for the past twenty-five years, will conduct the concert, which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary), and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake - Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

♪ ♪ ♪

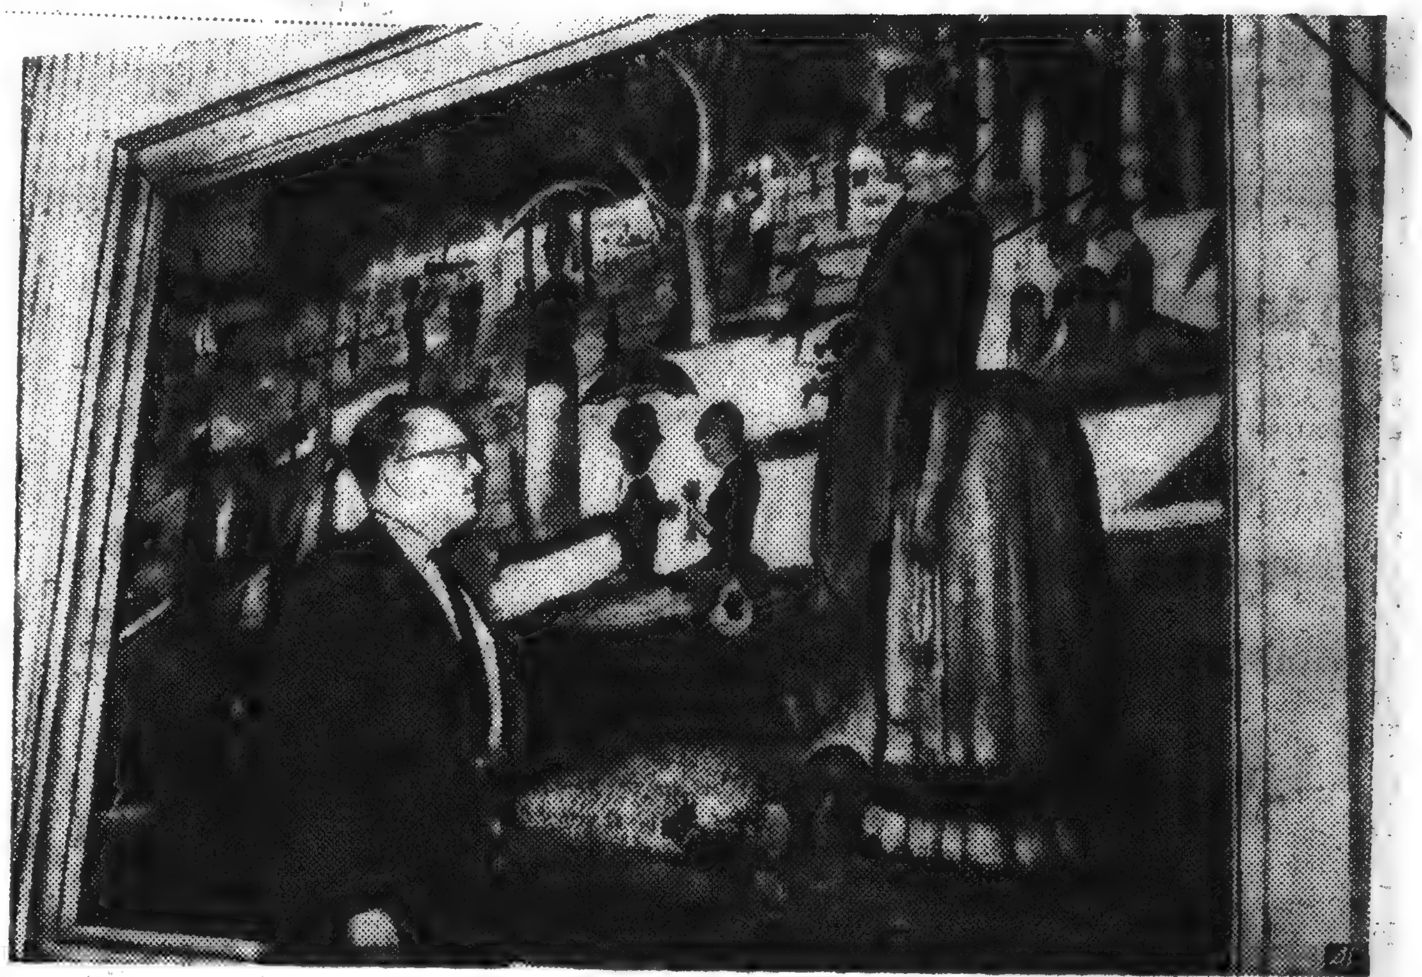
Mr. Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger"; Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 185,173

APR 13 1958



Seurat's masterpiece, 'La Grande Jatte', is examined by Daniel Catton Rich, director of the Art Institute of Chicago, where 150 Seurat paintings were assembled.

Music Festival Highlights Listed

Program highlights for next summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10 were announced today.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Boston Symphony concerts will be conducted by Dr. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor by Mozart Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat. During the four following weekends pianists will be Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the last 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahm's Requiem. The soprano soloist will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13.

Herald 3/16/58

1958 Berkshire Festival At Tanglewood Announced

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announces plans for the Orchesrta's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 23, 27), Wagner (August 1, 2, 3); and Bethoven (August 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporar yworks will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Charles Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Bethoven. The pianists will include Leon Fleisher Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms 'Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Bethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, August 10, both to be conducted by Charles Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert.

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre - Concert Hall on July 4-5-6 (Bach) and July 11-12-13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18-19-20 (Brahms); July 25-26-27 (Debussy and Ravel) August 1-2-3 (Wagner); and August 8-9-10 (Beethoven).

Globe 3/16/58

Berkshire Festival

Partial plans for the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in the town of Lenox, are at hand from Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Festival will run from July 2 through Aug. 10.

The first two weekends will consist of music from Bach and Mozart, for small orchestra, to be conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's B minor Mass will be conducted July 6 by G. Wallace Woodworth, with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

The concerts by the full orchestra will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux, of whom the latter will take one program a week. Music by great composers will be featured: Brahms, July 18, 19 and 20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25, 26 and 27; Wagner, Aug. 1, 2 and 3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8, 9 and 10 (ending with the Ninth Symphony).

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

MAY 12 1958

The Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 through August 10, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, as well as the Budapest and Knoll Quartets and such soloists as Margaret Harshaw, Beal Sensofsky, Adele Addison, Donald Gramm, Lukas Foss, Leon Fleisher, Zino Francescatti, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin.

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 65,580

FEB 23 1958

Dates for six of the major Summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills have been announced by John T. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Mass.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings, July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3) and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10.)

[13]

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 101,553

MAR 23 1958

MUSIC

Two Day Parley Opens National Opera Week

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

News On Berkshire Music Festival

News concerning this year's Berkshire Music Festival is already at hand, including details concerning the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the school which has become an integral part of the Festival's activities.

Once again, conductor Charles Munch will share podium duties with Pierre Monteux in the coming Festival. The music of a great composer is to be featured in each of the six weekend series and a number of special works, some with soloists, are to be heard. A number of younger pianists, several of whom will be making their first appearances at Tanglewood, include the following: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, and Eugene Istomin. The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, is also scheduled for a solo role this year.

Choral works scheduled for performance include Bach's B minor Mass and the Brahms Requiem. The Harvard Glee Club (celebrating its 100th anniversary this year) and the Radcliffe Choral Society will participate with the Boston Symphony in the Bach performance, to be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard singers. The soloists are to be: Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,052

MAR 8 - 1958

Berkshire Festival Highlights Noted

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the Festival will include several outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux. During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the theater-concert hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E flat (K 365). During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Plans Taking Shape Now For Summer Events

With snow drifts piled all around and temperatures sunk to zero, summer with its outdoor musicals, plays, art exhibitions and such entertainment seems a long way off. But behind the wintry landscape there is plenty of indoor activity in preparation for the season which is actually little more than three months away.

One of the first summer announcements comes from Boston's Symphony hall, headquarters of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with the announcement of plans by Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra, for the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and August 10.

Pierre Monteux, guest conductor, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival.

Several outstanding young American pianists performing concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven, will be Leon Fleischer, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Noted violinist Zino Francescatti will also be heard during the season.

Choral works to be performed include Brahms "Requiem" (weekend of July 18, 19, 20) and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, at the closing concert on Sunday, August 10; Bach's B Minor Mass (July 6) in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee club and Radcliff Choral society with the Boston Symphony and soloists.

The Berkshire Festival includes six weekend concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert hall, and the last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed each devoted to a great composer are: July 18, 19, 20 (Brahms); July 25, 26, 27 (Debussy and Ravel); August 1, 2, 3 (Wagner); and August 8, 9, 10 (Beethoven).

Six Chamber Music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings, and will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Centre.

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 16,794

FEB 18 1958

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

FEB 18 1958

Tanglewood Prospectus For Summer

Charles Munch has announced plans for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the Festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner, and Beethoven. Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

* * *

Several outstanding young American pianists will appear in the concerts of the Berkshire Festival, performing piano concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, and Beethoven. They will include Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario. The violinist Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25, 26, 27.

Choral works to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1958 season include Brahms' Requiem (weekend of July 18, 19, 20), and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the closing concert of Sunday, Aug. 10, both to be conducted by Dr. Munch. There will be a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, alto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass) to honor the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary this year and the 25th Anniversary of G. Wallace Woodworth, its conductor. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert, which will be part of the first weekend series of concerts devoted to music by Bach.

* * *

The dates of the Berkshire Festival, following a pattern of previous years, include six weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. The first two weekends of concerts are by a small orchestra in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 4, 5, and 6 (Bach) and July 11, 12, and 13 (Mozart). The last four weekends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed are: July 18, 19, and 20 (Brahms); July 25, 26, and 27 (Debussy and Ravel); Aug. 1, 2, and 3 (Wagner); and Aug. 8, 9, and 10 (Beethoven).

Six chamber music concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season in the Theatre-Concert Hall. These concerts, which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berk-hire Music Center, will be iven on July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, nd Aug. 6.

Ticket information for the erkshire Festival at Tangle-ood is available from the estival Office, Symphony Hall, oston 15.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

FEB 23 1958

BERKSHIRE HILLS PLANNING SIX MAJOR EVENTS

Summer Attractions to Begin Season On June 23

Pittsfield, Feb. 22—Dates for six of the major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills were announced today by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

Summer Theaters

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 106,047

FEB 23 1958

Music

Berkshire Festival Offers Magic of Big Box-Office

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

The value of composers' names to the box-office is indicated by tentative programs announced for the 21st Berkshire Music Festival, between July 2 and August 10, at Tanglewood in Lenox.

Last summer's festival broke all attendance records in 20 years. A total of 162,936 persons attended orchestral concerts, chamber music, public rehearsals, and "Tanglewood on Parade."

Each of these composers' music was featured for a weekend: Bach, Mozart, Tchaikovsky, Berlioz, Brahms and Beethoven. Interspersed among these were contemporary works.

This was in answer to previous criticisms that the programs had been too specialized. The conservatives resented an overload of moderns — and the contemporary enthusiasts were just as opposed to what they described as unwanted rehashings.

Degree of Discontent

Each of last summer's concerts brought a degree of discontent. For example, those whose enthusiasm knew no bounds over the festival's conclusion—Beethoven's Ninth Symphony—were not all in accord with the wisdom of appendaging it with Aaron Copland's "Quiet City," even if the composer conducted it.

The same format will be followed this summer. Preliminary weekend concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall will feature Bach (July 4-5-6), and Mozart (July 11-12-13).

Moving into the Shed, the full Boston Symphony Orchestra with continue[illegible]ly 18--19-20) —Debussy [illegible]avel (July 25-26-27) Wagner (August 1-2-3). And Beethoven (August 8-9-10). And again, all programs will be punctuated with significant contemporary works.

Monteux and Munch

Guest conductor, Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Charles Munch, regular conductor of the Boston Symphony, appearing at one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival.

Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear, performing concertos by Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, and Beethoven. These are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario. The violinist, Zino Francescatti will be heard during the weekend of July 25-27.

Choral works will include Brahms' "Requiem," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and Bach's B minor Mass.

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
Circ. D. 227,679

JUN 16 1958

Boston Sends Symphony Here March 12

By HELEN A. F. PENNIMAN

We are privileged today to announce still another in the list of major musical events in next winter's calendar. This will be a visit from the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Charles Munch conducting on March 12.

Last season the orchestra returned to Baltimore for the first time in 23 years — though it had been chosen to appear at the official opening of the Lyric—then known as the Music Hall—in 1894.

The renowned Berkshire Festival, given each summer under the auspices of the orchestra, will open on July 2, to run till August 10, at Tanglewood, the festival estate near Lenox, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,351

JUN 7 1958

Berkshire Festival Offers Six Weekend Programs

The year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hildur Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4, 5 and 6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11, 12, and 13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18, 19, and 20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25, 26 and 27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1, 2 and 3 music of Wagner; and August 8, 9 and 10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

NEW BEDFORD
March 9,1958
DAY STANDARD-TIMES, NEW

aiting So

Tanglewood Soloists Set

6 Young Americans To Play at Lenox

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, March 8—Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this Summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the "Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor" on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the "Piano Concerto in D Minor (K. 466)" by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's "Two-Piano Concerto in E-Flat" (K.365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor," Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 3" on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat, and during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's "Piano Concerto No. 5," the "Emperor Concerto," will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky violin concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the immolation scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's "B Minor Mass" on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' "Requiem." The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard in addition to those with soloists, include: By Bach, "Suites 1, 2, 3, 4," and "The Art of Fugue;" by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz Symphony," "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor;" by Brahms, "Symphony No. 4;" by Debussy, "La Mer;" by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe," "Suite No. 2;" by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger," "Siegfried Idyl," and "Siegfried's Rhine Journey;" by Beethoven, "Symphony No. 4."

And further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,496

MAR 1 1958

Six U. S. Pianists To Perform At Tanglewood

Soloists for the Boston Symphony orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10 will include six outstanding young American pianists. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Charles Munch, director, and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the theatre-concert hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor, Saturday evening, July 5; Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart, Sunday afternoon, July 13.

Saturday evening, July 12, in the music shed, Foss and Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K.365).

During the four following weekends in the music shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher, Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Pian Concerto No. 3, Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Lizt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat and during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin, Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 52,742

FEB 9 - 1958

Plans Made For Festival At Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchstra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debussy and Ravel (July 25, 26, 27), Wagner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and Beethoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Significant contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear. They will include Leo Flischer, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Ticket information for the festival is available at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

March 15 - Miami Beach Sun

Berkshire Festival To Feature Six Pianists

Music lovers throughout the United States anticipate with much enthusiasm the summer program of Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tanglewood draws visitors from many areas, including Europe, and persons interested in American musicians and compositions of the masters plan visits to New England in order to take in some session of the July 2 to Aug. 10. program.

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater - Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two - Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

GLOBE Wednesday, March 12

Berkshire Festival Soloists Announced

Six young American pianists will be soloists with the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood next Summer between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Lukas Foss will play the Bach Klavier Concerto in D minor July 5; Seymour Lipkin will be heard in Mozart's Piano Concerto in D minor (K. 466), July 13; on July 12 Messrs Foss and Lipkin will both appear in the Mozart Concerto for Two Pianos in E-flat (K. 365); Leon Fleisher will play the Brahms D minor Concerto July 20; the Rachmaninoff C minor Concerto will be done by Byron Janis July 26; Leonard Pennario will perform the Liszt E-flat Concerto Aug. 2, and Eugene Istomin will be soloist in the Beethoven "Emperor" Concerto Aug. 8.

Other Berkshire Festival soloists will be Zino Francescatti in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto July 27; Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in the "Tristan and Isolde" Love-Death and Bruennhilde's Immolation Scene from "Goetterdaemmerung," Aug. 1; and Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, in the Bach B minor Mass, July 6. Mr. Gramm and soprano Hilde Gueden will be soloists in the Brahms Requiem, July 19.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will end the Festival, Aug. 10.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUN 26 1958

TANGLEWOOD TO FEATURE OUTSTANDING PIANISTS

Soloists for the Berkshire Festival at ~~Tanglewood~~ will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466, by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat; and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from Tristan and Isolde and the Immolation Scene from Gotterdammerung at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, LaMer; by Ravel Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to Meistersinger; Siegfried Idyll; Seigfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,351

JUN 7 1958

Berkshire Festival Offers Six Weekend Programs

Thes year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B. Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky, and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hildur Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4, 5 and 6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11, 12, and 13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18, 19, and 20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25, 26 and 27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1, 2 and 3 music of Wagner; and August 8, 9 and 10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

NEW BEDFORD
March 9, 1958
DAY STANDARD-TIMES, NEW

aiting So

Tanglewood Soloists Set

6 Young Americans To Play at Lenox

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, March 8—Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Soloists for the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the "Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor" on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the "Piano Concerto in D Minor (K. 466)" by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's "Two Piano Concerto in E-Flat" (K.365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor," Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 3" on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat, and during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's "Piano Concerto No. 5," the "Emperor Concerto," will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky violin concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the immolation scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's "B Minor Mass" on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club (this year celebrating its 100th anniversary) and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' "Requiem." The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the s[illegible]on on Sunday afternoon, Au[illegible], and will be heard in a [illegible] by Mozart conduct[illegible] Ross at the concert of S[illegible]noon, July 13, in the [illegible] Concert Hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard in addition to those with soloists, include: By Bach, "Suites 1, 2, 3, 4," and "The Art of Fugue;" by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," "Linz Symphony," "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor;" by Brahms, "Symphony No. 4;" by Debussy, "La Mer;" by Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe," "Suite No. 2;" by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger," "Siegfried Idyl," and "Siegfried's Rhine Journey;" by Beethoven, "Symphony No. 4."

And further information may be obtained from the Festival Office Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,496

MAR 11 1958

Six U. S. Pianists To Perform At Tanglewood

Soloists for the Boston Symphony orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10 will include six outstanding young American pianists. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Charles Munch, director, and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the theatre-concert hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor, Saturday evening, July 5; Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart, Sunday afternoon, July 13.

Saturday evening, July 12, in the music shed, Foss and Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K.365).

During the four following weekends in the music shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher, Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Pian[illegible] Concerto No. 3, Saturday eve[illegible]ning, July 26; Leonard Pennar[illegible] on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, [illegible] Lizt's Piano Concerto No. 1 [illegible] E-flat and during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin, Friday evening, Aug. 8.

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 52,742

FEB 9 - 1958

Plans Made For Festival At Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces plans for the orchstra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the festival. Following last season's successful plan, each weekend will feature the works of the great composers including Brahms (July 18, 19, 20); Debuss[illegible] and Ravel (July 25, 26, 2[illegible]), Wag[illegible]ner (Aug. 1, 2, 3); and [illegible]hoven (Aug. 8, 9, 10). Signi[illegible] contemporary works will be performed in each series. The first two weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Dr. Munch.

Dr. Munch has invited several outstanding young American pianists to appear. They will include Leo Flischer, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will be heard during the weekend of July 25-26-27.

Ticket information for the festival is available at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

March 15 - Miami Beach Sun

Berkshire Festival To Feature Six Pianists

Music lovers throughout the United States anticipate with much-enthusiasm the summer program of Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tanglewood draws visitors from many areas, including Europe, and persons interested in American musicians and compositions of the masters plan visits to New England in order to take in some session of the July 2 to Aug. 10. program.

Dr. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival.

Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theater - Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two - Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26, Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 2 years, will conduct the concer which will be performed by th Boston Symphony Orchestra, th Harvard Glee Club (this yea celebrating its 100th anniversary and the Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donal Gramm, bass.

Donald Gramm will also be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

The Festival Chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season on Sunday afternoon, August 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

GLOBE Wednesday, March 12

Berkshire Festival Soloists Announced

Six young American pianists will be soloists with the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood next Summer between July 2 and Aug. 10.

Lukas Foss will play the Bach Klavier Concerto in D minor July 5; Seymour Lipkin will be heard in Mozart's Piano Concerto in D minor (K. 466), July 13; on July 12 Messrs Foss and Lipkin will both appear in the Mozart Concerto for Two Pianos in E-flat (K. 365); Leon Fleisher will play the Brahms D minor Concerto July 20; the Rachmaninoff C minor Concerto will be done by Byron Janis July 26; Leonard Pennario will perform the Liszt E-flat Concerto Aug. 2, and Euge[illegible] Istomin will be soloist in the [illegible]ethoven "Empero[illegible]

Other [illegible] soloists will [illegible] in the Tcha[illegible] July 27; [illegible] no, in th[illegible] Love-Dea[illegible] molation [illegible] daemmerun[illegible] and Adele Addison, sop[illegible] Alberts, contralto; Bl[illegible] Donald Gram[illegible] B minor Mass[illegible] July 6. Mr. Gramm and soprano [illegible]de Gueden will be soloists in th[illegible] Brahms Requiem, July 19.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will end the Festival, Aug. 10.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUN 26 1958

TANGLEWOOD TO FEATURE OUTSTANDING PIANISTS

Soloists for the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on the six successive weekends of the Festival. Concerts will be conducted by Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466, by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13. At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be held in the Music Shed, Mr. Foss and Mr. Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat (K. 365).

During the four following weekends in the Music Shed, pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, August 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat; and, during the closing weekend devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, August 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the Love Death from Tristan and Isolde and the Immolation Scene from Gotterdammerung at the concert of Friday evening, August 1.

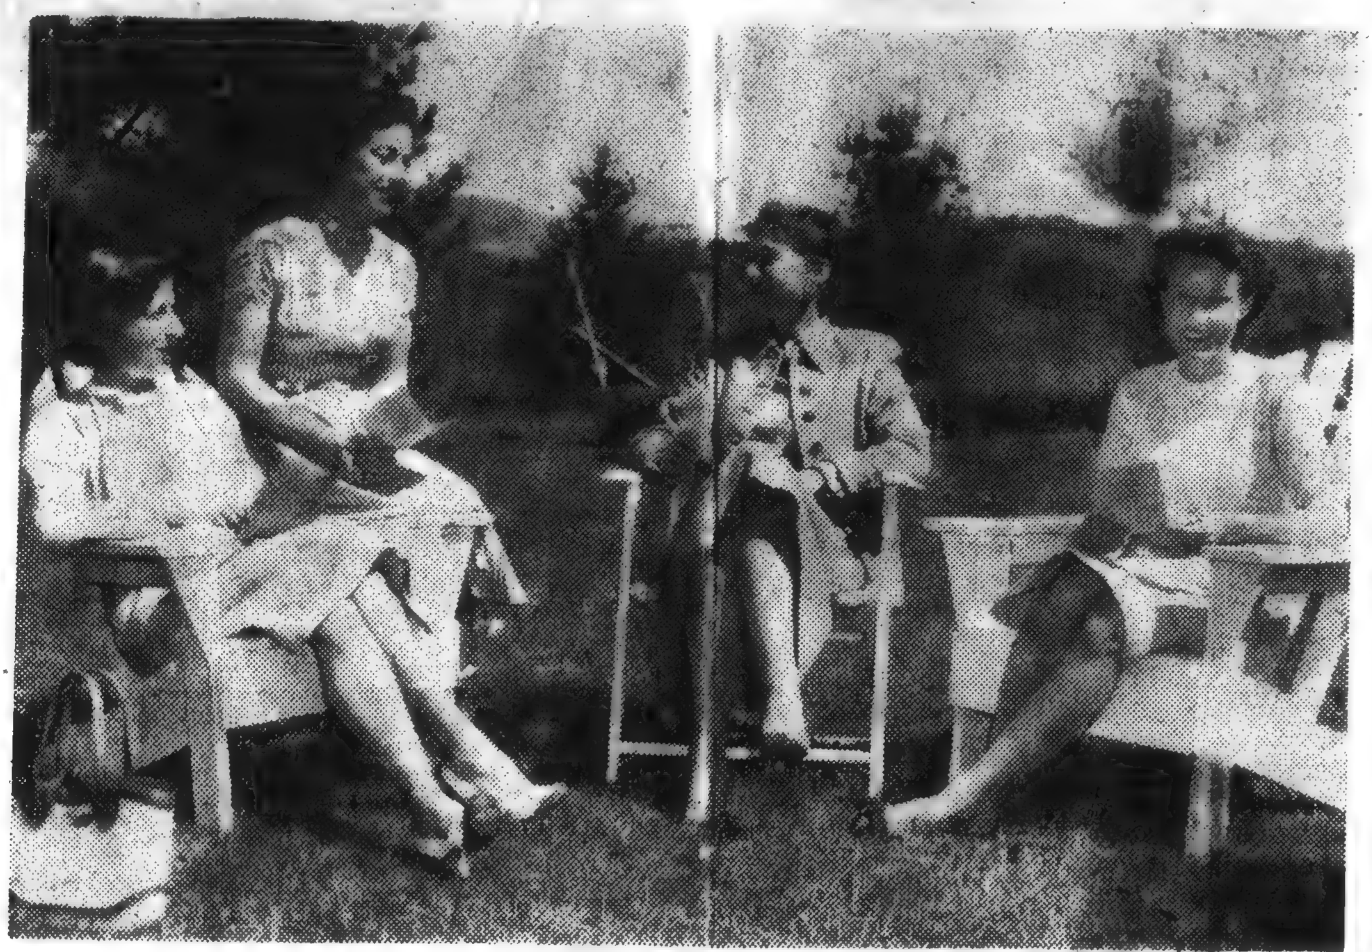
The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six weekends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: by Bach, Suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4; by Debussy, LaMer; by Ravel Daphnis and Chloe; Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to Meistersinger; Siegfried Idyll; Seigfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

B Eagle - May 22 '58

'Berkshire Nights'

Mahan

Among coffee parties being held throughout the county to promote Berkshire Nights was one at home of Mrs. Prentice Bradley, 10 Broad St. Mrs. Benjamin N. Bowers and Mrs. Bradley pour for those attending, who included Mrs. Willem Willeke, Mrs. Ralph G. Starke, Mrs. Robert O. Wells, Mrs. F. Anthony Hanlon.



Mahan

A garden party was given by Mrs. James G. Garivaltis of 48 Roberta Rd. to discuss the Friday night concert series next summer at Tanglewood. Left to right are Mrs. Robert Jones III, Mrs. Garivaltis, Mrs. Eugene L. Amber and Mrs. Edward F. Ladd. The series will be offered at special rates until June 1.

Mooney

Great Barrington residents discuss the concerts scheduled for July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8 at a party at the home of Mrs. William C. Gulick. Left to right are Mrs. Irl E. Hall, Mrs. Gulick, Mrs. Morgan E. Vigneron, Mrs. Paul Argentini. Subscriptions may be obtained from Mrs. J. G. W. Mahanna, chairman.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

MAY 15 1958

Area Hostesses Help Promote Berkshire Nights With Parties

A series of coffee hours and tea parties are being held in Pittsfield and throughout the county by members of the Berkshire Nights Committee to further acquaint area residents with the plan to offer four BSO Friday night concerts at Tanglewood for the price of three. The ticket deadline is June 1.

Yesterday, Mrs. John P. Josephs entertained 10 women at a coffee hour at her home, 12 Kenilworth St., so they might hear Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee, explain the program arranged by Dr. Charles Munch for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Friday evenings.

Mrs. Hamilton M. Redman also entertained a group of women at her home, 931 West St., at a coffee hour yesterday, when Mrs. Marc deFerranti of the Berkshire Nights Committee described the plans for the BSO concerts in the Music Shed this summer. This morning Mrs. deFerranti also addressed a group of women at a coffee hour held by Mrs. G. P. Hermarm at her home, 53 Waverly St.

Mrs. William C. Gulick of South Main Street, Great Barrington, held a Berkshire Nights tea for 10 women in the South Berkshire area at her home this afternoon, when Mrs. Mahanna spoke to the group. Mrs. Mahanna also was interviewed this afternoon at 1 over radio station WSBS, Great Barrington, on the Jan Clarke program, relative to the Berkshire Nights concerts at Tanglewood.

Tomorrow morning Mrs. Lawrence G. Hamilton will hold a Berkshire Nights coffee hour at her home, 19 Bishop Pkwy., with Mrs. Mahanna as the speaker. Tomorrow night the Berkshire Nights chairman will address Mrs. Hamilton's music appreciation class at the Women's Club.

Assisting in making arrangements for the teas and coffee hours is Mrs. John H. Rice of 1030 West St. Others are being planned in Northern Berkshire and the Lebanon Valley area.

Persons wishing to subscribe to the Berkshire Nights series should send their orders to Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., this city.

Coffee Hours Will Continue Next Week

The coffee hours being held throughout the county to help promote Berkshire Nights at Tanglewood this summer, will continue next week, according to Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, Berkshire Nights committee chairman.

Among those who have been hostesses for coffee hours at their homes this week were Mrs. Bernard H. Flood of New Lenox Road, Lenox; Mrs. James H. Garivaltis, 48 Roberta Rd.; Mrs. Peter H. Dillard, 300 Holmes Rd.; Mrs. John R. Cook and Mrs. Robert Allen at Mrs. Cook's home on Oblong Road, Williamstown; Mrs. Henry Williams, East Main Street, Stockbridge; Mrs. Prentice Bradley, 10 Broad St.

Tomorrow Mrs. William K. Collins and Mrs. Milton Gordon of Lee will entertain a group at Mrs. Gordon's home on Richmond Avenue in that town, Mrs. W. Morris Paxton of 76 Brookline Ave., Albany, N.Y., will be hostess for a group at her home in the morning and Mrs. Thurlow H. Pelton will hold a dessert party at her home, 21 Crofut St.

Chairmen Speak

Mrs. Mahanna and her assistant chairman, Mrs. John H. Rice, are appearing at the coffee hours explaining the Berkshire Nights plan, which offers four Friday evening concert tickets for the price of three. They spoke today at the Williamstown party given by Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Allen. Tomorrow they will meet with an Albany group at the home of Mrs. Paxton and in the afternoon at Mrs. Pelton's dessert party.

On Monday, Mrs. John W. Talbot will hold a Berkshire Nights coffee hour at her home in Richmond, and on Tuesday Mrs. Charles R. Jordan will entertain in the morning at her home, 49 Bartlett Ave.

Drive in Tri-City Area

Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr., last year's Berkshire Nights chairman, who is heading the Berkshire Nights drive in the tri-city area of Schenectady, Troy and Albany, this morning discussed the Friday night concert series at Tanglewood on the Home Fare program over WRGB-TV in Schenectady. Mrs. Cumpston will entertain at a coffee hour tomorrow at her home, 918 St. David's Lane, Schenectady.

The deadline for subscribing to the Berkshire Nights series is June 1. Subscriptions are to be mailed to Mrs. John G.W. Mahanna, Berkshire Nights chairman, 20 Warwick St.

News Advertiser
WESTFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2700

MAY 8 - 1958

BOSTON SYMPHONY PLANS BERKSHIRE NIGHTS CONCERTS

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recently announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18, 25, Aug. 1, 8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra, and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July) 25 in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program, Aug. 1, will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung". Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. dePasquale.

The Young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fuge and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the Berkshire Nights Committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield. Mrs. Mahanna will soon announce the members of a committee of area residents who will assist in the subscription campaign which will run from April 15 to June 1.

[16]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

MAY 18 1958

Four 'Berkshire Nights' Proving Attractive Again

Lenox, May 17—The "Berkshire Nights" series of concerts at Tanglewood this summer, open to all music lovers "within easy driving distance of the Berkshire Music Festival," is attracting much interest from Western Massachusetts communities, especially those close to the Massachusetts Turnpike, Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairman of the "Berkshire Nights" committee, said today.

Four Concerts

Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, the "Berkshire Nights" series again this season offers a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (July 18-25, Aug. 1-8) in the Music Shed at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts. The deadline for subscriptions is June 1.

(Kanter Photo)

MRS. JOHN G. W. MAHANNA

Dr. Charles Munch has arranged special concert programs for the Friday night series, according to Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He will conduct three of the four Friday night concerts while Pierre Monteux will be on the podium with the Boston Symphony as guest conductor for the other. Highlights of the Friday night series will be the appearance of Margaret Harshaw, Wagnerian soloist, and Eugene Istomin, concert pianist.

At a recent meeting of the "Berkshire Nights' committee, Mr. Perry approved a suggestion to extend the ticket campaign outside of the Berkshires, even as far east as Worcester and as far west as Albany, N. Y., because these places are today within easy driving distance of Tanglewood.

Active Chairman

Regional coffee hours are being held throughout the area by music lovers interested in making the "Berkshire Nights" series a success. A speakers' bureau has been set up by Mrs. Mahanna and her committee to further acquaint Western Massachusetts residents with the Berkshire Nights plan at Tanglewood.

A graduate of the College of Mount St. Vincent-on-the Hudson in New York, Mrs. Mahanna has been active in social and civic affairs in the Pittsfield area. A member of the board of directors of the South Mountain Music Association, she is a member of the Young Audiences committee, the Tanglewood on Parade Committee and is one of the sponsors of the Berkshire ballroom dancing classes. She is active in the activities of the Girls' Club of Pittsfield, the auxiliaries of St. Luke's Hospital and Pittsfield General Hospital, and for two years served as chairman of clubs and societies in the United Community Service fund campaign.

Her husband, a newspaperman and author of "Music Under the Moon," an early history of the Berkshire Festival, served as a special agent with the Office of Naval Intelligence in Springfield in 1942 before being transferred to the Pacific theater.

Persons wishing to subscribe to the four "Berkshire Nights" concerts at Tanglewood should address their orders to Mrs. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

APR 11 1958

Program for Berkshire Nights at Tanglewood Set

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced the programs and soloists for this summer's series of "Berkshire Nights" programs of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

* * *

INAUGURATED last season, the Friday evening programs of July 18 and 24, and Aug. 1 and 8 will be presented in the Music Shed at a series price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts. They are designed especially for Berkshire residents and persons within easy driving distance of Tanglewood.

Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony orchestra on July 18 in Brahms' "Serenade number 2 in A, opus 16"; Aaron Copland's "Variations for Orchestra" and Brahms' "Symphony number 4."

* * *

PIERRE MONTEUX will direct the July 25 concert. The program will include Glinka's overture to "Russland and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's "Fourth Symphony," the overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud; Debussy's "Three Nocturnes" and Ravel's "La Valse."

Margaret Harshaw, noted Wagnerian soprano, will be the featured soloist at the Aug. 1 program. She will be heard in two Wagner excerpts — the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung." Dr. Munch will direct the program which will also include the prelude to "Die Meistersinger" and the "Siegfried Idyll." Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony, will be the soloist in a new viola concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to the soloist.

* * *

EUGENE Stomin, young American pianist, will be the soloist for the Aug. 8 program performing Beethoven's "Emperor Concerto number 5." Dr. Munch will also conduct Honegger's "Prelude Fugue and Postlude" and Beethoven's "Seventh Symphony."

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, of Pittsfield is heading the Berkshire Nights committee and requests for these subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick street, Pittsfield.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
Circ D. 13,326

JUN 5 1958

Tanglewood Berkshire Night Interest Jumps

Berkshire Night subscriptions to the Berkshire Music Festival concerts at Tanglewood have increased to 402 this year, a gain of 46 per cent.

This was announced yesterday by Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, Berkshire Nights Committee chairman.

Under the Berkshire Nights plan, tickets for four Friday evening concerts, July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8, were offered as a special series to residents of this area. Normal series subscriptions cover one weekend. The plan was inaugurated last year when subscriptions totaled 287. Mrs. Mahanna said that this year many residents of the Albany - Troy Springfield-Holyoke, and Southern Vermont areas were among subscribers.

Italian News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 13,582

MAY 2 - 1958

DePasquale, Pennario and Francescatti Play at Berkshires Tanglewood Festival

Joseph DePasquale, Zino Francescatti, and Leonard Pennario will be soloists with the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts in July and August.

DePasquale will be the viola soloist in the performance of Mozart's Musical Joke, K.522 on Friday, July 11, and will accompany Margaret Harshaw in Wagner's "Immolation Scene" on Friday, August 1.

Francescatti will be soloist in the Tschaikowsky Violin Concerto on Sunday, July 27, while Pennario will perform the Liszt Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat on Saturday, July 2.

Plan Special Series Of Musical Events

Town Times Apr 17

The Berkshire Festival will present a series of concerts this year called "Berkshire Nights" and designed especially for persons residing in the Berkshire area or within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, at Lenox, Mass., with a subscription offered for four Friday Evening Concerts at a reduced price, it has been announced.

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield, Mass., is in charge of the Committee for the four special concerts, and requests for information and tickets may be mailed to her. The concerts will be held July 18 and 25 and August 1 and 8.

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Copland's Variations for Orchestra, and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program (August 1st) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw will perform two Wagner excerpts; the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung". Other Wagner excerpts on the program, under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. DePasquale.

The pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

MAY 9 1958

erkshire Nights ommittee Holds egional Meeting

STOCKBRIDGE — The first of a series of regional meetings of the Berkshire Nights Committee of the Berkshire Festival was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Finton C. D. Cosby, chairman of the Stockbridge group at her home.

Ten local women, who are assisting with the ticket drive which offers four Friday night Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts in the Music Shed for the price of three, heard a report on the area campaign from Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee.

The deadline for the Berkshire Nights, July 18-25, Aug. 1-8, has been set for June 1. Subscribers may order their tickets by sending their remittance to Mrs. Mahanna at 20 Warwick St., this city.

Other Area Chairmen

Other area chairmen named today by Mrs. Mahanna who may be called in their communities for more information are Mrs. Eric F. Joslin of West Stockbridge and Mrs. John W. Talbot in Richmond.

Honorary chairmen of the Berkshire Nights Committee are Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, widow of the former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center; of the Berkshire Music Center; and New York and Stockbridge, the president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Inc., who helped found the music festival in the Berkshires.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

APR 16 1959

Berkshire Nights Programs Set For Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recently announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18-25; Aug. 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Friday program will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. DePasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

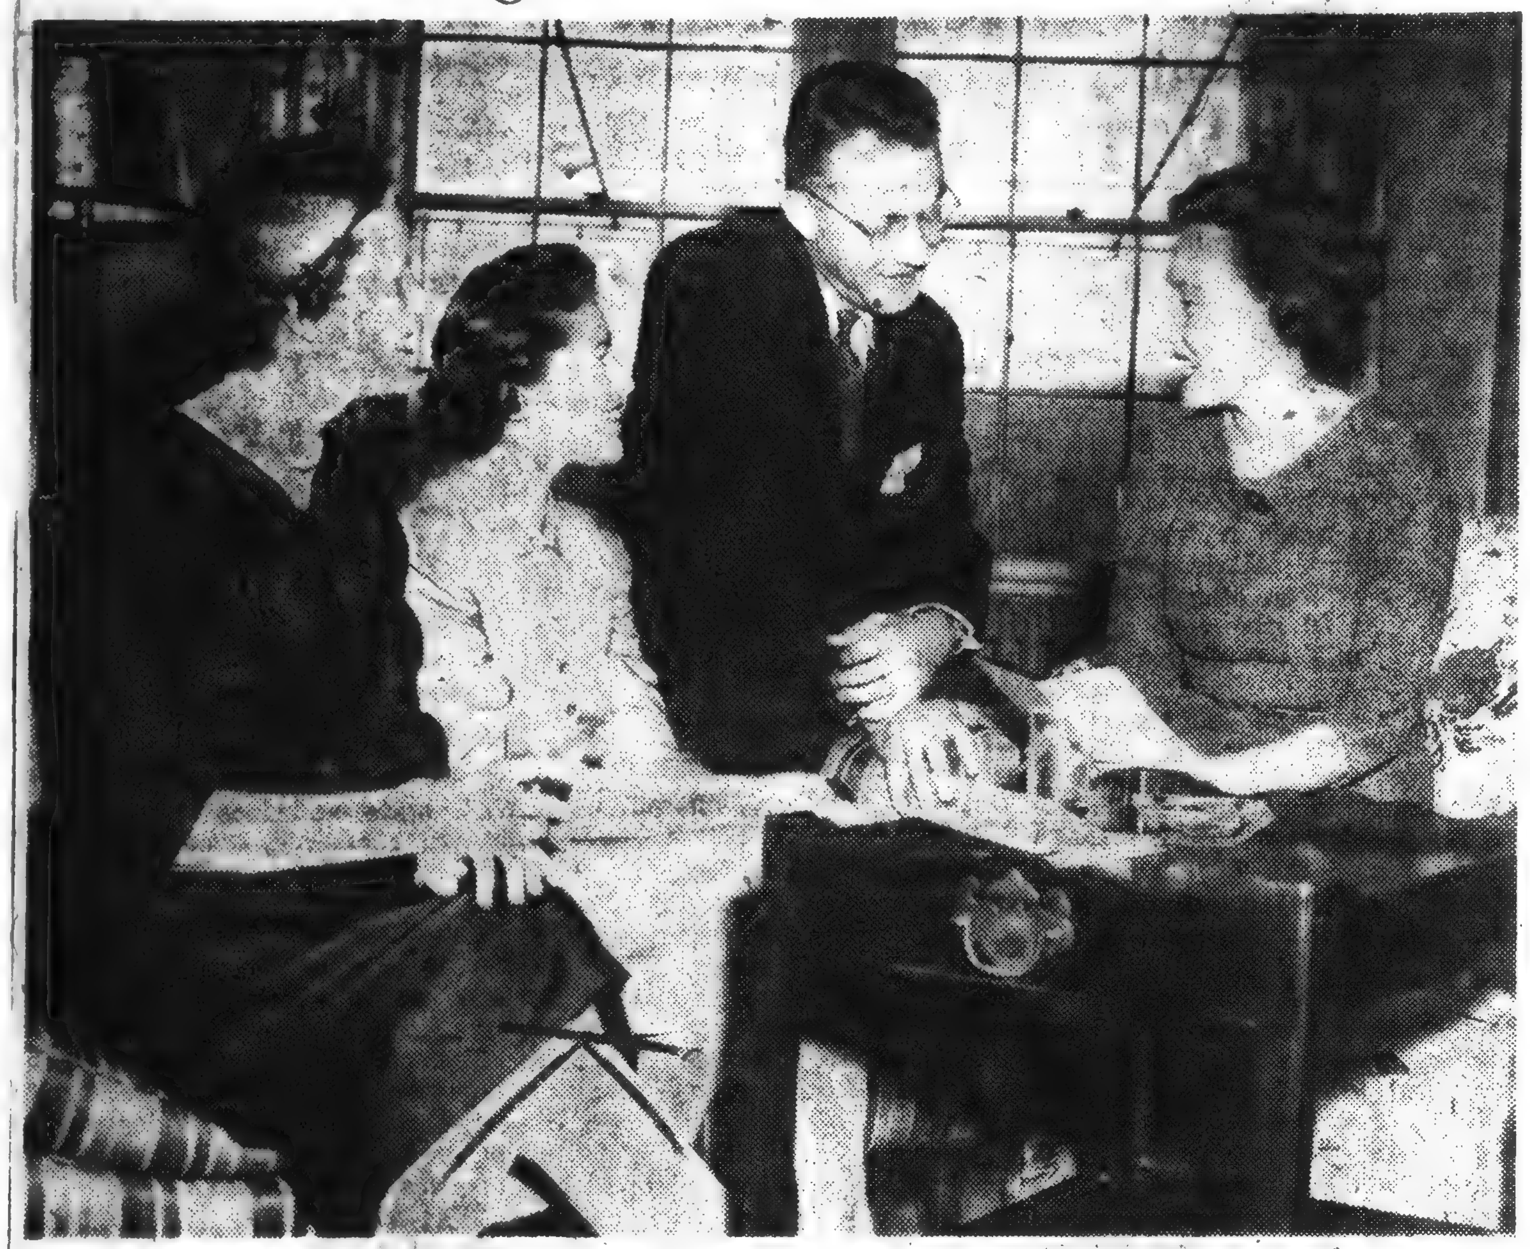
Heading the Berkshire Nights Committee this season is Mrs. John G. J. Mahanna of Pittsfield. Requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield.

[17]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

APR 17 1958

Berkshire Nights Committee Launches Drive



Mitchell

Discussing the Berkshire Nights concerts yesterday at Country Club of Pittsfield are Mrs. Alexander Euston and Mrs. Jason C. L. Leavitt, committee members for area ticket drive; Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of Boston Symphony Orchestra; and Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, drive chairman. Campaign for concert subscription series at Tanglewood closes June 1.

Enthusiastic support was pledged to the Berkshire Nights series of concerts at Tanglewood this summer by more than 50 Berkshire residents who gathered at the Country Club of Pittsfield last night to launch the area ticket drive which ends June 1.

Teas, Coffee Hours Planned

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, Berkshire Nights chairman, reporting on progress of the campaign to date, said that plans are being made in regional sections of the county to hold teas and coffee hours to promote the sale of tickets for the four Friday evening concerts, which are being offered by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the price of three.

The chairman read a letter from Robert K. Wheeler of Great Barrington, a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, suggesting that industrial firms and other businesses in the county buy tickets for the Friday night concerts for their employes or friends. He explained that last year when the Berkshire Nights idea was started, he purchased a number of tickets for the series and gave them to members of his office staff and friends, many of whom had never before been to Tanglewood.

Mrs. Mahanna also reported that John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference and the Pittsfield Chamber of Commerce, is co-operating with her committee in mailing flyers, containing information on the concerts and ticket blanks, to all members of the local and countywide organizations. Efforts also will be made to have the same plan carried out by other Chamber of Commerce and Boards of Trade in the county.

Special Programs Set

Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, said that special concert programs have been arranged for the Friday night series by Dr. Charles Munch, musical director of the BSO. Featured besides Dr. Munch, will be Pierre Monteux as a guest conductor; Margaret Harshaw, Wagnerian soloist; and Eugene Istomin, concert pianist. The Berkshire Nights programs are scheduled for July 18, 25 and Aug. 1 and 8. Mr. Perry said he felt the ticket campaign could be extended outside of the Berkshires, even as far as Worcester and Albany, because these places are within easy driving distance of Tanglewood.

Mrs. Mahanna will announce soon regional committees, as well as honorary members of the committee. She added that several organizations in the city and county have pledged their support, adding speakers are available to discuss Berkshire Nights before any service club or organization in the county.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

APR 10 1958

Berkshire Nights Series of Concerts To Start July 18

Lenox, April 9—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood.

Begun Last Season

Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18-25; August 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivelent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copand's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the econd Friday evening concert July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to 'Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program (August 1st) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harhaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audinces from her previous appearnces, will perform two Wagner xcerpts, the "Love Death" from Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterammerung." Other Wagner exerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. DePasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the Berkshire Nights Committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield. The subscription campaign will run from the 15th to June 1.

EAGLE Saturday, April 5, 1958

Programs, Soloists Announced For Berkshire Nights Series

Margaret Harshaw

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced the programs and soloists for the Berkshire Nights series of concerts, designed especially for Berkshire residents, to be held in the Music Shed at Tanglewood on four Fridays—July 18 and 25, Aug. 1 and 8.

In the first concert, Dr. Munch will conduct the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16; Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will be on the podium for the second Friday evening concert, leading the BSO in the following program: Glinka's "Russlan and Ludmilla," overture; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4; Milhaud's Overture to "Les Eumenides"; Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

On Aug. 1, the Berkshire Nights program will be featured by the appearance of Margaret Harshaw, Metropolitan Opera soprano, who will be the soloist in Wagner's final "Immolation Scene" from "Gotterdammerung." Dr. Munch will conduct.

Acclaimed in 1952

Margaret Harshaw was acclaimed at Tanglewood in 1952 when she first appeared here with the BSO as soloist in the second scene of the third act of "Siegfried" and in several excerpts from "The Twilight of the Gods."

She made another appearance with the BSO as a soloist in 1955 at Tanglewood. Miss Harshaw, a native of Pennsylvania, studied with Mme. Schoen-Renee while attending the Juilliard School of Music. She made her debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company in 1942 and has sung with that company each season since then, in recent years taking soprano parts exclusively—notably in Wagnerian roles. She has sung many times in Europe, having appeared in "The Ring" at Covent Garden, at Glyndebourne and in Berlin at the Stadtische Oper.

Viola Soloist

The first part of the Aug. 1 program will include Wagner's prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll, Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan," and Piston's Viola Concerto, featuring Joseph de Pasquale, first viola of the BSO.

Mr. de Pasquale, a native of Philadelphia, attended the Curtis Institute of Music, studying viola with Lois Bailly. He also studied with Max Aranoff and William Primrose. For the duration of the war he played in the Marine Band in Washington, D. C., subsequently joining the viola section of the American Broadcasting Company Orchestra in New York. Mr. de Pasquale became first viola of the BSO in 1947.

Istomin To Play

Another soloist has been scheduled to appear with Dr. Munch and the BSO for the final Friday concert in the Berkshire Nights series. Eugene Istomin will be the soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"). The program also will include Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, and Beethoven's Symphony No. 4.

Mr. Istomin was born in New York City in 1925, of Russian parents. At 14 he entered the Curtis Institute of Music where he studied with Miercio Horszowski and Rudolf Serkin, making his first public appearance in 1943. He has appeared in France at festivals organized by Pablo Casals and made his first appearance with the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood during the 1955 season.

The Berkshire Nights Committee is being headed by Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of this city. Subscriptions to the four Friday night concert series, which are being offered at a suitable price reduction, may be mailed to Mrs. Mahanna at 20 Warwick St. Requests for information should be telephoned to her. The area campaign will run from April 15 to June 1.

Tanglewood Berkshire Nights

GLOBE 4/13/58

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, makes known the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts, July 18-25, Aug. 1-8, in the Music Shed.

At the first concert, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. Four.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second concert, July 25, the program to include Glinka's Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony; Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud; Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program, Aug. 1, will be Wagnerian soprano Margaret Harshaw, in the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Goetterdaemmerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the "Siegfried Idyll." Joseph de Pasquale, first violist, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto. Charles Munch will also [illegible] Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude, and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

B. Eagle May 21

'Berkshire Nights' To Be Promoted at Williamstown Party

WILLIAMSTOWN—A coffee hour to promote Berkshire Nights at Tanglewood will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 at the home of Mrs. John R. Cook on Oblong Road, South Williamstown.

The event is one of a series of similar events being held throughout the county to encourage interest in the special tickets available to area residents for Friday night concerts at the music festival.

Hostess with Mrs. Cook tomorrow will be Mrs. Robert J. Allen of South Street.

Special guests at the coffee hour will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, chairman of the Berkshire Nights committee this year, and Mrs. John H. Rice, a member of the committee. They will explain the Berkshire Nights plan.

Also present as a guest will be Mrs. James P. Baxter III, wife of the president of Williams College. Dr. Baxter was one of the original trustees of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival, forerunner of today's Berkshire Music Festival, two decades ago.

About [illegible] women from Williamstown, North Adams and other nearby communities are expected.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

APR 17 1958

[28]

Exploring Deepest Tanglewood

A few years ago, Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was engaged as a speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Great Barrington Rotary Club. He was introduced by businessman Robert K. Wheeler, longtime Berkshire Festival supporter and a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Wheeler observed that the broad outlines of the Tanglewood story doubtless were familiar to the audience, who lived next door and who knew at first hand the quality of the programs presented and the economic importance of Tanglewood to the area. Just for purposes of illustration, he asked, how many Rotary members have never attended a concert there?

Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Perry were surprised and disappointed when considerably more than half the audience raised their hands.

That was an eye-opener, and it started Mr. Wheeler thinking: Evidently there were many year-round Berkshirites who had never been to Tanglewood and who yet might enjoy it if they once made the break. How to perform the necessary introductions?

Launching of Berkshire Nights at Tanglewood last year seemed to offer the ideal opportunity. Here was a series of concerts expressly designed for county residents and others within easy driving distance of Tanglewood. The cost of the series—four concerts for the price of three—was attractive. And support of the series would, Mr. Wheeler knew, aid the Festival operation by increasing attendance at the less heavily patronized Friday concerts and thus leveling out the uneven attendance curve.

Accordingly the Great Barrington businessman inaugurated a plan last year whereby his firm purchased a block of Berkshire Nights series tickets to be given to employes and friends who had never visited Tanglewood. The plan proved highly successful; and this season Mr. Wheeler, as a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, is suggesting that other Berkshire industries and businesses do the same. In some cases, he notes, the tickets might be awarded as prizes or work incentives.

This seems an admirable, constructive idea, and we hope that others will see fit to adopt it during the current Berkshire Nights subscription campaign. Those who do will have the double satisfaction of aiding a valuable Berkshire institution and of helping others to learn the deep joys of hearing great music matchlessly played.

B. Eagle - Apr. 7

In Brief . . .

Helen Hare Cain's interesting account of urban renewal in San Francisco's Jackson Square documents the thesis, a controversial one in the Berkshires, that historic buildings can be profitably restored for present-day use . . . During his 3½ years as director of clinical services at Berkshire Industrial Farm, Milton Willner established a reputation as a dedicated and articulate expert willing to share his knowledge with other individuals and civic groups. He and his family will be missed when they move to Long Island . . . With a program including the music of Wagner (a perennial Tanglewood favorite), a performance by Margaret Harshaw (who brought down the Shed in her last Festival appearance), conductors Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, this season's Berkshire Nights looks like a sure-fire series and a musical bargain besides . . .

If that half-million-dollar nosedive in Pittsfield building so far this year characterizes what is happening across the country, and there is good reason to think it does, the new federal housing bill and liberalization of home loan terms are clearly coming at the right time . . . The old saws about the virtues of early rising seemed to be pretty well vindicated yesterday, what with attendants at the sunrise service on the 18th fairway at the Country Club enjoying bone-dry weather while later churchgoers had to hide their Easter finery under raincoats and umbrellas . . .

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

MAY 22 1958

Schenectady Woman Heads Berkshire Nights Group

A Schenectady woman, Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr., has been named head of the Tri-Cities committee for the Berkshire Nights, a series of four Friday night concerts at the Berkshire Festival this summer.

The Berkshire Nights, inaugurated last summer, offers a subscription to the Music Shed concerts of July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8 at a price equal to that of three regular tickets.

Mrs. Cumpston is planning coffee parties in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area to promote the series.

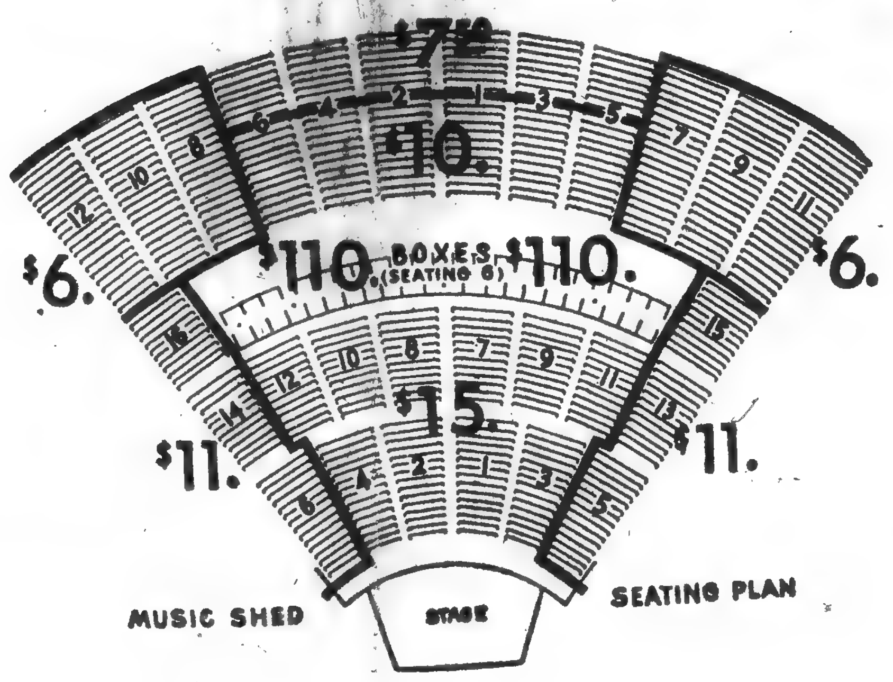
Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee, will speak at a coffee party at 10:30 a. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. W. N. Paxton, 76 Brookline Ave

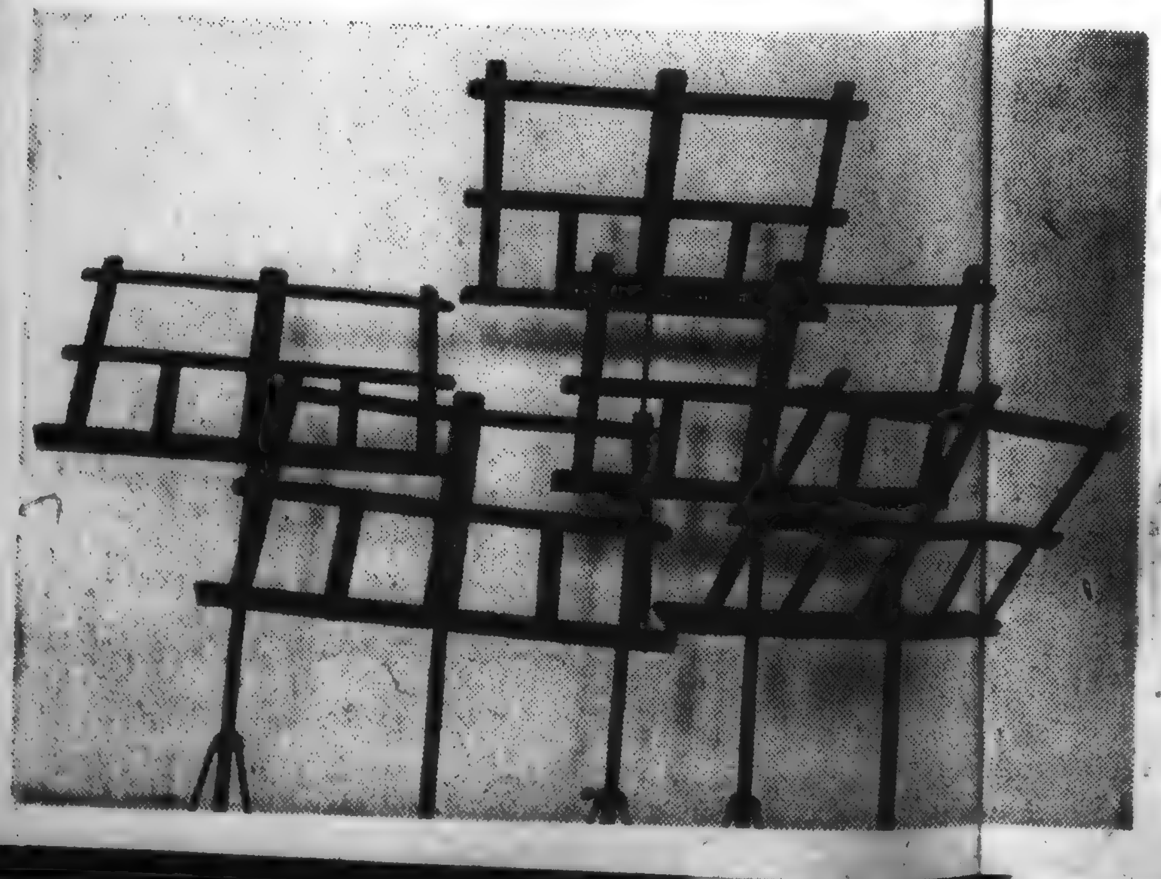
---

Four for Three

The Berkshire Nights Series of the Berkshire Festival is being repeated!

From April 15, until June 1, residents of this area will have an opportunity to buy a special subscription for four Friday evening Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. The Berkshire Nights series, planned particularly for those living within easy driving distance to Tanglewood, offers balanced, representative programs at a special series discount of 5%. The discount means that the full series of four concerts will cost no more than the usual weekend series of three.





Series Prices in force until June 1st only

$6 $7.50 $10 $11 $15 $110 Boxes seating 6

Please make check or money order payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and send remittance before June 1st to:

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna
The Berkshire Nights
20 Warwick St.,
Pittsfield, Mass.

NAME ____________________

ADDRESS ____________________

Summer address if different from above

After ____________________ (Date)

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
Circ. D. 61,009 - S. 119,412
MAY 25 1958

[29]

Attending a Coffee Hour at the home of Mrs. W. Norris Paxton in Brookline Ave. to discuss plans the new series of Friday Night concerts in the Big Shed at "Tanglewood." Left to right are Mrs. Paxton, Mrs. Paul E. Fiske, representing the Albany Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, of Pittsfield, chairman of the "Berkshire Nights" series of Friday night concerts.

COFFEE HOUR TALKS:

'Berkshire Nights' Concerts Scheduled

In a series of "Coffee Hours" being held throughout the Eastern seaboard to promote four special Friday night concerts during the Tanglewood season by the Boston Symphony Orchestra Mrs. George W. W. Mahanna, of Pittsfield, Mass., chairman of the movement addressed Albany clubwomen and musicians Friday at the home of Mrs. W. Norris Paxton.

Those present included Mrs. Edward French, Mrs. Weldon Vail, Mrs. Foster Potter, Edgar S. VanOlinda, of Albany and Mrs. John H. Rice, of Pittsfield.

The "Berkshire Nights" series concerts in the Music Shed began last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee. The same plan is being offered again this Summer. It calls for the presentation of four evening subscription concerts, with an attractive price reduction.

FEATURED ARTIST

Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces that special concert programs have been arranged for the "Berkshire Nights" series by Dr. Charles Munch, musical director of the orchestra.

Featured with Dr. Munch, will be Pierre Monteaux, as guest conductor; Margaret Harshaw, Wagnerian soprano; and Eugene Istomin, pianist.

The "Berkshire Nights" programs are scheduled for July 18, 25, and Aug. 1 and 8. They are offered for area music lovers within easy driving distances from their homes. The price of the four concerts is essentially that of three similar events during the regular season: Rear section $6, $7.50 and $10; $11 and $15 for the front sections and $110 for the boxes, holding 10.

The programs will include works by Brahms, Coplan, Glinka, Tchaikowsky, Milhaud, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner, Piston, Honegger and Beethoven.

Complete folders of the four concerts are available at the Van Curler Music Company, the John Mistletoe Book Shop, in Albany or from Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield, Mass.

Deadline for subscriptions is June 1.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

MAY 20 1958

Berkshire Nights To Be Discussed On TV Thursday

Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr. of Schenectady, N.Y., formerly of this city, will appear on the Home Fare TV program over WRGB from Schenectady Thursday morning from 9 to 9:30 to discuss the Berkshire Nights series of concerts at Tanglewood this summer.

Mrs. Cumpston was chairman of the Berkshire Nights committee last season. This season is heading up the Berkshire Nights in the tri-city area of Albany, Troy and Schenectady.

The Berkshire Nights ticket campaign will draw to a close June 1. The Boston Symphony Orchestra is offering four Friday-night concerts for the price of three. Subscriptions should be mailed to Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., this city, Berkshire Nights chairman.

Notes and Footnotes

FINE SPINNING: One of our colleagues who drives a tiny Volkeswagen much amused when hitchhiker seeing him approach, scrunched down on his knees and wagged his thumb just above road surface. No. Didn't stop . . . Understand GE showered by 1,000 names of folks by letter and petition, appealing for resumption of the time-whistle by which they ordered their days. Company bowed to the request, but since resuming nary a thank-you received . . . Great bargain price offered for Berkshire Nights at Tanglewood; four concerts for $6, or $1.50 per. General admission for grass-sitters is $2 each. What can you lose? . . . The B&A track outside our office full of surprises. Just saw a Chrysler sedan trundling smoothly down the rails, west-bound. No ghost. Proved to be officials' car, guided by flanged wheels fore and aft, and, according to train dispatcher, tools through here often . . . New church organs are like new cars. Must be broken in. Instrument just installed at South Congregational Church, we are told, will be given three weeks to "settle down." Has some rattles and a loose tuner among its 2,000 pipes. Installing firm will go over whole instrument presently for final adjustments . . . Farming can be profitable, if headline on Middlefield news means anything: "Sheep Gives Birth to Four Bucks" . . . Andrew R. Higgins, 1063 North St., says he understands there is a national organization known as the Green Thumbers Society, gardeners. Anyone know about it?

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

MAY 29 1958

Berkshire Nights Running Ahead of '57

Mitchell

Henry W. Dwight of Stockbridge, a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, pins a corsage on Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairman of the Berkshire Nights committee, for a job well done, in obtaining more subscriptions to the four Friday evening Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood than last year. Looking on at left are Jesse L. Thomason of Lenox, a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, and Mrs. Willem Willeke, who was hostess for last night's report meeting at her home on South Mountain. The Berkshire Nights drive, which opened April 15, will close on June 1.

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairnan of the Berkshire Nights ticket lrive for the Friday evening concerts at Tanglewood this summer, reported last night that to date returns have exceeded the number of subscribers last year, with four days remaining before the campaign closes.

Speaking at a report meeting at the home of Mrs. Willem Willeke on South Mountain, who was hostess at a cocktail party, Mrs. Mahanna told 40 members of the county committee that last year about 300 subscriptions were received from a drive and to date this figure has been topped in the 1958 drive. Many returns are expected to be made from all parts of the county before the weekend campagn closes June 1, she added.

Support From Businesses

The Berkshire Nights chairman thanked her many committee members who have held teas, coffee hours and dessert parties to help promote the series plan, which offers four Friday night concert tickets at a reduction of 25 per cent, or approximately the price of three regular concerts. She further explained that the suggestion made by Robert K. Wheeler of Great Barrington, a member of the Tanglewood advisory committee, to solicit support from industries and business firms has "proved most encouraging."

Since the Berkshire Nights drive opened April 15, Mrs. Mahanna and her assistant Mrs. John H. Rice of this city, have appeared at numerous coffee hours throughout the area. Parties have been held in Albany, N.Y., Williamstown, Stockbridge, Great Barrington, Lee and Pittsfield.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was delayed in Boston yesterday afternoon and was unable to attend the report meeting. However, he sent a message to Mrs. Mahanna and her committee congratulating them on the success of the drive.

Those wishing to subscribe to the Berkshire Nights series of concerts before the June 1 deadline, should send their subscriptions to Mrs. John G. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., this city.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

APR 13 1958

Blackwood Symphony Premiere

Dr. Charles Munch will conduct first performances of the Symphony No. 1 by Easly Blackwood at the Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts in Symphony Hall Friday afternoon at 2:15, and Saturday evening at 8:30. The program will begin with Gluck's Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis," and will end with the Second Symphony of Brahms.

Mr. Blackwood, still in his 20's, studied composition at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood 1940-'50, and has been a pupil of Nadia Boulanger and Paul Hindemith. His String Quartet No. 1 commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, was performed at Tanglewood last Summer, and it was then that Dr. Munch first saw the score of Blackwood's Symphony.

Tanglewood Berkshire Nights

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, makes known the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts, July 18-25, Aug 1-8, in the Music Shed.

At the first concert, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. Four.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second concert, July 25, the program to include Glinka's Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony; Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud; Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program, Aug. 1, will be Wagnerian soprano Margaret Harshaw, in the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Goetterdaemmerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the "Siegfried Idyll." Joseph de Pasquale, first violist, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude, and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

APR 6 - 1958

Plan Sacred Heart Revue At Pittsfield High Friday

Fifth Annual Program, 'Star Contest,' Has Joseph F. Guitian as Chairman

(Special to The Republican)

Berkshire Hills, April 5—The fifth annual Sacred Heart Revue sponsored by Sacred Heart Church, Pittsfield, will be held Friday of the coming week in Pittsfield High School auditorium. Rev. Henry M. Burke, pastor, has announced that chairman for this year's event is Joseph F. Guitian. The revue has been named "Star Contest" and will represent a departure from the past four shows that have been presented. This year's event will feature performances by three New York artists in the two-hour musical variety.

The three stars of the show are Marienka Michna of Torrington, Conn., pianist; Lorraine Marie Moreau of Springfield, lyric soprano, and Michael Brunetti of New York, tenor. The three artists all live in New York City now, and recently completed an 18,000 mile concert tour of the United States and Canada.

Previous revues usually featured talent from various parishes in the city. The productions were the minstrel type shows, but it was decided this year to present the three young artists instead in a new concept of concert music.

Proceeds of the revue will again be turned over to Sacred Heart Church school building fund.

Heads Concert Series

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield has been named chairman of Berkshire Nights Committee for the Friday night concert series at Tanglewood, Lenox, this season, Thomas D Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Tanglewood advisory committee, announced this week. She succeeds Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston, Jr., who has moved to Schenectady, N. Y.

The Berkshire Nights series was started last year as a move to spearhead local promotion to the summer concerts given by Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. The program was suggested last year by Tanglewood advisory committee, and the same plan is being offered again this season. The plan calls for the offering of a subscription of four Friday night concerts in the Music Shed by the Boston orchestra at special prices. The program was successful last year, and one purpose of the plan is to give area residents a better opportunity to acquaint themselves with the program and give the annual summer festival a good local backing.

Mrs. Mahanna will soon name her committee who will assist with the drive which will embrace the various communities in the county. The campaign will begin April 15 and continue through June 1.

Art Exhibit to Open

The fourth annual Berkshire Art Association's exhibit will open Sunday at Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, and continue until May 16. The spring exhibit is open to artists within 100 miles of Pittsfield, and is a non-jury event. Mrs. Leonard R. Spencer, executive director, announced that each member of the art association may enter a maximum of two works and all entries will be shown.

The entries may be works in water color, oil or casein and works of sculpture weighing not more than 100 pounds. The Berkshire "art circle" covers parts of six states, and there are about 200 members in the association.

The big exhibit of the association will be the October event, the seventh annual regional juried exhibit. This will mark the opening of the 1958-59 season.

On Art Jury

Stuart C. Henry, director of Berkshire Museum, has been appointed to the three-man jury of the selection and award for the 23d annual Artists and Upper Hudson regional exhibit in Albany, N. Y., which runs from May 8 through June 8 at the Albany Institute of History and Art. This show is for artists living within 100 miles of Albany and a number of Berkshire artists usually enter works in this show. Eligible for entry are works done in oil, watercolor, pastels and sculptures.

Chairman of the jury is Richard B. K. McLanathan, director of the community arts program at the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute, Utica, N. Y. The third member of the jury will be William Hull, director of Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts.

The deadline for entry is April 20, and the top award given in the show is the annual Albany Institute purchase award. Besides the prizes given for winners selected by the jury, there will be a prize given to the work chosen by popular ballot.

Berkshire Briefs

The Pittsfield College Club through its scholarship chairman, Miss E. Laura Hodges, has announced that the club will give $400 as one of more scholarships this season. The competition for the scholarship is open to any girl in the county who is attending a college or university or who plans to enter college this fall. The institution must be accredited by the American Association of University Women, New England College Association, Middle States and Maryland Association, or the Northwestern Association. Each applicant must send in a letter with three references. Applications must be sent to Miss Hodges at the Pittsfield High School by the 15th.

Two Berkshire County men will be with the Holy Cross glee club when it presents its concert Wednesday night in Pittsfield High auditorium. They are Paul Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Hickey of Brook Lane, Great Barrington, and Frank J. Fonteyn of Williamstown. The program is sponsored by Berkshire County Holy Cross Alumni Association, and proceeds will be used for scholarship purposes. The 62-voice glee club is directed by Prof. Frederick S. Mirliani, a 1932 graduate of Holy Cross.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

APR 10 1958

Tanglewood Will Have Four 'Berkshire Nights'

Soloists and Programs Announced for Friday Evening Concerts That Will Be Part of 1958 Music Festival

Boston, April 10—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has ~~announced the programs~~ and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18-25; Aug. 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

EUGENE ISTOMIN

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

Wagnerian Soprano

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program (Aug. 1) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerpts. The "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the "Immolation Scene" from "Gotterdammerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the "Siegfried Idyll." Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new viola concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. DePasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's "Prelude, Fugue and Postlude" and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the Berkshire Nights Committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield. Mrs. Mahanna will shortly announce the members of a committee of area residents will assist in the subscription campaign which will run from April 15 to June 1.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

APR 9 1958

Programs, Soloists Revealed For 1958 Berkshire Nights

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox.

Four Friday Nights

Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (July 18-25; August 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

Margaret Harshaw

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program (Aug. 1) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung."

Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. de Pasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Committee Chairman

Heading the Berkshire Nights Committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield. Mrs. Mahanna soon will announce the members of a committee of area residents who will assist in the subscription campaign which will run from April 15 to June 1.

[21]

EAGLE 4/2/58

Mrs. Mahanna Heads Series Of Concerts

4 Berkshire Nights Scheduled Again At Tanglewood

The Tanglewood Advisory Committee and Boston Symphony Orchestra Mgr. Thomas D. Perry Jr., today announced the appointment of Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of this city as chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee for the Friday night concert series at Tanglewood this summer. She succeeds Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr., who now resides in Schenectady, N.Y.

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna

As chairman of the committee, Mrs. Mahanna will spearhead local promotion of the concert series designed especially for Berkshire County residents and others within easy driving range of Tanglewood.

The Berkshire Nights series was inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee. The same plan is being offered again this summer. It calls for the offering of a subscription to four Friday evening concerts in the Music Shed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with a suitable price reduction for those nights.

Compaign April 15-June 1

Mrs. Mahanna will appoint a committee of area residents to assist in promoting the plan. The campaign will run from April 15 to June 1.

A graduate of the College of Mount St. Vin[illegible]-Hudson in New York, Mrs. Mahanna has been active in social and civic affairs of the city. A member of the board of directors of the South Mountain Assn., she is a member of the Young Audiences committee, the Tanglewood-on-Parade committee and is one of the sponsors of the Berkshire ballroom dancing classes. A former board member of the Girls Club, she was active in the building fund campaign and serves on the swimming and Camp Stevenson committees. She is also a member of the advisory board of the Pleasant Valley Sanctuary, the auxiliaries of St. Luke's Hospital and Pittsfield General Hospital, and for two years served as chairman of clubs and societies in the United Community Service fund campaigns. A past chairman of the annual sale for the blind in Pittsfield, she is also cochairman of The Eagle Santa Toy Fund.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

APR 12 1958

Berkshire Nights Plans Under Way

Mahan

Making preliminary plans for the Berkshire Nights series of concerts to be held at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, this summer are these members of the area committee who met this week at the home of Mrs. John H. Rice, 1030 West St., with Miss Mary Smith of Boston, left, press representative for the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. At her left are Mrs. Rice, Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, Berkshire Nights chairman, and Mrs. Marc deFerranti of this city.

Regional Groups To Help Promote Berkshire Nights

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairman of the Berkshire Nights series of concerts to be held at Tanglewood this summer, said today plans are being made to form regional committees throughout the county to help promote the project. Berkshire Nights at the Berkshire Festival have been designated for July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8.

Meeting this week at the home of Mrs. John H. Rice, 1030 West St., an area group of women discussed plans for the series with Miss Mary Smith of Boston, press representative of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. Attending were Mrs. Mahanna, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Marc deFerranti, Mrs. James G. Garivalis, Mrs. Howard S. Broderick, Mrs. Mary Jane Gross, Mrs. Prentice Bradley, Mrs. Willem Willeke of this city, Mrs. Martha Q. Pelton of Lenox and Mrs. John H. Talbot of Richmond.

Wednesday a countywide meeting of supporters of the Berkshire Nights series will be held at the Country Club of Pittsfield when Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and members of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee will outline plans for this season's series.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,052

APR 10 1958

Berkshire Nights At Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recently ~~announced the~~ programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood advisory committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18-25; August 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahams' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program (Aug. 1) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. DePasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, wil be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

APR 10 1958

Berkshire Nights Programs Listed

Dr. Munch Schedules Four at Tanglewood This Year

Popular-Priced Concerts Will Be Given By Boston Symphony During July and August.—Margaret Harshaw and Eugene Istomin Will Be Featured Soloists on Last Two.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of "Berkshire Nights" of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox.

Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the "Berkshire Nights" series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts on July 18 and 25, and August 1 and 8 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert on July 18 Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4 .

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert on July 25 in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program on August 1 will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung." Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. de Pasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program on August 8, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr Istomin made his first apparance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the "Berkshire Nights" Committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, and requests for "Berkshire Nights" subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick street, Pittsfield. Mrs. Mahanna will shortly announce the members of a committee of area residents who will assist in the subscription campaign which will run from April 15 to June 1.

VARIETY 5/7/58

Boston

By Guy Livingston
(344 Little Bldg.; Hancock 6-8386)

Lois DeFee at Crawford House.

Bert Wheeler at the Lewis Room in Revere.

Fran Warren piped for Boston Press Club anni dinner.

Shubert Theatre shuttered for season as legit dwindles out in Hub.

Anita O'Day and Horace Silver's Quartet current at George Wein's Storyville.

Erskine Caldwell in to plug "God's Little Acre" at press party in Sheraton.

Dick Richards readying the shuttered Rickshaw for opening as Black Angus.

Phyl Doherty, WNAC-TV flack, setting baseball day at Fenway for scribes May 17.

Moiseyev Dance Company from Moscow inked for two-day stand at Boston Garden June 13-14.

Jerry Wald and Phillip Dunne in from Hollywood to o.o. Boston for new 20th film, "The Big War," to be shot here.

Actors Workshop rehearsing for Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," to be presented May 30-31 at Boston Conservatory.

Charles Munch, music director Boston Symphony Orch, completing programs for 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, July 2-Aug. 10.

Hub's newspaper [illegible] era ending with demolition [illegible] defunct Boston Post building and move of Boston Globe to [illegible] $3,000,000 plant in Dorchester.

Boston Local [illegible] and Screen Actors Guild set its anni AFTRA-SAG party for Sheraton Plaza hotel Fri. (9) with Howard Nelson, WEEI, committee chairman.

[22]

ATLANTA, GA.
Journal & Constitution
Circ. S. 504,159

MAY 4 1958

Boston Symphony Berskshire Schedule

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will begin its annual summer Berkshire Festival programs at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 4. The first program will include four orchestral suites of Bach, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Closing date for the festival is August 8.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

UN 4 1958

Mrs. Mahanna Reports:

Subscriptions Up 46 Per Cent For Festival Berkshire Nights

A 46 per cent increase in subscriptions for the Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival was reported today by Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, chairman of the Berkshire Nights committee.

In making her final report to Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Mahanna said that this year's subscriptions from the county and areas adjacent to the Berkshires, totaled 420, compared to 287 last year, when the Berkshire Nights plan was inaugurated. The total number of subscriptions represents 1,680 seats.

Each subscription entitles a Berkshire Nights ticket-holder to the four Friday night concerts by the BSO in the Music Shed for the same price as the normal series subscription for three concerts.

Many From Out of State

In addition to the response from Berkshire County, Mrs. Mahanna noted that the committee's plan to attract other residents to Tanglewood from towns and cities outside of the Berkshires proved successful. Many of the new subscribers are from the Albany-Schenectady area, as well as southern Vermont, Springfield, Northampton and Holyoke.

The Berkshire Nights chairman credited the success of this year's drive, which ended Sunday, to the cooperation she received from several women in Pittsfield, the county and Albany, who were hostesses for coffee hours and teas where the concert series plan was explained to their guests.

Mrs. Edwin H. Cumpston Jr. of Schenectady, formerly of this city, headed up the Berkshire Nights drive this year in the tri-city area of Albany, Troy and Schenectady. Locally, Mrs. Mahanna was assisted by Mrs. John H. Rice of this city, who accompanied the chairman to many teas and coffee hours in Southern and Northern Berkshire.

Honorary Chairmen

Honorary chairmen of the Berkshire Nights committee were Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Stockbridge, first and only president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Inc., who spearheaded the plan to establish the Berkshire Festival in the county and Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky of Lenox, widow of Dr. Koussevitzky, conductor of the Bostony Symphony for 25 years and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

The Berkshire Nights idea was started last year at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee. It is aimed to attract to Tanglewood on Friday nights music lovers within easy driving distance of the Music Shed at a substantial subscription savings.

Group Idea Popular

During her travels throughout the area, Mrs. Mahanna noted, many persons purchased tickets in groups to enable them to "be together" at the concerts, and many are planning preconcert dinner parties during the season.

Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct three of the Friday night concerts and Pierre Monteux will lead the BSO in the other. Soloists who will appear during the Friday night series will be Margaret Harshaw, Wagnerian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera; Joseph de Pasquale, viola of the BSO, and Eugene Istomin, pianist.

The Berkshire Nights concerts are scheduled for July 18 and 25 and August 1 and 8.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

APR 13 1958

'Berkshire Nights' Series At Tanglewood Arranged

Boston, April 12 — Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of "Berkshire Nights" of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood advisory committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Lenox, the "Berkshire Nights" series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts (on July 18-25, Aug. 1-8) in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

Programs Listed

For the first Friday evening concert (July 18) Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert (July 25) in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's fourth symphony, overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program Aug. 1) will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw, who is well-known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances will perform two Wagner excerpts, the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung."

Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr. Munch, are the prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the "Siegfried Idyll." Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony, will be soloist in the new viola concerto by Walter Piston which was written for and dedicated to Mr. De Pasquale.

Istomin Soloist

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto, No. 5. Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 1955 season. Dr. Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's seventh symphony.

Heading the "Berkshire Nights" committee this season will be Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick St., Pittsfield. Mrs. Mahanna will shortly announce the members of a committee of nearby residents who will assist in the subscription campaign, April 15 to June 1.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

APR 27 1958

Poulenc Setting a Coc

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

A soprano and a telephone are the only characters in Jean Cocteau's monodrama, "La Voix Humaine," for which Francis Poulenc is composing the music in the south of France. During the work's forty minutes, the singer is called upon to reveal a full cycle of emotions, expressed both in her share of the conversation and her reactions to what she is supposed to hear from a presumable lover at the other end of the wire.

In a recent issue of a Paris literary magazine, M. Cocteau was quoted as saying that Maria Meneghini Callas would be an ideal choice for the work's only role.

• • •

Berkshire Programs

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced the programs of the eighteen concerts which it will give in this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 4 through Aug. 10. The first two week ends will be devoted to chamber orchestra concerts of Bach's and Mozart's music, and the others to concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed. The dates and programs are:

July 4, Charles Munch conducting: Bach, Four Suites. July 5, Munch; Bach, Piano Concerto in D minor (Lukas Foss), Art of the Fugue. July 6, G. Wallace Woodworth, Bach, Mass in B minor, with Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society.

July [illegible] Munch; Mozart, Musical Joke; Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola (Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale); "Linz" Symphony. July 12, Munch; Mozart, Eine Kleine Nachtmusik; Two Piano Concerto, K. 365 (Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss), Symphony No. 40. July 13, Munch and Hugh Ross; Mozart, Haffner Symphony, Piano Concerto in V, K. 467 (Seymour Lipkin), choral works.

July 18, Munch: Brahms, Serenade in A; Copland, Variations; Brahms, Symphony No. 4. July 19, Munch: Brahms, Requiem. July 20, Pierre Monteux; Brahms, Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 (Leon Fleisher); Stravinsky, Petrouchka.

July 25, Monteux: Glinka, Russian and Ludmilla Overture; Tchaikovsky, Symphony No. 4; Milhaud, "Les Eumenides "Overture: Debussy, Nocturnes; Ravel, La Valse. July 26, Munch: Stravinsky, Agon; Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3 (Byron Janis), Debussy, La Mer. July 27, Munch; Bartok, Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel, "Daphnis et Chloe" Suite No. 2; Tchaikovsky, Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti).

Aug. 1, Munch: Wagner, "Meistersinger" Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan." Siegfried Idyll; Piston, Viola Concerto (Joseph de Pasquale); Wagner, "Goetterdaemmerung" Immolation Scene (Margaret Harshaw). Aug. 2, Munch; Wagner; "Tannhaeuser" Overture and Bacchanale; Liszt, Piano Concerto No. 1 (Leonard Pennario); Vaughan Williams, Symphony No. 8; Wagner, Siegfried's Rhine Journey. Aug. 3, Monteux; Wagner, opera excerpts (Margaret Harshaw).

Aug. 8, Munch; Honegger, Prelude, Fugue and Postlude; Beethoven, Symphony No. 7; Piano Concerto No. 5 (Eugene Istomin). Aug. 9, Monteux; Beethoven, music from "Prometheus." Violin Concerto (Berl Senofsky); Hindemith, Nobilissima Visione; Beethoven, "Leonore" Overture No. 3. Aug. 10, Munch; Walton, Johannesburg Festival Overture; Beethoven, Symphony No. 9.

Although, following his doctors' instructions, Charles Munch had to give up his last concerts of the Boston Symphony's regular season and go to France for a few weeks' rest, he is expected to be fully recovered by that time and able to fill his complete Berkshire schedule.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

APR 17 1958

Local Woman Heads Berkshire Series

Mrs. J. G. Mahanna Helping With Tanglewood Concerts

Meeting Held Yesterday At Pittsfield Country Club to Outline Plans for Coming Season.—County Residents May Attend Four Friday Concerts for Price of Three.

Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, the former Evona Kennedy of this town, has been named chairman of the Berkshire Nights Series of Concerts for the Berkshire Festival this summer. The Berkshire Nights series is for the benefit of county residents, who may attend four Friday night concerts at Tanglewood this season for the price of three. The program was started last year and proved very popular. Yesterday a general meeting was held at the Pittsfield Country Club, where plans were made for the coming season and representatives from various communities in the county attended. Robert K. Wheeler of this town, a member of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, was among those from southern Berkshire in attendance.

MRS. JOHN G. W. MAHANNA

The concerts will be given at the Music Shed on Friday evenings of July 18 and 25, and August 1 and 8. Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which provides the concerts during the summer festival, outlined the plans to the county members. The purpose of the Berkshire Nights series is to promote music appreciation among county residents and to give them an opportunity to attend the concerts at reduced prices.

Mrs. Mahanna will soon name chairmen and committees of the various towns in the county, who will assist with the program.

Mrs. Mahanna was born in Great Barrington, the daughter of Mrs. Edward A. Kennedy, now of Washington, D. C., and the late Dr. Kennedy. The family resided in Great Barrington from 1910 to 1923, when they moved to Pittsfield. Dr. Kennedy had his office and home on Main street in the house presently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Patterson. There were three daughters in the family. Mrs. Kennedy was a vocalist of note, and sang at many functions during her residence in Great Barrington. Dr. Kennedy was for many years an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.

Mrs. Mahanna has been prominently active in many civic and charitable programs in Pittsfield.

[25]

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 15 1958

Tanglewood Concert Program Announced By Dr. Munch

Summer Festival At Lenox To Feature Bach's B Minor Mass With Chorus

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, today announced the complete programs for the Orchestra's 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

The concerts of the first two weekends will be held on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall (with the exception of the concerts of July 6 and 12 which will be in the Shed) with a chamber orchestra and will be devoted to music of Bach and Mozart.

On Friday evening, July 4, Dr. Munch will present the four Orchestral Suites of Bach, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4. On Saturday evening, July 5, Lukas Foss will be soloist in the Piano Concerto in D minor and the remainder of the program will be devoted to "The Art of the Fugue."

A special concert of Bach's B Minor Mass honoring the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club will be conducted in the Music Shed by the Glee Club's conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, on Sunday, July 6. The choruses of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will join the Boston Symphony Orchestra for this performance and the soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

The three concerts of the Mozart weekend will be conducted by Charles Munch. On Friday, July 11, the program will include the Musical Joke, K. 522, the Sinfonia Concertante with soloists Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola and the "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C major. For the concert of Saturday, July [illegible], which will be in the Music Shed, Dr. Munch will present "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," the Two Piano Concerto K. 365 with soloists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, the Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for wind instruments and the Symphony No. [illegible] in G minor. On Sunday, July 13, Dr. Munch will conduct the Haffner Symphony and the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 with Seymour Lipkin as soloist. In the second half of the concert Hugh Ross will conduct three choral works.

Continued on Page Ten 23

Continued from Page One

The first weekend of concerts in the Music Shed (July 18-19-20) will feature the music of Johannes Brahms. The Friday evening, July 18, program includes Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4. Saturday evening July 19, will be devoted to a performance of Brahms' Requiem with the Festival Chorus and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Sunday afternoon, July 20, and his program will be Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist. Mr. Monteux will close the concert with a complete performance of Stravinsky's ballet, "Petrouchka."

The concerts of July 25-26-27 will feature music of Debussy and Ravel as well as several familiar works by Russian composers. Pierre Monteux will conduct the concert of Friday, July 25, presenting Klinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla," Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4, the Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Three Nocturnes by Debussy and Ravel's "La Valse." On Saturday evening, July 26, Charles Munch will direct the orchestra in Stravinsky's "Agon," and Debussy's "La Mer." Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto. The program for Sunday, July 27, will include Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Ravel's Second Suite from "Daphnis and Chloe" and the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist. Dr. Munch will conduct.

Charles Münch will conduct the opening concert of the Wagner weekend on Friday, August 1. The program includes the Prelude to "Die Meistersinger," the Siegfried Idyll, and the Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" with Margaret Harshaw, Soprano soloist. Joseph de Pasquale will be soloist in Walter Piston's Viola Concerto, and Miss Harshaw will again be heard in the Immolation Scene from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung."

The Saturday evening concert (August 2) will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and the program will be the Overture and Bacchanle from Wagner's "Tannhauser," [illegible] Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat with soloist Leonard Pennario, Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony and Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung."

Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at the Sunday concert, August 3, and will feature Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a number of Wagner excerpts, including Senta's Ballad from "The Flying Dutchman," Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin," the Air of Kundry from "Parsifal" and "Dich Teure Halle" from "Tannhauser." Mr. Monteux will conduct the following orchestral excerpts the Overture to "The Flying Dutchman," the Prelude to "Lohengrin," the Ride of the Valkyries, Prelude to "Parsifal" and the Overture to "Rienzi."

The final weekend of Shed concerts will feature music of Beethoven. On Friday, August 8, Dr. Munch will open the program with Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude, followed by Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor") with Eugene Istomin as soloist. The young American violinist, Berl Senofsky, will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto on Saturday evening, August 9. The program will also include the Music from Beethoven's "Prometheus" and Leonore Overture No. 3 and Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione." Pierre Monteux will conduct.

Dr. Munch will follow his established custom of presenting at the closing concert of the Festival [illegible]'s Ninth Symphony [illegible] precede [illegible] Walton's [illegible] Festival Overture.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 281,019

JUN 5 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Lists Programs

The orchestral programs of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., a six-week summer season, opens Wednesday night, July 2, with a chamber music concert by the Budapest String Quartet.

Highlights of each week-end:

Friday night, July 4: Bach Suites, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4; Saturday night, the Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Lukas Foss as soloist, plus "The Art of the Fugue"; Sunday afternoon, the "Bach B Minor Mass" with soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Charles Munch will conduct the first two events which will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall, G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Mass, to be held in the 6,000-seat Music Shed.

Friday night, July 11: Mozart "Sinfonia Concertante" with violinist Ruth Posselt and violist Joseph de Pasquale as soloists; the "Linz" Symphony, No. 36, in C Major; Saturday night, the two-piano Concerto K. 365, with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as soloists; the Serenade No. 10 in B Flat for Winds, the Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, Charles Munch conducting. The latter event will be in the Music Shed. Sunday afternoon, the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in G Major, K 467, with Lipkin as soloist, Munch conducting, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Friday night, July 18; Brahms Symphony No. 4 Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16, Copland Variations for Orchestra; Saturday night, Brahms "Requiem," with soloists Hilde Gueden and Donald Gramm, Munch conducting. Sunday afternoon, the Brahms Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Leon Fleisher as soloist, Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," Pierre Monteux conducting. All of the final three week-ends' concerts will be held in the Music Shed.

Friday night, July 25, Tchaikovsky Fourth Symphony, Debussy Three Nocturnes; Saturday night, Stravinsky "Agon," Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No 3, with Byron Janis as soloist; Debussy's "La Mer." Sunday afternoon, Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist.

Friday night, Aug. 1: Excerpts from Wagner, including the Immolation Scene from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Piston Viola Concerto; Saturday night, the Liszt Piano Concerto No. I in E Flat Major, with Leonard Pennario as soloist; Vaughan Williams Symphony No. 8; Sunday afternoon, All-Wagner with Miss Harshaw as soloist. Munch leads the first two events and Monteux the final one.

Friday night, Aug. 8: Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and the "Emperor" Concerto with Eugene Istomin as soloist; Honegger Prelude Fugue and Postlude; Saturday night, Beethoven Music from 'Prometheus," the Violin Concerto with Berl Senofsky as soloist; Sunday afternoon, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUN 15 1958

Berkshire Festival Begins on 'Fourth'

By MILES KASTENDIECK

STILL THE MOST important music festival in the East, the Berkshire Festival starts its Boston Symphony concerts on the Fourth of July. Its programs have a traditional cast with their emphasis on Great Composer weekends. For those who seek three days of music or who make a round trip to Tanglewood on Sundays only, the pattern is the same. The six-week season centers around Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy-Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven in that order.

While adherence to the Great Composer idea tends to unify the Festival, only the Bach and Mozart weekends are exclusively confined to their works. Interspersed at other times is a variety of contemporary music. This modern motif follows no special plan; still, the works played have an importance of their own.

Honegger Accents Beethoven Weekend

So it is that Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" provide the modern counterpoint for Brahms. Milhaud's Overture to "Les Eumenides," Stravinsky's "Agon," Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion, and Celesta highlight the Debussy-Ravel weekend.

Piston's Viola Concerto, and Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony bring variety to the Wagner weekend.

Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione" and Walton's "Johannesburg Festival Overture" will accent the Beethoven weekend.

As usual the Festival Chorus will make several appearances; notably, in the Brahms' Requiem July 19, and in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony Aug. 10.

A special performance of Bach's B-Minor Mass on July 6 will honor the 100th aniversary of the Harvard Glee Club. A Radcliffe Choral Society will join the club in this performance, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, the Glee Club's director.

A new idea brings a series of young American pianists to the fore: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin. The young American violinist, Berl Senofsky, will play the Beethoven Violin Concerto.

For those who spend a whole week in the Berkshires, the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts begin on July 2. They will feature successively: the Budapest String Quartet, Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Pro Musica Antiqua, Margaret Harshaw, and the Kroll Quartet.

HANOVER EVE. SUN 7/5/58

MUSIC

The Robin Hood Dell Orchestra at Philadelphia returns this week. After eight weeks of touring which took them to twenty-seven cities in Europe and the Soviet Republic 91 members of the Philadelphia Orchestra will unpack, attire themselves in summer dress and take their regular seats at the Robin Hood Dell where they will play the final four weeks of the 1958 concert season.

Conductor Pierre Monteux, violinist Tossy Spivakovsky and pianist Claudio Arrau will be guest artists during the third week of concerts.

Monteux will conduct the orchestra for all three concerts of the third week. The veteran maestro has headed the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is frequent guest conductor of many of the world's greatest ensembles.

The orchestra programs for the third week, beginning July 7, will be highlighted by two of the pieces played by the Philadelphia Orchestra during the highly successful tour.

Audiences will hear "La Mer" by Debussy on July 8, played no less than nine times abroad, including one of the historic performances in Moscow, and Symphony No. 2 by Brahms on Thursday, July 10 which had six performances the last of which was scheduled on the same program with pianist Van Cliburn at the concert in Amsterdam on June 22.

* * *

The first U. S. appearance on a popular - priced summer concert series of the world-famed Russo-British pianist Benno Moiseiwitsch; an All-Tchaikovsky Program on which Mischa Elman will play the violin concerto written for his famous teacher Leopold Auer that served as vehicle for Elman's historic American debut just 50 years ago; and the 27th of the Annual George Gershwin Concerts that pay yearly tribute to a great American composer in the city of his birth; will highlight the coming week of Stadium Concerts beginning Monday, July 7, in the Lewisohn amphitheater on the City College campus.

The first four of next week's Stadium Concerts — next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings — will be under the baton of Thomas Scherman, regularly the director of The Little Orchestra Society, returning to the Lewishohn podium for his fifth consecutive season. The concert on Saturday evening, July 12th, will be under the direction of Alexander Smallens, who concludes his twenty-fifth consecutive Stadium season with another of the All-Gershwin programs he has batoned with such distinction throughout the past quarter of a century.

Continuing one of Stadium Concerts' most honored traditions, the Twenty - Seventh Annual George Gershwin Concert will be given in the Lewisohn amphitheater on Saturday evening, July 12. The trio of soloists appearing under Mr. Smallens at this time will be the same that officiated with notable success at last year's Gershwin concert—pianist Eugene List playing the "Rhapsody in Blue" and F Major Piano Concerto; and soprano Camilla Williams and baritone Lawrence Winters starring in the concert version of the Gershwin folk opera "Porgy and Bess" which will comprise the entire second half of the program.

* * *

This year's Berkshire at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Havarad Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists. Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Symour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Bachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem". The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven.

[24]

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162

APR 26 1958

Society: Harvard Glee Club Centennial To Be Noted at Tanglewood

(Lenscraft)

BOSTONIANS IN EUROPE are Mrs. W. Stuart Forbes Jr., Mrs. Charles A. Newhall and Stanley G. H. Fitch. They plan to visit Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Spain.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Famous concerts in a famous setting, the Boston Symphony's world-renowned Berkshire Festival will, as usual, bring visitors from many countries to Tanglewood, where Charles Munch and the other distinguished conductors will direct the famous orchestra during the 1958 season.

Opening with Bach July 4, and presenting G. Wallace Woodworth and the Harvard Glee Club July 6 in a special concert honoring the 100th anniversary of the glee club, this Summer will provide outstanding musical treats for all ages. The choruses of the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club will join the Boston Symphony for special performances.

Boston's first families of music—Mme. Koussevitzky, the Fullers, the Tafts, the Kuttens and many more—will be at Lenox for many of the concerts. William Cox is chairman this year of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

IN TAUNTON today, Miss Patricia Marie Casey, daughter of Mrs. Joseph C. Casey and the late Mr. Casey, is becoming the bride of James Andrew Tranter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Tranter, also of Taunton. Rt. Rev. James Dolan is officiating at the 9 o'clock ceremony in St. Mary's Church, and the bride's brother, William, is giving her in marriage. A reception follows at Taunton Inn.

The bride is wearing a princess dress of ivory taffeta embroidered with alencon lace and pearls, and fashioned with a court train and a cap of the same delicate lace with her veil of illusion.

Miss Nancye McAloon of East Taunton is honor attendant, and bridesmaids are Miss Shirley LeClair of Watertown, and Miss Irene Miller of Taunton. Their dresses are of pale blue organza with deep blue satin sashes and they are wearing matching bands in their hair. Their flowers are pink carnations and blue delphinium.

Robert L. Miller of Portland, Me., is best man, and ushers include John E. Kearns and Robert Powers of Taunton, William McAloon, and Joseph T. Woods of Peabody.

The bride is a graduate of Regis College. Mr. Tranter graduated from Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. After their wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., they will live at 173 Bay st., Taunton.

FROM BRONXVILLE, N. Y., comes the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Lando of the engagement of their daughter, Carole Louise, to Harry Bentley Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Earle Bradley of Ridgewood, N. J., formerly of Waban.

Miss Lando graduated from Halsted School in Yonkers, N. Y., attended the College of Wooster in Ohio, and graduated from Katharine Gibbs School in New York.

Mr. Bradley is the grandson of Harry C. Bentley of San Diego and Boston, founder of the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, and Mrs. J. Belle Bentley of La Jolla, Calif. He is a senior at Wooster College, and plans to enter Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

A SECOND CHILD and first daughter, Martha Bevan, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Zach T. White of Winchester on April 19 at Richardson House. The grandparents are Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bevan of Washington, and Mrs. Thomas Skinner White of Hertford, N. C.

DOORS WILL OPEN at 11 Thursday morning for the annual May Festival in the First Church in Cambridge, Unitarian, 3 Church st., and the sale in the new auditorium will continue until 11 in the evening. Luncheon will be served at noon, and reservations may be made for dinner, which will be served from 5:15 to 6:15. Miss Beatrice Coleman heads the festival committee.

NY Times - Apr 28

LENOX MUSIC FETE WILL OPEN JULY 4

Munch to Conduct Chamber Orchestra in Bach Suites —All Concerts Listed

Charles Munch will open the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Friday evening, July 4. He will conduct a chamber orchestra composed of members of the Boston Symphony in the four Orchestral Suites of Bach.

For the next evening's all-Bach concert, Lukas Foss will be piano soloist in the D minor Concerto. The "Art of Fugue" will complete the program. On July 6 Bach's B Minor Mass will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor of the Harvard Glee Club.

Mr. Munch, director of the Berkshire center, will conduct three all-Mozart chamber music programs on July 11, 12 and 13. Soloists will be Mr. Foss, Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Seymour Lipkin, pianist.

The first week-end of concerts in the Music Shed, July 18, 19 and 20, will feature works of Brahms. The Requiem will be performed Saturday with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, as soloists. Pierre Monteux, guest conductor on Sunday, will lead Brahms' D Minor Piano Concerto, with Leon Fleisher as soloist.

On Friday, July 25, Mr. Monteux will conduct works of Glinka, Tchaikovsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel. Mr. Munch will lead the Saturday concert, featuring Byron Janis as soloist in the Third Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto. On Sunday Mr. Munch will conduct the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto, with Zino Francescatti as soloist.

Mr. Munch will conduct the concerts on Aug. 1 and 2, which will feature Wagnerian excerpts, with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Walter's Piston's Viola Concerto, with Mr. De Pasquale as soloist, and Liszt's E flat Piano Concerto, with Leonard Pennario as soloist. Mr. Monteux will conduct the Wagner program of Aug. 3, which will again have Miss Harshaw as soloist.

The final week-end of concerts, Aug. 8 through Aug. 10, will feature music of Beethoven. Eugene Istomin will be soloist in the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"), and Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Violin Concerto. Messrs. Munch and Monteux will conduct.

The final festival concert, led by Mr. Munch, will end with the Beethoven Ninth Symphony.

BACH, MOZART, BRAHMS TO BE FEATURED BY BOSTON SYMPHONY AT TANGLEWOOD

The celebrated Berkshire Festival's announcement of complete plans for the approaching summer season will be of interest to the very large number of Central Connecticut residents who attend some of Tanglewood's concerts. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux conducting, will be featured in the week-end concerts, which are highlights of this annual festival, held in Lenox, Mass.

The concerts of the first two week-ends will be played at 8:30 p. m. Friday and Saturday and at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, with a chamber orchestra and will be devoted to the music of Bach (July 4-6) and Mozart (July 11-13). On Friday, July 4, Dr. Munch will present the four Orchestral Suites of Bach, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. On Saturday, July 5, Lukas Foss will be piano soloist in the Piano Concerto in D minor and the remainder of this program will be devoted to the "Art of the Fugue". A special program of Bach's B Minor Mass honoring the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club will be conducted by the club's director, G. Wallace Woodworth, on Sunday, July 6, when the choruses of Harvard and the Radcliffe Choral Society will join the Boston Symphony. Soloists will be: Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm.

The three concerts of the Mozart week-end will be conducted by Dr. Munch. On Friday, July 11, at 8:30 the program will include the Musical Joke, K. 522, the Sinfonia Concertante with soloists and the Linz Symphony. For the July 12 concert Dr. Munch will present: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik", the Two Piano Concerto K. 365 with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as pianists; the Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for wind instruments; Symphony No. 40. On Sunday, July 13, the program will include: Haffner Symphony; Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 with Seymour Lipkin as soloist; three choral works conducted by Hugh Ross.

Charles Munch

The July 18-20 weekend of concerts will feature Johannes Brahms. The Friday evening concert program includes: Brahms Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra; Brahms' Symphony No. 4. Saturday evening will be devoted to Brahms' Requiem with the Festival Chorus and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor Sunday afternoon, July 20, and his program will be: Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, plus a complete performance of Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

The concerts of July 25-27 will feature music of Debussy and Ravel as well as several familiar works by Russian composers. With Monteux conducting, the Friday, July 25 concert will present: Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla"; Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 4; Overture to Milhaud's "Les Eumenides"; Three Nocturnes by Debussy; Ravel's "La Valse". On Saturday evening, July 26, Dr. Munch will direct: Stravinsky's "Agon"; Debussy's "La Mer"; Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto with Byron Janis. The program for Sunday afternoon, July 27, will include: Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel's Second Suite from "Daphnis and Chloe"; Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto with Francescatti.

Wagner is featured during the August 1-3 weekend. Friday night with Munch conducting the program will be: Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"; the Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" with Margaret Harshaw; Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" with Miss Harshaw; Walter Piston's Viola Concerto with Joseph de Pasquale as soloist. The August 2 evening concert, under Dr. Munch, will present: Overture and Bacchanale from Wagner's "Tannhauser"; Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat with Leonard Pennario; Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony; Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung". For the Sunday afternoon, August 3 concert, Dr. Monteux will conduct: Wagner excerpts with Miss Harshaw as soloist; Overture to "The Flying Dutchman"; Prelude to "Lohengrin"; Ride of the Valkyries; Prelude to "Parsifal"; Overture to "Rienzi".

The final week-end of Music Shed concerts will feature Beethoven.

Dr. Munch will follow his established custom of presenting Beethoven's mighty Ninth Symphony as the closing event of the Festival Sunday afternoon, August 10, at 2:30.

For more detailed information concerning the festival it is necessary only to write to: Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

[24]

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162

APR 26 1958

Society: Harvard Glee Club Centennial To Be Noted at Tanglewood

(Lenscraft)

BOSTONIANS IN EUROPE are Mrs. W. Stuart Forbes Jr., Mrs. Charles A. Newhall and Stanley G. H. Fitch. They plan to visit Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Spain.

By MARJORIE W. SHERMAN

Famous concerts in a famous setting, the Boston Symphony's world-renowned Berkshire Festival will, as usual, bring visitors from many countries to Tanglewood, where Charles Munch and the other distinguished conductors will direct the famous orchestra during the 1958 season.

Opening with Bach July 4, and presenting G. Wallace Woodworth and the Harvard Glee Club July 6 in a special concert honoring the 100th anniversary of the glee club, this Summer will provide outstanding musical treats for all ages. The choruses of the Radcliffe Choral Society and the Harvard Glee Club will join the Boston Symphony for special performances.

Boston's first families of music—Mme. Koussevitzky, the Fullers, the Tafts, the Kuttens and many more—will be at Lenox for many of the concerts. William Cox is chairman this year of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

IN TAUNTON today, Miss Patricia Marie Casey, daughter of Mrs. Joseph C. Casey and the late Mr. Casey, is becoming the bride of James Andrew Tranter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Tranter, also of Taunton. Rt. Rev. James Dolan is officiating at the 9 o'clock ceremony in St. Mary's Church, and the bride's brother, William, is giving her in marriage. A reception follows at Taunton Inn.

The bride is wearing a princess dress of ivory taffeta embroidered with alencon lace and pearls, and fashioned with a court train and a cap of the same delicate lace with her veil of illusion.

Miss Nancye McAloon of East Taunton is honor attendant, and bridesmaids are Miss Shirley LeClair of Watertown, and Miss Irene Miller of Taunton. Their dresses are of pale blue organza with deep blue satin sashes and they are wearing matching bands in their hair. Their flowers are pink carnations and blue delphinium.

Robert L. Miller of Portland, Me., is best man, and ushers include John E. Kearns and Robert Powers of Taunton, William McAloon, and Joseph T. Woods of Peabody.

The bride is a graduate of Regis College. Mr. Tranter graduated from Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. After their wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., they will live at 173 Bay st., Taunton.

FROM BRONXVILLE, N. Y., comes the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Lando of the engagement of their daughter, Carole Louise, to Harry Bentley Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Earle Bradley of Ridgewood, N. J., formerly of Waban.

Miss Lando graduated from Halsted School in Yonkers, N. Y., attended the College of Wooster in Ohio, and graduated from Katharine Gibbs School in New York.

Mr. Bradley is the grandson of Harry C. Bentley of San Diego and Boston, founder of the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, and Mrs. J. Belle Bentley of La Jolla, Calif. He is a senior at Wooster College, and plans to enter Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

A SECOND CHILD and first daughter, Martha Bevan, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Zach T. White of Winchester on April 19 at Richardson House. The grandparents are Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bevan of Washington, and Mrs. Thomas Skinner White of Hertford, N. C.

DOORS WILL OPEN at 11 Thursday morning for the annual May Festival in the First Church in Cambridge, Unitarian, 3 Church st., and the sale in the new auditorium will continue until 11 in the evening. Luncheon will be served at noon, and reservations may be made for dinner, which will be served from 5:15 to 6:15. Miss Beatrice Coleman heads the festival committee.

N Y Times - Apr 28

LENOX MUSIC FETE WILL [illegible] JULY 4

Munch to Conduct Chamber Orchestra in Bach Suites —All Concerts Listed

Charles Munch will open the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Friday evening, July 4. He will conduct a chamber orchestra composed of members of the Boston Symphony in the four Orchestral Suites of Bach.

For the next evening's all-Bach concert, Lukas Foss will be piano soloist in the D minor Concerto. The "Art of Fugue" will complete the program. On July 6 Bach's B Minor Mass will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor of the Harvard Glee Club.

Mr. Munch, director of the Berkshire center, will conduct three all-Mozart chamber music programs on July 11, 12 and 13. Soloists will be Mr. Foss, Ruth Posselt, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist, and Seymour Lipkin, pianist.

The first week-end of concerts in the Music Shed, July 18, 19 and 20, will feature works of Brahms. The Requiem will be performed Saturday with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, as soloists. Pierre Monteux, guest conductor on Sunday, will lead Brahms' D Minor Piano Concerto, with Leon Fleisher as soloist.

On Friday, July 25, Mr. Monteux will conduct works of Glinka, Tchaikovsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel. Mr. Munch will lead the Saturday concert, featuring Byron Janis as soloist in the Third Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto. On Sunday Mr. Munch will conduct the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto, with Zino Francescatti as soloist.

Mr. Munch will conduct the concerts on Aug. 1 and 2, which will feature Wagnerian excerpts, with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Walter's Piston's Viola Concerto, with Mr. De Pasquale as soloist, and Liszt's E flat Piano Concerto, with Leonard Pennario as soloist. Mr. Monteux will conduct the Wagner program of Aug. 3, which will again have Miss Harshaw as soloist.

The final week-end of concerts, Aug. 8 through Aug. 10, will feature music of Beethoven. Eugene Istomin will be soloist in the Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"), and Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Violin Concerto. Messrs. Munch and Monteux will conduct.

The final festival concert, led by Mr. Munch, will end with the Beethoven Ninth Symphony.

BACH, MOZART, BRAHMS TO BE FEATURED BY BOSTON SYMPHONY AT TANGLEWOOD

The celebrated Berkshire Festival's announcement of complete plans for the approaching summer season will be of interest to the very large number of Central Connecticut residents who attend some of Tanglewood's concerts. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux conducting, will be featured in the week-end concerts, which are highlights of this annual festival, held in Lenox, Mass.

The concerts of the first two weekends will be played at 8:30 p. m. Friday and Saturday and at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, with a chamber orchestra and will be devoted to the music of Bach (July 4-6) and Mozart (July 11-13). On Friday, July 4, Dr. Munch will present the four Orchestral Suites of Bach, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. On Saturday, July 5, Lukas Foss will be piano soloist in the Piano Concerto in D minor and the remainder of this program will be devoted to the "Art of the Fugue". A special program of Bach's B Minor Mass honoring the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club will be conducted by the club's director, G. Wallace Woodworth, on Sunday, July 6, when the choruses of Harvard and the Radcliffe Choral Society will join the Boston Symphony. Soloists will be: Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm.

The three concerts of the Mozart week-end will be conducted by Dr. Munch. On Friday, July 11, at 8:30 the program will include the Musical Joke, K. 522, the Sinfonia Concertante with soloists and the Linz Symphony. For the July 12 concert Dr. Munch will present: [illegible] Nachtmusik", the Two [illegible] K. 365 with Seymour [illegible] Lukas Foss as pianists; the Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for wind instruments; Symphony No. 40. On Sunday, July 13, the program will include: Haffner Symphony; Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 with Seymour Lipkin as soloist; three choral works conducted by Hugh Ross.

Charles Munch

The July 18-20 weekend of concerts will feature Johannes Brahms. The Friday evening concert program includes: Brahms Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra; Brahms' Symphony No. 4. Saturday evening will be devoted to Brahms' Requiem with the Festival Chorus and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor Sunday afternoon, July 20, and his program will be: Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, plus a complete performance of Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

The concerts of July 25-27 will feature music of Debussy and Ravel as well as several familiar works by Russian composers. With Monteux conducting, the Friday, July 25 concert will present: Glinka's Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla"; Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 4; Overture to Milhaud's "Les Eumenides"; Three Nocturnes by Debussy; Ravel's "La Valse". On Saturday evening, July 26, Dr. Munch will direct: Stravinsky's "Agon"; Debussy's "La Mer"; Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto with Byron Janis. The program for Sunday afternoon, July 27, will include: Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel's Second Suite from "Daphnis and Chloe"; Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto with Francescatti.

Wagner is featured during the August 1-3 weekend. Friday night with Munch conducting the program will be: Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"; the Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" with Margaret Harshaw; Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" with Miss Harshaw; Walter Piston's Viola Concerto with Joseph de Pasquale as soloist. The August 2 evening concert, under Dr. Munch, will present: Overture and Bacchanale from Wagner's "Tannhauser"; Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat with Leonard Pennario; Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony; Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung". For the Sunday afternoon, August 3 concert, Dr. Monteux will conduct: Wagner excerpts with Miss Harshaw as soloist; Overture to "The Flying Dutchman"; Prelude to "Lohengrin"; Ride of the Valkyries; Prelude to "Parsifal"; Overture to "Rienzi".

The final week-end of Music Shed concerts will feature Beethoven.

Dr. Munch will follow his established custom of presenting Beethoven's mighty Ninth Symphony as the closing event of the Festival Sunday afternoon, August 10, at 2:30.

For more detailed information concerning the festival it is necessary only to write to: Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, [illegible]

May 15

[25]

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUN 25 1958

Program For 1958 Berkshire Festival At Tanglewood, July 2 Thru Aug. 10

The programs for the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood have been announced, running from July 2 through August 10.

Charles Munch, director, and the Boston Symphony orchestra will be joined by several outstanding chamber music groups, guest soloists and conductors, and students in the various departments of the Berkshire Music Center will present concerts throughout this period.

Music Seminars

A feature of this year's Festival will be seminars in contemporary music, in which composers will play and discuss their own work.

Chamber music concerts will be given in the theatre at Tanglewood. The concerts by the full symphony will be given in the large music shed. Pierre Monteux will again be guest conductor.

Program

The program follows:

July 2: Theatre at 9:30. Budapest String Quartet. Haydn Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5. Bartok Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7. Beethoven Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

July 4: Theatre at 8:30. Bach Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 5: Theatre at 8:30. Bach Piano Concerto in D minor . Soloist: Lukas Foss. The Art of the Fugue. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 6: Shed at 2:30. Bach B minor Mass. Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts. Blake Stern, Donald Gramm. Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Conductor: G. Wallace Woodworth.

July 9: Theatre at 8:30. Chamber Music Concert. The Beaux Arts Trio, of New York. Beethoven Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1. Faure Trio in D minor, Op. 120. Mendelssohn Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

July 11: Theatre at 8:30. Mozart Musical Joke K. 522. Sinfonia Concertante. Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph De Pasquale. "Linz" Symphony, No. 36, C major. Conductor : Charles Munch.

July 12: Shed at 8:30. Mozart Eine Kleine Nachtmusik. Two- Piano Concerto, K. 365. Soloists: Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for Winds. Symphony No. 40 in G minor. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 13: Theatre at 2:30. Mozart Haffner Symphony. Piano Concerto in C major, K. [illegible] Soloist: Seymour Lipkin. Conductor: Charles Munch. Kyrie, K. 341; [illegible], K. 271; Mass, K. 317. Conductor: Hugh Ross.

July 14: Theatre at 8:30. A Concert of Contemporary Chamber Music. Under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation.

July 16: Theatre at 8:30. New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Music of Flanders and Spain. Works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others.

July 18: Shed at 8:30. Brahms Serenade No. 1 in D. Op. 11. Copland Variations for Orchestra. Brahms Symphony No. 4. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 19: Shed at 8:30. Brahms Requiem. Hilde Gueden, Soprano. Donald Gramm, Baritone. Festival Chorus. Conductor: Charles Munch. In Memory of Serge Koussevitzky.

July 20: Shed at 2:30. Brahms Academic Festival Overture. Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor. Soloist: Leon Fleisher. Stravinsky Petrouchka. Conductor: Pierre Monteux.

July 23: Theatre at 8:30. Chamber Music Concert. Adele Addison, Soprano. Song Recital.

July 25: Shed at 8:30. Glinka "Russian & Ludmilla" Ov. Tchaikovsky Symphony No. 4. Milhaud Ov. to "Les Eumenides". Debussy Three Nocturnes. Ravel La Valse. Conductor: Pierre Monteux.

July 26: Shed at 8:30. Stravinsky Canticum Sacrum. Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto. No. 3 (Soloist: Byron Janis) Debussy La Mer. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 27: Shed at 2:30. Bartok Music for Strings, Percussion & Celesta. Ravel "Daphnis & Chloe", 2nd Suite. Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto. Soloist: Zino Francescatti. Conductor: Charles Munch.

July 30: Theatre at 8:30 Chamber Music Concert. The Kroll Quartet. Mozart Quartet in C major, K. 465. Blackwood Quartet No. 1. Brahms Quartet No. 1, in C minor. Op. 51, No. 1.

Aug. 1: Wagner. Shed at 8:30. Prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love. Death from "Tristan and Isolde." Piston Viola Concerto. Wagner Immolation Scene. Margaret Harshaw, Soprano. Joseph De Pasquale, Viola. Conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 2: Shed at 8:30. Wagner "Tannhauser" Overture & Bacchanale. Liszt Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat. Soloist: Leonard Pennario. Vaughan Williams. Symphony No. [illegible] Wagner Siegfried's Rhine Journey. Conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 3: Shed at 2:30. Wagner Excerpts from "The Flying Dutchman", "Lohengrin", "Die Walkure", "Parsifal", "Tannhauser", "Rienzi". Soloist: Margare Harshaw, soprano. Conductor: Pierre Monteux.

Aug. 6: Theatre at 8:30. Chamber Music Concert. The Kroll Quartet. Haydn Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3. Bartok Quartet, No. 2 , Op. 17. Beethoven Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Aug. 7: Tanglewood on Parade. featuring Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Aug. 8: Shed at 8:30. Honegger Prelude Fugue and Postlude. Beethoven Symphony No. 7. Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor"). Soloist: Eugene Istomin. Conductor: Charles Munch.

Aug. 9: Shed at 8:30. Beethoven Music from "Prometheus" Violin Concerto. Soloist: Berl Senofsky. Hindemith Nobilissmima Visione. Beethoven Leonore Ov. No. 3. Conductor: Pierre Monteux.

Aug. 10: Shed at 2:30. Walton Johannesburg Festival Ov. Beethoven Ninth Symphony. Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff, Donald Gramm. Festival Chorus. Conductor: Charles Munch.

In addition to these programs there will be student programs in opera, and chamber music, ant the Tanglewood choir and the Berkshire Music Center orchestra will give regular concerts Anyone wishing to contribute to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend these concerts.

There will also be open rehearsals of the Boston Symphony orchestra Saturday mornings in the music shed July 19 through Aug. 9. Tickets for these, as for all other concerts, may be obtained from the ticket office at Tanglewood, Lenox. General admission tickets to the grounds may always be obtained from three hours before concert time on.

Herald
CHICOPEE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,662

JUN 19 1958

Tanglewood Opens July 2

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUN 5 - 1958

Chamber Music Concerts Announced At Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor. Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,960

JUN 14 1958

Music

George Tsandikos to Sing At Berkshire Festival

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL — George Tsandikos, tenor, of this city, will sing for the second season in the opera workshop productions at the Berkshire festival. He made his debut there last season, singing in several productions. His most important appearance will be in scenes from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet."

In the productions, a list of vocal and instrumental artists and concerto and choral highlights will be heard.

Lukas Foss, pianist, will be heard in the program of July 5 at which time the Bach Piano Concerto will be highlighted. On Sunday, July 6, Bach's "B Minor Mass" will list such artists as Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

In the Mozart program of July 11, Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Joseph De Pasquale, violist, will play. Mr. De Pasquale will also appear in the program of Aug 1 at whch time Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in excerpts from Wagnerian opera.

Mr. Foss will join the noted pianist, Seymour Lipkin, in the Two Piano Concerto by Mozart, on July 12. Mr. Lipkin will appear in the concert of the following day when he essays the Mozart Concerto in C Major.

Hilde Gueden, the celebrated soprano of concert and opera, is in the concert of July 19 when she will join Donald Gramm in the Brahm's Requiem. In another Brahms program, Leon Fleisher, pianist, will be the soloist in the Piano Concerto No. 1, in D Minor.

THE BRILLIANT young pianist, Byron Janis, will be heard in the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto in the concert of July 26. On the 27th the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto will be interpreted by Zino Francescatti, the world renown virtuoso.

Leonard Pennario will be the pianist for August 2, Liszt Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat. Miss Harshaw will be the featured soloist in an all Wagner program scheduled for August 3.

Eugene Istomin is the pianist for the Beethoven Concerto, (the "Emperor") on August 8. Selected as violinist in the Beethoven "Prometheus" on August 9 will be Berl Senofsky. In the Beethoven "Ninth Symphony" for the closing program of the season will be Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff and Donald Gramm.

Charles Munch will conduct a major share of the concerts. The list of guest conductors will include Pierre Monteux, G. Wallace Woodworth and Hugh Ross.

This is the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center, founded in 1940 by the Boston Symphony orchestra in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitzky. In that time approximately 5000 young musicians have received training at Tanglewood.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 9 1958

Chamber Music Programs At Tanglewood Announced

TANGLEWOOD — Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood were announced today by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op.64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Prés, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1. On August 6, the quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Free Press
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Democrat
Circ. 7,100

JUN 21 1958

Tanglewood Opens July 2

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

[26]

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

22 1958

Music:

Chamber Concerts Slated For Berkshire Festival

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

The Berkshire Music Festival will again round out its programs with the exquisite art of chamber music.

Six Wednesday evening concerts are scheduled for the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood beginning July 2. Tickets for all concerts, the proceeds of which will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The opening concert will feature the Budapest String Quartet in Haydn's Quartet in D major, Opus 64, No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Opus 7; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Opus 59, No. 2.

July 9 the Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard in Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Opus 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Opus 120; and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Opus 66.

Music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others will be performed by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua on July 16.

July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a recital of German and English songs, including works of Schubert, Schumann, and Brahms.

The two final concerts will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. Included on the first program are Mozart's Quartet in C major, K.465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1; and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Opus 51, No. 1.

The Aug. 6 fare is Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Opus 74, No. 3; Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Opus 17; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Opus 132

No more ardent audiences exist than for these chamber music "jam sessions."

Stoessel Memorial

One wouldn't be remiss in regarding the impressive orchestral series at Chautauqua, New York, this summer as a memorial to Albert Stoessel.

He founded the Chautauqua Symphony in 1928 (three years after he came to the Worcester Music Festival) and conducted both until his death in 1943.

The Chautauqua Symphony will give 28 concerts between July 5 and Aug. 20. These will be in the great amphitheater of the 85-year old recreational and cultural center on Lake Chautauqua.

Three quest conductors will assist Walter Hendl—Alberto Bolet musical director of the Havana Philharmonic; Julius Rudel, general director of the New York City Opera Company, and Howard Hanson of the Eastman School in Rochester.

Bolet is the older brother of Jorge Bolet, pianist, who has acquired an enthusiastic following at the Worcester Music Festival.

The Chautauqua Festival will highlight the world premiere (July 22) of William Mayer's "Overture for an American: In Memory of Theodore Roosevelt." It honors the centenary of the 26th United States president's birth.

Welcome Mats

Musicians' traffic is getting heavier and heavier between the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Visitors to this country have included Dimitri Shostakovich, Emil Gilels, Leonid Kogan, Mstislav Rostropovich, and currently the Moiseyev Dancers of Moscow.

Russia has wildly acclaimed American orchestras like the Boston Symphony and Cleveland Orchestra—not to mention the tremendously publicized Van Cliburn-Tchaikovsky Award.

The Russian welcome mat is now out for a group of American composers who will visit the Soviet Union this fall under the recently established United States-Soviet Exchange Agreement.

The purpose of the tour is to permit the group to establish contacts and exchange experiences with Soviet composers. The group will leave about Sept. 15 and will spend a month in Russia.

American composers chosen to participate are Norman Dello Joio, Howard Hanson, Peter Mennin, Roger Sessions, and Ulysses Kay. One more composer will be selected at a later date.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 15 1958

WORLD OF MUSIC: SIX WILL GET YOU TWO FREE

New Brooklyn Academy Policy Offers Bonus Events to Buyers of Concerts

By ROSS PARMENTER

THE Brooklyn Academy of Music is borrowing a few pages from the Book-of-the-Month Club. In recent years Academy officials have found concertgoers increasingly reluctant to buy tickets for concerts fixed on a prescribed set of dates. This has led it to abandon the Major Concert Series, an annual set of seven or eight concerts, which it instituted in the 1941-42 season. Instead, it will offer nine concerts, which it will sell in book club fashion. Needless to say, this means bonuses.

You don't have to buy all the concerts of the series, but if you buy tickets for six of them you'll get two bonus concerts free. And a choice is being offered among the bonuses. Renata Tebaldi, Dame Myra Hess and Marian Anderson are the artists being offered on the free encyclopedia basis. You can select whichever two of the three ladies you wish to hear.

The nine attractions, from which six have to be chosen, have been selected so that semi-popular or more serious music can predominate, according to taste. And they are events taking place on different nights of the week, so that no one is bound always to go to a concert on the same night. The Saturday events are Roger Williams, the Melachrino Orchestra and Varel and Bailly. The Vienna Academy Chorus and the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra are the Tuesday events. José Iturbi and Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" will be the Thursday attractions. Hugo Wolf's opera "Der Corregidor" will be offered on a Friday, and Arthur Fiedler will lead the Boston Pops Orchestra on a Sunday afternoon.

The Gluck and Wolf operas will be given in concert form by the Little Orchestra Society, led by Thomas Scherman. In a sense, this will be a reunion for the society and the Academy. During the society's first three seasons—1947 to 1950—it repeated all its Manhattan concerts at the Academy.

COLLEGIANS: Europeans will be hearing a lot of American college choruses this summer. The parade of departures has already begun. The week before last the Concordia College Concert Choir, led by Paul J. Christiansen, set off for a twenty-seven-concert tour, starting in Norway. Last week, the fifty-seven young women of the Skidmore College Chorus, led by Hoyt Irwin, left for their tour, in which they will sing an all-American program in seven countries. Also last week, the Yale Glee Club left for its seventh European tour. On July 2 the M. I. T. Choral Society, which is under the direction of Klaus Liepmann, will fly to Paris for its second trip to Europe. And on July 7 the Smith College Singers, directed by Iva Dee Hiatt, will take off for their fifth European tour. The Smith, Yale and M. I. T. groups will sing at the Brussels World's Fair. So will the Pilgrim's Chorus of Manhasset, a chorus from Knox College and the University of Illinois Men's Glee Club. The Smith group will also sing in the big choral festival at Vienna. The Concordia chorus will sing at the Vienna festival, too.

HONK HONK: Antony Hopkins is a British composer who likes to write for unusual timbres. Three years ago, for instance, he wrote "The Man from Tuscany," an opera for boys' voices. Now he has composed a Concertino for Car and Orchestra. It will be introduced in London's Albert Hall on July 17 in a concert of "Comic and Curious Music." The solo automobile will be a vintage car, and during the performance Peter Hornblower Rockliff will crash its gears, toot its big bulb horn and race its engine.

PUERTO RICO: Having completed the second Casals Festival, Puerto Rico is now embarked on an opera festival. Kurt Adler and Emerson Buckley will alternate in leading the eight operas that will be staged in single performances. They will be "Carmen," "La Forza del Destino," "La Traviata," "Aida," "Andrea Chenier," "La Bohème," "Madama Butterfly" and "Rigoletto." The chorus has members of the choir of the University of Puerto Rico in its ranks, but the principals, including a number of Metropolitan singers were flown in.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: The New York Pro Musica will make its first appearance at the Berkshire Festival this summer, when it performs at Tanglewood on July 16. The group is also going for the first time to the Shakespearean Festival in Stratford, Ont. . . . The Mannes College of Music, which became a college five years ago, graduated its first Bachelors of Science last Monday. . . . Martha Lipton will sing with the Paris Opèra for the first time on June 27. She will be heard as Amneris in "Aïda." . . . William Mayer has written "Overture for an American" for the celebration of the Theodore Roosevelt Centennial at Chautauqua, N. Y. Walter Hendl will lead it with the Chautauqua Symphony on July 22. . . . A number of fans have formed the Giorgio Tozzi Music Club. They plan to publish two journals a year. . . . The Boston Fine Arts Quartet, which Richard Kapuscinski organized two years with fellow members of the Boston Symphony, has been appointed Quartet-in-Residence of Boston University.

REPRISE

Wallingford Riegger's "La Belle Dame Sans Merci" was the most rewarding of the three works presented at the successful first appearance of the Lyric Chamber Theatre, a new group led by Milton Rosenstock. . . . Barbara [illegible], made a promising [illegible]

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 103,521

JUN 22 1958

Chamber Music Concerts Listed For Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and August 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On August 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholar- Fund of the Berkssire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

VALATIE, N. Y.
ROUGH NOTES
Circ. W. 1,000

JUN 27 1958

Chamber Music Series Opens At Tanglewood July 2

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts, will open its 1958 season on July 2 and run until August 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the 6,000 seat Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUN 11 1958

SIX CHAMBER MUSIC EVENINGS AT LENOX

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUN 10 1958

Chamber Music Concerts Listed for Tanglewood

The first of the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be given July 2 by the Budapest String Quartet, in quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The others follow:

July 9, The Beaux Arts Trio of N. Y., in works by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn; July 16, the Pro Music Antiqua, presenting a program of music of Flanders and Spain; July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a program of German and English songs; July 30 and Aug. 6, the Kroll Quartet, in works by Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms and Bartok.

For further information, contact the festival office at Lenox.

The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

WILTON BULLETIN June 11, 1958

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening Chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

[27]

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675

JUN 20 1958

Tanglewood Prospe

Dr. Munch To Return This Month

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth.

On Saturday, June 14, he conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the 23d World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music. The concert was held at the Palais des Fêtes in Strasbourg, and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the Third Symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Boulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud.

On June 15 Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel. Isaac Stern was soloist in works of Bach and Prokofiev.

Dr. Munch will return to this country during the last week in June to take up his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., and director of the Berkshire Festival. He will conduct 13 concerts during the six-week festival from July 4 to Aug. 10.

A special performance of Bach's B minor Mass on July 6 will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, and Hugh Ross will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch.

Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 3 and 9. All other concerts will be under Dr. Munch's direction.

Tanglewood Programs

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are as follows:

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartók's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Fauré's Trio in D minor, Op. 120; and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Prés, Morales, and others on July 16.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1, and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1. On Aug. 6 the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3; Bartók's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUN 20 1958

FRIDAY,

Munch Conducts At Strasbourg

~~Charles Munch,~~ Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth.

On June 14, he conducted the Orchestra Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the 23rd World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music, and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the Third Symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Boulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. On June 15, Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUN 22 1958

Santa Fe's 2d Oper

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Santa Fe, where the Opera Association of New Mexico opens its second season Wednesday night, now rivals Cincinnati and Central City as this country's summer opera capitals. The principal feature of the Santa Fe series is the world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's "Wuthering Heights" on Wednesday night, July 16, with repetitions July 19 and 22 under John C[illegible] [illegible]torship and the [illegible] direction of Irving Guttm[illegible] [illegible] Campbell, the com[illegible] production designer, is devising the scenery, costumes and lighting. The cast includes Phyllis Curtin as Cathy, Robert Trehy as Heathcliff and Robert Terry, Regina Sarfaty, Mildred Allen, Loren Driscoll, Davis Cunningham, John McCurdy and Nico Castel in other roles.

"La Boheme" will open the season of twenty-six performances which closes Aug. 19; there will also be Sunday orchestral and chamber music programs. Richard Strauss' last opera, "Capriccio," will have its first professional American performance Aug. 6. The repertory also includes "Cosi Fan Tutte," "Falstaff" and Rossini's "Cinderella." All performances will be in English.

trans-Atlantic trip before returning to open its home season on Oct. 14.

The National Symphony will be the third American orchestra to appear at the Fair. The Philadelphia Orchestra has added an extra concert with Van Cliburn as soloist on July 5 to its previously scheduled appearances on July 2, 3 and 4, and the Juilliard Orchestra, under Jean Morel, will be heard between July 23 and 27.

Musical events in the American Pavilion during the rest of the current month include recitals by Blanche Thebom tomorrow and Byron Janis June 30, and the New York City Opera production of Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah," June 25 to 29.

• • •

Munch Returns

Charles Munch has fully recovered from the indisposition which kept him away from the podium for the Boston Symphony's closing concerts in April, and will return to the United States this week to begin his activities at Tanglewood. He conducted the Orchestre Nationale in concerts at Strasbourg last Saturday and Sunday.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162

JUN 19 1958

Munch Conducts At Strasbourg

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has completed a ~~series of guest~~ conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth.

On June 14, he conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the world festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music. The concert was at the Palais des Fetes in Strasbourg and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the Third Symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Boulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. On June 15, Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel.

Dr. Munch will return to this country before the end of June to take up duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and as director of the Berkshire Festival. He will conduct 13 concerts during the six-week festival, from July 4 to Aug. 10.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUN 20 1958

Munch to Return From France For Tanglewood Season

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will return to this country from France during the last week in June to take up his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, and director of the Berkshire Festival.

He will conduct 13 Festival concerts during the six weeks' Festival from July 4 to Aug. 10. A special performance of Bach's D Minor Mass on July 6 will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, and Rugh Ross will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 3 and 9. All other concerts will be under Dr. Munch's direction.

He recently completed a series of guest conductor appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth.

Last Saturday he conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the 23rd World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music. The concert was held at the Palais des Fetes in Strasbourg and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the Third Symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Poulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. On Sunday, Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel. Isaac Stern was soloist in works of Bach and Prokofieff.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 19 1958

BSO's Munch Conducts at Strasbourg

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth.

On Saturday, June 14, he conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the 23rd World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music. The concert was at the Palais des Fetes in Strasbourg, and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the Third Symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Poulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. June 15, Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel. Isaac Stern was soloist in works of Bach and Prokofieff.

Returns Soon

Dr. Munch will return to this country the last week in June to take up his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and director of the Berkshire Festival. He will conduct 13 festival concerts during the six weeks' festival from July 4 to Aug. 10. A special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6 will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, and Hugh Ross will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 3 and 9. All other concerts will be under Dr. Munch's direction.

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 183,539

JUN 22 1958

Berkshire Music Plans Announced

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 22 1958

MUNCH DIRECTS AT STRASBOURG, HIS HOME TOWN

Leads Orchestre Nationale Of Paris in World Festival

Boston, June 21 — Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Sypmhony Orchestra, has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearance in Strasbourg, the town of his birth. On Saturday, the 14th, he conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris in the sixth concert of the 23d world festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music.

French Program

The concert was held at the Palais des Fetes in Strasbourg and the program of French music included a work of Debussy, the first performance in Europe of the third symphony by Henry Barraud, a new work by Pierre Boulez, and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. On the 15th, Dr. Munch conducted the same orchestra in a new symphony by Florent Schmitt, again a first performance, and the Suite in F by Roussel. Isaac Stern was soloist in works of Bach and Prokofieff.

Dr. Munch will return to this country soon to take up his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, and director of the Berkshire Festival. He will conduct 13 Festival concerts during the six-week festival from July 4 to Aug. 10.

A special performance of Bach's B-minor Mass on July 6 will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch. Pierre Monteux will be geust conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 3 and 9. All other concerts will be under Dr. Munch's direction.

BLANK PAGE

[29]

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

FEB 23 1958

LEADERS LISTED FOR BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER

Five Departments to Be Conducted This Year At Tanglewood

Boston, Feb. 22—The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

Department Heads

The school, founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor, will be in charge of the orchestral division, with Richard Burgin and William Kroll joint heads of the chamber music division. Hugh Ross will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition.

The Music Center's opera department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Copland is chairman of the faculty, Ralph Berkowitz dean, and Leonard Burkat administrator.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

EB 27 1958

Berkshire Music Center Plans Are Set For Summer

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts during six weeks from June 30 to August 10. The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the Orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the Orchestral Division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, point heads of the Chamber Music Division. Hugh Ross will head the Choral Department and Aaron Copland the Department of Composition. The Music Center's Opera Department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is Chairman of the Faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, Dean, and Leonard Burkat, Administrator.

Paul Fromm, President of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the Composition Department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

OBSCURED TEXT

[30]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200

FEB 27 19

The Sixteenth Summer

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to August 10. The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the Orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, will offer this season five departments of study.

In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvello, the Brazilian conductor, will be in charge of the Orchestral Division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the Chamber Music Division. Hugh Ross will head the Choral Department, and Aaron Copland, the Department of Composition. The Music Center's Opera Department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman of the Faculty, Ralph Berkowtiz, Dean, and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

MAR 2 1958

The Week in Music

The Berkshire Music Center's 15 Years of Living Statistics

By CYRUS DURGIN

Generally speaking, this chronicler believes that statistics are for actuaries, or for the birds, or for whoever wants them. They needn't come knocking at this door, parading up in orderly platoons of figures. There are things more interesting in this life.

But nonetheless, there is one form of statistics which is fascinating to anyone close to music, and that is concerned with where young musicians go and what they do after they leave the schools and conservatories where they have been educated.

These are what you might call living statistics. They are not just rows of figures arranged in patterns. They are symbols of living, working talent. They are especially valuable in that they give a very good idea of how and where standards of music education are carried. This is important, for successful principles of musical training do not stop with one generation of musicians. They have a fertilizing effect that may be carried far afield.

Over 15 Years

Take the Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., at Tanglewood in conjunction with the annual Berkshire Festivals. Although the far-sighted Serge Koussevitzky founded the Center in 1940, the school has operated just 15 seasons, for sessions were suspended during the wartime years of 1943-44-45. Those 15 years of substantial enrollments have run up a large number of young professionals who have pursued careers pretty much the country over.

Since many of them themselves engage in teaching as well as perfoming, this has a double effect. It means that the principles inculcated by members of the Boston Symphony who are Music Center faculty have been spread over the country. The same has happened in the case of those who were composition students at Tanglewood, for at most of the annual sessions there has been, as composer-in-residence, so to speak, a leading world figure in contemporary musical creation. It is easy to get a notion of the long-range effect from a set of statistics compiled at Symphony Hall.

There are 269 former Berkshire Music Center students now engaged by 45 orchestras in the United States. Nine of them are conductors, eight assistant and associate conductors. Five of those orchestras have former Center students as concertmasters. Sixty-seven former students are principals, or first-desk players—through all the sections ot the symphonic orchestra.

Down to Cases

Getting down to cases, the Atlanta, Ga., Symphony has Harry Kruger as assistant conductor; Willis Page, himself a former Boston Symphony double-bass player, is associate conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic. In Cincinnati Thor Johnson has been conductor, and in Cleveland, Louis Lane is assistant conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, and Robert Shaw (recently a guest in Boston) is associate conductor. Walter Hendl has been conductor in Dallas, and in Denver Allen Greene is assistant to the conductor. Maurice Bonney holds the post of associate conductor in Houston, Tex.

Continuing the list alphabetically by cities, we find a former Berkshire Center student is the conductor of the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra: Robert Whitney; Gerard Samuel associate conductor in Minneapolis, and Richard Bales conducting the National Gallery Orchestra in Washington, D.C. Howard Boatwright is assistant conductor in New Haven.

The most famous of all Berkshire Music Center alumni is, of course, the multifariously gifted Leonard Bernstein, who next Fall will take over as musical director of the New York Philharmonic. Thomas Schippers, operatic and symphonic conductor, and a guest here last week, is another. Theodore Bloomfield heads the Portland, Ore., Symphony, and in Des Moines Frank Noyes is conductor. Up north in Duluth, Hermann Herz wields a baton over the Symphony, and in Vancouver another Center graduate, Irwin Hoffman, is director.

This record is truly impressive, for while certain former students may have been at the Center for just one Summer, it does show how widely-ranging, geographically, the work of the Center has had effect. I think it may be claimed that for the most part the students at Tanglewood have been the cream of the crop. Certainly that has been true of conducting students, many of whom originally went to study under the supervision of Koussevitzky. Some of those who attended in the earliest seasons are now approaching the prime of career.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
ORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,052

FEB 17 1958

L. Brown, East St.

Berkshire Center Dates Announced

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Knoll, joint heads of the chamber music division . Hugh Ross will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition. The Music Center's Opera Department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman on the faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, dean, and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

News Advertiser
WESTFIELD, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2700

FEB 20 1958

Berkshire Music Center Will Open June 30

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the Orchestral Division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the Chamber Music Division. Hugh Ross will head the Choral Department and Aaron Copland the Department of Composition. The Music Center's Opera Department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is Chairman of the Faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, Dean, and Leonard Burkat, Administrator.

Paul Fromm, President of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the Composition Department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,017

FEB 24 1958

Plans Made For Opening Of Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the chamber music division. Hugh Ross will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition. The Music Center's opera department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood study group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, dean, and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

FEB 24 1958

Tanglewood Music Center Opens June 30

De Carvalho Returning To Handle Student Orchestra

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will open for six weeks on June 30, according to an announcement over the weekend by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Assisting him on the faculty will be a large staff, including 22 BSO musicians.

The school, founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the chamber music division.

Hugh Ross will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition. The Music Center opera department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood study group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, dean, and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Fromm Program

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department under the supervision of Mr. Copland.

INCORRECT PAGINATION

[32]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

MAY 12 1958

Scholarships Are Offered At Tanglewood Festival

Many Prizes and Awards Available in All Fields Of Music Endeavor to Students at Berkshire Event

Boston, May 12 — Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

Important prizes are offered in the names of three great virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the Orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former President, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

Sagalyn Award

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award for the best orchestral work to a composition student.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, offers a scholarship to the Music Center.

New Scholarships

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood, this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

MAY 2 - 1958

Summer Music School Opens In Lenox June 28

Boston Symphony Members Will Be Instructors

A new summer music school for about 20 teen-agers, with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as instructors, will open in Lenox, Mass. on June 28.

The camp will be directed by Mrs Ruth Hurwitz, who has been teaching music in the Hartford area for 25 years. The camp will be known as Merrywood and will be located on Stockbridge Road.

Among BSO members teaching at Merrywood will be violinists Alfred Krips, George Zazotsky, Harry Dickson, Victor Manusevitch; violist Joseph de Pasquale; cellists Samuel Mayes and Mischa Nieland, and flutist Philip Kaplan. Every section of the orchestra will be represented by teachers at Merrywood, Mrs Hurwitz said.

Mrs Hurwitz is a graduate of the Institite of Musical Art of the Juilliard Foundation and a former student of Bruce Simonds of Yale University. She has conducted classes for teen-agers in her West Hartford studio, has played with chamber music groups and has given piano concerts. Mrs Hurwitz was associated with a summer music school in Maine for seven years. She will teach piano students at the school.

Attendance at Tanglewood concerts, Jacob's Pillow and summer theaters will be included in the camp's program. The camp will hold class lessons, group singing, instrumental ensembles and weekly musicales for the students.

Recreational activities will include tennis, badminton, ping-pong, swimming and social dancing. The group will live in the 17-room mansion known as Merrywood.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK CITY

MAY 1958

Berkshire [illegible] In 16th Season

Lenox, Mass.—[illegible] season of the Berkshire Music Center, from June 30 to Aug. 10, will offer five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music Eleazar de Carvalho will be in charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll will head the Chamber Music Division. Hugh Ross will supervise the Choral Department, and Aaron Copland the Department of Composition. The Opera Division will be under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group under Ludwig Zirner. Paul Fromm will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music.

Wilton Bulletin
WILTON, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,804

MAR 26 1958

TANGLEWOOD-16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. June 30 to August 10. Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's director, will head the center.

NY Mirror - May 12

ROBERT COLEMAN'S THEATRE

Champions on Hemingway

zation at the above address.

The Berkshire Music Center, Lenox, Mass., is also awarding a number of scholarships and prizes. Among the prizes offered are those in honor of Jascha Heifetz, Gregor Piatigorsky and Albert Spalding. A letter to Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Center, at the above address, should bring you further information.

The recently established scholarship at the Mannes College of Music in the name of the late W. C. Handy was given by the Grand Street Boys' Foundation to Joseph Lliso, a Brooklyn lad. Future candidates for this, and other such aids to musical education, should apply to the college, 157 E. 74th St.

THE AMERICAN Theatre Wing will operate the first popular musical training center this Summer at the South Shore

---

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,866

FEB 25 1958

School to Open At Tanglewood

The six-week school at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will open June 30, for its 16th season, Charles Munch, music-director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced recently.

The school will offer five departments of study. Eleazar de Carvalho will be in charge of orchestral division; Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will instruct the chamber music division; Hugh Ross will head the choral department; Aaron Copland will teach the department of composition and the Tanglewood study group will be directed by Ludwig Zirner.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

FEB 28 1958

Tanglewood Season

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be held from June 30 to Aug. 10. The school will offer five departments of study this season; instrumental music, choral, opera, composition, and contemporary music. The faculty will include Hugh Ross, Aaron Copland, Boris Goldovsky, Ludwig Zirner, Ralph Berkowitz, Leonard Burkat, and Paul Fromm.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162

MAY 17 1958

Munch Announces Awards, Scholarships at Tanglewood

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Summer school at Tanglewood in Lenox, announces a number of scholarships and prizes availble to its students. Among those offered are: The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear; the Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Gertrude Robinson Smith last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this Summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

MAY 26 1958

Tanglewood Scholarships Available

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood, and also makes grants to students in other departments of the center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

* * *

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award to a composition student for the best orchestral work.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, Mass., offers a scholarship to the center.

* * *

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern, designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship, and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

MAY 12 1958

Scholarships At Tanglewood School Now Available

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood has scholarships available for students.

The school is at session from June 30 to Aug. 10. Applications for admission and scholarship are now being received at Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, 15.

Among the scholarships available are: the Jascha Heifetz Prize for violin study, Gregor Piatigorsky Award for cello and the Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

FEB 23 8

Berkshire Music Center

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in conjunction with the Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood in the town of Lenox, will run from June 30 to Aug. 10. The faculty will include 22 members of the Boston Symphony.

Charles Munch is director. Eleazar de Carvalho will have charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll will be joint heads of the chamber music division. Hugh Ross will head the choral department, and Aaron Copland that of composition. The opera department again will be in the charge of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, for teachers, advanced students and amateurs, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner.

INCORRECT PAGINATION

[32]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

MAY 12 1958

Scholarships Are Offered At Tanglewood Festival

Many Prizes and Awards Available in All Fields Of Music Endeavor to Students at Berkshire Event

Boston, May 12 — Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

Important prizes are offered in the names of three great virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the Orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former President, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

Sagalyn Award

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award for the best orchestral work to a composition student.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, offers a scholarship to the Music Center.

New Scholarships

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood, this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

MAY 2 - 1958

Summer Music School Opens In Lenox June 28

Boston Symphony Members Will Be Instructors

A new summer music school for about 20 teen-agers, with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as instructors, will open in Lenox, Mass. on June 28.

The camp will be directed by Mrs Ruth Hurwitz, who has been teaching music in the Hartford area for 25 years. The camp will be known as Merrywood and will be located on Stockbridge Road.

Among BSO members teaching at Merrywood will be violinists Alfred Krips, George Zazotsky, Harry Dickson, Victor Manusevitch; violist Joseph de Pasquale; cellists Samuel Mayes and Mischa Nieland, and flutist Philip Kaplan. Every section of the orchestra will be represented by teachers at Merrywood, Mrs Hurwitz said.

Mrs Hurwitz is a graduate of the Institite of Musical Art of the Juilliard Foundation and a former student of Bruce Simonds of Yale University. She has conducted classes for teen-agers in her West Hartford studio, has played with chamber music groups and has given piano concerts. Mrs Hurwitz was associated with a summer music school in Maine for seven years. She will teach piano students at the school.

Attendance at Tanglewood concerts, Jacob's Pillow and summer theaters will be included in the camp's program. The camp will hold class lessons, group singing, instrumental ensembles and weekly musicales for the students.

Recreational activities will include tennis, badminton, ping-pong, swimming and social dancing. The group will live in the 17-room mansion known as Merrywood.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK CITY

MAY 1958

Berkshire [illegible] In 16th [illegible]

Lenox, Mass.— [illegible] season of the Berkshire Music Center, from June 30 to Aug. 10, will offer five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music Eleazar de Carvalho will be in charge of the orchestral [illegible], and Richard Burgin and William Kroll will head the Chamber Music Division. Hugh Ross will supervise the Choral Department, and Aaron Copland the Department of Composition. The Opera Division will be under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group under Ludwig Zirner. Paul Fromm will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music.

Wilton Bulletin
WILTON, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,804

MAR 26 1958

TANGLEWOOD 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. June 30 to August 10. Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's director, will head the center.

NY Mirror - May

ROBERT COLEMAN'S THEATRE

Champions on Hemingway

zation at the above address.

The Berkshire Music Center, Lenox, Mass., is also awarding a number of scholarships and prizes. Among the prizes offered are those in honor of Jascha Heifetz, Gregor Piatigorsky and Albert Spalding. A letter to Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Center, at the above address, should bring you further information.

The recently established scholarship at the Mannes College of Music in the name of the late W. C. Handy was given by the Grand Street Boys' Foundation to Joseph Liiso, a Brooklyn lad. Future candidates for this, and other such aids to musical education, should apply to the college, 157 E. 74th St.

THE AMERICAN Theatre Wing will operate the most popular musical training center this Summer at the South Shore

---

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,866

FEB 25 1958

School to Open At Tanglewood

The six-week school at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will open June 30, for its 16th season, Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced recently.

The school will offer five departments of study. Eleazar de Carvalho will be in charge of orchestral division; Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will instruct the chamber music division; Hugh Ross will head the choral department; Aaron Copland will teach the department of composition and the Tanglewood study group will be directed by Ludwig Zirner.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

FEB 28 1958

exciting performance.

Tanglewood Season

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be held from June 30 to Aug. 10. The school will offer five departments of study this season; instrumental music, choral, opera, composition, and contemporary music. The faculty will include Hugh Ross, Aaron Copland, Boris Goldovsky, Ludwig Zirner, Ralph Berkowitz, Leonard Burkat, and Paul Fromm.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162

MAY 17 1958

Munch Announces Awards, Scholarships at Tanglewood

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Summer school at Tanglewood in Lenox, announces a number of scholarships and prizes availble to its students. Among those offered are: The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear; the Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Gertrude Robinson Smith last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this Summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

MAY 26 1958

Tanglewood Scholarships Available

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood, and also makes grants to students in other departments of the center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award to a composition student for the best orchestral work.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, Mass., offers a scholarship to the center.

* * *

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern, designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship, and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood, this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

MAY 12 1958

Scholarships At Tanglewood School Now Available

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood has scholarships available for students.

The school is at session from June 30 to Aug. 10. Applications for admission and scholarship are now being received at Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, 15.

Among the scholarships available are: the Jascha Heifetz Prize for violin study, Gregor Piatigorsky Award for cello and the Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 442,970

FEB 23 1958

Berkshire Music Center

The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school operated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in conjunction with the Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood in the town of Lenox, will run from June 30 to Aug. 10. The faculty will include 22 members of the Boston Symphony.

Charles Munch is director. Eleazar de Carvalho will have charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll will be joint heads of the chamber music division, Hugh Ross will head the choral department, and Aaron Copland that of composition. The opera department again will be in the charge of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood Study Group, for teachers, advanced students and amateurs, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner.

OBSCURED TEXT

[32]

MONITOR 5/26/58

Tanglewood Scholarships Available

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood, and also makes grants to students in other departments of the center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

* * *

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award to a composition student for the best orchestral work.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, Mass., offers a scholarship to the center.

* * *

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern, designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship, and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-420

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass
Independent
Circ. 13,286

MA 21 195

Berkshire Center Planning Operas

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and August 4) in the theatre-concert hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center opera department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Tanglewood Opera Readies Season

5/

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has announced his plans for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, June 30 to Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music. The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts 2 and 4 of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act 3 of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) at 8:30.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

MAY 13 1958

Scholarships Being Offered At Tanglewood

Lenox, May 12 — Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

Important prizes are offered in the names of three great virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award for the best orchestral work to a composition student.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, offers a scholarship to the music center.

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

5/25/58

Morristown Is Named As N. J. Music Capital

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Morristown will be New Jersey's musical capital from next Saturday through June 7, a period which Gov. Robert B. Meyner has designated as a state-wide Masterwork Chorus Week. The principal events will be two performances of Bach's St. John Passion by the Masterwork Chorus under David Randolph's direction at 8 p. m. Friday and Saturday, June 6 and 7, in the Morristown High School, where the Morris County Art Association will hold an exhibition of paintings on both evenings.

Carl Mosbacher, pianist, will open the festival with a recital at 8 p. m. Saturday, May 31, in Morristown's Maccullouch Hall. Mr. Randolph will discuss the music of Bach and his contemporaries in that hall Tuesday night, June 2, with choral illustrations. Many of the members of the orchestra for the St. John Passion have been playing in the recent Casals Festival in Puerto Rico. The orchestral line-up will include all of the contemporary instruments called for in the score. Information about tickets may be obtained by writing to the Masterworks Chorus, Box 106, Morristown, N. J.

* * *

Tanglewood Novelty

Rossini's locally little known "Count Ory" will be the principal production of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department under Boris Goldovsky's direction this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The opera schedule also includes a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," two acts of Verdi's "La Traviata" and the third act of Puccini's "La Rondine."

The Rossini work will probably be given on the last of the Center's three operatic Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and Aug. 4. It will be sung in an English version by Robert A. Simon which was commissioned by the Juilliard School. The opera department will be supported this summer by the New England Opera Theater's Leadership Training Program, which has benefited from a Ford Foundation grant to be used for developing new scenic materials.

* * *

Benno Lee Honored

Benno Lee, director of the Hunter College concert series, has received the Austrian government's Gold Medal of Honor as a tribute to his services for Austrian culture and music. The award was made soon after Dr. Lee's recent seventy-fifth birthday by the Austrian Consul-General, Dr. Eduard Schiller.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.
TIMES-HERALD
Circ. D. 10,258

MAY 24 1958

Tanglewood Unit Announces Operas In English, Awards

LENOX, Mass. — Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, to be held between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juillard School of Music for the Juillard Opera Theater and has been released for performance at Tanglewood. The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet, Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata", and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera preformances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and August 4) at the theater-concert hall at 8:30.

The support of the opera department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Charles Munch, director of the music center, announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students, and applications are now open.

Prizes are offered in the names of three world-famous virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow. More than 20 other awards are available, covering many phases of music study. The headquarters are at Symphony Hall, Boston.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

MAY 25 1958

Rossini Opera Will Be Heard At Tanglewood

Boston, May 24 — Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet. Acts. 2 and 4 of Verdi's La Traviata and Act 3 of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8.30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

MAY 20 1958

Munch Announces Grants and Prizes For Music Center

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, announced today a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

Important Prizes

Important prizes are offered in the names of three great virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

For Composers

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award for the best orchestral work to a composition student.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, offers a scholarship to the Music Center.

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other Grants

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received by the Registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston.

B. Eagle - July 3

Goldovsky To Lecture At Austen Institute

TANGLEWOOD — Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department at the Berkshire Music Center, will deliver the opening lecture at the fifth annual Warren R. Austen Institute in World Understanding at Burlington, Vt., Monday.

Mr. Goldovsky will speak on "Music in America." The theme of this year's institute is "American Arts in World Perspective."

OBSCURED TEXT

[33]

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER EXPRESS
Circ. D. 168,672 - S. 308,605

JUN 8 1958

In The Realm of Music

Tonawanda Children's Chorus Has Busy Summer Schedule

By KENNETH GILL

YOUTH CHORISTERS—The young singers of the Children's Community Chorus of the Tonawandas are looking forward to a busy summer. They will perform in a special concert at St. Peter's Evangelical Church, Genesee and Hickory, this evening at 8.

At 4 next Sunday afternoon, they will present a musical tribute to Father's Day in St. Paul's Church on Niagara Falls Blvd. A concert on Sunday evening, June 29, will be sponsored by the Boy Scouts of the Grace Methodist Church of Tonawanda. On Tuesday evening, July 15, the Community Choristers will perform at North Tonawanda High School in a special concert with the Angelus Singers from Orlando, (Fla.). This is a group of young women who are enrolled at the Fred Waring Workshop.

The large plum for the Tonawanda youngsters will be a return visit to Chautauqua Institute, where they will deliver a full-length concert on Sunday afternoon, August 24.

ACTIVE DIRECTOR — Mrs. W. Ivan Wilder, as director of the Children's Community Chorus, is as active throughout the winter as in the summer with her young charges.

Residing in Florida, she serves as Lake District president of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs, a vice-president and music chairman of Sorosis, and province president of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional national music fraternity. This demands steady visiting [illegible] least 12 universities and colleges in Mississippi, Louisiana, and Georgia, as well as Florida.

BERKSHIRE OPERA—Boris Goldovsky, opera director at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, has announced his plans for the summer. His major production will be Rossini's "Count Ory," which was commissioned by the Juilliard School to Robert Simon.

B. Goldovsky

There will also be condensed versions of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," parts of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Puccini's "La Rondine."

The performance will take place on three Monday evenings—July 21, July 28 and August 4. This year's program also will benefit from a generous Ford Foundation grant, to be used in developing new scenic materials.

OUT OF TOWN—Richard Fisher of Buffalo is the newly-elected president of the Northern Players. This is an all-university theatre organization of Ohio Northern University at Ada, Ohio.

Fisher is currently a junior, studying business administration.

Three productions are presented each year by the Northern Players, under faculty direction, and a theatre workshop is also conducted in which student direction is applied to experimental productions.

BACH AT ROCHESTER — Rochester has proudly announced a Bach Festival. Joining a select group of communities throughout the world in this venture, Rochester will hold its third annual Bach Festival in Christ Church next Friday and Saturday evenings. Leaders in the movement are the members of the Rochester Oratorio Society, who have performed all of the major choral works of Bach in recent years. Theodore Hollenbach will conduct the Festival, which includes the popular cantatas, "Sleepers Awake," "Christ Lay in the Bonds of Death" and "I Am Full of Heaviness," to be given in the Friday performance.

On Saturday evening, "The Passion According to St. Matthew" will be performed. Saturday afternoon, the Festival has scheduled orchestral works to include the Suite No. 3 in B Minor, the Organ Concerto in D Minor and the Third and Fourth Brandenburg Concerti.

Principals of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra will assist and the soloists will be David Craighead, organ; Shirley McGaugh, soprano; Sylvia PIANO RECITAL—On Tuesday evening at 8, piano pupils of Janet B. Darrin will present a recital in the Kenmore Presbyterian Church. The pupils are Rosalind Zax, Laurie Humphrey, Cynthia Clay, Kathy Koch, Sheila Norman, John Fitts, Joe Thoman, Tom Rimmerman, Susan Schopf, Nancy Smith and Sharon Gruber.

CLEVELAND AT THE DELL — The Cleveland Orchestra, conducted by George Szell, opens a 10-day, six-concert engagement at Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia on June 16. This is a stand-in engagement for the Philadelphia Orchestra while it completes its European tour.

George Szell

Soloists for the Cleveland series are Erica Morini as the violinist for an all-Beethoven program; Guiomar Novaes, the Brazilian pianist, for the Schumann concerto, and Margaret Harshaw as the soprano for an all-Wagner program.

PIANO RECITAL — Piano students of Betty W. Ellis will give an annual recital this Thursday evening at 8 in Livingston Hall of Kleinhans Music Hall. The performers are Kenneth Dean, Susan Hershey, Karen Argy, David and Daniel Carlson, Cathy Anderson, Sharon Mercer, Bonnie McKinney, Michele and Mark Edson, Richmond and Thomas Hubbard, Judith and Carol Gass, Marlene and Joan Killian, Deborah Faux, Karen Good, Kathy and Carol Young, Linda Rawson, Vicki Levitt, Ann Tate, Thomas Neidrauer, Betty Cooper, Deborah [illegible], [illegible]t Hix[illegible], Cheryl J[illegible], Louis Merza[illegible], Bonnie Lally, Rae Marie C[illegible], Marian Ellis and Janice Bowers.

THREE RECITALS — Three recitals by pupils of the Kelver Piano Studio takes place this afternoon at the Southside School of East Aurora. Programs are scheduled for 2, 3, and 4:30.

Guest soloists in the first program will be the East Aurora High School String Quartet under the direction of Eugene Olmstead. The second program will be given over entirely to concertos of Haydn, Rowley and Gershwin. On the third program, the guest soloists will be the Colden Chorus directed by William Miller.

INSTITUTE PROGRAM — The International Institute announces a chamber music concert for Wednesday evening. The following artists will take part: Joseph Fortuna and Julius Kovach, violins; Fred A. Ressel, viola; William Fahlbusch, cello; John De Rose, guitar; Robert W. Mols, flute; and Oswald Rantucci, mandolin.

The program includes Vivaldi's Mandolin Concerto, guitar solos of Villa Lobos, Gomes and Bach, Ibert's "Entr' Acte" and Schubert's Guitar Quartet.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

MAY 12 1958

Offer Tanglewood Scholarships Again To County People

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announced today that the plan of offering scholarships at its Tanglewood summer school, the Berkshire Music Center, to residents of Berkshire County, which was inaugurated last season, will be continued this year.

The scholarships are designed for those who are especially active in the musical life of the area and are in the form of grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund for study at the Music Center in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group.

Recipients of scholarships will have the opportunity of attending Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsals and concerts of the Berkshire Festival, and singing in the Festival Chorus in performances of the Brahms Requiem and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the music director, Charles Munch. They will also be able to attend classes and rehearsals of the Berkshire Music Center student orchestra and chorus, and lectures by noted composers and members of the school faculty.

Qualified applicants for Berkshire County scholarships include school choral and instrumental music supervisors, private music teachers and instrumental and vocal soloists. Applications are to be submitted to the admissions committee of the Berkshire Music Center at Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

MAY 22 1958

SCHOLARSHIPS OPEN TO COUNTY RESIDENTS

Opportunity to Study At Tanglewood Repeated This Year

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces that the plan of offering scholarships at its Tanglewood summer school, the Berkshire Music Center in Lenox, to residents of Berkshire county which was inaugurated last season will be continued this year. The scholarships are designed for those who are especially active in the musical life of the area and are in the form of grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund for study at the Music Center in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group.

Recipients of scholarships will have the opportunity of attending Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsals and concerts of the Berkshire Festival, and sing in the Festival Chorus in Performances of the Brahms Requiem and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with which the Boston Symphony Orchestra under its music director, Charles Munch. They will also be able to attend classes and rehearsals of the Berkshire Music Center student orchestra and chorus and lectures by noted composers and members of the school faculty.

Qualified applicants for Berkshire county scholarships include school choral and instrumental music supervisors, private music teachers and instrumental and vocal soloists. Applications should be submitted to the Admissions Committee of the Berkshire Music Center at Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

DAYTON, OHIO
JOURNAL-HERALD
Circ. D. 93,290 - S. 182,238

MAY 31 1958

Music, Art and Books

Merab Eberle,
Editor

Goldovsky Arranges Operatic Productions

American Symphony Orchestra League To Convene In Nashville, Tenn.

Boris Goldovsky who has built up a large following here as the result of his concert appearances, will be director of the Opera department of Berkshire Music center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this summer.

His major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" with a libretto translated into English by Robert A. Simon.

The opera department will present, too, a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," the second and third acts of Verdi's "La Traviata" and the third act of Puccini's "La Rondine."

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera theater. This program has benefitted from a Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 149,070

MAY 17 1958

Munch Announces Awards, Scholarships at Tanglewood

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Summer school at Tanglewood in Lenox, announces a number of scholarships and prizes availble to its students. Among those offered are: The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear; the Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County [illegible] the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Gertrude Robinson Smith last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former president, Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

The Berkshire Music Center's 16th session will be held at Tanglewood this Summer between June 30 and Aug. 10. Applications for admission and for scholarships are now being received [illegible] at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

[34]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

MAY 24 1958

Ted Shawn's 26th Season Opens July 1 in Berkshires

Ted Shawn, founder-director of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, will open his 26th season in the Ted Shawn Theater, near Lee, Mass., on July 1. The season will run through nine weeks, closing on Aug. 30.

Among those making their debuts this summer at Jacob's Pillow will be the Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company, arriving here after three years of touring Europe, South America, and Asia; Maria Dolores Garcia, Spanish dancer from Brazil; and the Kandyan Dancers from Ceylon. Both Miss Garcia and the Kandyan Dancers will be making their U. S. debuts.

The schedule for the festival: First week, July 1-7: Mia Slavenska and André Eglevsky in classic pas de deux; Pauline Koner and Dance Co., with Lucy Venable, Lola Huth, and Diane Quitzlow in new modern works; and Shrimathi Gina in dances of India.

Second week, July 8-12: Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline in classic pas de deux; Donald Sadler and Co., with Maria Karnilova in "This Property Is Condemned" and the première of "Winesburg, Ohio"; and Lotte Goslar, European dance mime.

Third week, July 15-19: Geoffrey Holder and Co. in dances of Trinidad and the Carribbean; Ram Gopal, Indian dancer; and Sahomi Tachibana in classic dances of Japan.

Fourth week, July 22-26: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Co.

Fifth week, July 29-Aug. 2: The Atlanta Civic Ballet in two modern ballets, "Green Altars" and "Manhattan Towers"; and Mata and Hari, comic mimes.

Sixth week, Aug. 5-9: Nina Novak and George Zorich in classic pas de deux, with Irina Kovalska and Edmund Novak in character ballet; and Myra Kinch and Co. in new modern works.

Seventh week, Aug. 14-16: Irina Borowska and Alan Howard in classic pas de deux; Daniel Nagrin, modern dancer; and Carola Goya and Matteo in ethnic cameos.

Eighth week, Aug. 22-23: Nora Kaye and Erik Bruhn in classic pas de deux; Jean Cébron, modern dancer; and Maria Dolores Garcia, Spanish dancer from Brazil.

Ninth week, Aug. 29-30: Barbara Fallis and Royes Fernandez in classic pas de deux; Myra Kinch and Company, with Ted Shawn as guest star in a new modern work; and the Kandyan Dancers of Ceylon.

Further information may be gained by writing to Jacob's Pillow, Box 87, Lee, Mass.

* * *

Tanglewood Opera Plans

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet"; Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata," and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant, to be used in developing new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN
Circ. S. 222,157

MAR 2 1958

Music Note Soloists Today With S.U. Orchestra

By E. V. W.

Syracuse University School of Music will present the University Symphony, Louis Krasner conductor, in a gonor this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Crouse College. The event will honor the College of Home Economics, Alpha Delta Pi and Iota Alpha Pi. Soloists will be Lanalee Litz, harpist, John Oberbrunner, flutist, and Norma Simmons Newton, soprano. The orchestral program will include William Schuman's "New England Trytptych", (three pieces for Orchestra after William Billings); and the Beethoven Symphony No. 5 in C Minor, Opus 67.

Mrs. Newton will sing the recitative and aria "Dove Sono" from Mozart's opera "The Marriage of Figaro". Miss Litz and Mr. Oberbrunner will perform the Mozart Concerto in C Major K 299.

The University Symphony will give a concert in Proctor auditorium, Utica, Tuesday night. As part of Fine Arts week-end in Syracuse University, the Orchestra will give a concert in Crouse auditorium Sunday, April 20.

MISS LITZ

Following today's concert Mr. and Mrs. Stanton J. Litz, parents of Miss Litz, will give a buffet supper for their daughter in their home, 186 Dorwin Ave. Miss Litz recently signed for a spring tour with the Virginia Symphony William Haaker, directing. She is an alumna of Eastman School of Music, Rochester, and has played in the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood. A member of Civic Morning Musicals, Inc., St. Paul's Epsicopal Church Choir, Miss Litz teaches harp.

The alumnae chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will have its March meeting Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. Ricchard C. Pietrafasa, 542 Wendell Ter. Assisting hostesses: Mrs. Walker Coughlin and Mrs. Nathan Share. Mrs. Daniel K. Adler is president of the Alumnae Chapter. The program will include a book review by Dorothy Hubbard, a piano solo by Barbara Micale and a one piano (four hands) number by Dorothy Downing and Shirley Ransom.

Active members of Sigma Alpha Iota will give a concert in Crouse auditorium Sunday afternoon, March 9.

This date in music, 1824, Bedrich Smetana, Czech composer, born in Bohemia, 1907, first American performance of Debussy's "La Mer" by the Boston Symphony.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass. in the six weeks June 30-Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Dr. Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, is a training school for young musicians, offering concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the Orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, Brazilian conductor, will be in charge of the Orchestral Division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the Chamber Music Division.

Hugh Ross again will head the Choral Department and Aaron Copland the Department of Composition. The Music Center's Opera Department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Coldovsky. The Tanglewood Study Group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher and the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman of the Faculty; Ralph Berkowitz, Dean, and Leonard Burkat, Administrator.

Paul Fromm, President of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music "Tanglewood." The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

NEW YORK, N. Y. TIMES

MAR 14 1958

LENOX AUDITIONS DUE

Musicians to Bid Next Week for Entry to Berkshire Unit

Instrumental auditions for admission to the summer session of the Berkshire Music Center will be ~~held Wednesday, Friday~~ and Saturday of next week in the Chapter Room of Carnegie Hall.

The Berkshire Music Center is the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. It will be open from June 30 to Aug. 10 concurrently with the orchestra's Berkshire Festival.

Students accepted in the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra are eligible for tuition grants from the Tanglewood Scholarship Revolving Fund and for certain prize awards.

Further information may be obtained from the registrar of the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

MONITOR 5/24/58

Tanglewood Opera Plans

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet"; Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata," and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant, to be used in developing new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Knoxville Journal · May 23

Berkshire Center's Plans Announced

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has announced his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

Its major production will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. It was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater, and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center.

The Opera Department will present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata," and Act III of "La Rondine," by Puccini.

Opera performances are scheduled for three Mondays, July 21, July 28, and August 4, in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 p. m.

Support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theater.

The program received a Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing new scenic materials, a program started by Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Tanglewood Season To Open June 30

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox Mass., during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, is a training school for young musicians, offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

The school, which was founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will offer this season five departments of study. In the department of instrumental music, Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor will be in charge of the orchestral division, and Richard Burgin and William Kroll, joint heads of the chamber music division. Hugh Ross will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition. The Music Center's opera department will be active this season in the training of singers under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky, and the Tanglewood study group, providing musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and the amateur, will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, Ralph Berkowitz, dean, and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. The Fromm program, which will be presented for the second year, will be part of the composition department and will be under the supervision of Aaron Copland.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 45,854

FEB 23 1958

CHICAGO, ILL.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 524,823 - S. 706,407

JUN 6 1958

ROGER DETTMER

Enrique Jorda, San Francisco Symphony conductor since 1954, has been re-engaged for five more seasons there . . . Minas Christian, director of the Evansville (Ind.) Symphony, will conduct Aug. 29 at the French Lick Music Festival . . . Easley Blackwood, 25-year-old Indianapolis composer whose Symphony No. 1 will be recorded by the Boston Symphony under the Koussevitzky Fund [illegible] joins the University of Chicago faculty next fall as teacher of theory and composition . . . Rossini's "Le Comte Ory" will be the summer's featured student opera at Tanglewood in the Massachusetts Berkshires.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,496

FEB 26 1958

Brazilian Conductor For Tanglewood

Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor, will head the orchestra division of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Center. Sessions will be held from June 30 to Aug. 10 at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The center is a training school for young musicians founded in 1940 on the initiative of the late Serge Koussevitzky. It will be under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony.

[35]

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 106,047

MAR 2 1958

Music

Kroll Quartet to Play Concert at Art Museum

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

For the considerable number of chamber music devotees in this area, it is pleasant anticipation that the Kroll Quartet will play the annual free Sunday afternoon Thomas Hovey Gage Memorial Concert at the Art Museum on March 30.

The program is highly attractive from a combination of standpoints.

Representing the classic school will be Haydn's String Quartet in B flat major, Opus 76, No. 4, "Sunrise."

In the romantic department, Schubert's String Quartet in D minor, Posth., "Death and the Maiden."

Bela Bartok's String Quartet No. 2 in A minor, Opus 17 will be the modern work.

This distinguished group of string players has been in almost continuous association for the better part of 20 years. The personnel: William Kroll, violin; Louis Graeler, violin; David Mankovitz, viola; and Anton Twerdowsky, cello.

Starting as the Coolidge Quartet, they inaugurated the famous chamber music concerts at the Library of Congress, under the patronage of Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. In 1945, they took the name of their leader and began broadening their activities.

The Krolls' summer activities regularly include appearances at the Coolidge Memorial Concerts of South Mountain in Pittsfield, and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood.

Which brings us to that extraordinary summer institution of musical learning, the Berkshire Music Center.

The Boston Symphony announces the 16th season of the Center at Tanglewood (Lenox) during six weeks from June 30 to Aug. 10. It will again be headed by Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, and will offer young musicians from several continents a concentrated experience in ensemble performance. The faculty will include 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

There will again be five departments.

The orchestral division will be under the charge of Eleazar de Carvalho; chamber music, Richard Burgin and William Kroll; choral department, Hugh Ross; composition, Aaron Copland; opera, Boris Goldovsky.

In addition, there will be a Tanglewood Study Group, directed by Ludwig Zirner. Its function will be to provide musical activity and experience for the teacher, the advanced student and amateur.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood. Presented for the second year, the Fromm project will be part of the composition department.

Elaborate plans, almost without precedent, are being made for summer music festivals in many parts of the world.

The most impressive is the 12th annual Edinburgh Festival which will feature six symphony orchestras, two opera companies, and such soloists as Yehudi Menuhin, Irmgard Seefried, and Caludio Arrau. The dates, Aug. 24 to Sept. 13.

The orchestras will be the Vienna Symphony, Royal Danish, Spanish National, Philarmonia, Royal Opera House of Covent Garden, and Scottish National.

Bruno Walter, William Steinberg, and Irwin Hoffman will conduct the orchestra at the Vancouver (British Columbia) Festival, July 19 through Aug. 16.

One of the main attractions will be the first North American appearance of the National Dancers of Ceylon. They have rarely performed for Western audiences. These Kandyan dancers will appear for one week.

The Shakespearean Festival will run for four weeks from July 22 to Aug. 16. Folk music will be added this year, performed by such as Marais and Miranda, and Richard Dyer-Bennet. They also promise five "rip-snortin," jazz concerts with many of the same personalities who will appear at the Newport Jazz Festival, July 3-6.

Tomorrow night marks the opening of a one week engagement at the Shubert Theater in Boston of the American Ballet Theater. Two Worcester favorites are in the cast — Nora Kaye and John Kriza. Others are Erik Bruhn, Lupe Serrano, Scott Douglast, and Michael Lland.

Opening fare is "Theme and Variations," "The Combat," "Pas de Deux" from "Black Swan," and "Offenbach in the Underworld." Subsequent programs:

Tuesday night—"Paean," "Fall River Legend," and "Offenbach."

Wednesday night—"Les Sylphides," "Pillar of Fire," "Pas de Deux from "Don Quixote," and "Rodeo."

Thursday night—"Giselle" (two acts), and "Fancy Free."

Friday night—"Theme and Variations," "Caprichos," "Pas de Deux" from "Paquita," and "Les Patineurs."

Saturday matinee—"Les Sylphides," "Billy the Kid," and "Les Patineurs."

Saturday night — "Paeon." "Winter's Eve," and "Graduation Ball."

The company is presented by Aaron Richmond on the Boston University Celebrity Series.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

FEB 25 1958

Boston Symphony to Sponsor Music Center

The Berkshire Music Center, a training school for young musicians under the sponsorship of the Boston Sypmhony Orchestra, will be held at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this summer from June 30 to Aug. 10.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH heads the school which offers a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians.

Founded by the orchestra in 1940 on the initiative of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, the school will offer five departments of study this summer.

Eleazar de Carvalho, Brazilian conductor, will be in charge of the orchestral division; Richard Burgin and William Kroll will be joint heads of the Chamber music division.

* * *

HUGH ROSS will head the choral department and Aaron Copland the department of composition. The center's opera department will be under the leadership of Boris Goldovsky and the Tanglewood Study Group will be directed by Ludwig Zirner.

Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty; Ralph Berkowitz, dean; and Leonard Burkat, administrator.

Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will sponsor a program for the study of contemporary music at Tanglewood for the second year. This will be a part of the composition department.

MILLERTON, N. Y.
NE[illegible]-REPUBLICAN
Circ. W. 3,617

MAY 29 1958

Berkshire Music Center Opera Plans Announced

Boris Goldovsky, Director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet", Acts. II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and August 4) in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
DAILY FREEMAN

[illegible] 1958

Music Center Opera Plans Are Announced

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet, Acts II and IV of Verdi's La Traviata and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini.

Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and August 4) in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

OBSCURED TEXT

N.Y. post 6/8/58

Berkshire Opera Department To Sing Rossini's 'Count Ory'

The major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center, sponsored by the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. Other plans include a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," the second and fourth acts of Verdi's "La Traviata," and the third act of Pucci's "La Rondine."

Opera performances will take place on three Monday nights, July 21, 28 and Aug. 4.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

MAY 27 1958

Opera Scheduled at Tanglewood

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Acts III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater.

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 52,742

MAY 25 1958

Goldovsky Announces Opera Plans for Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, May 24—Boris Boldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, has announced his plans for the coming Summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood.

The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts 3 and 4 of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act [illegible] "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center opera department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

MAR 14 1958

Berkshire-Class Auditions Set

Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will hold auditions next week at Carnegie Hall for instrumentalists who wish to join this summer's orchestral and chamber music classes at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pianists and harpists will be heard Wednesday, March 19, from 6 to 7 p. m., and tympanists and other percussionists at 1:15 p. m. Saturday, March 22. Auditions for players of stringed and wind instruments will be held 1 to 4 p. m. Friday, March 21, in the hall's Chapter Room.

Musicians planning to attend the auditions are requested to notify the registrar of the Berkshire Music Center, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. Accepted applicants are eligible for tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

MAY 25 1958

OBSCURED TEXT

Berkshire Garden Club's Plant Sale to Be in Dalton

Girls' Club to Benefit From Annual Event at Home Of Mrs. Frederick G. Crane

Special to The Republican

Berkshire Hills, May 24—Plans are completed for the annual May plant sale sponsored by Berkshire Garden Club of Pittsfield which will be held Tuesday of next week, from 10 a. m. to 4.30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Crane, Model Farm, Dalton. The sale will be held rain or shine and will be for benefit of the basic foundation planting of Pittsfield Girls' Club.

The chairman of the sale is Mrs. Alexander Euston, and Mrs. Arthur E. Crane is chairman ex-officio. Assisting Mrs. Euston with arrangements are Mrs. David Donald of Richmond, Mrs. Gilbert D. Kittredge of Dalton, Mrs. Robert L. Gibson, Mrs. Thurlow H. Pelton and Mrs. Howard Seyffer of Pittsfield.

A variety of plants will be sold including ageratum, alyssum, celosia, cleome, cuphea, cynoglossum, dianthus lobelia, petunias, verbena, and zinnias. Also potted plants such as geraniums, chrysanthemums and begonias.

Boston Symphony Appointment

Boston Symphony Orchestra announces that during the coming summer the office of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be headed by Miss Margo Miller of Pittsfield. Miss Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller, was first affiliated with the Orchestra at Tanglewood in 1954 when she was assistant in the press office. In the succeeding three summers she was assistant in the Friends office, and in each of the four years was secretary for the Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit. In 1956, Miss Miller accompanied the Boston Symphony Orchestra on its European tour as correspondent for the Berkshire Eagle.

A graduate of Miss Hall's School in 1953 and Vassar College in 1957, Miss Miller recently returned from a winter in Paris where she studied oboe with Gaston Longatte, professor of oboe at Versailles Conservatory, English horn in the Concerts Colonne, and solfege with Maurice Speyer, the brother of Louis Speyer, English horn, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Miller will assume her duties as head of the Friends office June 1. Friends of Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend performances by students of Boston Symphony's summer school at Tanglewood during its sixteenth season between June 30 and August 10. Programs are presented by students of orchestra, chorus, student composition and chamber music.

Contributions may be sent to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

MAY 25 1958

MARGO MILLER NEW FRIENDS OFFICE HEAD

Boston, May 24—The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces that during the coming summer the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be headed by Miss Margo Miller of Pittsfield. Miss Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller, was first affiliated with the orchestra at Tanglewood in 1954 when she was assistant in the press office.

In the succeeding three summers she was assistant in the Friends office, and in each of the four years was secretary for the Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit. In 1956, Miss Miller accompanied the Boston Symphony on its European tour as correspondent for the Berkshire Eagle.

She has just returned from a winter in Paris where she studied oboe with Gaston Longatte, professor of oboe at the Versailles Conservatory and English horn in the Concerts Colonne, and solfege with Maurice Speyer, brother of Louis Speyer, English horn of the Boston Symphony. Miss Miller will assume her duties as head of the Friends office on June 1.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

FEB 23 1958

BERKSHIRE POST FOR DE CARVALHO

Music Center's Orchestral Division to Be Headed by Brazilian Conductor

Eleazar de Carvalho, the Brazilian conductor, will head the orchestral division of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Center. Sessions will be held from June 30 to Aug. 10 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The center is a training school for young musicians founded in 1940 on the initiative of the late Serge Koussevitzky. It will be under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony.

For the second consecutive year the center's offerings will include a program for the study of contemporary music. Sponsored by Paul Fromm, president of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, it will be directed by Aaron Copland, who also is chairman of the faculty.

Mr. Copland also will be chief of the composition department. Boris Goldovsky again will head the opera department and Hugh Ross will be in charge of the choral department. Richard Burgin and William Kroll will be joint leaders of the chamber-music department.

The Tanglewood Study Group for teachers, advanced students and amateurs will be directed by Ludwig Zirner. The instrumental faculty also includes twenty-two members of the Boston Symphony.

Ralph Berkowitz is dean of the Berkshire Music Center and Leonard Burkat is administrator. Further information may be obtained by writing to Symphony Hall, Huntington and Massachusetts Avenues, Boston.

OBSCURED TEXT

B. Globe — June 28 '58

Fromm Foundation Sponsors Study At Tanglewood

For the second year, the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Husic Center in Tanglewood, Lenox.

The program will again be supervised by the sctaff of the composition department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland.

A seminar in contemporary music, six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3:15 p.m., will be devoted to eight American composers: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick, July 4; Roger Sescsions, July 11; Elliott Sarfer, and Milton Dabbitt presented by Babbitt, July 18; Marc Blitzstein, July 25; Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Foss, Aug. 1, and Aaron Copland presented Aug. 8.

Three [illegible] Wednesday afternoons at 3:15, entitled "New Aspects," will feature new music from Europe, South America and the United States.

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,969

JUN 22 1958

Study of Modern Music Slated at Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 21—For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm, president, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox. The program will again be supervised by the staff of the Composition Department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers.

The seminar in contemporary music, a series of six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3:15, will this season be devoted to eight American composers. An unusual feature of these lectures is that the composers themselves will in most cases discuss their own music.

The discussions will be followed by performances of music by Fromm Fellowship players and the schedule of lectures includes: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick (July 4); Roger Sessions, presented by Roger Sessions (July 11); Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt presented by Milton Babbitt (July 18); Marc Blitzstein presented by Marc Blitzstein (July 25); Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Lukas Foss (August 1); and Aaron Copland presented by Aaron Copland (August 8).

A series of three lectures on Wednesday afternoons at 3:15 will feature new music from Europe, presented by Milton Babbitt (July 23); New Music from South America, presented by Aaron Copland (July 30); New Music in the Uuited States, presented by Lukas Foss (August 6). Musical illustrations will again be supplied by the Fromm Fellows.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUN 25 1958

New Music To Be Studied At Tanglewood

For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm, president, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox. The program will again be supervised by the staff of the composition department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers.

The Seminar in Contemporary Music, a series of six lectures, will this season be devoted to eight American composers. An unusual feature of these lectures is that the composers themselves will in most cases discuss their own music. The discussions will be followed by performances of music by Fromm Fellowship players and the schedule of lectures includes: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick (July 4); Roger Sessions, presented by Roger Sessions (July 11); Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt presented by Milton Babbitt (July 18); Marc Blitzstein presented by Marc Blitzstein (July 25); Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Lukas Foss (August 1); and Aaron Copland presented by Aaron Copland (August 8).

A series of three lectures on Wednesday afternoons entitled new aspects will feature new music from Europe, presented by Milton Babbitt (July 23); new music from South America, presented by Aaron Copland (July 30); new music in the United States," presented by Lukas Foss (August 6). Musical illustrations will again be supplied by the Fromm Fellows.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,207

JUN 25 1958

Music Seminar At Tanglewood

For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm, president, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood at Lenox, Mass.

The program will again be supervised by the staff of the Composition Department of the school under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers.

The seminar in contemporary music, a series of six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3.15 p. m. will this season be devoted to eight American composers.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 24 1958

Fromm Fund Again Benefits Tanglewood Music Students

TANGLEWOOD — For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm, president, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. The program will again be supervised by the staff of the composition department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers. The work in contemporary music at Tanglewood is undertaken by the Fromm Foundation in furtherance of its aims which are stated by Mr. Fromm as follows: "Wishing to bring the living flow of musical creation closer to the public, the Foundation aims to return initiative to the composer to strengthen this most vital source of a healthy musical culture — composition."

Composer Lectures

The Seminar in Contemporary Music, a series of six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3:15, will this season be devoted to eight American composers. An unusual feature of these lectures is that the composers themselves will in most cases discuss their own music. The discussions will be followed by performances of music by Fromm Fellowship players and the schedule of lectures includes: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick (July 4); Roger Sessions, presented by Roger Sessions (July 11); Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt, presented by Milton Babbitt (July 18); Marc Blitzstein, presented by Marc Blitzstein (July 25); Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Lukas Foss (Aug. 1); and Aaron Copland, presented by Aaron Copland (Aug. 8).

Forums

A series of three lectures on Wednesday afternoons at 3:15 entitled "New Aspects" will feature "New Music from Europe," presented by Milton Babbitt (July 23); "New Music from South America," presented by Aaron Copland (July 30); "New Music in the United States," presented by Lukas Foss (Aug. 6). Musical illustrations will again be supplied by the Fromm Fellows.

The Fromm Fellows are a group of young professional musicians whose special interests and skills have earned them the Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships for study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. They will be heard, assisted by students from other Berkshire Music Center divisions, in the Seminar on Contemporary Music series, the Aspects of New Music series and the Composers' Forums (on Sunday evening at 8:30 — July 13, 20, 27 and Aug. 3).

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend both series of lectures as well as the concert on July 14.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUL 3 1958

Music Lecture Series Start at Tanglewood

The first in the series of lectures in the Seminar in Contemporary Music at Tanglewood will take place tomorrow at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall. John Kirkpatrick will speak on the music of Charles Ives and the musical program will include six songs, Emerson from the Concord Sonata, and the String Quartet No. 2, all performed by holders of Fromm Fellowships at the Berkshire Music Center.

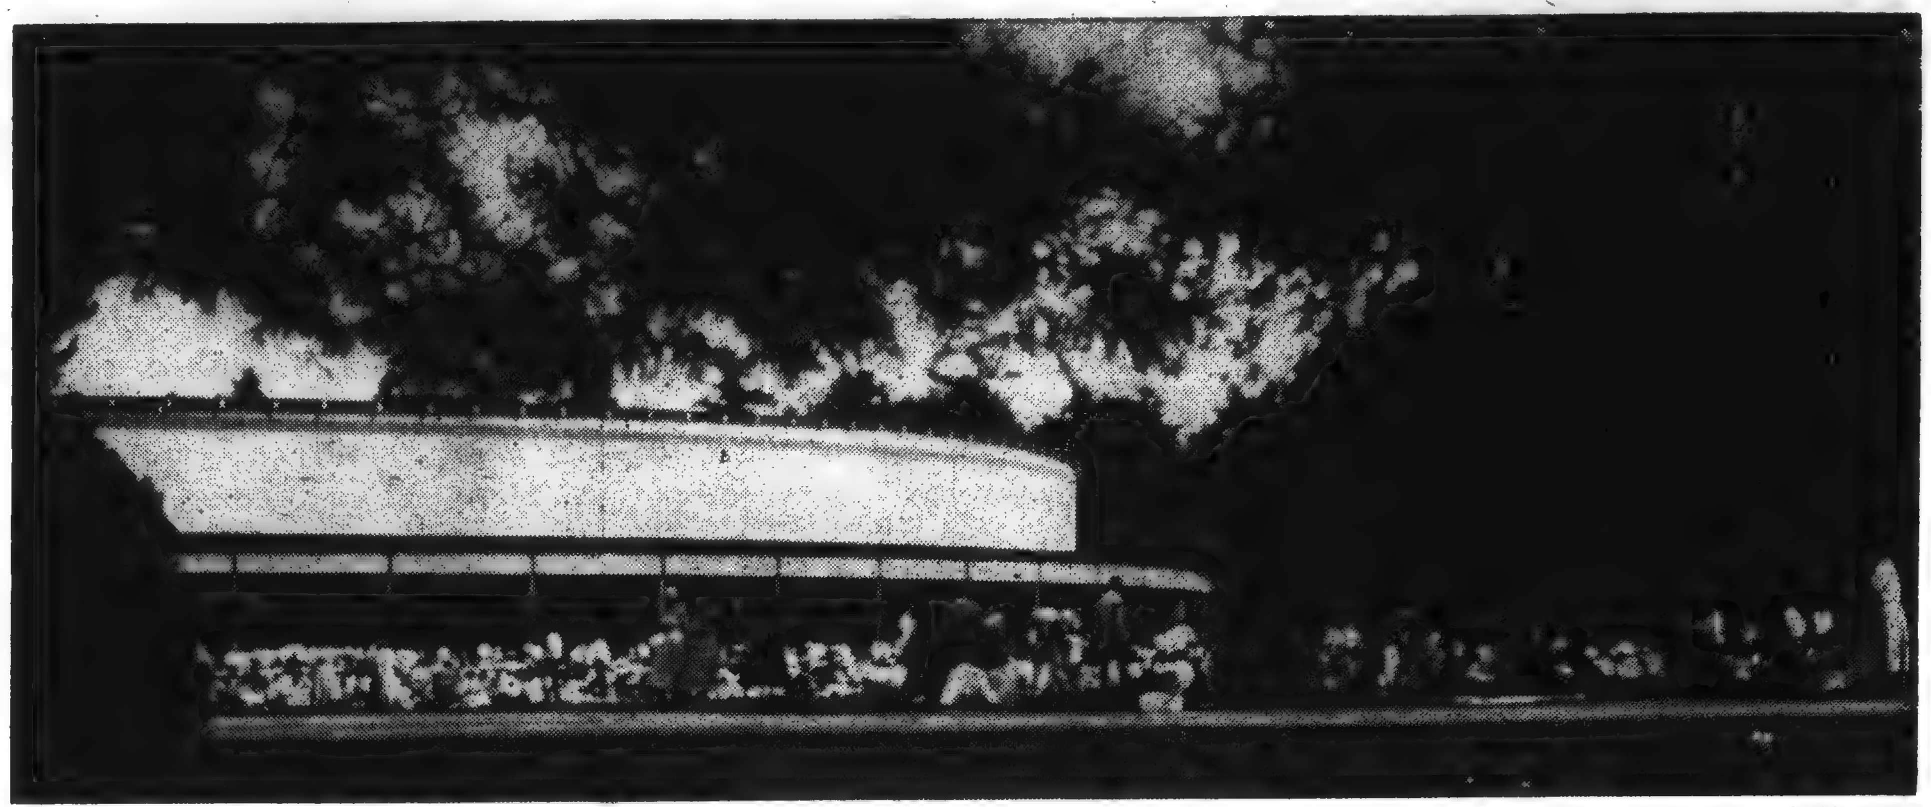

Photo for SummerTime by Hemming

Last year Americans spent more money on concerts than on professional baseball games. Tanglewood, above, is one reason!

Music with an Outdoor Beat

By ROY HEMMING

Time: A sunny summer afternoon.

Place: A vast, gently rolling lawn overlooking a lake—just off a country road in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts.

Cast: Thousands of families dressed in colorful sports clothes. Some sit on folding chairs under giant, shady trees. Others relax on blankets spread over the lawn.

Everyone's attention is turned toward a large, open shed. On its stage is the world-famous Boston Symphony Orchestra.

This is Tanglewood—home of America's best-known summer music festival. Each weekend as many as 20,000 music-lovers come to Tanglewood for its outdoor concerts. That's five times the audience that can hear an indoor concert at New York's great Carnegie Hall.

Summer music festivals are also held in other places—Aspen (Colorado), Interlochen (Michigan), Philadelphia, Chicago, to name a few. In 1955 there were 77 different festivals. This summer there are more than 150 from coast to coast! Some offer symphonies and operas. Some also present jazz and popular music.

These festivals are not just for listening. Amateur musicians come to study, too. At Tanglewood, for example, they can study with such famous musicians as Leonard Bernstein and Aaron Copland.

One Tanglewood student expressed it this way: "Once in a while a robin or blue jay may try to join in a duet with a flute or violin. The bird's part was never written into the score by Mozart or Haydn—but then they never knew the wonders of music-making at Tanglewood!"

Hemming

Leonard Bernstein greets a group of admirers at stage door after concert he led.

Boston Symphony

Tanglewood music director Charles Munch gives downbeat for concert to start.

Hemming

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux bows from Tanglewood podium to shouts of "Bravo!" Concertmaster Richard Burgin stands to left.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

JUN 26 1958

Fromm Foundation Sponsors Tanglewood Program Again

Six Contemporary Musicians To Explain Their Own Compositions

For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm president, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The program will again be supervised by the staff of the Composition Department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers. The work in contemporary music at Tanglewood is undertaken by the Fromm Foundation in furtherance of its aims which are stated by Mr. Fromm as follows:

"Wishing to bring the living flow of musical creation closer to the public, the Foundation aims to return initiative to the composer to strengthen this most vital source of a healthy musical culture composition."

The Seminar in Contemporary Music, a series of six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3:15 p.m., will this season be devoted to eight American composers. An unusual feature of these lectures is that the composers themselves will in most cases discuss their own music. The discussions will be followed by performances of music by Fromm Fellowship players and the schedule of lectures includes: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick (July 4); Roger Sessions, presented by Roger Sessions (July 11); Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt presented by Milton Babbitt (July 18); Marc Blitzstein presented by Marc Blitzstein (July 25); Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Lukas Foss (August 1); and Aaron Copland presented by Aaron Copland (August 8).

A series of three lectures on Wednesday afternoons at 3:15 entitled New Aspects will feature New Music from Europe, presented by Milton Babbitt (July 23); New Music from South America, presented by Aaron Copland (July 30); New Music in the United States, presented by Lukas Foss (August 6). Musical illustrations will again be supplied by the Fromm Fellows.

Continued on Page Three 4

Continued from Page One

The Fromm Fellows are a group of young professional musicians whose special interests and skills have earned them the Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships for study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. They will be heard, assisted by students from other Berkshire Music Center divisions, in the Seminar on Contemporary Music series, the Aspects of New Music series and the Composers' Forums (on Sunday evenings at 8:30 — July 13, 20, 27 and August 3).

The Composers' Forums are devoted to performances of works by students of composition at the School. Fromm Fellows include Peter Marsh and Theodora Mantz, violin; Scott Nickrenz, viola; Donald McColl, cello; Gerardo Levy, flute; Hubert Resnick, oboe; Efrain Guigui, clarinet; Richard Lottridge, bassoon; Paul Ingraham, horn; Robert Miller, piano and Corinne Corry, soprano.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend both series of lectures as well as the concert on July 14th.

Rustic barn serves as rehearsal hall for student chorus at Tanglewood festival.

National Music Camps

Time for practice—and sunburn too.

National Music Camps

Summer breezes pick up melodies of string trio playing for fun in tree-shaded, field-stone alcove. Passers-by often stop to listen.

Boston Symphony

Time for lessons—Young oboe student gets helpful pointers from an oboist of the Boston Symphony.

Hemming

Piano star of tomorrow? Hours of patient practice and hard work, summer and winter, will tell.

Hemming

Boys and girls from nearby summer camps come to Tanglewood on Saturdays for picnics and to enjoy music of the masters.

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

JUN 21 1958

Fromm Music Program At Tanglewood

For the second year the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm President, will sponsor an extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts. The program will again be supervised by the staff of the Composition Department of the school, under the direction of Aaron Copland, and will benefit both composers and performers. The work in contemporary music at Tanglewood is undertaken by the Fromm Foundation in furtherance of its aims which are stated by Mr. Fromm as follows: "Wishing to bring the living flow of musical creation closer to the public, the Foundation aims to return initiative to the composer to strengthem this most vital source of a healthy culture composition."

The Seminar in Contemporary Music, a series of six lectures on Friday afternoons at 3:15 p.m., will this season be devoted to eight American composers. An unusual feature of these lectures is that the composers themselves will in most cases discuss their own music. The discussions will be followed by performances of music by Fromm Fellowship players and the schedule of lectures includes: Charles Ives, presented by John Kirkpatrick (July 4); Roger Sessions, presented by Roger Sessions (July 11); Elliott Carter and Milton Babbitt presented by Milton Babbitt (July 18); Marc Blitzstein presented by Marc Blitzstein (July 25); Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss, presented by Lukas Foss (August 1); and Aaron Copland presented by Aaron Copland (August 8).

A series of three lectures on Wednesday afternoons at 3:15 entitled New Aspects will feature New Music from Europe, presented by Milton Babbitt (July 23); New Music from South America, presented by Aaron Copland (July 30); New Music in the United States, presented by Lukas Foss (August 6). Musical illustrations will again be supplied by the Fromm Fellows.

The Fromm Fellows are a group of young professional musicians whose special interests and skills have earned them the Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships for study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. They will be heard, assisted by students from other Berkshire Music Center divisions, in the Seminar on Contemporary Music series, the Aspects of New Music series and the Composers' Forums (on Sunday evenings at 8:30 - July 13, 20, 27 and August 3). The Composer's Forums are devoted to performances of works by students of composition at the School. Fromm Fellows include Peter Marsh and Theodora Mantz, violin; Scott Nickrenz, viola; Donald McColl, cello; Gerardo Levy, flute; Hubert Resnick, oboe; Efrain Guigui, clarinet; Richard Lottridge, bassoon; Paul Ingraham, horn; Robert Miller, piano and Corinne Corry, soprano.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend both series of lectures as well as the concert on July 14.

[59]

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUN 29 1958

Straw Hats On Parade

DOUBLE-HEADER . . . Patricia Frye and Robert Morris have major roles in "The Midnight Caller." Together with "John Turner Davis," it will be presented Tuesday night at Sheridan Sq. Playhouse in Greenwich Village.

Canada

STRATFORD, Ont., Shakespearean Festival, "Much Ado About Nothing," June 29.

Connecticut

STRATFORD, American Shakespeare Festival, "Midsummer's Night Dream," July 1.

WALLINGFORD, Oakdale Musical Theatre, "The King and I," June 30.

WESTPORT, Westport Country Playhouse, "Tonight at 8:30," June 30.

Massachusetts

LEE, The Ted Shawn Theatre, Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, July 2.

LENOX, Tanglewood, Bach-Mozart Concerts, July 4.

New Jersey

FORT LEE, North Jersey Playhouse, "The Boy Friend," June 29.

HADDONFIELD, Camden County Music Fair, "Happy Hunting," June 29.

MILLBURN, Paper Mill Playhouse, "Damn Yankees," July 1.

SPRING LAKE, Ivy Tower Playhouse, "Visit to a Small Planet," June 30.

New York

ATLANTIC BEACH, L. I., Capri Theatre, "Holiday for Lovers," July 1.

BINGHAMTON, Southern Tier Playhouse, "House on the Rocks," June 30.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., John Drew Theatre, "Kind Sir," June 29.

FLUSHING, L. I., Flushing Meadows Amphitheatre, Aquacircus, June 29.

JONES BEACH, L. I. Marine Theatre, "Song of Norway," June 29.

LONG BEACH, L. I., Long Beach Playhouse, "No Time for Sergeants," July 1.

MONTICELLO, Forestburgh Summer Theatre, "Candida," July 3.

NORTHPORT, L. I., Red Barn Theatre, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," June 29.

RYE, Rye Music Theatre, "Die Fledermaus," July 1.

WESTBURY, L. I., Westbury Music Fair, "Damn Yankees," July 1.

New Hampshire

LECONIA-GILFORD, Lakes Region Playhouse, "A Hole in the Head." June 30.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sentinel (e)
FITCHBURG, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 16,607

JUL 12 1958

subdivision controls,

Summer Activities In This Area

Fitchburg Public Library

Summer has finally come to Fitchburg. Many of us are making last minute preparations for that very special vacation, enjoying weekends at our summer camps, or just puttering around in our gardens keeping cool and relaxing.

To those of you who will not leave Fitchburg, the summer may loom ahead as long and dull. But it need not be so. We in the reference department have done some scouting and much to our surprise have come up with an itinerary of events that will capture everyone's interest.

Without traveling far from home you can see summer stock at its best. The Whalom Playhouse has completed three productions and on Monday and through the week will star Faye Emerson in "Tonight at 8.30." The plays scheduled for the following weeks are all excellent selections and the acting, as already evidenced, leaves nothing to be desired.

A distance away, but never to be overlooked, is the ever-popular Tanglewood. The drive to Lenox is an easy one and music lovers will enjoy anyone of the many concerts which are currently being given under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Tanglewood will [illegible] until August 10th and although several of the concerts are free, it would be best to make reservations in advance.

The Sharon Arts Center's exhibitions for the summer months will attract not only art lovers, but also camera bugs. Scheduled along with the painting exhibits is a photography exhibit.

For flower lover, the Worcester County Horticultural Society in Worcester has scheduled several exhibitions of flowers, plus displays of fruits and vegetables. There are also special exhibitions planned for children.

During the summer the hour's drive to Boston will fly by, especially when you are on your way to the Esplanade Concerts at the Hatch Memorial Shell on Storrow Drive. The second series of evening concerts which being at 8.30 will run from Monday, Aug. 11 through Aug. 16. The third and final children's concerts will be held Wednesday morning, Aug. 13 from 10.15-11.15.

The Amos Fortune Forum which is held in the Old Meeting House in Jaffrey, New Hampshire every Friday evening at 8 until Aug. 22 has scheduled many widely known speakers on subjects of public interest and importance. There is no admission charge.

For Sunday or easy weekday trips there is much to see and do around the Fitchburg area. The Museum of Antique Autos at Princeton, Mass, will provide fun and interest for both young and old with its dated cars, bicycles and music instruments. The Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, N. H., is noted the world over and its beauty should not be missed. Church services are held every Sunday morning in the Cathedral. For the children, the drive to Hudson, N. H. to see the animals at Benson's Animal Farm will be a thrilling experience.

For history lovers, the old farm called Fruitlands located in Harvard will prove interesting in its historical significance.

Band concerts which are held Wednesday evenings in Ashby, Thrusday evenings in Townsend and Sunday afternoons at Coggshall Park in Fitchburg will appeal to both young and old.

These are only a few of the many events being held this summer. We in the reference room have for your convenience and information, a file of scheduled programs filling in all the necessary details concerning tickets, dates, time, prices, reservations, etc. A telephone call or visit in person will give you the information you desire.

The reference room of the Fitchburg Public Library is open Tuesday through Friday from 9 to 9 and Saturdays from 9 to 5. During July and August the library is closed all day on Mondays.

DAYTON, OHIO
NEWS
Circ. D. 154,532 - S. 182,238

JUN 29 1958

BIOGRAPHY REVEALING

Verdi's 'Failure' Spurs His Career

By BETTY A. DIETZ, Daily News Music Editor

PERHAPS, as Mischa Elman is quoted elsewhere on this page in Delos Smith's discussion of the pros and cons of music contests, such competitions give false impressions. Music has no champions, Violinist Elman told the graduating class of a music school in Philadelphia.

A "contest" of a different sort colored the entire life of Giuseppi Verdi, Italy's greatest and most exciting operatic composer.

GIUSEPPI VERDI

Vincent Sheehan, whose "Orpheus at Eighty" is a rare and revealing biography, written with love and comprehension, admits there have been worse tragedies than the decision to refuse to accept Verdi as a student at the Milan conservatory. But years later when the conservatory wanted to call itself by Verdi's name, it was his turn to refuse: "They wouldn't have me young and they can't have me old."

Already past the age of admission to the conservatory, the 18-year-old Verdi wanted to study piano and composition there. But, as Sheehan says, most of the boys were leaving the school at the time Verdi wanted to enter. As a result, he was given an examination on the ground of "extraordinary merit."

Verdi's failure was determined by the piano teachers who ruled that he held his hands wrong and used an incorrect technique, all this at an age when it would be too late to correct. As Sheehan points out, these would be grievous shortcomings in a pianist but Verdi actually wanted to get into the conservatory to learn to compose.

The decision was a serious blow to young Verdi's pride. Once the prodigy of the town of Busseto, he threw himself into private study and worked sometimes 14, sometimes 16 hours a day for years. It doesn't take much of an imagination to realize that this so-called tragedy may well have been the driving force that pushed Verdi relentlessly and culminated in what has been described as his operatic valedictory, Falstaff.

The Sheehan book, like few others, helps the reader to know Verdi as only a few intimate friends may have known him during his lifetime. It's a Random House publication.

To Festivals We Will Go

SPENDING the summer at home in the United States or do you plan to join the neighbors in Europe? Just toss a coin in the air and it's likely to fall on a musical festival.

The Berkshire festival, for instance, starts Wednesday at Lenox, Mass., and continues through Aug. 10. Conductors of the Boston Symphony this summer will be Pierre Monteux and Charles Munch. Among the novelties scheduled are Rossini's opera, Count Ary, and music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Major choral works will be the Beethoven Ninth and the Bach B Minor Mass.

Later in July—the 23rd, to be exact—the Wagner opera festival begins in Bayreuth with a new staging of Lohengrin by Wieland Wagner. Two complete "Ring" cycles are scheduled—July 27-Aug. 1 and Aug. 13-18.

Even Augsburg, Germany, home of Mozart's father, Leopold, will be the scene of a Mozart concert series and out-door opera season. The Rococo festival hall of Schaezler palace will be the scene of the chamber concerts while the Peasant's court of the Bishop's palace will be used for serenade concerts. The outdoor theater at the Red Gate opens July 20.

Munich, this year celebrating its 800th anniversary, will overflow with music this summer. The Munich opera festival of the Bavarian state opera is slated for Aug. 10 to Sept. 9. The Berlin Philharmonic under the colorful Herbert von Karajan plays in Munich in August as does the London Philharmonia. Unless you fly tonight, however, you'll miss the Philadelphia orchestra performance tomorrow.

For late vacationers the Berlin festival is just right. Running from Sept. 21 through Oct. 7 it will include a premiere of Cherubini's Medea and a new adaptation of Henze's King Stag. Also on the calendar are Mozart's Cosi fan Tutte, Moussorgsky's Boris Godunov, Verdi's Falstaff and Britten's Rape of Lucretia.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 5 1958

MUSIC

BROOKLYN COLLEGE—Walt Whitman Auditorium, Ave. H nr. Nostrand. UL 9-1180. Sat. July 12—8:30 p.m. Benno Moiseiwitsch, pianist. $1.50-$2.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL — Thru Aug. 10 — ~~Tanglewood, Lenox,~~ Mass. Tel. 600. Chamber ~~music concerts~~ Wed. 8:30 p.m. $2 & $3. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Theatre-Concert Hall, tickets $4 & $5. Fri. Sat. 8:30 p.m. Sun. 2:30. (Music Shed, tickets $2.50-$5.50.) Info. on accommodations from Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Mass. . . . Theatre-Concert Hall. Fri. July 4 — Charles Munch, cond. Bach, Suites No. 1, 2, 3, 4. . . . Sat. July 5—Munch cond. Soloist: Lukas Foss, pianist. Bach, Piano Concerto in D; Art of the Fugue. . . . Sun. July 6—G. Wallace Woodworth, cond. Bach, Mass in B Minor. Wed. July 9—Beaux Arts Trio. . . . All Mozart weekend. Fri. July 11—Charles Munch, cond. Musical Joke K. 522. The Sinfonia Concertante; "Linz" Symphony, No. 36 in C. . . . Sat. July 12—Munch, cond. "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365. Soloists: Seymour Lipkin & Lukas Foss. Serenade No. 10 in B for Winds; Symphony No. 40 in G minor. . . . Sun. July 13—Charles Munch and Hugh Ross, cond. Haffner Symphony; Piano Concerto in C, K. 467. Three choral works conducted by Hugh Ross.

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS—Cont.—Richard Franko Goldman, cond. Free concerts at 8:30. Every Sun. Mon. Wed. & Fri. eves. at Central Park Mall and every Thurs. & Sat. at Prospect Park, B'klyn.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 21 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Music

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony ~~Orchestra~~. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

The Dance

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival—Nine week season at Lee, Mass. Begins July 1.

[39]

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUN 29 1958

Straw Hats On Parade

Canada

STRATFORD, Ont., Shakespearean Festival, "Much Ado About Nothing," June 29.

Connecticut

STRATFORD, American Shakespeare Festival, "Midsummer's Night Dream," July 1.

WALLINGFORD, Oakdale Musical Theatre, "The King and I," June 30.

WESTPORT, Westport Country Playhouse, "Tonight at 8:30," June 30.

Massachusetts

LEE, The Ted Shawn Theatre, Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, July 2.

LENOX, Tanglewood, Bach-Mozart Concerts, July 4.

New Jersey

FORT LEE, North Jersey Playhouse, "The Boy Friend," June 29.

HADDONFIELD, Camden County Music Fair, "Happy Hunting," June 29.

MILLBURN, Paper Mill Playhouse, "Damn Yankees," July 1.

DOUBLE-HEADER . . . Patricia Frye and Robert Morris have major roles in "The Midnight Caller." Together with "John Turner Davis," it will be presented Tuesday night at Sheridan Sq. Playhouse in Greenwich Village.

SPRING LAKE, Ivy Tower Playhouse, "Visit to a Small Planet," June 30.

New York

ATLANTIC BEACH, L. I., Capri Theatre, "Holiday for Lovers," July 1.

BINGHAMTON, Southern Tier Playhouse, "House on the Rocks," June 30.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., John Drew Theatre, "Kind Sir," June 29.

FLUSHING, L. I., Flushing Meadows Amphitheatre, Aquacircus, June 29.

JONES BEACH, L. I., Marine Theatre, "Song of Norway," June 29.

LONG BEACH, L. I., Long Beach Playhouse, "No Time for Sergeants," July 1.

MONTICELLO, Forestburgh Summer Theatre, "Candida," July 3.

NORTHPORT, L. I., Red Barn Theatre, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," June 29.

RYE, Rye Music Theatre, "Die Fledermaus," July 1.

WESTBURY, L. I., Westbury Music Fair, "Damn Yankees," July 1.

New Hampshire

LECONIA-GILFORD, Lakes Region Playhouse, "A Hole in the Head." June 30.

DAYTON, OHIO
NEWS
Circ. D. 154,532 - S. 182,238

JUN 29 1958

BIOGRAPHY REVEALING

Verdi's 'Failure' Spurs His Career

By BETTY A. DIETZ, Daily News Music Editor

PERHAPS, as Mischa Elman is quoted elsewhere on this page in Delos Smith's discussion of the pros and cons of music contests, such competitions give false impressions. Music has no champions, Violinist Elman told the graduating class of a music school in Philadelphia.

A "contest" of a different sort colored the entire life of Giuseppi Verdi, Italy's greatest and most exciting operatic composer.

GIUSEPPI VERDI

Vincent Sheehan, whose "Orpheus at Eighty" is a rare and revealing biography, written with love and comprehension, admits there have been worse tragedies than the decision to refuse to accept Verdi as a student at the Milan conservatory. But years later when the conservatory wanted to call itself by Verdi's name, it was his turn to refuse: "They wouldn't have me young and they can't have me old."

Already past the age of admission to the conservatory, the 18-year-old Verdi wanted to study piano and composition there. But, as Sheehan says, most of the boys were leaving the school at the time Verdi wanted to enter. As a result, he was given an examination on the ground of "extraordinary merit."

Verdi's failure was determined by the piano teachers who ruled that he held his hands wrong and used an incorrect technique, all this at an age when it would be too late to correct. As Sheehan points out, these would be grievous shortcomings in a pianist but Verdi actually wanted to get into the conservatory to learn to compose.

The decision was a serious blow to young Verdi's pride. Once the prodigy of the town of Busseto, he threw himself into private study and worked sometimes 14, sometimes 16 hours a day for years. It doesn't take much of an imagination to realize that this so-called tragedy may well have been the driving force that pushed Verdi relentlessly and culminated in what has been described as his operatic valedictory, Falstaff.

The Sheehan book, like few others, helps the reader to know Verdi as only a few intimate friends may have known him during his lifetime. It's a Random House publication.

To Festivals We Will Go

SPENDING the summer at home in the United States or do you plan to join the neighbors in Europe? Just toss a coin in the air and it's likely to fall on a musical festival.

The Berkshire festival, for instance, starts Wednesday at Lenox, Mass., and continues through Aug. 10. Conductors of the Boston Symphony this summer will be Pierre Monteux and Charles Munch. Among the novelties scheduled are Rossini's opera, Count Ary, and music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Major choral works will be the Beethoven Ninth and the Bach B Minor Mass.

Later in July—the 23rd, to be exact—the Wagner opera festival begins in Bayreuth with a new staging of Lohengrin by Wieland Wagner. Two complete "Ring" cycles are scheduled—July 27-Aug. 1 and Aug. 13-18.

Even Augsburg, Germany, home of Mozart's father, Leopold, will be the scene of a Mozart concert series and out-door opera season. The Rococo festival hall of Schaezler palace will be the scene of the chamber concerts while the Peasant's court of the Bishop's palace will be used for serenade concerts. The outdoor theater at the Red Gate opens July 20.

Munich, this year celebrating its 800th anniversary, will overflow with music this summer. The Munich opera festival of the Bavarian state opera is slated for Aug. 10 to Sept. 9. The Berlin Philharmonic under the colorful Herbert von Karajan plays in Munich in August as does the London Philharmonia. Unless you fly tonight, however, you'll miss the Philadelphia orchestra performance tomorrow.

For late vacationers the Berlin festival is just right. Running from Sept. 21 through Oct. 7 it will include a premiere of Cherubini's Medea and a new adaptation of Henze's King Stag. Also on the calendar are Mozart's Cosi fan Tutte, Moussorgsky's Boris Godunov, Verdi's Falstaff and Britten's Rape of Lucretia.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sentinel (e)
FITCHBURG, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 16,607

JUL 12 1958

subdivision controls,

Summer Activities In This Area

Fitchburg Public Library

Summer has finally come to Fitchburg. Many of us are making last minute preparations for that very special vacation, enjoying weekends at our summer camps, or just puttering around in our gardens keeping cool and relaxing.

To those of you who will not leave Fitchburg, the summer may loom ahead as long and dull. But it need not be so. We in the reference department have done some scouting and much to our surprise have come up with an itinerary of events that will capture everyone's interest.

Without traveling far from home you can see summer stock at its best. The Whalom Playhouse has completed three productions and on Monday and through the week will star Faye Emerson in "Tonight at 8.30." The plays scheduled for the following weeks are all excellent selections and the acting, as already evidenced, leaves nothing to be desired.

A distance away, but never to be overlooked, is the ever-popular Tanglewood. The drive to Lenox is an easy one and music lovers will enjoy anyone of the many concerts which are currently being given under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Tanglewood will [illegible] until August 10th and although several of the concerts are free, it would be best to make reservations in advance.

The Sharon Arts Center's exhibitions for the summer months will attract not only art lovers, but also camera bugs. Scheduled along with the painting exhibits is a photography exhibit.

For flower lover, the Worcester County Horticultural Society in Worcester has scheduled several exhibitions of flowers, plus displays of fruits and vegetables. There are also special exhibitions planned for children.

During the summer the hour's drive to Boston will fly by, especially when you are on your way to the Esplanade Concerts at the Hatch Memorial Shell on Storrow Drive. The second series of evening concerts which being at 8.30 will run from Monday, Aug. 11 through Aug. 16. The third and final children's concerts will be held Wednesday morning, Aug. 13 from 10.15-11.15.

The Amos Fortune Forum which is held in the Old Meeting House in Jaffrey, New Hampshire every Friday evening at 8 until Aug. 22 has scheduled many widely known speakers on subjects of public interest and importance. There is no admission charge.

For Sunday or easy weekday trips there is much to see and do around the Fitchburg area. The Museum of Antique Autos at Princeton, Mass, will provide fun and interest for both young and old with its dated cars, bicycles and music instruments. The Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, N. H., is noted the world over and its beauty should not be missed. Church services are held every Sunday morning in the Cathedral. For the children, the drive to Hudson, N. H. to see the animals at Benson's Animal Farm will be a thrilling experience.

For history lovers, the old farm called Fruitlands located in Harvard will prove interesting in its historical significance.

Band concerts which are held Wednesday evenings in Ashby, Thrusday evenings in Townsend and Sunday afternoons at Coggshall Park in Fitchburg will appeal to both young and old.

These are only a few of the many events being held this summer. We in the reference room have for your convenience and information, a file of scheduled programs filling in all the necessary details concerning tickets, dates, time, prices, reservations, etc. A telephone call or visit in person will give you the information you desire.

The reference room of the Fitchburg Public Library is open Tuesday through Friday from 9 to 9 and Saturdays from 9 to 5. During July and August the library is closed all day on Mondays.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 5 1958

MUSIC

BROOKLYN COLLEGE—Walt Whitman Auditorium, Ave. H nr. Nostrand. UL 9-1180. Sat. July 12—8:30 p.m. Benno Moiseiwitsch, pianist. $1.50-$2.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL — Thru Aug. 10 — ~~Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass~~s. Tel. 600. Chamber ~~music concerts~~ Wed. 8:30 p.m. $2 & $3. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Theatre-Concert Hall, tickets $4 & $5. Fri. Sat. 8:30 p.m. Sun. 2:30. (Music Shed, tickets $2.50-$5.50.) Info. on accommodations from Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Mass. . . . Theatre-Concert Hall. Fri. July 4 — Charles Munch, cond. Bach, Suites No. 1, 2, 3, 4. . . . Sat. July 5—Munch cond. Soloist: Lukas Foss, pianist. Bach, Piano Concerto in D; Art of the Fugue. . . . Sun. July 6—G. Wallace Woodworth, cond. Bach, Mass in B Minor. Wed. July 9—Beaux Arts Trio. . . . All Mozart weekend. Fri. July 11—Charles Munch, cond. Musical Joke K. 522; The Sinfonia Concertante; "Linz" Symphony, No. 36 in C. . . . Sat. July 12—Munch, cond. "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365. Soloists: Seymour Lipkin & Lukas Foss. Serenade No. 10 in B for Winds; Symphony No. [illegible] in G minor. . . . Sun. July 13—Charles Munch and Hugh Ross, cond. Haffner Symphony; Piano Concerto in C, K. [illegible]; Three choral works conducted by Hugh Ross.

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS—Cont.—Richard Franko Goldman, cond. Free concerts at 8:30. Every Sun. Mon. Wed. & Fri. eves. at Central Park Mall and every Thurs. & Sat. at Prospect Park, B'klyn.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 21 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Music

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony ~~Orchestra~~. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

The Dance

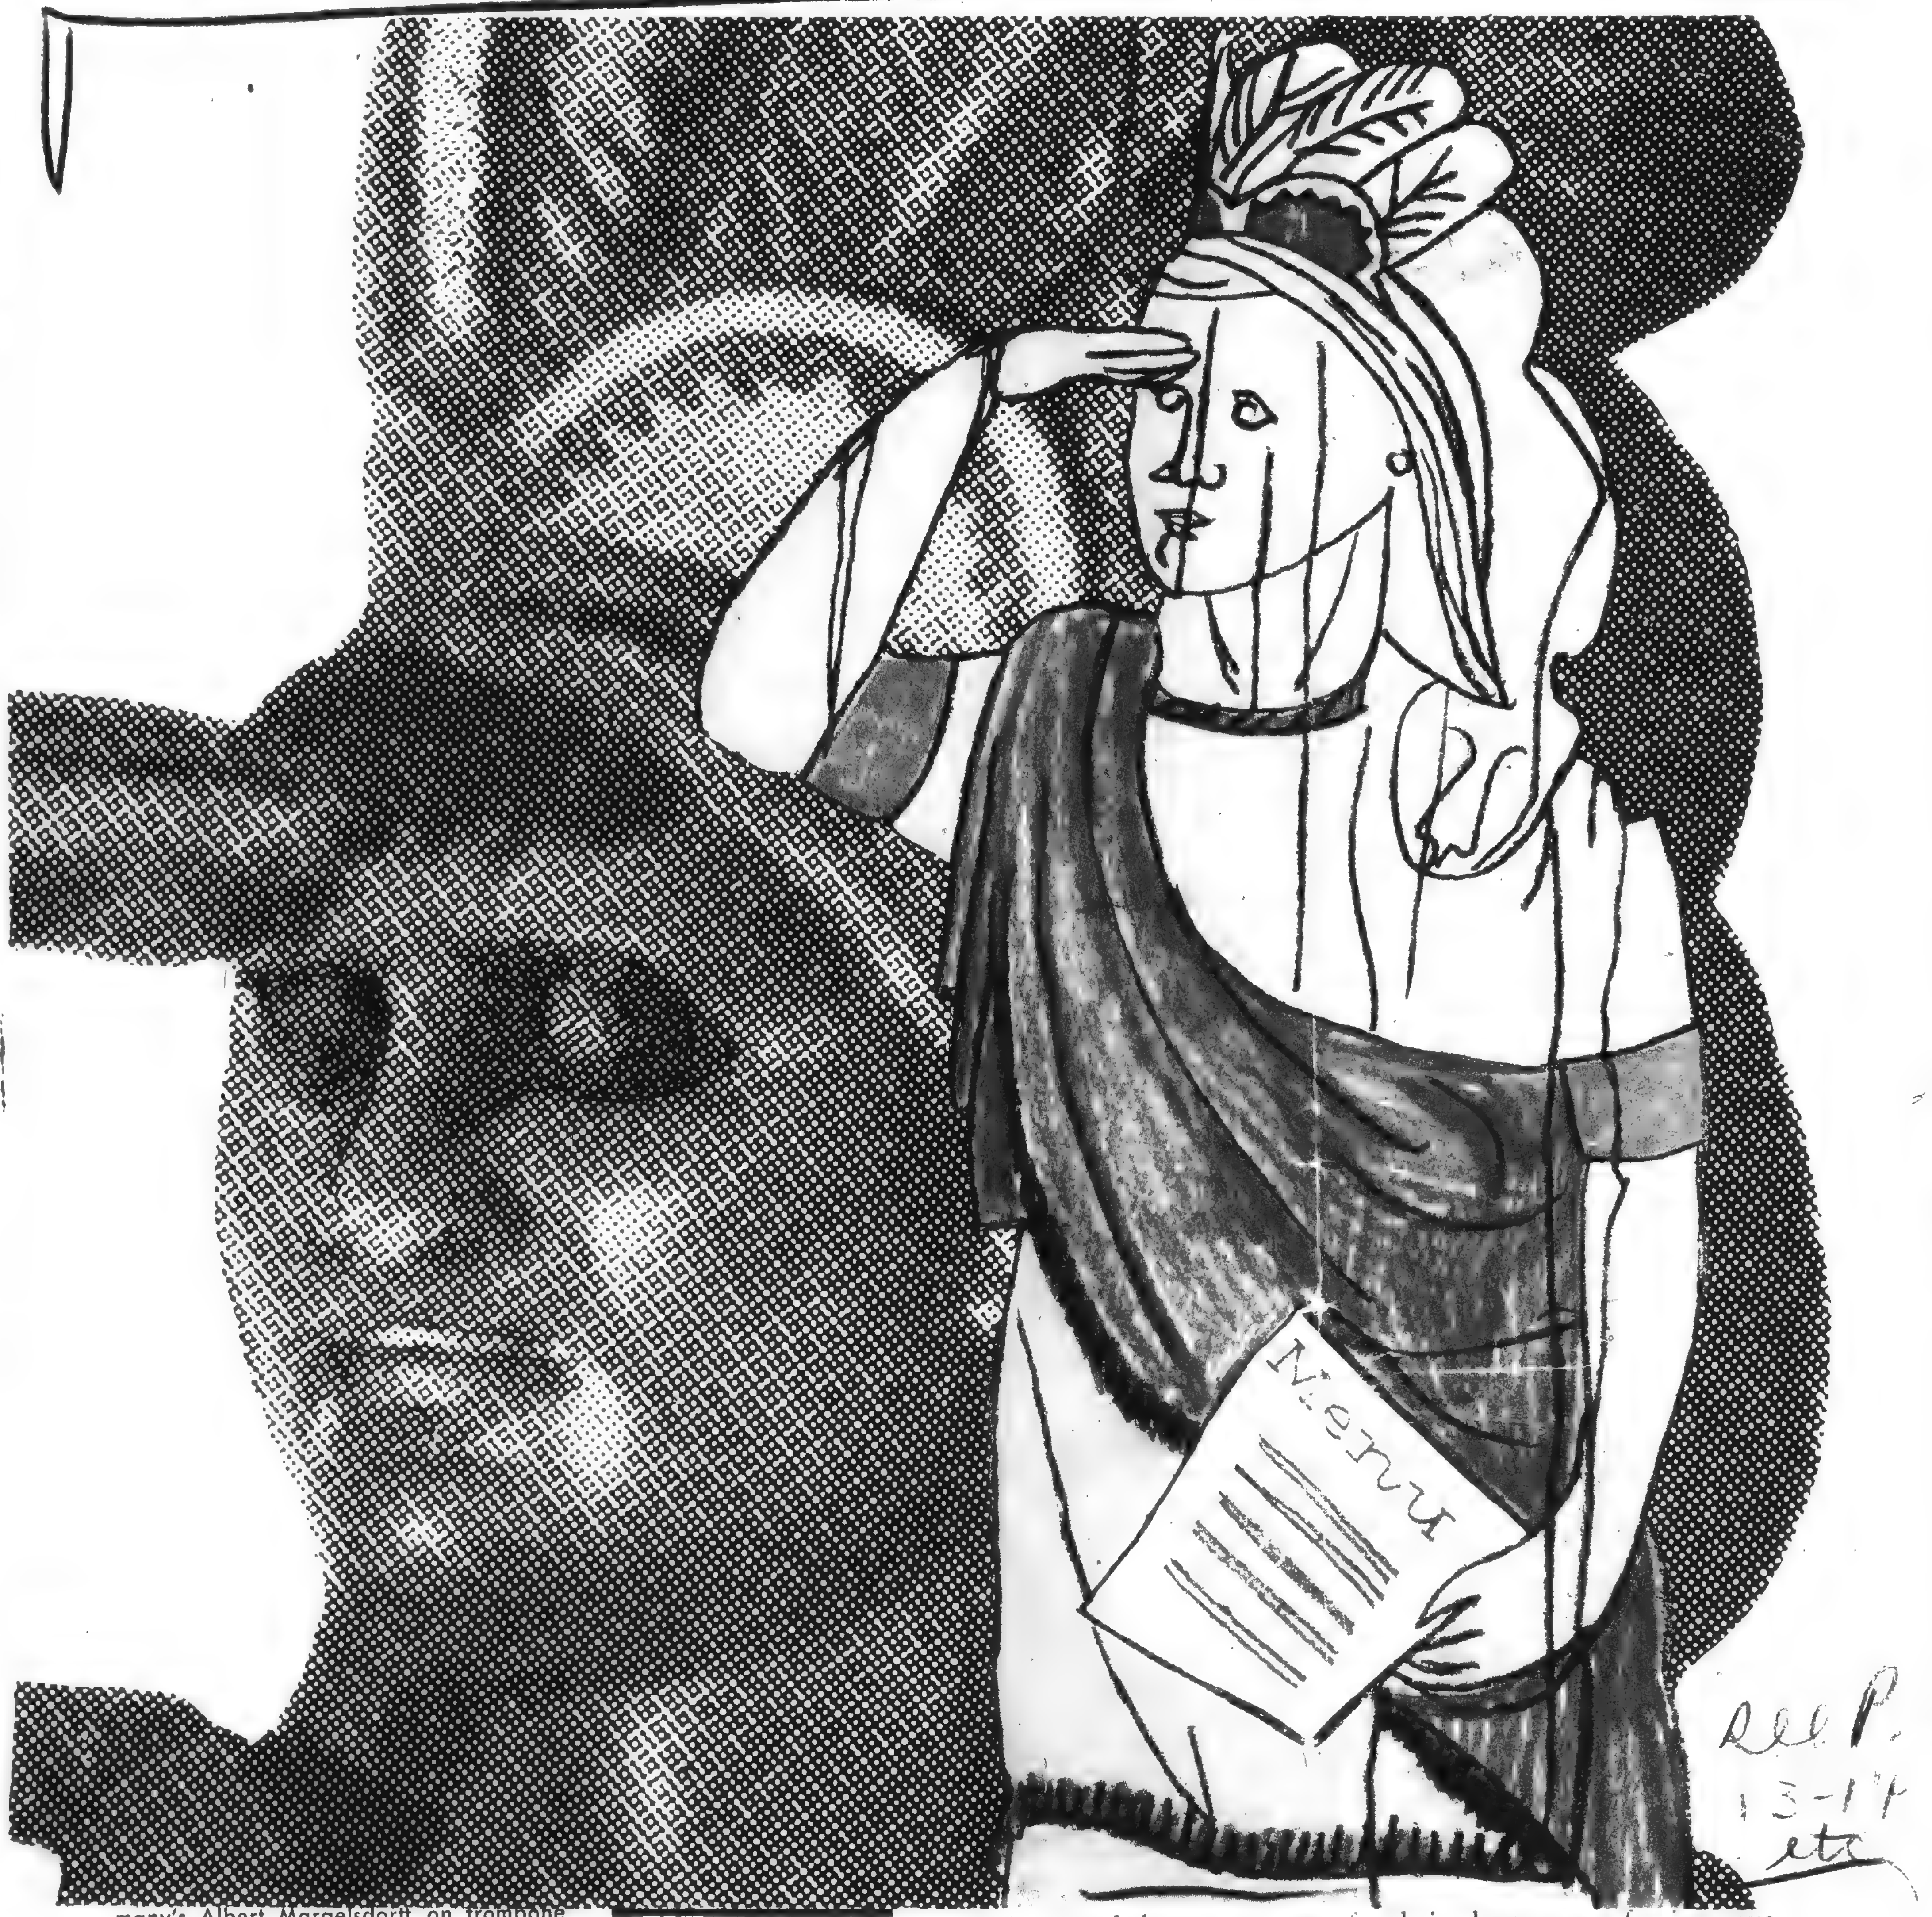
Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival—Nine week season at Lee, Mass. Begins July 1.

[40]

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958



many's Albert Margelsdorff on trombone

See P. 13-14 etc

sions, and there were extra funds in the treasury for improvements. Incidentally, nobody is more aware than the hip Lorillards that jazz is a unique American art form that is "selling" the U. S. to the rest of the world far more effectively than many a more staid program. Indeed, Louis Armstrong (who will be at Newport) is a kind of U. S. ambassador-at-large (with trumpet rather than portfolio).

Incidentally, auto excursionists to Newport are able to enjoy more than jazz. They can visit dozens of historic houses built between 1675 and the early 1800s. Newport is not just a showplace for such elaborate mansions as The Breakers. It is also the seat of some of the most handsome 18th-century houses in the country. (For Newport resort and dining details, see Vadna Dibble's report, beginning p. 14, and for details on the Festival, see Events of the Week, p. 8.)

—CHARLES VIGIL

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

s Are Spreading Coast to Coast

ENTER

ival on Randall's Island on . 22 and 23.

iis wildfire spread of jazz ugh the summer scene is being greeted with come enthusiasm on all sides. s pointed out that a small group costs far less to hire a symphony orchestra and . some summer impresarios, ng advantage of this, are acing concert music with ; because on the one hand osts less and on the other ten draws bigger audiences.

ROMM GROUP: Last year en young musicians known the Fromm Fellowship yers gave a fillip to conporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any e that was given them. s year there will be Fromm yers there again. They will for the six lectures in the temporary Music Series, ch will be devoted to Amer composers; for the three ures in the "New Aspects Music" series and for the nposers' Forums of works tten by composition students the Berkshire Music Center. eter Marsh, Richard Lotlge and Paul Ingraham will the players of last summer will be back. The new s will be Theodora Mantz, tt Nickrenz, Donald McColl, uardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, ain Guigui, Robert Miller Corinne Curry. The comers participating in the series their music will be Roger sions, Milton Babbitt, Marc zstein, Lukas Foss and ron Copland. The series and players are being financed the Fromm Music Foundan of Chicago, which is headed Paul Fromm.

IEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: los Chavez has been apnted to the Charles Eliot rton Professorship at Hard next year. Stravinsky, idemith and Copland have n previous composers who e given the six lectures, ch are the post's chief duty. . Henry Janiec, who has n musical director of the rlotte Opera Association ce 1956, has been named mu director of the Charlotte nphony Orchestra for 1958- ... The Hartford Festival of sic, which will present four certs on the terrace of the inecticut General Life Insure Company building, will e its first concert on Wednes-. Robert Brawley is the contor and musical director of new series.... Leontyne ce, who recently made her ut with the Vienna Opera Aida, will make her debut London's Covent Garden in same role on Wednesday.... iitri Mitropoulos will be conting in Israel for the first ie this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

---

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

---

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

21 to Aug. 11.

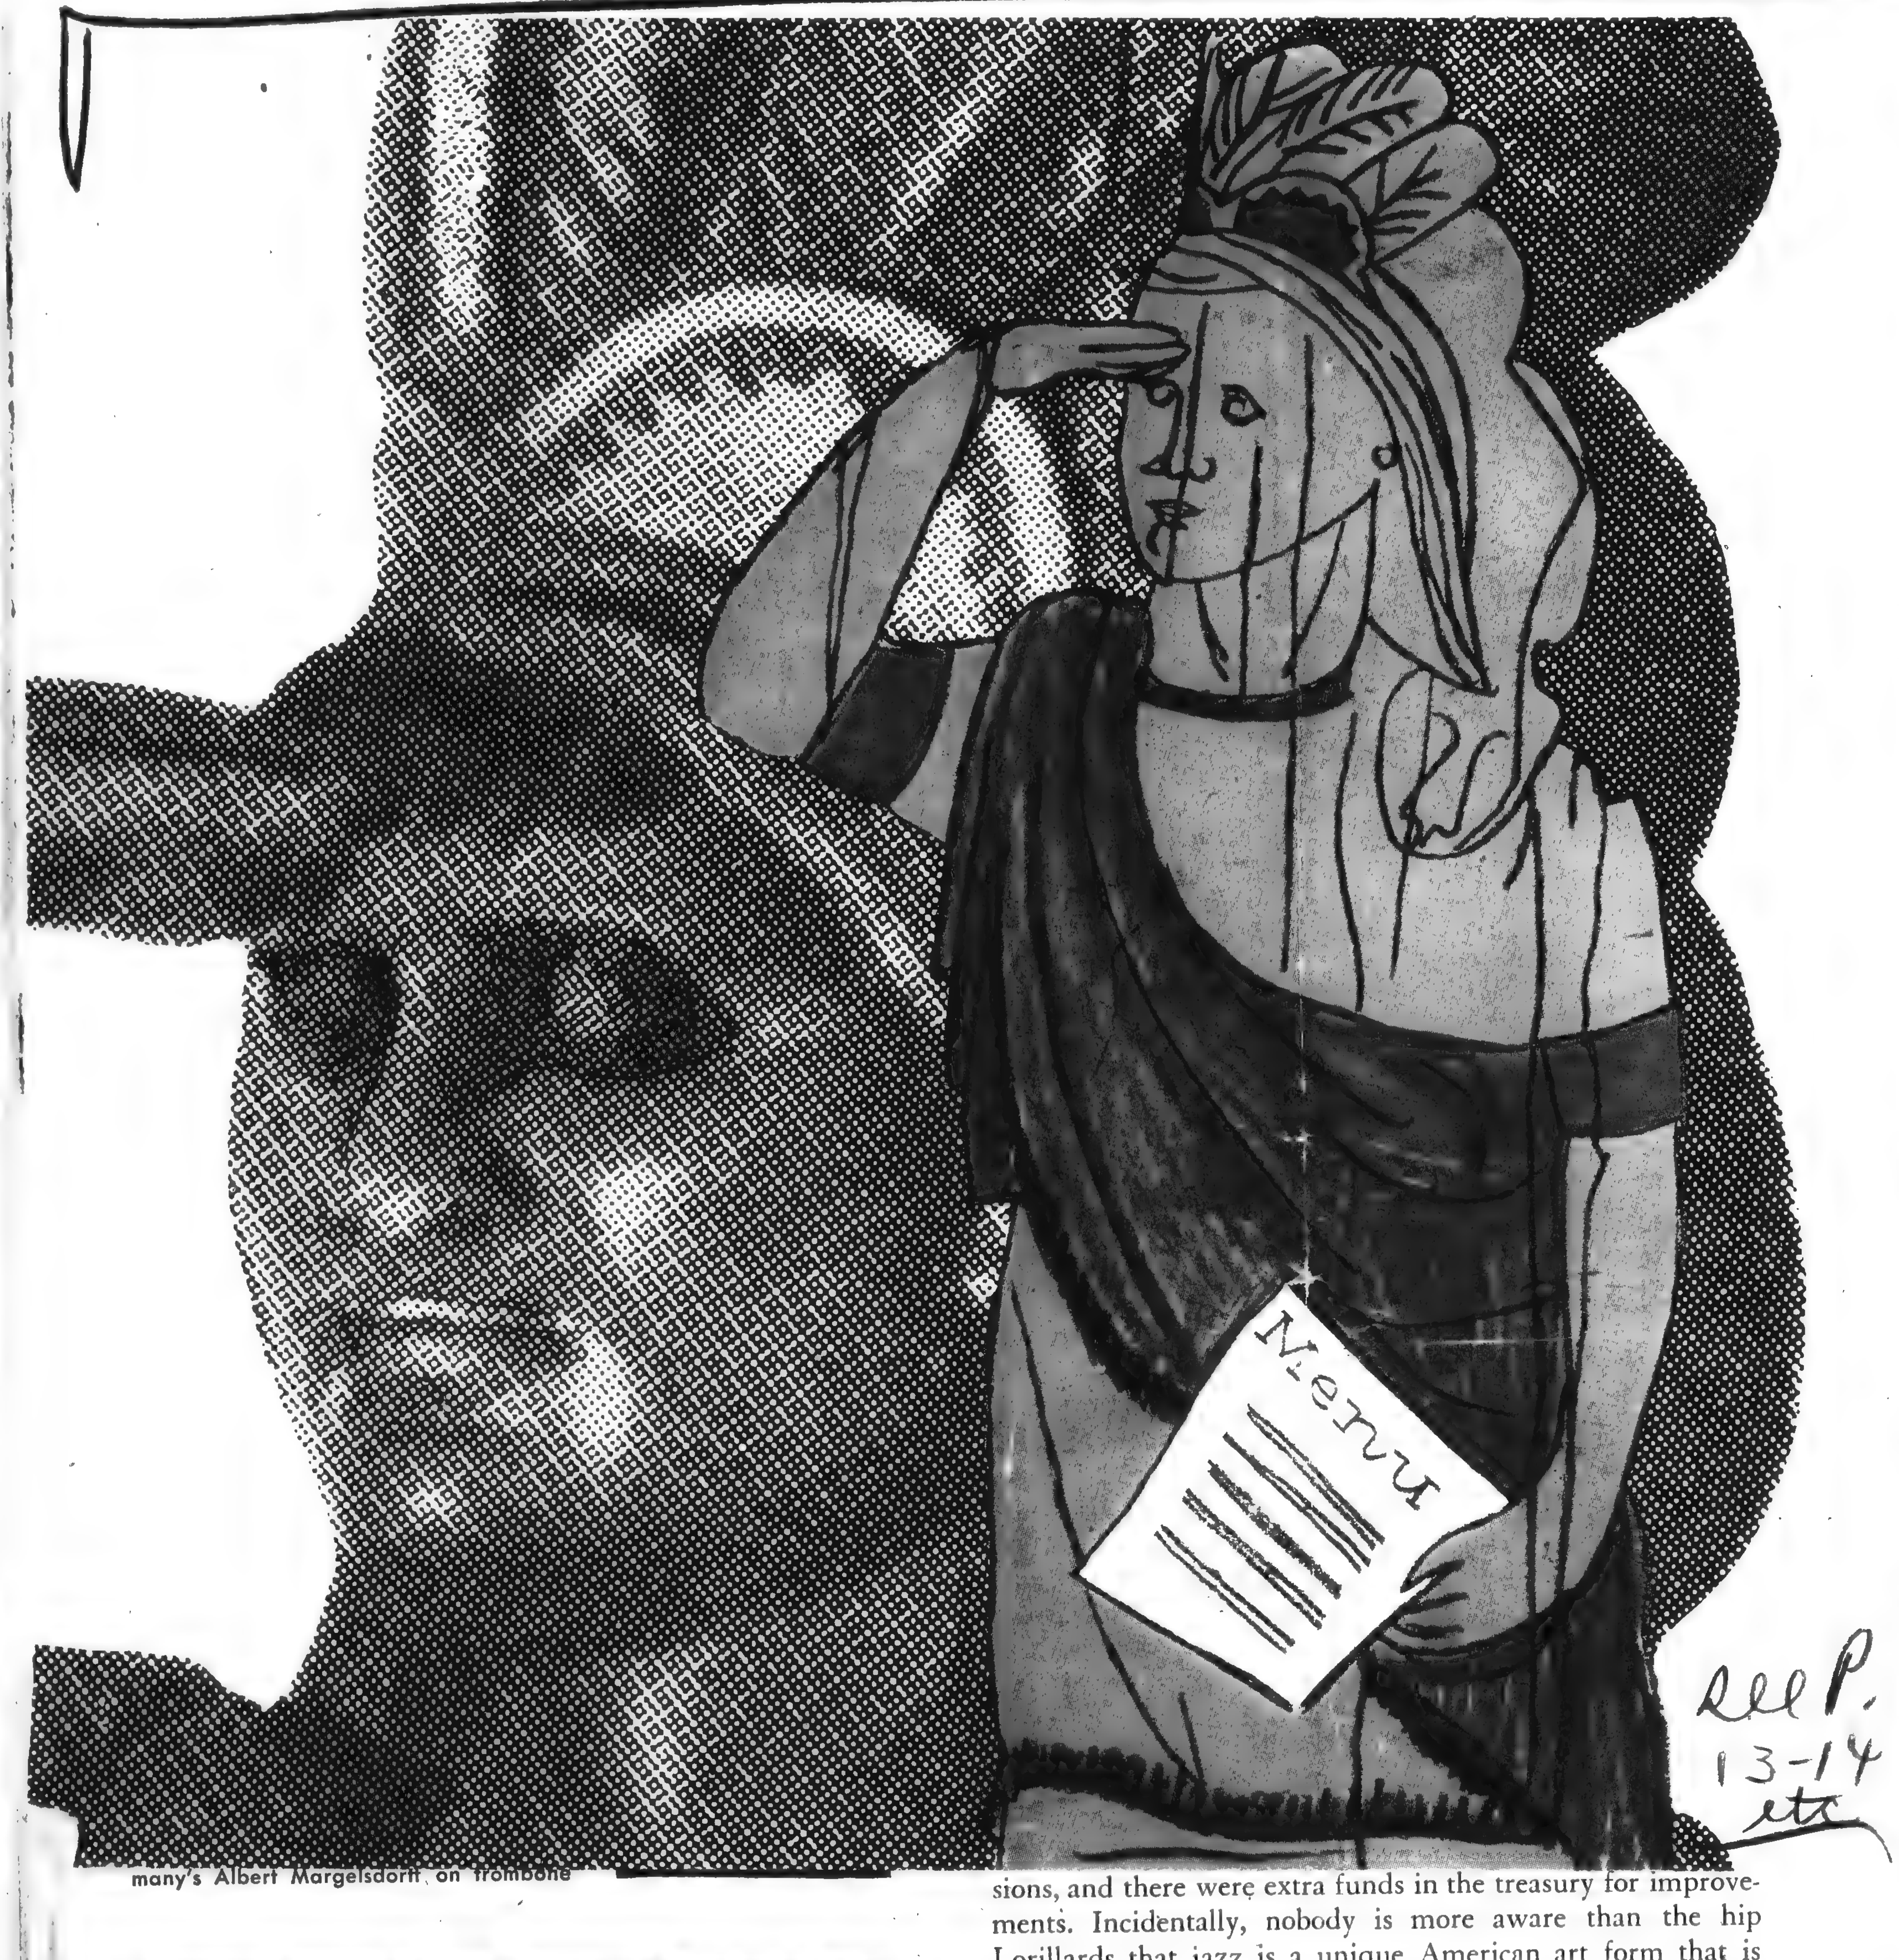
CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

[40]

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958



see P.
13-14 etc

many's Albert Margelsdorff on trombone

sions, and there were extra funds in the treasury for improvements. Incidentally, nobody is more aware than the hip Lorillards that jazz is a unique American art form that is "selling" the U. S. to the rest of the world far more effectively than many a more staid program. Indeed, Louis Armstrong (who will be at Newport) is a kind of U. S. ambassador-at-large (with trumpet rather than portfolio).

Incidentally, auto excursionists to Newport are able to enjoy more than jazz. They can visit dozens of historic houses built between 1675 and the early 1800s. Newport is not just a showplace for such elaborate mansions as The Breakers. It is also the seat of some of the most handsome 18th-century houses in the country. (For Newport resort and dining details, see Vadna Dibble's report, beginning p. 14, and for details on the Festival, see Events of the Week, p. 8.)

—CHARLES VIGIL

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2 9 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

s Are Spreading Coast to Coast

ENT

ival on Randall's Island on 22 and 23.

is wildfire spread of jazz ugh the summer scene is being greeted with com- enthusiasm on all sides. pointed out that a small group costs far less to hire a symphony orchestra and some summer impresarios, ng advantage of this, are acing concert music with because on the one hand osts less and on the other ten draws bigger audiences.

ROMM GROUP: Last year en young musicians known the Fromm Fellowship yers gave a fillip to conporary music at Tangle- d by being able to play any e that was given them. year there will be Fromm yers there again. They will for the six lectures in the temporary Music Series, ch will be devoted to Amer- composers; for the three ures in the "New Aspects Music" series and for the posers' Forums of works ten by composition students he Berkshire Music Center. eter Marsh, Richard Lot- ge and Paul Ingraham will the players of last summer will be back. The new s will be Theodora Mantz, tt Nickrenz, Donald McColl, uardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, ain Guigui, Robert Miller Corinne Curry. The com- ers participating in the series their music will be Roger sions, Milton Babbitt, Marc zstein, Lukas Foss and on Copland. The series and players are being financed the Fromm Music Founda- of Chicago, which is headed Paul Fromm.

[illegible]UAVERS: los Chavez has been ap- [illegible] the Charles Eliot rton [illegible] at Har- d next year. Stravinsky, demith and Copland have n previous composers who e given the six lectures, ch are the post's chief duty. . Henry Janiec, who has n musical director of the rlotte Opera Association e 1956, has been named mu- director of the Charlotte nphony Orchestra for 1958- .. The Hartford Festival of sic, which will present four certs on the terrace of the necticut General Life Insur- e Company building, will e its first concert on Wednes- . Robert Brawley is the con- tor and musical director of new series. . . . Leontyne ce, who recently made her ut with the Vienna Opera Aida, will make her debut London's Covent Garden in same role on Wednesday. . . . itri Mitropoulos will be con- ting in Israel for the first e this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

---

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. [illegible] was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2 1958

THE WORLD OF

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

Host at cricket match introduces his guests to the very driest of gins—his own private import.

Londoners now import Four Roses Gin

It's drier than the driest London-dry, that's why

FOUR ROSES DISTILLERS COMPANY, N. Y. C. DISTILLED LONDON DRY GIN, DISTILLED FROM AMERICAN GRAIN—90.5 PROOF.

SATCHMO Armstrong, U. S. ambassador-at-large, will blow that trumpet at Newport's fifth annual clam-bake. Other stars include Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, and Gerry Mulligan

MAHALIA JACKSON (far right), gospel singer extraordinary and Newport star, chats with lovely Elaine Lorillard, who founded Festival with husband Louis

Newport: Hot and Cool

ANNUAL JAZZ FESTIVAL IN RHODE ISLAND FEATURES AN INTERNATIONAL YOUTH BAND

WORLD's most unique band, consisting of young musicians from 17 countries, will be (we predict) hit of Newport Festival, may later play Brussels World's Fair. Included: Andy Marsala (above), 15-year-old U. S. sax player; Holland's Rudolf Jacobs (right) on bass; (below) Yugoslavian trumpeter Dusko Gujkovic, Germany's Albert Margelsdorff on trombone

AFICIONADOS (at right) happily applaud particularly brilliant, far out solo

1417

PRACTICALLY every celebrated jazz group in the U. S. has been asked to appear at the fifth annual Newport Jazz Festival, July 3-6. There can now be no question of the Festival's success. In the short time of its existence, Newport has grown to represent the greatest single event in the jazz year. In this respect, it ranks with such classical music festivals as Aspen, Colorado; Tanglewood in the Berkshires; Salzburg and Edinburgh in Europe.

The non-profit Festival is, of course, the dream-come-true of young Elaine and Louis Lorillard, of the tobacco family and Newporters of distinction. (Mrs. Lorillard plays quite a jazz piano herself.) They agreed to underwrite any possible losses of the festivals. Fortunately, they haven't had to do that. Last year, more than 50,000 attended the jazz sessions, and there were extra funds in the treasury for improvements. Incidentally, nobody is more aware than the hip Lorillards that jazz is a unique American art form that is "selling" the U. S. to the rest of the world far more effectively than many a more staid program. Indeed, Louis Armstrong (who will be at Newport) is a kind of U. S. ambassador-at-large (with trumpet rather than portfolio).

Incidentally, auto excursionists to Newport are able to enjoy more than jazz. They can visit dozens of historic houses built between 1675 and the early 1800s. Newport is not just a showplace for such elaborate mansions as The Breakers. It is also the seat of some of the most handsome 18th-century houses in the country. (For Newport resort and dining details, see Vadna Dibble's report, beginning p. 14, and for details on the Festival, see Events of the Week, p. 8.)

—CHARLES VIGIL

---

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen

... Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

phonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 14 1958

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF

ALL YEAR ROUND, the magnificent Berkshire mountains, sparkling lakes make an ideal vacation playground

CUES TO

New England Resorts and Dining

NEW ENGLAND OFFERS VACATIONISTS VARIETY, FROM COOL MOUNTAINS TO GLEAMING BEACHES

by Vadna Dibble

Although there are really six states in what is termed New England, I must confine this report to only three — Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts — for that is as far as my rambles could take me this time. Each state has its own particular offering by way of landscape, historic background, fine resorts and restaurants. Traveling by car is a pleasure, for there are many good highways and interesting, as well as picturesque secondary roads. I have chosen some of the highlights that might be interesting in each section, but you will undoubtedly find many more if you take my advice and amble along through the lovely countryside and seashore. For a basic guide, the map on pages 18, 19 should prove helpful for general direction, and if you combine this with the lists of What to Do and See and Where to Stay and Dine, I guarantee you will have a most enjoyable time.

Connecticut

The Nutmeg State is perhaps the most familiar to New Yorkers, for its historic spots and attractive cities, as well as delightful, peaceful villages are easily reached on the many good parkways. Now there is a new link with the upper section, the Connecticut Turnpike that hugs the shore line replacing old Route 1. There are handsome state parks for boating, swimming, fishing, camping, providing a perfect day's outing or a long vacation. The beautiful Taconic mountains and the lovely Litchfield hills in the western part are dotted with picturesque lakes such as Lake Waramaug sparkling like a jewel surrounded by the mountains, the many lakes around Salisbury and Lakeville in the north. In the central section, are lush farms where some of the best tobacco is grown. Sailors and salt water fans find the shore points on Long Island Sound ideal for boating and swimming.

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

Mark down Saturday, July 12, on your calendar as the day to visit historic Litchfield. The elm-shaded town, established in 1720, will open the doors of its lovely 19th century houses to benefit the Junior Republic, one of the first boys' towns in the country. The admission is $2.50.

Sports car addicts may see races at the popular Lime Rock track with the National race of the Sports Car Club of America taking place June 15 and July 5. Races have already started at Thompson Raceway.

Visit New London, August 14 to 17, for the 11th annual American Dance Festival at Connecticut College where fine programs by leading dancers will be given. If you spend some time around here, visit the Allyn Lyman Museum and the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, and don't miss the Seaport and Marine Museum at Mystic, a famous old center for clipper ships and now the haunt of artists.

The Trolley Museum at Branford is open every weekend, and reserve June 26 to July 6 for the annual Barnum Festival in Bridgeport. During August and September there are many fairs with the big Danbury Fair scheduled for September 27 to October 5.

There are innumerable summer theatres—Sharon, Litchfield, Ivoryton and the fabulous American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford opening June 19 with "Hamlet." At Wallingford, the Oakdale Music Circus presents top-notch musicals.

CAPE COD'S 300 miles of coastline is dotted with excellent beaches where vacationers may spend lazy hours sunning and swimming while rugged sportsmen enjoy excellent sailing and fishing

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

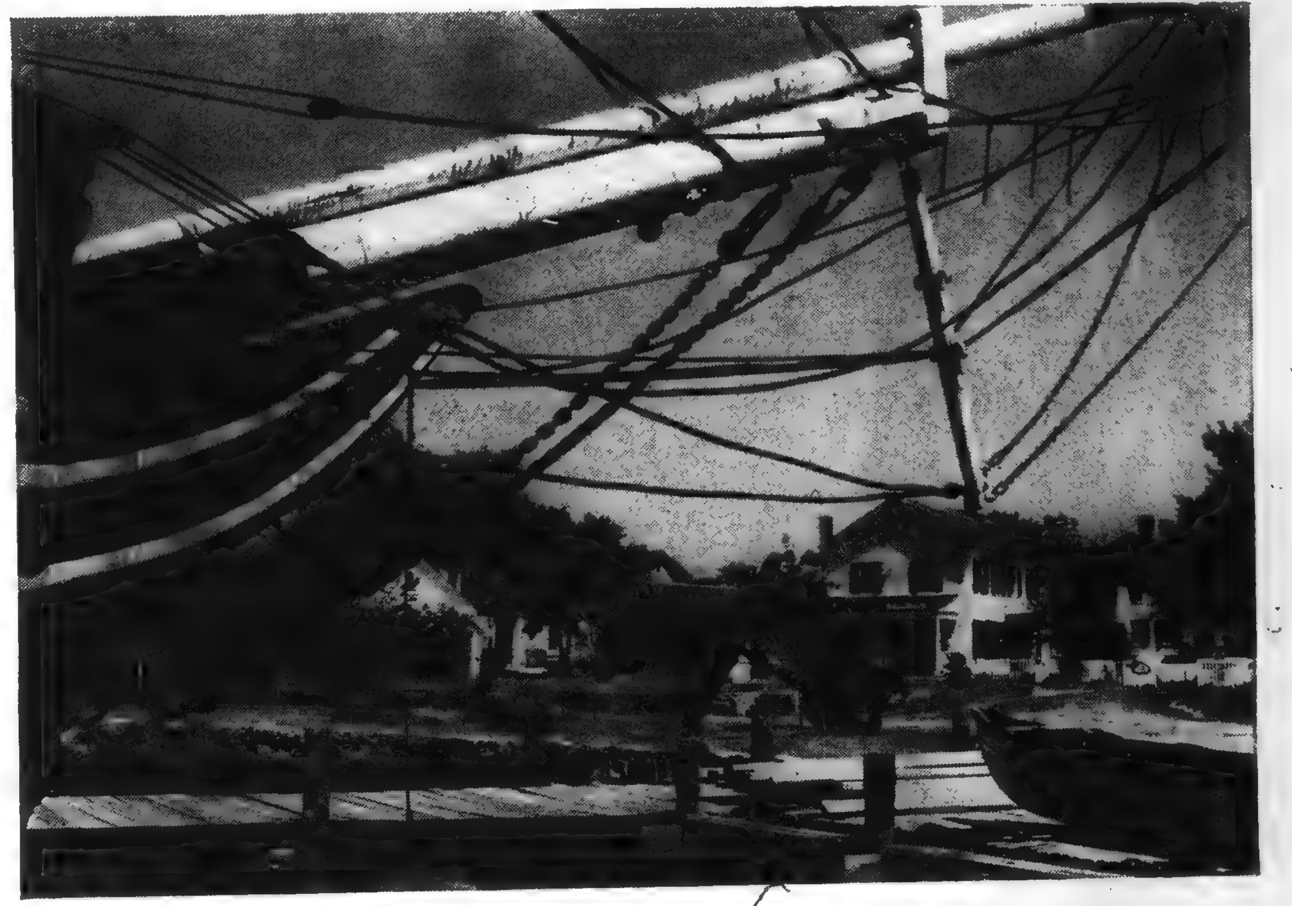
Connecticut Shore

Pickwick Arms—Greenwich (Townsend 9-2100) Post Rd. Diner and traveler alike have found this Tudor-style hotel a fine place for many years. Handsome old leaded glass is used in the heavy doors of the public rooms, the dining room is smartly set, and the airy indoor dining terrace has just been redecorated. Here you'll enjoy American-Continental cuisine with old standbys like lobster thermidor, and other seafood, steaks, chops. Nothing nicer than the dim, cool Meridian Room with deep comfortable chairs for enjoying that preprandial cocktail. Or you might prefer to sit outdoors in the canopied garden with its little pool and lovely flowers. There's dancing every Saturday from 9 p.m., with a cover charge of $1. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $3. Dinner 6 to 8:30 p.m., Sunday from noon, $2.85 to $5. Air conditioned.

Zygmunt's—Greenwich (Townsend 9-9258) 34 E. Putnam Ave. A happy addition to this area for those who like to dine in style. A handsome dining room in brown and blue with smooth white banquettes, all designed by Russell Patterson, is agleam with candlelight at dinner and the bar and cocktail lounge, in dull gold, is softly lit. European dishes spark the American menu with such delicacies as beef Stroganoff, breast of chicken Singapore, schnitzel a la Zygmunt. I found my dinner of excellent quality and further enhanced by pleasant dinner music, especially the Hungarian tunes played on the cimbalon. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.35 to $2.95. Dinner 6 to 10 p.m., Sunday from noon, $3.15 to $5.75. By the way, there's dancing Saturday evening. Air conditioned.

Bob Force's Town House — Greenwich (Townsend 9-3288) 253 Greenwich Ave. For close onto 30 years, this in-town restaurant has been a popular place to dine on some dandy American cooking. The high ceilings of this former bank give a feeling of space, yet the pleasantly air conditioned room has an intimate atmosphere with its red brick walls, hunting prints and old coach lamps. The better to enjoy delicious roast beef and steaks, the Maine lobster. Luncheon 11:30 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $1.80. Dinner 5:30 to 10:30 p.m., $2.35 to $4.75; Sunday 12 to 9 p.m. from $2.50. Snug cocktail lounge, and music in the evening. Closed Mondays.

Joe's C'est Bon—Greenwich (Townsend 9-4403) 35 Church St. It is now ten years since Joe Lovetri won the hearts of diners with his warm welcome and fine steaks. You will find the portions equal to your appetite—for me it's a little more so and I wind up taking home the rest in the paper container Joe provides. There's excellent salad with roquefort dressing, French fried onions and garlic bread to make a bountiful spread. Of course, if steak's not your fancy, the Italian specialties are good. The old Victorian house still has the original quaint rooms that I like, but the pine-paneled larger room is attractive, too, with its huge fireplace and cheery copper lamps. Dinner only, 5 to 11 p.m., Sunday 4 to 9 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.25 to $5. Service bar. Air conditioned.



A DRAMATIC VIEW under the bowsprit of the Charles W. Morgan at Connecticut's Mystic Seaport, recreated 19th century village whose marine museum is world-famous for its nautical collection Chimney Corner Inn—Stamford (2-1624) Long Ridge Rd. Exit 34 from Merritt Pkway. I always like to stop off when I spy the old fashioned horse and sleigh over the driveway for it betokens outstanding food. The old Colonial atmosphere is reflected in the antique furnishings and large fireplaces, in the friendly cocktail lounge where high chairs are provided for the ladies at the proper distance (Conn. blue laws) from the bar. The New England menu is exceptionally well-prepared and delicious. Try the brochette of filet mignon, the popular broiled twin Maine lobsters, roast prime ribs, abetted by a bountiful relish tray, homemade popovers and honey buns. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.50 to $2.50. Dinner 3:30 to 9:30 p.m., Sundays 12 to 9 p.m., $2.75 to $5.50. Air conditioned.

Prime Rib—Stamford (Davis 4-3113) 84 West Park Place. Bob Chatfield, who made Cobbs Mill Inn such a delight, has turned this dining room in the Stamford House into a charming place to dine on some of the most luscious prime ribs I've ever had. The atmosphere is Victorian with elegant green tapestried wallpaper, modern examples of old gaslight fixtures. The beef is served by the chef from his beautiful English silver serving cart, embellished with baked potato, excellent salad—the roquefort dressing is hard to beat—beverage, for only $3.75. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.25 to $2. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m. (Sat. till 10 p.m.) Sunday from 12, $3.25 to $4.25. The English Pub is a solid spot with its handsome wood paneled walls, sturdy furnishings. Air conditioned. The hotel, too, has handsome guest rooms now.

Casa Maria—Stamford (Davis 3-1365) 680 Boston Post Rd. If you want some excellent Italian food, don't miss this pleasant place. Roomy and cheerful dining rooms, a smart muraled cocktail lounge sparked with red banquettes make a grand setting in which to indulge in such delights as baked clams, excellent manicotti or gnocchi, veal (parmigiana, Milanese, cacciatore), delicious seafood. If you must, there are steaks and chops, too. But do have the homemade rum cake! Luncheon, 12 to 2:30 p.m., has a la carte entrees 85¢ to $1.50. Dinner, 2:30 to 10 p.m., entrees $1.25 to $4.75. Complete dinners Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $2.75 to $5.50. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Country Kitchen—Stamford (Davis 2-5316) Merritt Pkway. Exit 34 to Long Ridge Rd. The Rob Roy room makes a colorful entrance to this nice restaurant, for you immediately are intrigued with the attractive Scottish clan tartans, bagpipes and coats of arms that decorate the walls. The beamed ceilings and sunny atmosphere in the main dining room are a perfect foil for the handsome antiques that abound. Can you think of anything better than a cup of cold cucumber soup to start off a summer meal that might include sweetbreads Virginienne, coq au vin, shrimp marinara en casserole or broiled South African lobster tail? These are suggestions on the American menu with a French accent. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.25 up. Dinner 5:30 to 9 p.m., Friday to 9:30 p.m., Saturday to 10 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8:30 p.m., $2.75 to $5.75 (from $3 on Sunday). Closed Mondays.

Roger Smith Hotel—Stamford (Davis 3-2112) 55 River St. One of the prettiest hotels in this well-known chain even though it's in the heart of the city. The decorations are Colonial and the flower-filled patios off the lounge and attractive Caprice Bar are particularly amiable places to sip a cool drink on a hot day. The formal main dining room and the Colony Room with its antiques are air conditioned, and provide well-prepared American meals at very modest prices. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., 85¢ to $2.25. Dinner 6 to 9 p.m., Sundays from 12, $1.85 to $3.75. Children under 7 are served at half price.

Jolly Fisherman—Norwalk (Victor 7-8277) 377 Main Ave. Exit 39 Merritt Pkway. There's a nautical atmosphere just right for dining on denizens of the deep at this popular seafood house. The sandy beige colorings set off the gold seahorses and the antiqued mirrors that adorn the walls, giving a smart look to the dining room. The Quarterdeck Lounge is ruggedly seagoing with its ships' lanterns, portholes and horseshoe bar. A terrific menu runs the gamut from seafood au gratin or Newburg, scampi, baked stuffed lobster to chicken, ham, steaks, any one of which is delicious. Now there are complete dinners served 11:30 a.m. to 1 a.m., $2.75 up, and fine a la carte selections from $1.25. To top it off, a pianist plays in the evenings. Air conditioned.

---

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

phonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

Stadium C
forty-first se ing concert I performance made Ravel'
Concerto "p ful." Alexan
his twenty-f Stadium and ductor and
"understo other." He from Samue
sa," which h
to stand on chestral pie genheim M
also go ard F
the Goldm Gianinni's " legro," perf
concert in monstrated
"spontaneous

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 14 1958

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF

IN BOSTON

Children FREE at the Manger HOTEL!

See historic Boston and save! There is no charge for children under 14, when with parents. Rollaway beds or cribs are set up in parents' room free. If needed, two rooms are provided, each at only single rate. 500 rooms, each with private bath and radio; excellent food, moderate rates.

MEMBER OF DINERS' CLUB

For information and reservations, call Murray Hill 3-4000 in New York City, or write to:

THE Manger HOTEL
At North Station, Boston • Phone: Capitol 7-2600

IN STAMFORD IT'S the prime rib
"A FINE ROAST BEEF RESTAURANT"
ROAST BEEF 3.75
BAKED POTATO, SALAD, VEGETABLE, COFFEE
Route 1 at W. Park Place - Stamford, Conn.

LIGHTHOUSE INN

Elegant is the word for this mansion showplace by Long Island Sound. Open every day, dinner offers 42 entrees, $2.50 to $5.50. Travelers find 52 flawless rooms, television, private beach. Inquiries welcomed.

NEW LONDON, CONN. • Gibson 3-8411

Country Kitchen Restaurant
"The best in American food with a slight French accent"
LONG RIDGE RD. (Rt. 104) STAMFORD, CONN.
Exit 34 Merritt Pkwy. • Tel: Davis 2-5316

Jolly Fisherman
Restaurant • Quarterdeck Cocktail Lounge
Succulent Seafoods • Chicken • Steaks
Open Daily • Luncheon • Complete Dinners
Pianist Entertains — Member Diners' Club
MERRITT PARKWAY, Exit 39, at Main Avenue
Norwalk, Conn. • Victor 7-9877

Famous Lyons' Pier—Norwalk (Temple 8-8200) 144 Water St. Conn. Tpke Exit 15 or Merritt Pkway Exit 38. A grand place over the water where you may come by boat or car to dine on the seafood excellencies—or even charcoal-broiled steaks, chops or chicken. Overhead doors open the nautically decorated dining room to every breeze from the water. There's a nice Marine cocktail lounge for a sip or two. Special business men's luncheon $1.25, and there's a fine selection of sandwiches, served 12 to 4 p.m. Dinner can be had all day till 10:30 p.m.

Treadway Inn—Norwalk (Temple 8-5531) 99 East Ave. Merritt Pkway Exit 39. This inn is a community venture under the banner of the Treadways and is a completely modern motor inn with excellent accommodations and full hotel service. Lodgings are $8.50 single, $13 to $15 double. There's a tiny dining room at present, but a larger one is in the planning stage along with a banquet hall. Regional dishes make up the menu. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.10 to $2.75. Dinner 6 to 8:30 p.m., $2.50 to $5.95; Sunday 12 to 2:30 p.m. and 5:30 to 8 p.m., from $3. Bar and cocktail lounge. Air conditioned.

Dorlon's Shore House—Norwalk (Volunteer 6-1959) Gregory Blvd. Exit 39 Merritt Pkway. Famous for some 93 years for fine seafood, this shore restaurant now has at its helm the third generation of O'Sullivans. Here, too, come the third and fourth generations of folks who found the meals of excellent quality way back when. It's a bright, cheery place with modern dining rooms, a small rustic room with a nautical note. There is a top-notch shore dinner at $5.95 and a fine lobster dinner $5.50 to $6.75 (depending on size of the lobster). Both include luscious steamed clams. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.60 to $3. Dinner 3 to 10:30 p.m., Sunday 12 to 10 p.m., $3.50 to $6.50. Also a la carte. Closed Tuesdays.

General Putnam Inn—Norwalk (Victor 7-2468) Rte. 1 on the Village Green. Exit 39 Merritt Pkway. It is delightful to see this early American inn gradually taking on a new look under the aegis of Nicholas Tamburi, for many years innkeeper at the Yankee Drover. The fine old stone floors in the cheery dining room, a stone fireplace in another room, both set with commodious pine trestle tables adorned with hobnail glassware are all in true Colonial tradition. The menu, too, is regional New England and here you'll find the famous baked stuffed lobster, roast Tom turkey, baked ham, charcoal broiled steaks. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m. features the Yankee Doodle Dollar Luncheon as well as other lunches $1.50 to $1.75. Dinner 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., $2.50 to $4. There are guest rooms.

Charpentier—East Norwalk (Volunteer 6-0171) 232 East Ave. Exit 39 Merritt Pkway. This barn-red restaurant is a mere twelve years old, although the name of Charpentier has been a byword hereabouts since 1926 when Arthur Charpentier opened his market on this spot. Sons Francis and Robert, returning from World War II, launched their restaurant on the main street and have lured hordes of customers with their succulent steaks, lobster and chops. I noted other seafood and the esoteric shish kebab gracing the menu and found a fine assortment of wines to round out the meal. Luncheon 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., $1.65 to $5.20. Dinner 5 to 9:30 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $3.50 to $12. Also a la carte. Service bar. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Half-Way House—Darien (Davis 4-7633) Boston Post Rd. A friendly atmosphere prevails at this modern place with its attractive brick front. Murals and a springtime green color scheme make the dining rooms bright and cheery. The better to dine on some mighty good seafood specialties, for instance the shore dinner at $4.25 that includes appetizer, chowder, steamed clams, whole broiled lobster with salad, dessert and beverage. All of the food is well prepared and nicely served, and instead of seafood you might have a selection of chicken, steaks and other entrees. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.50 to $2. Dinner 5 to 10 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $2.75 to $4.75. Air conditioned.

Old Squire—Darien (Oliver 5-0326) Boston Post Rd. Set back off the road, this 200-year-old house is surrounded by lovely trees and lawns and has been open just a year. Innkeeper Daniel Nash has some 30 years of experience in the restaurant business and is well-known to the gentry up here by way of his direction at the Stamford Roger Smith Hotel. There's a snug dining room with old prints, lit by candles, a delightful little pine-paneled cocktail lounge with a fireplace and a sunny room good for parties and such. The blackboard menu lists some fine dishes—medallion of beef, double rib lamb chops, chicken marengo. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., a la carte entrees 90¢ to $2.50. Dinner 6 to 9 p.m., Saturday till 11 p.m., $2.50 to $4.50 table d'hote.

Red Barn—Westport (Capital 7-6204) Exit 41 Merritt Pkway. You will definitely want to stop at this fascinating restaurant surrounded by great trees and lovely gardens. Charming terraces, both outdoor or glassed-in, overlook the little pond rimmed by shrubs and flowers. High beamed ceilings, a huge fireplace, sofas and comfortable chairs, gorgeous flowers, copper and old plates make the lounge a relaxing place to sip a cocktail before proceeding to the sunny dining rooms to feast sumptuously on delicious American specialties—turkey, roast beef, chicken pot pie, Black Angus steaks. The top-notch quality is due, of course, to the vigilance of the Davegas, famous for their White Turkey restaurants. Service noon to 9 p.m., Saturday till 10 p.m., with a luncheon $2.50 to $3.75; dinner $3.50 to $5.95. Air conditioned.

Friendly Hearth — Westport (Capital 7-9193) Boston Post Rd. & East State St. This is a jolly little spot with a nice Colonial background, especially in the snug little cocktail lounge tucked in the back. June and Tommy Williams have made this the popular place to dine on their French-American cuisine—filet de boeuf Bordelaise, broiled Alaskan king crab, steaks as suggestions. Regulars love the Gambler's Choice—a surprise dinner known only to the chef—priced $5; and everyone likes the Tired Business Men's Special at luncheon. Evenings Mr. Sexton plays piano. Luncheon 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., $1.65 to $3. Dinner 3 to 10 p.m. (till 1 a.m. by reservation), Sunday from noon, $3.35 to $6.50. Sunday brunch 12 to 3 p.m. $1.85 to $3. Air conditioned.

Cafe Barna—Westport (Capital 7-6053) 630 E. State St. While this modern restaurant is just a year old, the Barnas have been well-known hereabouts for the past ten years. Their new place with its trim, neat appearance owes its decorative theme to Steve Dohanys, the well-known artist, so you will find old violins with sheets of Hungarian melodies as adornment. Continental cuisine is served, but I tried the Hungarian specialties—tender, well flavored chicken paprikas, stuffed cabbage, delicious nut roll. Wednesday is a pretty popular night for the fine buffet, served 6 to 10 p.m., at $2.50, and Rozsika and Lazslo play Hungarian music Wednesday through Saturday evenings. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 and a la carte. Dinner 5 to 11 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $2.75 to $5.85. Air conditioned.

(Continued on page 21)

BRITISH CRAFTSMANSHIP AND DISTINCTION . . .

. . FOR AMERICANS ON THE GO!
Vauxhall

Park it anywhere with ease . . . and pride! Here's British practicality at its handsomest—a rugged car that manoeuvres like a dream and parks on a ha'penny. Yet the Vauxhall is full family size—with 5 passenger roominess, trunk space for a vacation and 4-door convenience. There's even more to make it the import best for Americans—quiet superhighway performance, wrap-around visibility and standard American gearshift . . . plus traditional British economy. For colour catalog, write Pontiac Motor Division, Dept. 14, Pontiac, Mich. But better still, come in soon and drive it—and bring the family!

VAUXHALL IS SOLD AND SERVICED BY PONTIAC DEALERS COAST TO COAST

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants [illegible] by a committee including [illegible] Helen Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome [illegible] of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

phonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

24 to Aug. 11.

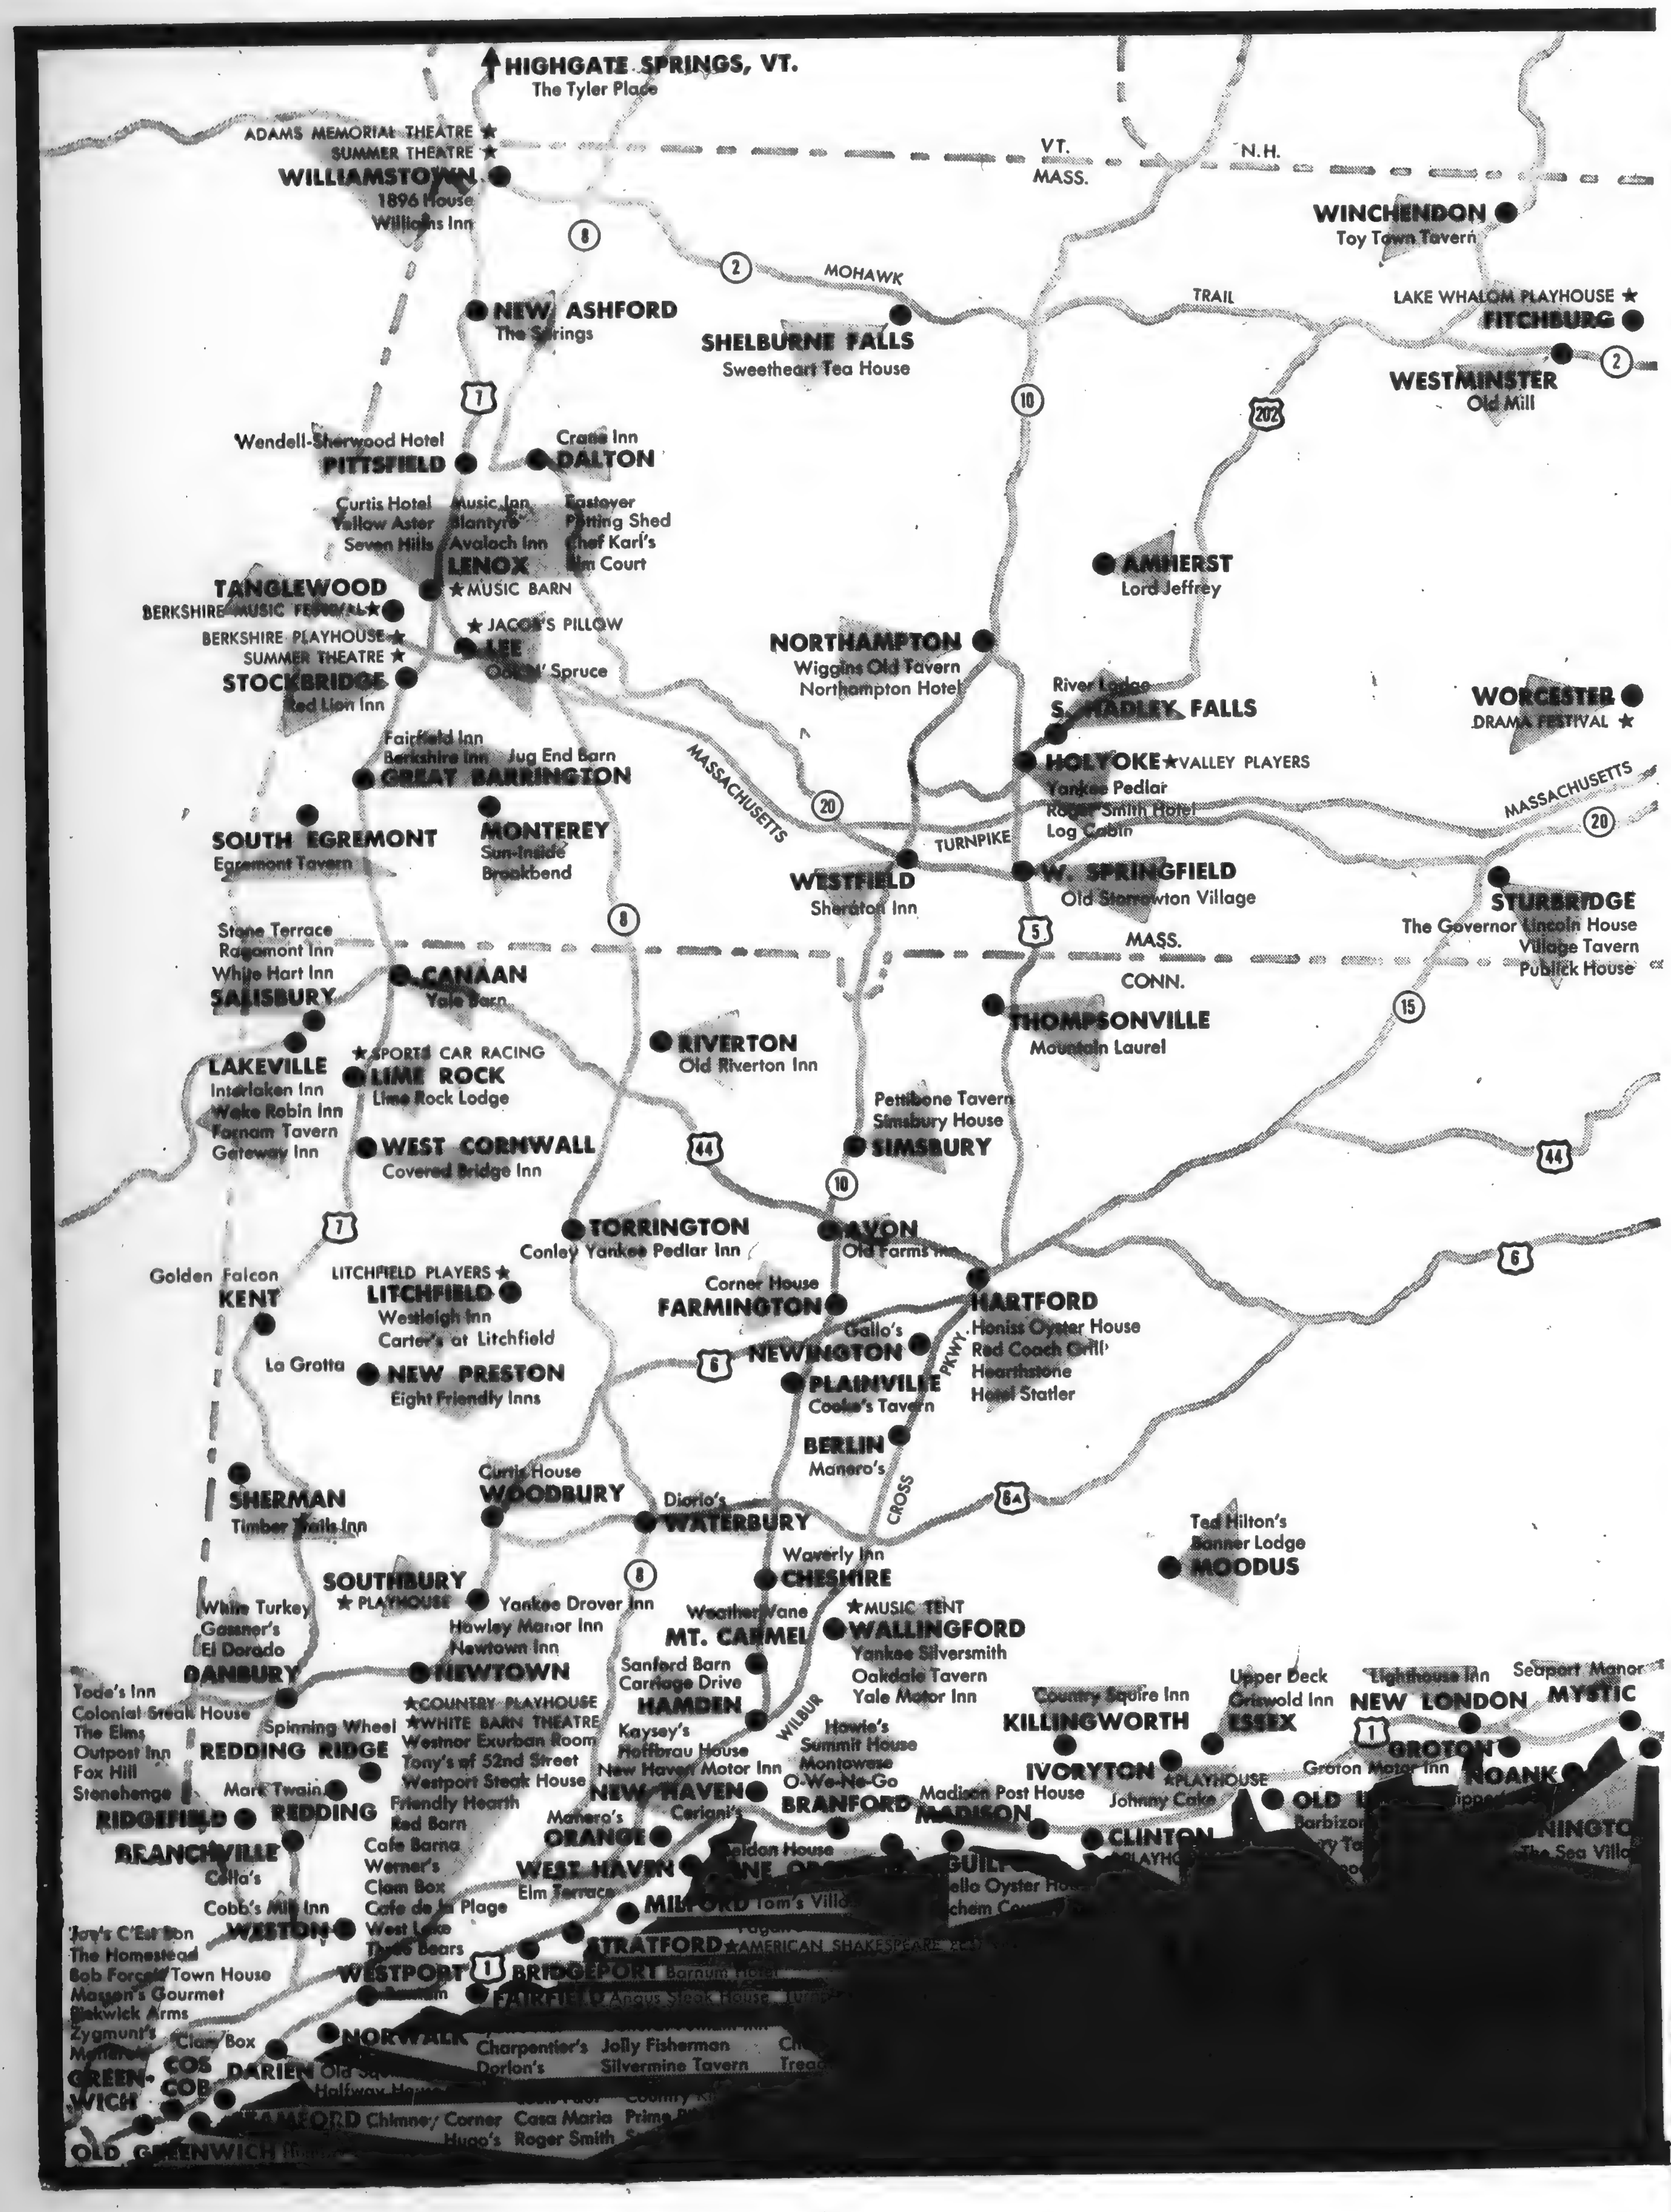
CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUN 14 1959

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
JUN 2 9 1958

THE WORLD OF



HIGHGATE SPRINGS, VT.
The Tyler Place
ADAMS MEMORIAL THEATRE
SUMMER THEATRE
WILLIAMSTOWN
1896 House
Williams Inn
VT.
MASS.
N.H.
MOHAWK TRAIL WINCHENDON
Toy Town Tavern
LAKE WHALOM PLAYHOUSE
FITCHBURG
WESTMINSTER
Old Mill
NEW ASHFORD
The Springs
SHELBURNE FALLS
Sweetheart Tea House
Wendell-Sherwood Hotel
PITTSFIELD
Crane Inn
DALTON
AMHERST
Lord Jeffrey
TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL
LENOX
MUSIC BARN
BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE
SUMMER THEATRE
JACOB'S PILLOW
LEE
STOCKBRIDGE
Red Lion Inn
NORTHAMPTON
Wiggins Old Tavern
Northampton Hotel
S. HADLEY FALLS
HOLYOKE
VALLEY PLAYERS WORCESTER
DRAMA FESTIVAL
GREAT BARRINGTON
SOUTH EGREMONT
Egremont Tavern
MONTEREY
MASSACHUSETTS
TURNPIKE
WESTFIELD
Sheraton Inn
W. SPRINGFIELD
Old Storrowton Village
STURBRIDGE
The Governor Lincoln House
Village Tavern
Publick House
MASS.
CONN.
CANAAN
Yale Barn
SALISBURY
LAKEVILLE
SPORTS CAR RACING
LIME ROCK
Lime Rock Lodge
RIVERTON
Old Riverton Inn
THOMPSONVILLE
Mountain Laurel
WEST CORNWALL
Covered Bridge Inn
SIMSBURY
TORRINGTON
Conley Yankee Pedlar Inn
AVON
Old Farms Inn LITCHFIELD PLAYERS LITCHFIELD
KENT
FARMINGTON HARTFORD
NEWINGTON PLAINVILLE
NEW PRESTON
Eight Friendly Inns
BERLIN
SHERMAN
WOODBURY
WATERBURY
MOODUS
SOUTHBURY
PLAYHOUSE
CHESHIRE MUSIC TENT
WALLINGFORD
MT. CARMEL DANBURY NEWTOWN
HAMDEN KILLINGWORTH
ESSEX
NEW LONDON
MYSTIC REDDING RIDGE
REDDING
NEW HAVEN
IVORYTON
BRANFORD MADISON
CLINTON
GROTON NOANK
RIDGEFIELD
WEST HAVEN
ORANGE MILFORD
WILTON WESTON STRATFORD
AMERICAN SHAKESPEARE
WESTPORT
BRIDGEPORT FAIRFIELD
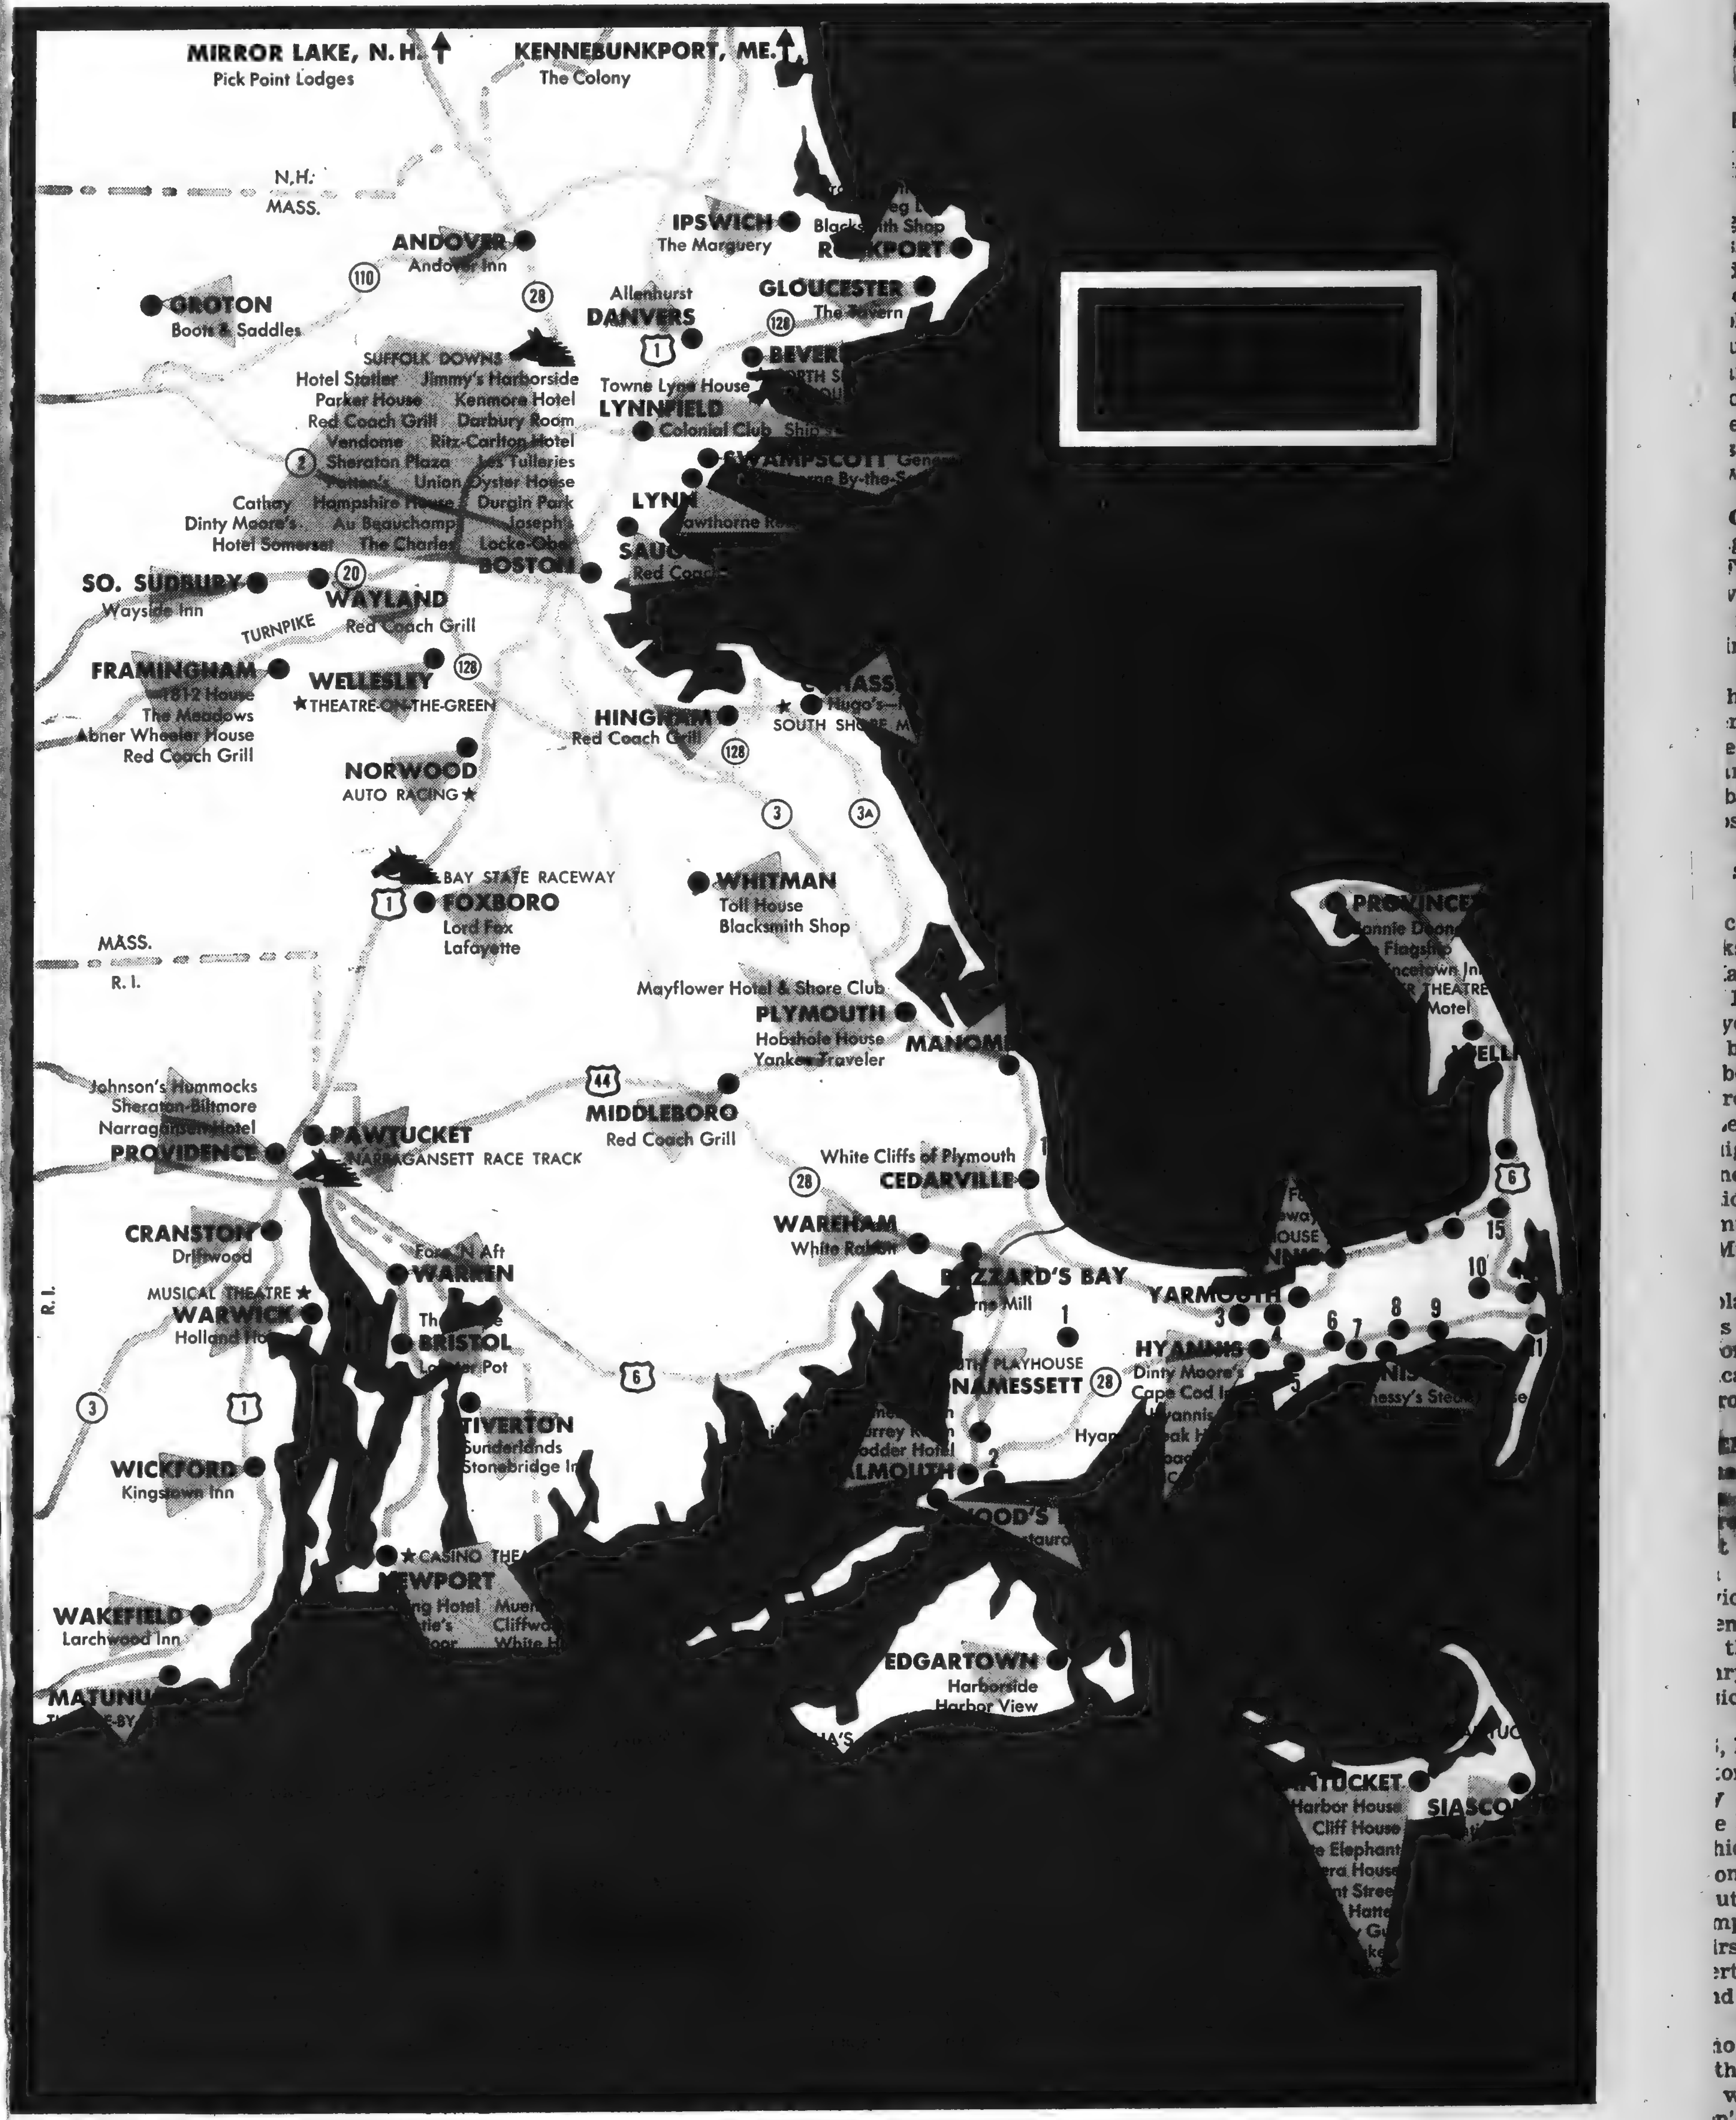
NORWALK
DARIEN
GREENWICH
STAMFORD
OLD GREENWICH



MIRROR LAKE, N.H.
Pick Point Lodges
KENNEBUNKPORT, ME.
The Colony
N.H.
MASS.
IPSWICH
The Morguery
ROCKPORT
ANDOVER
Andover Inn
GROTON
Boots & Saddles
GLOUCESTER
DANVERS
SUFFOLK DOWNS
LYNNFIELD
SWAMPSCOTT
LYNN SAUGUS
BOSTON
SO. SUDBURY
Wayside Inn
WAYLAND
Red Coach Grill
TURNPIKE
FRAMINGHAM
WELLESLEY
THEATRE-ON-THE-GREEN
HINGHAM
Red Coach Grill
COHASSET
SOUTH SHORE MUSIC
NORWOOD
AUTO RACING
BAY STATE RACEWAY
FOXBORO
Lord Fox
Lafayette
WHITMAN
Toll House
Blacksmith Shop
PROVINCETOWN
MASS.
R.I.
PLYMOUTH
MANOMET
Mayflower Hotel & Shore Club
PAWTUCKET
PROVIDENCE
NARRAGANSETT RACE TRACK
MIDDLEBORO
Red Coach Grill
White Cliffs of Plymouth
CEDARVILLE CRANSTON
Driftwood
WARREN
WAREHAM
BUZZARD'S BAY
YARMOUTH
MUSICAL THEATRE
WARWICK
Holland House
BRISTOL HYANNIS TIVERTON
NAMESSETT
WICKFORD
Kingstown Inn
FALMOUTH
WOOD'S HOLE
CASINO THEATRE
NEWPORT
WAKEFIELD
Larchwood Inn
EDGARTOWN
Harborside Harbor View
MATUNUCK
NANTUCKET
SIASCONSET

Darius
by Fl on the

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

Stadium C
forty-first s ing concert performance made Ravel
Concerto "p ful." Alexan
his twenty-f Stadium an ductor and
"underst other." He from Samu
sa," which h
to stand on chestral pie
genhei also go ard F
the G Gianinni's " legro," perf
concert in monstrated
"spontaneou

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

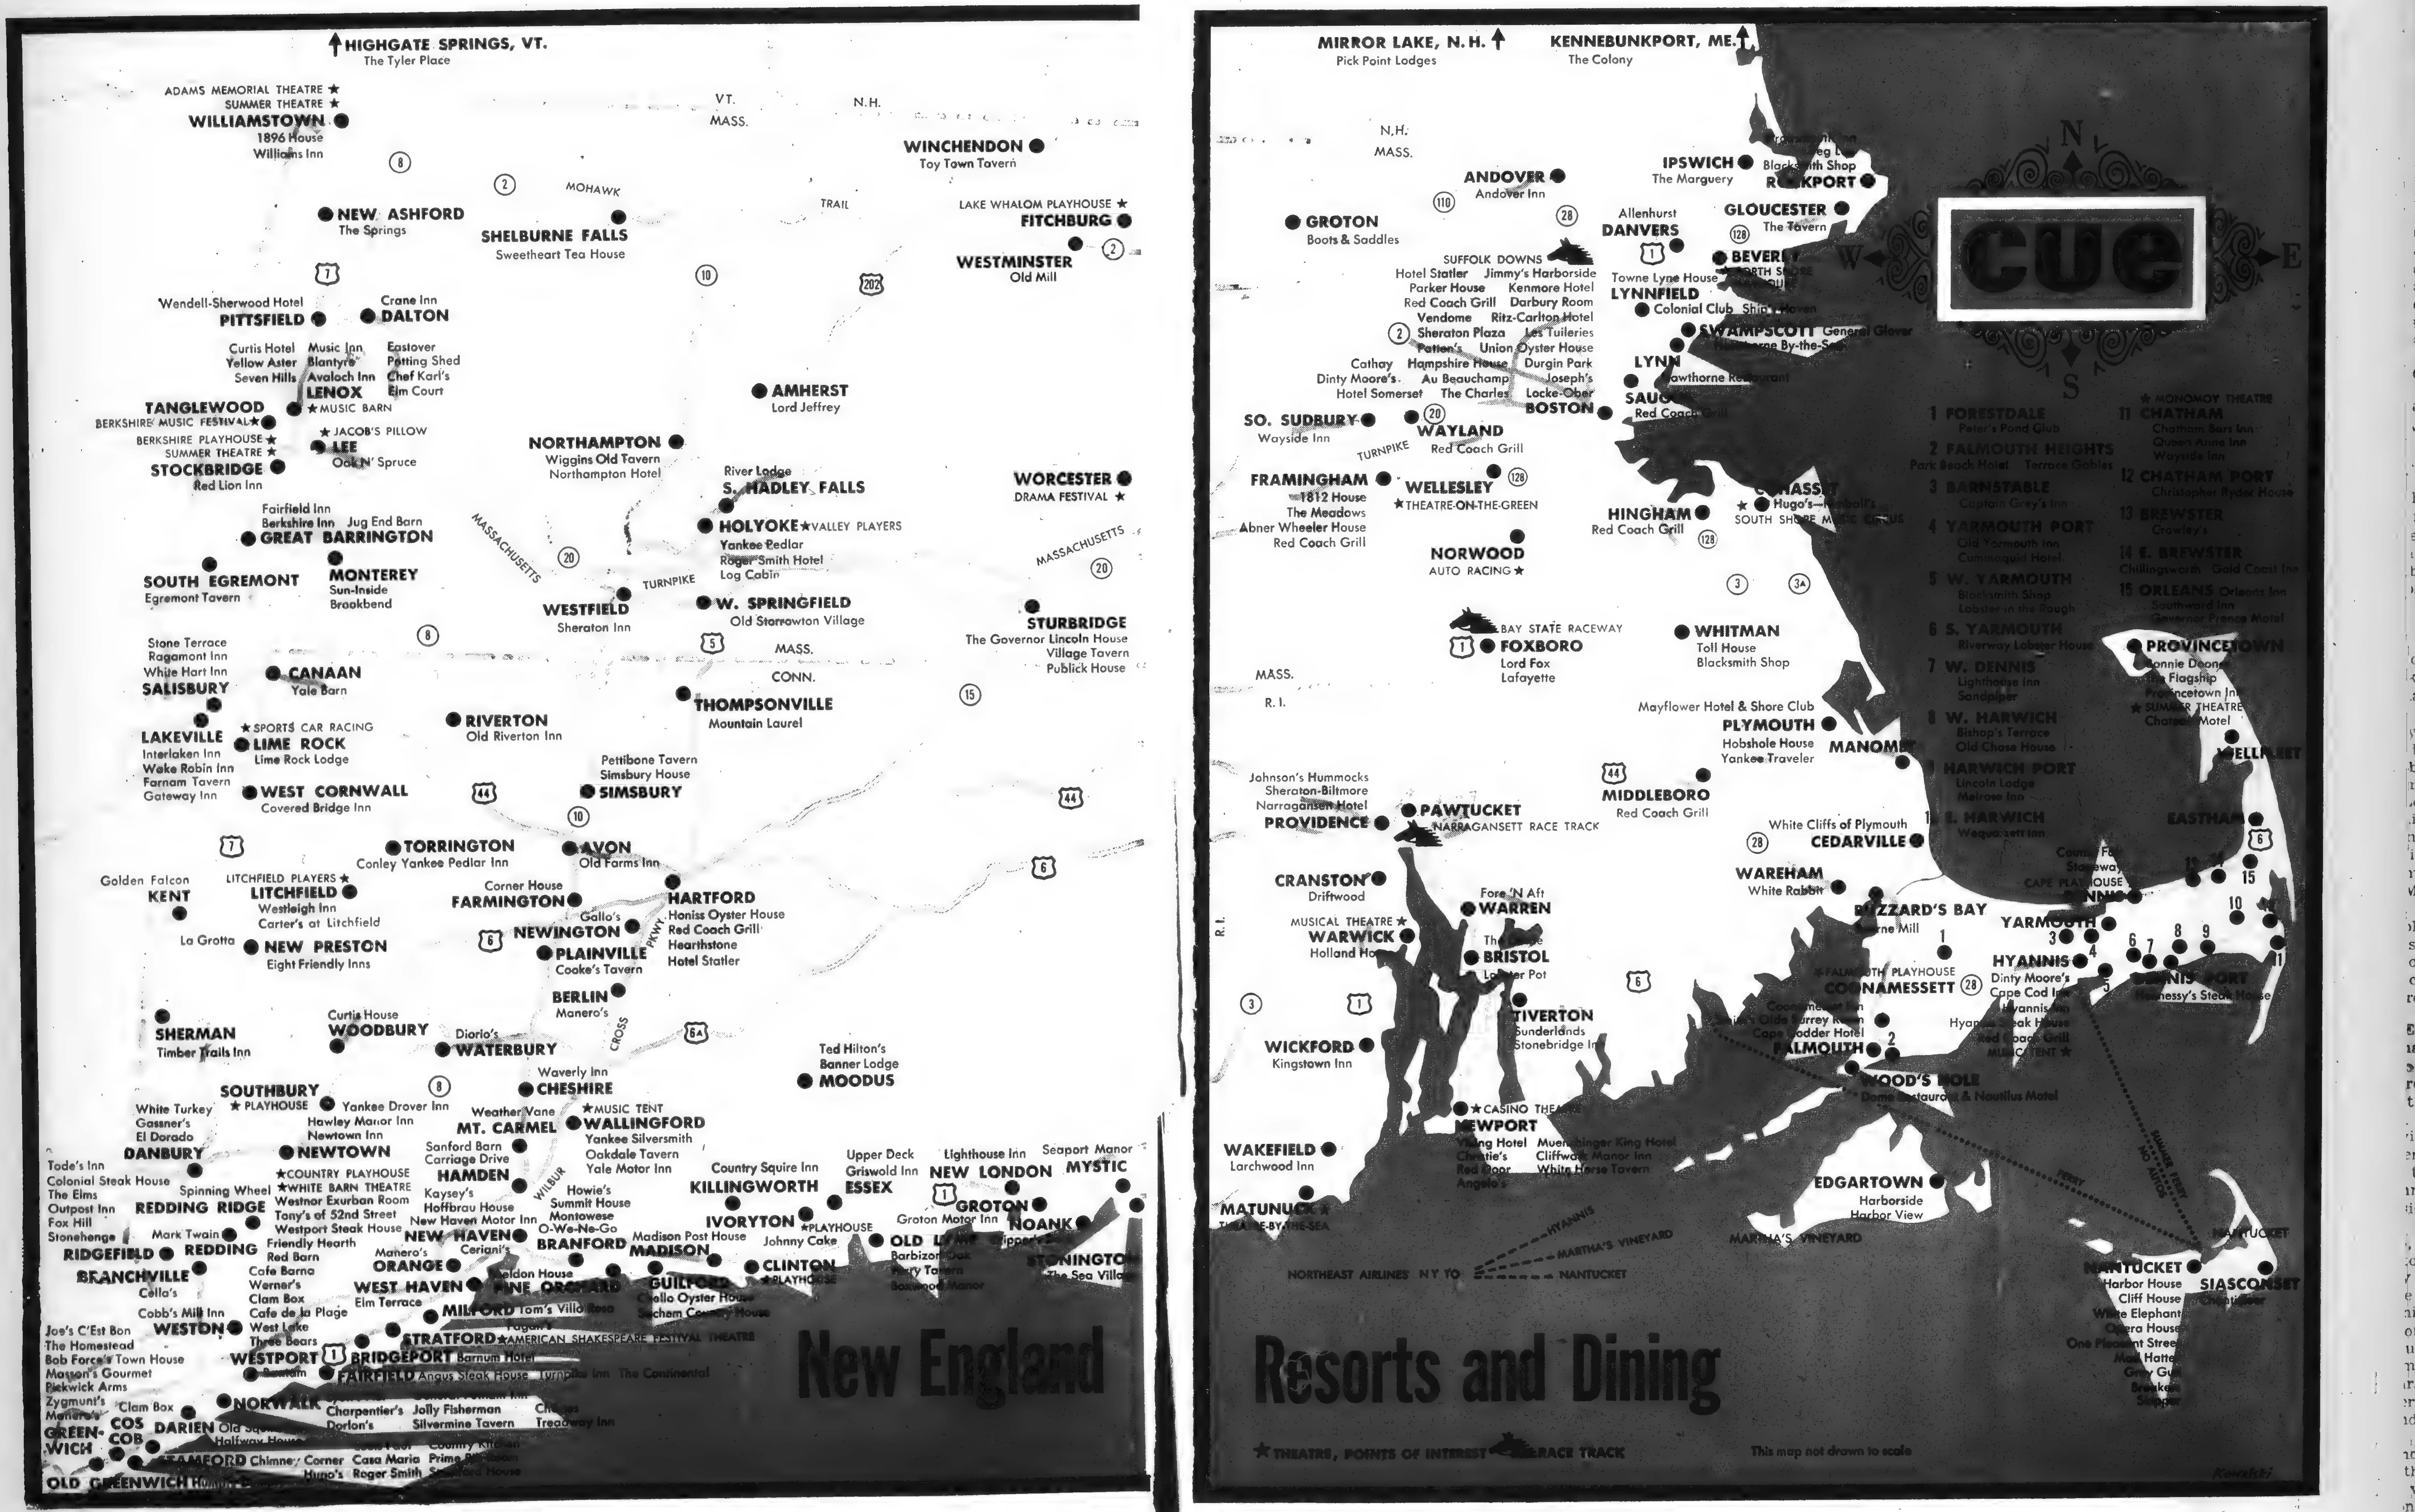
CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF



HIGHGATE SPRINGS, VT. The Tyler Place
ADAMS MEMORIAL THEATRE ★ SUMMER THEATRE ★
WILLIAMSTOWN 1896 House Williams Inn
VT. MASS. N.H.
WINCHENDON Toy Town Tavern
MOHAWK TRAIL
LAKE WHALOM PLAYHOUSE ★ FITCHBURG
NEW ASHFORD The Springs
SHELBURNE FALLS Sweetheart Tea House
WESTMINSTER Old Mill
Wendell-Sherwood Hotel PITTSFIELD
Crane Inn DALTON
Curtis Hotel Yellow Aster Seven Hills
Music Inn Blantyre Avaloch Inn
Eastover Petting Shed Chef Karl's Elm Court
LENOX ★MUSIC BARN
TANGLEWOOD BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL★
BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE★ SUMMER THEATRE★
★JACOB'S PILLOW LEE Oak N' Spruce
STOCKBRIDGE Red Lion Inn
AMHERST Lord Jeffrey
NORTHAMPTON Wiggins Old Tavern Northampton Hotel
River Lodge S. HADLEY FALLS
HOLYOKE ★VALLEY PLAYERS Yankee Pedlar Roger Smith Hotel Log Cabin
WORCESTER DRAMA FESTIVAL ★
Fairfield Inn Berkshire Inn Jug End Barn GREAT BARRINGTON MASSACHUSETTS TURNPIKE
SOUTH EGREMONT Egremont Tavern
MONTEREY Sun-Inside Brookbend
WESTFIELD Sheraton Inn
W. SPRINGFIELD Old Storrowton Village
STURBRIDGE The Governor Lincoln House Village Tavern Publick House
Stone Terrace Ragamont Inn White Hart Inn SALISBURY CANAAN Yale Barn
MASS. CONN.
THOMPSONVILLE Mountain Laurel
LAKEVILLE Interlaken Inn Wake Robin Inn Farnam Tavern Gateway Inn
★SPORTS CAR RACING LIME ROCK Lime Rock Lodge
RIVERTON Old Riverton Inn
WEST CORNWALL Covered Bridge Inn
Pettibone Tavern Simsbury House SIMSBURY
TORRINGTON Conley Yankee Pedlar Inn
AVON Old Farms Inn
Golden Falcon KENT
LITCHFIELD PLAYERS★ LITCHFIELD Westleigh Inn Carter's at Litchfield
Corner House FARMINGTON
HARTFORD Honiss Oyster House Red Coach Grill Hearthstone Hotel Statler
Gallo's NEWINGTON
La Grotta NEW PRESTON Eight Friendly Inns
PLAINVILLE Cooke's Tavern
BERLIN Manero's
SHERMAN Timber Trails Inn
Curtis House WOODBURY
Diorio's WATERBURY
Ted Hilton's Banner Lodge MOODUS
SOUTHBURY ★PLAYHOUSE
Waverly Inn CHESHIRE
White Turkey Gassner's El Dorado DANBURY
Yankee Drover Inn Hawley Manor Inn Newtown Inn NEWTOWN
Weather Vane MT. CARMEL
★MUSIC TENT WALLINGFORD Yankee Silversmith Oakdale Tavern Yale Motor Inn
Tode's Inn Colonial Steak House The Elms Outpost Inn Fox Hill Stonehenge
Spinning Wheel REDDING RIDGE
★COUNTRY PLAYHOUSE ★WHITE BARN THEATRE Westnor Exurban Room Tony's of 52nd Street Westport Steak House Friendly Hearth Red Barn Cafe Barna Werner's Clam Box Cafe de la Plage West Lake Three Bears
Sanford Barn Carriage Drive HAMDEN
Kaysey's Hoffbrau House New Haven Motor Inn
Howie's Summit House Montowese O-We-Ne-Go
Country Squire Inn KILLINGWORTH
Upper Deck Griswold Inn ESSEX
Lighthouse Inn NEW LONDON
Seaport Manor MYSTIC
Mark Twain REDDING
RIDGEFIELD
BRANCHVILLE Cello's
NEW HAVEN Cerigni's
BRANFORD
Madison Post House MADISON
IVORYTON ★PLAYHOUSE Johnny Cake
Groton Motor Inn GROTON NOANK OLD LYME
Manero's ORANGE
WEST HAVEN Elm Terrace
PINE ORCHARD
GUILFORD Chello Oyster House Sachem Country House
CLINTON ★PLAYHOUSE
STONINGTON The Sea Village
Cobb's Mill Inn WESTON
MILFORD Tom's Villa Rosa
Joe's C'Est Bon The Homestead Bob Force's Town House Masson's Gourmet Pickwick Arms Zygmunt's Manero's
WESTPORT
STRATFORD ★AMERICAN SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL THEATRE
BRIDGEPORT Barnum Hotel
FAIRFIELD Angus Steak House Turnpike Inn The Continental
NORWALK
Charpentier's Jolly Fisherman Silvermine Tavern Dorlon's
Clam Box COS COB DARIEN
GREEN-WICH
STAMFORD Chimney Corner Casa Maria Hugo's Roger Smith
OLD GREENWICH
New England
MIRROR LAKE, N.H. Pick Point Lodges
KENNEBUNKPORT, ME. The Colony
N.H. MASS.
IPSWICH The Marguery
ROCKPORT Blacksmith Shop
ANDOVER Andover Inn
GROTON Boots & Saddles
GLOUCESTER The Tavern
Allenhurst DANVERS
BEVERLY
SUFFOLK DOWNS
Hotel Statler Jimmy's Harborside Parker House Kenmore Hotel Red Coach Grill Darbury Room Vendome Ritz-Carlton Hotel Sheraton Plaza Les Tuileries Patten's Union Oyster House Cathay Hampshire House Durgin Park Dinty Moore's Au Beauchamp Joseph's Hotel Somerset The Charles Locke-Ober BOSTON
Towne Lyne House LYNNFIELD Colonial Club
SWAMPSCOTT General Glover
LYNN
SAUGUS Red Coach Grill
SO. SUDBURY Wayside Inn
TURNPIKE
WAYLAND Red Coach Grill
FRAMINGHAM 1812 House The Meadows Abner Wheeler House Red Coach Grill
WELLESLEY ★THEATRE-ON-THE-GREEN
HINGHAM Red Coach Grill
COHASSET ★ SOUTH SHORE MUSIC CIRCUS
NORWOOD AUTO RACING★
BAY STATE RACEWAY
FOXBORO Lord Fox Lafayette
WHITMAN Toll House Blacksmith Shop
MASS. R.I.
Mayflower Hotel & Shore Club PLYMOUTH Hobshole House Yankee Traveler
MANOMET
Johnson's Hummocks Sheraton-Biltmore Narragansett Hotel PROVIDENCE
PAWTUCKET NARRAGANSETT RACE TRACK
MIDDLEBORO Red Coach Grill
White Cliffs of Plymouth CEDARVILLE CRANSTON Driftwood
Fore 'N Aft WARREN
WAREHAM White Rabbit
BUZZARD'S BAY
MUSICAL THEATRE★ WARWICK Holland House
BRISTOL Lobster Pot
TIVERTON Sunderlands Stonebridge Inn
WICKFORD Kingstown Inn
FALMOUTH PLAYHOUSE COONAMESSETT
FALMOUTH
WOOD'S HOLE
WAKEFIELD Larchwood Inn
★CASINO THEATRE NEWPORT Viking Hotel Christie's Red Door Angelo's Muenchinger King Hotel Cliffwalk Manor Inn White Horse Tavern
EDGARTOWN Harborside Harbor View
MATUNUCK ★THEATRE-BY-THE-SEA
NORTHEAST AIRLINES NY TO HYANNIS MARTHA'S VINEYARD NANTUCKET
MARTHA'S VINEYARD
NANTUCKET Harbor House Cliff House White Elephant
SIASCONSET Chanticleer
N S E W
CUE
1 FORESTDALE Peter's Pond Club
2 FALMOUTH HEIGHTS Park Beach Hotel Terrace Gables
3 BARNSTABLE Captain Grey's Inn
4 YARMOUTH PORT Old Yarmouth Inn Cummaquid Hotel
5 W. YARMOUTH Blacksmith Shop Lobster in the Rough
6 S. YARMOUTH Riverway Lobster House
7 W. DENNIS Lighthouse Inn Sandpiper
8 W. HARWICH Bishop's Terrace Old Chase House
9 HARWICH PORT Lincoln Lodge Melrose Inn
10 S. HARWICH Wequassett Inn
11 ★MONOMOY THEATRE CHATHAM Chatham Bars Inn Queen Anne Inn Wayside Inn
12 CHATHAM PORT Christopher Ryder House
13 BREWSTER Crowley's
14 E. BREWSTER Chillingsworth Gold Coast Inn
15 ORLEANS Orleans Inn Southward Inn Governor Prence Motel
PROVINCETOWN Bonnie Doone The Flagship Provincetown Inn ★SUMMER THEATRE Chateau Motel WELLFLEET
EASTHAM
CAPE PLAYHOUSE DENNIS
YARMOUTH
HYANNIS Dinty Moore's Cape Cod Inn Hyannis Inn Hyannis Steak House
DENNIS PORT Hennessy's Steak House
Resorts and Dining ★ THEATRE, POINTS OF INTEREST RACE TRACK
This map not drawn to scale
Kowalski

Darius
by Flo
on the

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madame Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

Stadium C
forty-first se
ing concert performance made Ravel
Concerto "p ful." Alexan
his twenty-f Stadium and ductor and
"understood other." He from Samue
sa," which h
to stand on chestral pie genheim M
also got und ard Franko
the Goldma Gianinni's " legro," perf
concert in monstrated
"spontaneous

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
JUN 29 1958

"My beer is Rheingold—the Dry beer!"

says JANE POWELL

SEE JANE POWELL IN "THE GIRL MOST LIKELY," AN RKO PICTURE RELEASED THROUGH UNIVERSAL-INTERNATIONAL AND IN THE NEW TELEVISION SERIES, MONDAYS, 9:30 P.M., NBC-TV.

"The star in this picture," says the singing star Jane Powell, "is Rheingold Extra Dry. You'd expect the leading beer to play the leading role—whenever good food and company call for the best of beers. And Rheingold . . .

". . . always makes a hit." It's always the same, pleasantly, refreshingly dry—never sweet, never bitter. Year after year, that clean, clear, real-beer taste keeps Rheingold on top. It's New York's largest-selling beer!

Rheingold EXTRA DRY Lager Beer

It's beer as beer should taste!

Always refreshing—never filling

Copr. 1958, Liebmann Breweries, Inc., New York, N. Y.

BREWED BY Liebmann Breweries, BREWERS FOR 121 YEARS. ESTABLISHED 1837.

NEW ENGLAND RESORTS & DINING

(Continued from page 16)

The Bantam—Westport (Clearwater 9-7271) Boston Post Rd. A wee restaurant with heaps of charm—fascinating wallpapers, Colonial pine furnishings, candlelight and a collection of antique bottles in the many-paned windows. There's a snug and relaxing cocktail lounge, too, with a delightful old-fashioned mural, solid captains chairs, and a gay outdoor terrace. All the better to feast on fine American cooking—chicken pie with plenty of chicken and a flaky crust, a king crab pie with a sauce laced with Madeira, cognac, toasted almonds, and roast prime ribs. There's a help-yourself table to mix your own salad. Dinner only 5:30 to 9 p.m., Saturday till 10 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m., $2.75 to $5. Air conditioned.

Cafe de la Plage—Westport (Capital 7-7364) Hillspoint Rd. You will be completely captivated when you enter this little cafe on the water with a heavenly view from the wide windows. Pat Clark and Will Hare, well-known in the theatre, have shown great imagination in the charming decorations—the cozy tables in the cocktail lounge, the dark walls of the dining room a background for plants and black and red deck chairs. Superb San Francisco style specialties include eggs San Francisco (with clam dressing) on the appetizers, dreamy shrimp tempura, chicken paradise or sweetbreads Russian Hill on the entrees. You concoct your own salad in the well-stocked Gourmet Corner. The wine card is small but very good, and the desserts are excellent. Dinner only 6 to 11:30 p.m. Sunday 5 to 9 p.m., $4.25 to $5.75.

Tony's of 52nd Street—Westport (Capital 7-9838) Boston Post Rd. Exit 41 Merritt Pkway or Exit 17 Conn. Tpke. Tony Gardella, for many years owner of the chic Trouville in New York, has settled at this old inn on the hillside to dispense the French fare for which he is well-known. The dining room is simply decorated in soft blue with banquettes, and windows all around, and there were more refurbishing schemes in the making when I visited. Specialties of the house include duckling Bigarade flambé, chicken casserole L'Estragon, tournedos Rossini, but you can settle for frogs' legs provencale, scampi and the like. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.75 to $2. Dinner 6 to 10 p.m., Saturday till midnight, Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $3.50 to $5.50.

Werner's—Westport (Capital 7-5077) 27 Elm St. For truly elegant dining, make Werner's a "must" on your list. The formal, yet intimate dining rooms, are handsomely set, gay with flowers, agleam with candlelight by night. Yellow and white awnings shade the terrace overlooking a rock garden. New owners, Mr. and Mrs. Dacher from Brussels, have an excellent Continental menu with game in season, veal steak Oscar, sauerbraten, lobster stuffed with shrimp, delicious homemade pastries. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., except Sun., $2 to $3.25. Dinner 5:30 to 10 p.m., a la carte entrees $3.25 to $5.50. There's a smart bar and cocktail lounge.

West Lake—Westport (Capital 7-2867) 3 Main St. An extremely nice restaurant in the center of town where you may satisfy your craving for good Chinese food. Sunny yellow booths and tables make a cheerful atmosphere and there's a charming cocktail lounge in yellow and black with lovely plants and screens. All the delicious dishes are listed on the extensive menu so you will have plenty of choice. My favorite is Ngow Yook Kew, cubes of tenderloin steak, with snow peas, bok toy, mushrooms, water chestnuts, Chinese vegetables and savory oyster sauce. Special luncheon 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., $1 to $2. Dinner, 5 to 9 p.m., $1.75 to $4.50. A la carte at all times. Air conditioned.

Westport Steak House—Westport (Clearwater 9-9036) Boston Post Rd. This modern steak house is just a year old and is attractively done in tans and browns with gay wallpapers, nice murals and cheery yellow furnishings, perked up with pretty brass ceiling lights. Steak and seafood is the thing here and there's a nice bar and cocktail lounge. Dinner only, 4 to 11 p.m., Sunday 12 to 10 p.m., complete meals $2.75 to $4.50. Air conditioned.

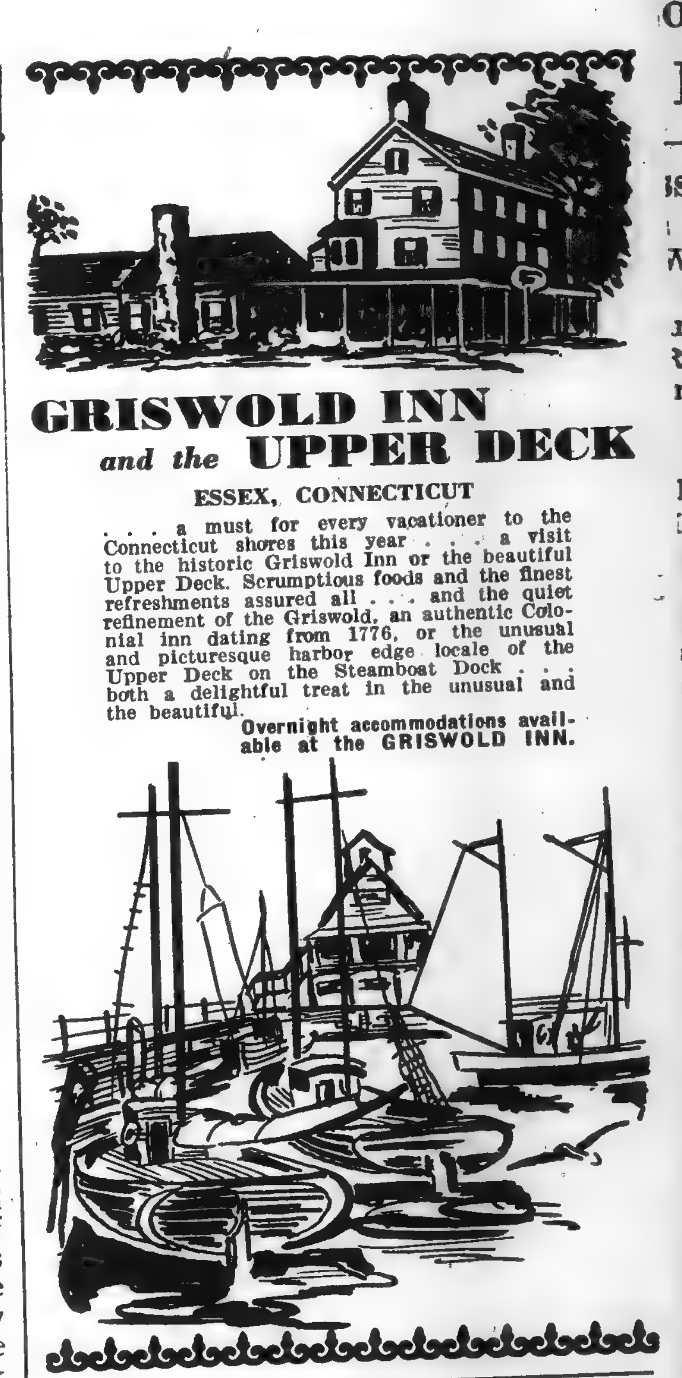
Turnpike Inn—Fairfield (Clearwater 9-9132) Off Merritt Pkway Exit 44 at Black Rock Tpke. A good roadside stop at the sign of this windmill-like restaurant. The tiny dining room has picture windows, the room set with springtime green chairs and pretty decorations around. There is a tiny bar now with a larger one in the making. Light lunches are served with salads and sandwiches, a la carte prices 65¢ to $2.50. Dinner with a selection of steak, chops, lobster, and other seafood, are complete at $2.50 to $5. Also a la carte.

Angus Steak House—Fairfield (Edison 4-9710) Exit 44 Merritt Pkway or Conn. Tpke Black Rock Tpke exit. A trim, neat and very busy little restaurant where Angus beef is the prime favorite. Photo murals of herds of Angus steers roaming the farmlands make a just-right decoration. You'll like the friendly service and the pleasant candlelit atmosphere evenings. There are all variations of the steak and the one I had was delicious, but you can get some seafood, too. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $2.75. Dinner 6 to 10:30 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8:30, $2.25 to $5. Bar. Air conditioned.

The Continental—Fairfield (Edison 5-9193) E. Kings Hway. Exit 44 Merritt Pkway or Black Rock Tpke exit on Conn. Tpke. This is a good place to stop and dine, especially good if you're going to the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford. Art is exhibited on the walls of the modern dining rooms—one with charcoal walls perked up with gay awnings to give a garden-like effect, the other a modern round room all wood-paneled. The menu is Continental but if you like Hungarian cuisine, try the delicious chicken paprikas with dumplings. You won't go wrong on the broiled steaks either. There's a small cocktail lounge and an excellent pianist entertains during dinner. Lunch 12 to 2:30, $1.25 to $2. Dinner 5 to 10:30 p.m., $2.50 to $5.50. Closed Sundays. Air conditioned.

Along Route 7

Silvermine Tavern—Norwalk (Victor 7-4558) Merritt Pkway Exit 38, continue on Silvermine Ave. A lake with swans makes a grand setting for this old country inn, now sparkling with its new white paint and gay pink shutters. Within, it's fascinating to see the early Americana displayed in profusion on the walls and ceilings of the several dining rooms, and people vie for tables on the outdoor terrace overlooking the water. Good American meals are served—chicken pie, roast beef, filet mignon, seafood. A fried chicken dinner is the thing on Thursday night, served buffet style, all for $2.75. Luncheon 12 to 5 p.m., $2 to $5.75. Dinner 5:30 to 9 p.m., Sundays from noon, $2.50 to $5.75. Guest accommodations are furnished in early American antiques.



GRISWOLD INN
and the UPPER DECK
ESSEX, CONNECTICUT

. . . a must for every vacationer to the Connecticut shores this year . . . a visit to the historic Griswold Inn or the beautiful Upper Deck. Scrumptious foods and the finest refreshments assured all . . . and the quiet refinement of the Griswold, an authentic Colonial inn dating from 1776, or the unusual and picturesque harbor edge locale of the Upper Deck on the Steamboat Dock . . . both a delightful treat in the unusual and the beautiful.

Overnight accommodations available at the GRISWOLD INN.

COME FOR THE WEEKEND
OUTPOST INN
Rte 35, Ridgefield, Conn • Idlewood 8-2613
Featuring Continental Specialties of Commanding Superiority • Air-conditioned Facilities for Parties • Dancing
Open Every Day — New Swimming Pool

Old Riverton Inn
Hospitality Since 1796
"For the Hungry, Thirsty or Sleepy!"
Route 20 4 Miles Northeast of Winsted, Conn.
Open All Year Tel. Winsted, Frontier 9-8078

zygmunt's
Excellent Continental Cuisine
Dinner Music — Hungarian Quartet
OPEN SUNDAYS — GREENWICH, CONN.

CONLEY
YANKEE PEDLAR INN
TORRINGTON, CONN.
French-American Cuisine
ATTRACTIVE GUEST ACCOMMODATIONS
Open Every Day • Hunter 9-9226

Darius [illegible]. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants [illegible] by a committee including Mrs. Helen [illegible] accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

• FIFTH ANNUAL
NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL
THURSDAY · FRIDAY · SATURDAY
SUNDAY · JULY 3-4-5-6
· A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION ·
Evening Concerts — 8:30 P. M.
THURSDAY — DUKE ELLINGTON TRIBUTE Duke Ellington Orchestra, Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck 4, Paul Desmond, Marian McPartland 3, Miles Davis 6, Cannonball Adderly, Gerry Mulligan, Rex Stewart, with Ellington Alumni All-Stars, and others.
FRIDAY — BENNY GOODMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA plus All-Star talent array.
SATURDAY — "BLUES IN THE NIGHT" — Gerry Mulligan 4, Joe Turner, Pete Johnson, Ray Charles, Chuck Berry, Big Maybelle, Art Farmer, Jack Teagarden, Jo Jones, Buck Clayton, Georgie Auld, Dakota Staton, Maynard Ferguson Orchestra, and at midnight, Miss Mahalia Jackson, and others.
SUNDAY: LOUIS ARMSTRONG ALL-STARS plus International Youth Band, Dinah Washington, Billy Eckstine, George Shearing 5, Jack Teagarden, Bobby Hackett, Max Roach, Chris Connor, Terry Gibbs, Urbie Green, Don Elliott, and others.
Friday-Saturday-Sunday Afternoon
Concerts: 2:30–$1.50 General Admission
Friday Afternoon–International Youth Band, Marshall Brown, conductor; Jimmy Giuffre 3, John LaPorta 4, and others.
Saturday Afternoon – "Critic's Choice" Program to be announced.
Sunday Afternoon – Sonny Rollins 3, Thelonius Monk, Horace Silver 5, Les Jazz Modes, Anita O'Day, Lee Konitz, Sal Salvador, Tony Scott, and others.
• Directed by George Wein •
ALL SEATS RESERVED
$5, $4, $3 per concert
MAIL ORDERS NOW!
We urge you to order your seats by mail immediately. Thousands were disappointed last year by failing to do so.
Add 25c on Mail Orders
Write: JAZZ, NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND
For Tickets in New York City:
National Theatre Tickets, Empire State Bldg.

NEWPORT, R. I.
White Horse Tavern
Serving Good Rhode Island Fare
Open Daily for Lunch and Dinner
VIKING 7-7767
"OLDEST TAVERN IN AMERICA"

MUENCHINGER KING HOTEL
For The Ultimate in Comfort and Elegance BELLEVUE AVENUE, NEWPORT, R. I.
VIKING 7-3700

THE LOBSTER POT
"Seafood At Its Best"
R. I. ROUTE #114
BRISTOL, R. I.

Cobb's Mill Inn—Weston (Capital 7-7221) Merritt Pkway Exit 42, then 4 miles north on Rte. 57. A truly country atmosphere surrounds this picturesque and historic 200-year-old grist mill on a little lake with a grand waterfall. The downstairs bar and cocktail lounge with its handsome pewter bar, the new indoor terrace, as well as the outdoor terrace overlook the falls. Handsome antiques abound in the restaurant and the food is traditional New England, with a specialty each day. A feature is the Sunday family dinner, noon to 4 p.m., at $2.50. Desserts are pretty special, too. Dancing Friday from 9 p.m. with a dancing charge of $1.50 per couple. Dinner only 5:30 to 11 p.m., $3.25 to $4.75; Sunday dinner 12 to 9 p.m., $2.50 to $5.75.

Cella's—Ridgefield (Lincoln 4-8386) No fuss and feathers here, but there's some excellent Northern Italian specialties to enjoy in the homey and immaculate little restaurant. You won't go wrong on the hearty antipasto, the freshly baked lasagna or shrimp marinara, but save some room for the delicious home-made pastry and pie. Mr. Cella is an expert with a martini and has won a fine reputation hereabouts. Special luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., $1.25 to $2. Dinner 3 to 10 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8:30, $2.50 to $5.25. A la carte all day, entrees $1.50 to $2.25. Closed Tuesdays. Air conditioned.

Spinning Wheel—Redding Ridge (Webster 8-2511) Exit 45 Merritt Pkway, north on Rte. 58. For 33 years now, people have come to this inn to partake of some pretty fine traditional American cooking. The original house is over 200 years old and surrounded by lovely trees, rock gardens and flowers. There's quite a menu and all well prepared. Charcoal-broiled specialties head the list with steaks, chicken, buttered lobster and Williamsburg chicken pie always on the menu. Delicious breads and desserts are all homemade. Thursday night is country supper and on Friday a Mariner's supper, both at $2.75. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., $1.85 up. Dinner 5 to 8 p.m., Sunday 12 to 4:30 and 5 to 8 p.m., $2.75 to $5. No liquor. Reservations advised weekends. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Stonehenge—Ridgefield (Idlewood 8-6511) Rte. 7. Exit 40 Merritt Pkway. You'll love this charming old house set amid green lawns, stately trees with its very own lake. Within, it's filled with handsome antiques and there are guest accommodations with full hotel service if you want to stay on for a while. Fine, too, is the French-American cuisine and service set out by "skinker" Victor Gilbert. Delightful specialties such as creamed cannelloni au gratin, and traditional Stonehenge sirloin steak. There's a handsome formal dining room, the informal Druid Bar where a pianist makes things gay, and a delightful canopied terrace for cocktails. Luncheon 12:30 to 5 p.m., $2 to $4. Dinner 5:30 to 11 p.m. (later weekends), Sunday 1 to 8:30 p.m., a la carte entrees $3 up. Air conditioned.

The Elms Inn—Ridgefield (Idlewood 8-2541) 163 Main St. Exit 40 Merritt Pkway. At this charming inn, built in 1799, the Scala family set forth their fine Continental fare in a gracious atmosphere. The pretty dining rooms, bar and cocktail lounge are tastefully decorated in early American and all air conditioned. For al fresco diners, there's a grand porch. If you go on a weekend, I highly recommend the Chicken Ridgefield—the half bird boned, cooked with butter and wine, served on a thin crepe. For other days, there's quite a choice—frogs' legs, scampi Romani, Cornish game hen. Be sure, too, to have the excellent paté for appetizer. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.75 up. Dinner 6 to 9:30 p.m., Sundays 12:30 to 9 p.m., $3 to $7. Air conditioned. There are guest accommodations here.

Fox Hill—Ridgefield (Idlewood 8-2628) Rte. 7. Exit 40 Merritt Pkway. At the end of a curving driveway through beautiful grounds sits this elegant hilltop inn. An atmosphere of luxury surrounds you the minute you enter the large hall—in the flower-filled living rooms, the guest accommodations and gracious dining room. There's a glorious view from the terrace beside the pool where you may sip a cocktail or two. The menu is Continental and I particularly recommend the capon smitane or filet de boeuf, Perigourdine if you have no particular choice of your own. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $2 to $4.50. Dinner 6 to 9:30 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8:30 p.m., $4.50 to $8. Also a la carte. Air conditioned. Open daily till November.

Tode's Inn—Ridgefield (Idlewood 8-8282) Merritt Pkway Exit 40 to Rte. 7 to 35. The Continental atmosphere, excellent service and superb cuisine is an experience you shouldn't miss. Walter Tode, one of the top chefs in the country, is justly proud of his fine menu and excellent wine cellar, and is passing on his know-how to his classes in gourmet cooking and wine study at Cornell. You, too, can enjoy the special Thursday night gourmet dinner with classical cuisine prepared by Mr. T. This for $5.50, so make a reservation. The excellent menu has many entrees, but I suggest East-West curried breast of turkey, broiled jumbo squab, or game in season. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.75 to $4—do have the blinis a la reine. Dinner 6 to 10, Sunday 12 to 9, $3.75 to $7.50. Also a la carte. Sunday there's Bruncheon 12 to 3, with music. Air conditioned.

Outpost Inn—Ridgefield (Idlewood 8-2613) You are welcome to spend a night, a weekend or a long vacation at the Tramer's pretty country inn. The house is furnished in early American antiques and there's a view of the beautiful grounds from the pleasant dining rooms. Guest accommodations across the road are charming and comfortable. Swiss-born Mr. Tramer has spent many years in the restaurant business both here and abroad and offers a varied Continental menu—sauerbraten, frogs' legs, Cornish hen among others. Service is continuous from 11:45 a.m. with a special luncheon till 3 p.m., $1.75 to $3.50. Dinner 5 to 10 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $3.50 to $6.50. There's a pleasant cocktail lounge for before or after dinner sipping. Air conditioned.

El Dorado—Danbury (Pioneer 3-6375) 152 West St. on Rte. 6. It is always gratifying to visit a restaurant where the whole family takes an interest and here is just such a place. Mama Lariccia's family make an efficient team with son John as general manager, Carmella the hostess and Frances keeping an eye on the spotless kitchen and salad pantry. I liked the lovely Lido Room with its soft green-blue furnishings, crystal chandeliers, grand fireplace and elegant air, but had lunch in the informal Neapolitan Room with its nice dark woods, cool greens and indirect lighting. I can assure you of fine Italian-American food. There are many top-notch selections on the menu. Service 12 to 10 p.m., a la carte entrees $1 up. Dinner in Lido Room 5 to 9 p.m., Sunday from 12, entrees $1.50 up. Air conditioned.

Gassner's—Danbury (Pioneer 6-2930) Rte 37. There's a lovely view of the Marjorie Reservoir from the hilltop where this inn perches. Surrounded by trees and colorful flowers, the inn has a trim, sparkling appearance without, and is charming within with large picture windows. The Gassner family are responsible for the consistent goodness of the American-Continental menu they have served during the past 11 years and the accent is on roast beef, broiled lobster, Cornish hen and steaks. Delicious homemade bread and desserts round out the menu. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.50 to $2.50. Dinner 5:30 to 9:30 p.m., Sundays noon to 8 p.m., $3 to $5.75. Air conditioned.

White Turkey Inn—Danbury (Spring 5-9125) Rte. 7. This charming inn, built in 1760, is surrounded by acres of lovely wooded land and the dining room windows overlook a little lake. In keeping with its Colonial heritage, the furnishings are early American, the tables set with colored glass and candle-light lanterns. The outdoor terrace is a popular place in clement weather. Regional American cooking is the ticket here with accent on roast turkey, lobster among the 23 dinners on the menu. A fine Seafarer's dinner is featured Friday nights, $3.25 up. Do visit the Gift and Gourmet shop while you are here. Luncheon 12 to 4:30 p.m., $1.95 to $3.25. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m., Sunday from noon, $3.25 to $6.50.

Yankee Drover Inn—Newtown (Garden 6-4401) Merritt Pkway Exit 49 to Rte. 25. This house dating from 1885 is one of the famous Yankee inns (Wallingford; Holyoke and Storrowtown in Mass.) whose reputation for good New England cuisine has spread far and wide. The large, roomy dining quarters and bar are beautifully decorated with colorful wallpapers and old polished pine furnishings. The bill of fare features good old Yankee dishes like baked stuffed lobster, steaks, turkey, salads, creamed chicken and tempting desserts. Special luncheon 12 to 2:30, $1; others $1.30 to $2. Dinner 5 to 9, Sundays noon to 8 p.m., $2.50 to $5.50.

Hawley Manor Inn—Newtown (Garden 6-4427) Main St. Merritt Pkway Exit 49 to Rte. 25. Many changes have been wrought at this charming old inn, and it attracts an ever-increasing circle of friends who enjoy the hospitality of Ken and Ruth Hathaway. I fell in love with the grand new dining room with its wonderful fireplace and smart setting and if you plan a party or reception, there's a new room downstairs. Up-to-date accommodations are yours if you want to spend some time in this pretty countryside. American food heads the menu and is mighty good with such things as tenderloin tips en brochette, lobster Newburg and the like, followed by an array of homemade pastries. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 95¢ to $2. Dinner 5:30 to 9 p.m., Sunday 12:30 to 4 p.m., $2.50 to $4.50. Sunday night buffet, 5 to 8 p.m. at $3 is most popular. Cozy, intimate cocktail lounge.

Timber Trails Inn—Sherman (New Milford Elgin 4-6627) Merritt Pkway Exit 40 to Rte. 7 to 37. Located in the beautiful Timber Trails preserve, this gracious country inn is much like a private club. Lovely furnishings are set against handsome wallpapers, and the dining rooms are intimate. There's a dining porch that overlooks the lake and rolling hills. Lakes for canoeing, fishing and swimming, trails for hiking or horseback riding, tennis courts and other sports are on the premises. The cuisine is Continental-American. Luncheon 12:30 to 2 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.50 to $2.75. Dinner 6:30 to 8 p.m., $3.25 to $4.50. Saturday and Sunday there's a buffet luncheon at $2.75. American plan rates $76 to $103 per person per week. Be sure to make reservations in advance.

La Grotta Inn—New Preston (Washington-Underhill 8-7820) A perfectly charming, homelike atmosphere makes this an ideal place for a vacation. Informality in congenial company is the theme, for there are accommodations for only 60. The rooms are light, airy and comfortable, and the lounge is like your own living room. There's a swimming pool, tennis and riding as well

PARK&T
DISTILLERS AND IMPORTERS OF FINE
P&
A traditional guest in
A BLEND OF STRAIGHT WHISKEYS • 86 PROOF •

LARCHWOOD INN
For the discriminating traveller. The ultimate in comfort of accommodation and excellence of cuisine.
Luncheon — Dinner — Cocktails
Charming Guest Rooms
Mr. & Mrs. H. CAMERON, Innkeepers
176 Main St., Wakefield, R.I. Sterling 3-5454

THE COUNTRY SQUIRE
INN and SHOP
Halfway between N. Y. and Boston
On Rte. 80 at Killingworth, Conn.
LUNCHEON • BAR • DINNER
Conn. Tpke. Exit 63 to Rte. 81 to Traffic Circle
Closed Mon. ex. Hols. Montrose 9-2986

The Castle
Located on a promontory in Narragansett Bay. — We are unique in location and atmosphere.
WARREN, R. I. • TEL: CLIFFORD 3-9806

Red Door Restaurant
Intimacy, Charm, Continental Cuisine
LUNCH or DINNER
50 William St., Newport, R.I. • Viking 7-9696

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD

Summer Jazz Concer
Through U. S. Fron

By ROSS PAR

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz ance), [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

---

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. [illegible] was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen [illegible] seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

OHIO

3

58 sical Events

vel-Minded

list is [illegible] to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

[40]

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

---

as other sports, and nearby is beautiful Lake Waramaug for boating and fishing. The knotty pine dining room is open to transients who might like to partake of the abundant meals (Italian-American) prepared by Stella La Grotta. American plan rates are $54 to $84 per person per week and there are daily rates. Luncheon 12 to 1 p.m., $2 to $3. Dinner 6 to 7 p.m., $3 to $4; Sundays 12:30 to 2 p.m. & 6:30 to 7:30, $3.50 to $4.

The Eight Friendly Inns—New Preston. This group of inns includes The Inn, Hopkins Inn, Tinker Hill, The Boulders, Pinnacle Valley, La Grotta, Loomarwick and the Sachem. All are situated on or near Lake Waramaug, jewel-like in a setting of gorgeous wooded hills. Each inn has its particular features and you may obtain information on them by writing to The Eight Friendly Inns, New Preston, Conn.

Westleigh Inn—Litchfield (Jordan 7-8744) Merritt Pkway to Rte. 7 to 25. A gracious way of life is the keynote at this lovely old house with its rolling lawns and huge old trees. Either the formal, well-appointed dining rooms or the terrace and outdoor Dining Deck are delightful places to enjoy the excellent Continental cuisine. There are many good choices, but I suggest you try the duckling with fruit sauce au cointreau, the special lobster Westleigh, the blinis stuffed with Alaskan king crab meat, flavored with sherry and topped with hollandaise. You will find a fine selection of wines to complement your meal. There are very nice accommodations for the vacation-minded and a private beach on nearby Bantam Lake for house guests. Luncheon 12 to 2:15 p.m., $2 to $3.75. Dinner 6 to 9 p.m., $2.50 to $6.75. Sunday dinner 12:30 to 8 p.m. And don't forget July 12 when the lovely old houses in Litchfield are open for benefit of the Connecticut Junior Republic.

Carter's at Litchfield—Litchfield (Jordan 7-9461) Gorgeous velvety lawns, huge trees and gardens surround one of the loveliest Tudor houses I've visited. Within the wide halls and spacious rooms are full of the gracious charm of another era and most relaxing. The Book & Bottle, with its handsome wood paneling, fireplace and comfortable chairs is just the place to enjoy a cocktail or after-dinner drink. The French menu suggests fresh Florida pompano, broiled sweetbreads Virginia, duckling au cointreau, steaks and roast beef, all well-prepared and served. The accommodations are first-rate with commodious rooms. Now there's a swimming pool for house guests to enjoy. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.25 to $3. Dinner 6 to 9:30, Sunday 12 to 8 p.m., $2.75 to $5.75.

Yankee Pedlar — Torrington (Hunter 9-9226) In the Conley Inn. Here you will find good bed and board at this inn opened in 1891. The restaurant derives its name from the ancient gentleman who travelled the land peddling tin, then clocks and other products for which Naugatuck Valley became famous. The public rooms are air conditioned as well as a goodly number of the bedrooms. Swiss-born Alfred Siegrist, with his substantial background at well-known hotels, is innkeeper and provides an excellent American and French menu. Sunday night there's a sumptuous buffet, and Friday night lobster is featured. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.50 to $2. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m., $2 to $5; Sundays from noon, $2.85 to $5.

Farnam Tavern — Lakeville (Hemlock 5-9030) Rte. 44. This inn dates from 1735 and has been handsomely renovated and redecorated. The pretty little town is surrounded by lovely countryside and sparkling lakes. It is not far either from Lime Rock where sports car races are held. Antique furnishings, gay checkered curtains keep the Colonial flavor and I love the narrow dining room with its settees made of wide old floor boards. Nancy and Dick Duffy, the new innkeepers, are charming hosts and their menu, written on little slates, though not extensive, is very good. You will note such delicacies as the beef a la mode, trout, the popular fried chicken and steaks, and they have grand homemade French bread and corn bread. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.25 to $2. Dinner 5:30 to 10 p.m., Sundays from 12:30 p.m. $2.75 to $5.50. Closed Mondays.

Ragamont Inn — Salisbury (Hemlock 5-2372) Rte. 44. Tall white columns grace this handsome inn built in 1800 and it is surrounded by magnificent old maple trees. Charming dining rooms with beautiful old fireplaces are decorated in soft blues with Federal-patterned draperies, lovely table settings. If you care to, you may dine on the screened terrace with its plastic glass roof. J. Dean and Marcia Hammond are gracious hosts and serve an excellent menu of American cookery. You will find such delights as Alaska king crab, chicken a la Maryland or baked in cream on the daily changes, and the vegetables are perfectly cooked. To supplement this goodness, there are delicious homemade rolls, muffins and pastries. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $2.75. Dinner 6 to 8:30 p.m., $2.25 to $5. Sunday dinner from noon, $2.50 up. No liquor is served. There are guest accommodations.

North of New Haven

Carriage Drive—Hamden (Atwater 8-9346) Whitney Ave. exit 61 from Wilbur Cross Pkway. Possibly one of the most handsomely decorated restaurants you have ever seen. The decor in the French Room is exquisite in soft lovely colors with beautiful antiques and silver, the Oriental Room a delight in color and furnishings, and there's an Early American Room. Wherever you choose to sit, there is the same fine menu with accent on steaks, chops, chicken, but why not try the Danish prawns as a change or a plump Rock Cornish game hen. Of course, you will want to sip cocktails in the fascinating Drum Lounge, the tables made from antique drums, the doors flanked by huge gay, fat, Austrian-made figures. Luncheon from 12 to 3 p.m., $1.50 to $2. Dinner 5 to 9:30 p.m., Saturdays till 10:30 p.m., Sundays noon to 8:30 p.m., $2.50 to $5.50. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Sanford Barn—Hamden (Chestnut 8-7920) Exit 61 Wilbur Cross Pkway to Whitney Ave. to Sanford St. This picturesque inn by the side of a lake and waterfall is always a delight to visit. I love the relaxing atmosphere, the Provincial decor as one dines by candlelight. As you watch out the windows, or sit on the terrace below the falls, you might see a bevy of little white ducks swimming on the floodlit lake. Now there is the new East Barn just across the waterfall, a grand spot for parties, and the Upstairs East Gallery for smaller gatherings and exhibits. Speaking of food, that's tops here, too. The open kitchen produces excellent charcoal broilings—steak, seafood and the like—as well as luscious scampi and other specialties. Dinner only 5 to 9 p.m., $2.25 to $5.25. Service bar. Air conditioned. Closed Sundays.

Yankee Silversmith—Wallingford (Colony 9-8771) Exit 66 Wilbur Cross Pkway. This restaurant is one of the famous Yankee restaurants and if it's good New England cooking you're looking for, stop right here. Authentic old beams are used throughout the transformed bar and in the sizable dining rooms—all handsomely furnished with early American antiques. Small rooms are charming with fine old wallpapers and prints. Hearty meals, excellently prepared give a choice of steak, lobster, roast beef, turkey, chicken and ham as well as seafood. The desserts are luscious including my favorite baked Indian pudding. Luncheon 1 to 4 p.m., $1.10 to $2.75. Dinner 11:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sundays 12 to 9 p.m., $2.85 to $6. Tap Room for potables.

---

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Yale Motor Inn—Wallingford (Colony 9-1491) Exit 66 Wilbur Cross Pkway. An excellent resort type motel right across the street from the Yankee Silversmith and under the Yankee management. Handsomely decorated rooms, with television, phones. The Gate Lounge is equally well decorated and here you may have morning coffee—included in the room charge. There are more units in the making, and there will be a swimming pool, nine-hole putting green, shuffle board and children's play area. To boot, there's a baby sitting service. Rates for singles $7.75 to $9, double $12 to $15, and no tipping.

Manero's Steak House—Berlin (New Britain—VA 8-9838) Wilbur Cross Pkway. A modern restaurant in this famous chain of steak houses, and a grand place with its nicely decorated dining room, tablecloths and attentive service. The new cocktail lounge is most decorative with colored modern chairs, a little fountain in front of the large glass windows, and a good sized bar decked out in black and white hide. Here there is entertainment nightly by the Hermie Dressel jazz group. The same famous steak dinners are served—the filet mignon at $4.25, T-bone at $4.75, prime ribs of beef at $4. There's lobster, fish, chicken and chop dinners, too. Special lunches 12 to 4 p.m., a la carte entrees $1 to $2.25. Dinner 4 to 10 p.m., Sundays from noon. Air conditioned.

The Hearthstone—Hartford (Chapel 6-8075) 680 Maple Ave. In the ten years this restaurant has been open, it has won a popular vote from all for its excellent food. Your host, genial Mike Perretta, creates a friendly atmosphere in this attractive dining spot. The large room is divided but each side has a view of the open kitchen and grill hung with shiny copper pots and wine bottles. I can vouch for the steaks broiled over hickory logs as well as the delicious baked stuffed jumbo shrimp or broiled lobster stuffed with crabment and shrimp. There's a dandy luncheon 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., $1.75 to $2.50. Dinner 5 to 11, Sundays 12 to 9 p.m., $3.50 to $5.75. Air conditioned.

The Corner House—Farmington (Orchard 7-0738) Rte. 10. Mike Perretta of the Hearthstone in Hartford is the new innkeeper at the charming country house, and if the quality of the food and service is anything like the Hearthstone, this is sure to be one of the most popular places in the neighborhood. The old house has several intimate dining rooms delightfully decorated and there's a wood paneled cocktail lounge next to a good looking room set with captains chairs. Luncheon from noon, $1.75 up. Dinner 5 to 10 p.m., Sundays 12 to 9 p.m. with specials at $3.25. Closed Tuesdays.

Old Farms Inn—Avon (Farmington Orchard 7-1969) Junction Rtes. 10 & 44. This fine 200-year-old inn rambles ad infinitum, its series of dining rooms and entrance halls literally filled with early Americana. In the historic Old Forge Room, the horse stalls are put to good use as booths and the service bar has its old fashioned cage to shut down at closing time. A new private room for a dinner party is charming with lovely wallpaper, chandelier and furnishings. The menu is American with a fillip of Continental, but the lobsters and steak are the most popular and really delicious. There are comfortable guest accommodations upstairs. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.50 to $3. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m.,

Read the book . .

If you've looked forward to repeat vi an honored, well-dined guest at one o many Treadway Inns, this is your ch to capture that hope more often righ your own home. Over 500 Treadwa recipes . . . delicious French accents f traditional American fare. It's the b treasure for dining pleasure. Five d from your bookstore, any Treadway an autographed copy direct from Tre
Inns, Framingham, Massachusetts.

. . . then Eat the M

Norwalk, Conn.
Treadway Inn
Annapolis, Md.
Treadway Maryland Inn
Asheville, N.C.
Treadway Manor

*Florida Inns not listed

Willia
Wi
Amh
The Sturb
Pu
Winch
Toy
And A Frami
Treadu
Edga
Trea
V

Plan a tion or Write

Trea
Framingham

Springtime, Summertime, A BERKSHI
Year-round vacationland in MA

There's MORE of everything fun, relaxation and sc
Tanglewood Music Festiva and Jazz Festival. For listing

For color brochure, write

8 friendly INNS invite you to LAKE WARAMAUG
in the Berkshires — 2 hours from New York
Write for Vacation details
LAKE WARAMAUG RESORT ASSOC.
Box 86C, New Preston, Conn.

The Red Lion Inn
Red Lion Inn
STOCKBRIDGE 10, MASS. • Tel. Stockbridge 46

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2[illegible] 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I, which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Giannini's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

---

ance), a new work, [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen

---

[illegible] seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

OHIO

58 sical Events

vel-Minded

list is travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

[40]

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Sundays 12 to 8 p.m., $2.75 to $5. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Old Riverton Inn—Riverton (Winsted Frontier 9-8078) Rte. 20. This old inn, built in 1796 as a stagecoach stop, looks pretty as a picture with its new coat of gray-blue, decked with deep rich red trim. Within there's a gracious charm in the dining quarters, especially the Grindstone Terrace, the old millstones used for flooring, the brick walls hung with old fashioned shutters and flowers actually growing in the bay. Elegant Victorian furnishings with hand-done needlepoint deck the upstairs sitting room, where house guests may relax. There are charming guest accommodations with all the modern conveniences. The American cuisine is top-notch—Southern fried chicken with pecans and the like. A buffet is served every Wednesday night and is very popular. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.35 up. Dinner 5 to 8:30 p.m., Sundays 12 to 8 p.m., $2.75 up.

Eastward from New Haven

The Montowese House—Branford (HU 8-2558) On Indian Neck off Rte. 1. This resort has been in the Noble family since before the Civil War and is a classic example of the rococo architecture of the 1860's. It is right on Long Island Sound, has a fine beach, tennis courts, golf nearby. The accommodations are comfortable, there's a cocktail lounge, dancing every night. American plan rates from $70 up per week. Opens June 30.

Chello Oyster House—Guilford (Glendale 3-2670) Rte. 1. Exit 58 Conn. Tpke. As snug a little harbor as you could want, this immaculate shining white restaurant. The cozy dining room is rimmed with fascinating Colonial settles, and all is sparkling white, too. The better to show off the enormous stuffed lobster in a glass case on the wall. Seafood, of course, is the thing here—my favorite picked out lobster sauteed in butter, Block Island swordfish, shrimp, soft shell crab. Besides there's chicken, steak and chops. There's delicious homemade bread and pies—the lemon meringue is a real production. Luncheon 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. has a good a la carte selection 75¢ to $1.25. Complete dinners 11 a.m. to 7:45 p.m., $2.75 to $4. Closed Tuesdays.

Country Squire Inn—Killingsworth (Clinton Montrose 9-2986) Conn. Tpke. Exit 63 to Rte. 81 to Circle. I never tire looking at the fine collection of antiques that decorate Robert Glenn's picturesque country restaurant, and can hardly tear myself away from the shop out back in the converted barn—there are simply wonderful things to buy. The dining rooms are delightful and there's a stone terrace outdoors with umbrellaed tables, with floodlights in the trees by night. You'll dine well on such delicious tidbits as lobster bluenose, soft shell crabs, chicken pies, but do try the jellied madrilene dressed up with sour cream and parmesan cheese. Luncheon, 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.50 to $2.50. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8:30 p.m., $3.50 to $5.50. Closed Mondays.

Griswold Inn—Essex (South 7-8875) Conn. Tpke Exit 65 from N.Y., 67 from Boston. This fine inn dates from 1776 and has been in the Lovell family some 130 years. Located on the Connecticut River, it once saw steam boats ply the waters. Note the fine collection of Currier & Ives prints of steamboats that cover the walls of the Tap Room (the first schoolhouse in Essex) and Covered Bridge Room. Delightful, too, is the Waterfall Room with its real waterfall tinkling over the rocks. No matter which room you choose, the food will be of first rate quality. I love the delicately fried tiny bay scallops and the sauteed lobster. But you might prefer charcoal broiled steaks and such. Homemade desserts are special, too, and for me it's the prune ice cream. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 65¢ to $1.75. Dinner 6 to 9, Sunday 1 to 3 and 6 to 8 p.m., $2.95 to $5.50. The Waterfall and Tap Rooms are air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

The Upper Deck—Essex (South 7-1081) On Steamboat Dock. Conn. Tpke Exit 65 from N.Y., 67 from Boston. Operated by the Lovells of Griswold Inn, this summer dining spot is open from June 18 till Labor Day. On the upper deck of an old dock, there is a wonderful view of the Connecticut River from the wide windows on three sides. A nautical air is gained by the colorful draperies printed with boats, the bright red of the furnishings and glassware. Admire, too, the intriguing bar from the old S.S. Priscilla as you sip cocktails on the Poop Deck. There are summer dishes as well as steaks and two-pound lobsters. Luncheon 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., $1.75 up. Dinner 6 to 10 p.m., Sunday 2 to 10 p.m., $2.75 up. Closed Tuesdays.

Barbizon Oak—Old Lyme (General 4-1190) Main St. Conn. Tpke Exit 70. This is a charming old Colonial house where stands the famous old Barbizon oak tree, depicted by many artists whose work may be seen in the Lyme Art Gallery across the road. The lush Black and Gold cocktail lounge is modern and a pianist entertains at the piano bar. The dining room now has a beamed peaked ceiling instead of the all-glass of the former Starlight Room, and makes an intimate setting for dining on the specialties of the house. Seafood a la poulet is one of the chef's prime concoctions and good it is served with wild rice. Scampi, pot au feu are others along with prime steaks and lobster. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.25 to $2. Dinner 5 to 10 p.m., $3 to $5.50. There are very nice, but limited, guest accommodations. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

The Lighthouse Inn—New London (Gibson 3-8411) Conn. Tpke to Montauk Ave. to Lower Blvd. A perfectly delightful place for a vacation or to drop in for a meal. The inn overlooks the Sound and there's a fine view from the attractive dining rooms. Paintings by local artists are displayed in the beautiful Captain's Gallery where you will want to linger over cocktails or after-dinner drinks. The lounge, too, is newly decorated in smart yellow and blue with lovely draperies patterned with Mystic Seaport scenes. Guest rooms in the main house or Keeper's Lodge are modern and handsomely decorated and there's a fine private beach for house guests. The menu is American with excellent twin lobsters, steak and roast beef favorites. Luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., $1.50 to $3. Dinner 5 to 9 p.m., Saturdays till 10:30 p.m., Sundays 12 to 9 p.m., $2.50 to $5.50. There's dancing Saturday night from 9 p.m. Be sure to make reservations well in advance.

Skipper's Dock—Noank (Jefferson 6-7561) Conn. Tpke to Rte. 84 to 215. This jolly seafood house is right out on a wharf with a grand view of the Sound. Far out on the end is the newly enlarged cocktail lounge, with a red, white and blue setting. Upstairs and down, the dining rooms carry out the nautical theme, and outside take a look at the canopied and lighted tank full of lobsters. What else would you have but seafood. Every denizen of the deep is offered (steaks, chicken and such, too). Why not try the Skipper's Own Shore Dinner at $6 if you're in the mood for hearty eating. Special lunches 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., $2 to $3. Dinner served all day, Sundays 12 to 9 p.m., $3.50 to $6.

Seaport Manor—Stonington (6-2248) Rte. 1. This old house, facing the water and a short way from Mystic Seaport, has nice dining rooms with a nautical theme in decoration—one room with Seven Seas wallpaper, another with large white stone fireplace, ships' lights. A pleasant and cozy cocktail lounge is made from the old library with its lovely wood and wallpaper depicting famous naval men. Seafood is a specialty along with chops and steak. Dinner served all day, $2.75 to $4.50. Special luncheon 12 to 3 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.45 to $3.75.

Rhode Island

This minute corner of New England is a happy blend of old and new, of contemporary and traditional. More than 400 miles of coastline makes it ideal for swimming, yachting and fishing, and there are scenic woodlands as well as many lakes. Nearby Block Island is a wonderful vacationland. The ferry from Point Judity makes two trips daily at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., except Sunday (7 p.m. Fridays and July 3).

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

The fifth annual Newport Jazz Festival takes place July 3-6 in Freebody Park (see feature story, page 13). On August 2 and 3, the annual Carnival of Music will be held in Newport, with stars of stage, screen and TV.

America's Cup Races beginning September 20 are the big mid-summer feature starting with the preliminary trials for 12-meter class at Newport, July 12-19. The Observation trials are tentatively set for August 16-23 off Newport, with the final trials Sept. 1.

Horse racing starts at Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, June 30, runs till July 26.

The Newport Motor Car Festival with antique, custom and sports cars will be held June 20-22. . . . On August 19, the Classic Car Club of America will pass through on Route 138, stopping for lunch in Newport.

Regarding clambakes, the East Warren Rod and Gun Club invite tourists and visitors to their weekly Sunday bakes June 22 through September 7.

Don't forget the 16th annual Tuna Tournament tentatively set for mid-August in the Block Island waters.

Although there are many points of interest throughout the state, we mention these in Newport as outstanding: "The Breakers," built in 1895 for Cornelius Vanderbilt; "Belcourt," the O.H.P. Belmont mansion. Admission charge for each. Trinity Church, built in 1726; Touro Synagogue, built in 1763, is the oldest in America; National Tennis Hall of Fame; the Wanton-Lyman-Hazard House, Abram Rodriques Rivera House, Old Colony House, Hunter House.

A complete calendar of Rhode Island events and places of interest may be obtained by writing to Rhode Island Development Council, State House, Providence.

London
1742 IMPORTED WHITBREAD
PALE ALE
"H
WHITE
IMPORTED
"Che
MACK IMPORTED E
Gen. U.S. Importers: VAN MUNCHING & CO., I

WALTER K. TODE'S
The Inn
at Ridgefield, Conn.
since 1947
OPEN EVERY DAY
(Sunday Brunch from 12 to 3)
Delicious continenta dishes, deftly served. A superb selectio of rare wine and liquors
RES: IDlewood 8-8282

SANFORD BARN-HAMDEN
Wilbur Cross Parkway Exit 60. Dining by candlelight. Cocktails by the waterfall. Superb Continental-American cuisine. Famous for Pecan pie. Visit Sanford Barn East across covered bridge for special events, art exhibits. Dinner only 5-9 P. M. $2.75 to $5.25.
CLOSED SUNDAYS
(New Haven CH. 8-7920)

LUNCHEON • DINNER • COCKTAILS
The Truly Continental Restaurant
Werner's
in Westport, Connecticut
27 ELM STREET • Tel.: CAPITAL 7-5077

Yankee Pedlar
Old-Fashioned Food, Drink and Lodging
Open Every Day
Holyoke, Mass.
U. S. Routes 202 and 5

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

---

ance), a new work [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen [illegible] seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

sical Events
vel-Minded

list is [illegible] to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

Johnson's Hummocks—Providence (WI 1-6878) 245 Allens Ave. This restaurant, founded in 1905, features seafood and steaks. It is large and rambling with many dining rooms—the main in light decor, the plush Prime Rib Room, the nautical Neptune Room and a cocktail lounge and bar with yachting pennants. In an adventurous mood, I tried the fried clam cakes and found them delicious and grand with cocktails. Followed these with excellent imperial jumbo stuffed shrimp. These you will find on the special plates. Roast prime ribs of beef at $3.75 and $4.25 served with Yorkshire pudding, baked potato, relishes and salad bowl is the ticket in the Prime Rib Room. Luncheon 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., 85c to $1.40. Dinner 3 to 1 a.m., $1.40 to $3.25; Sunday 12 to 8 p.m., from $2.25. Also, a la carte. Air conditioned.

Lobster Pot—Bristol (Clifford 3-9100) 119 Hope St. Rte. 114. A sea-faring restaurant, simple and down to earth, over-looking Bristol Harbor. The nautical decorations feature the stern plates of America Cup Defenders—Ranger, Rainbow, Yankee and Vanitie. Naturally, the accent is on seafood, and I can say it's darned good—I had delicious steamed clams and a rosy lobster to work on. The lobster, by the way, are fresh from the running salt water tanks in the kitchen. Dinner only 5 to 9 p.m., Sundays 1 to 8 p.m., $1.75 to $5.50 and a la carte. Closed Mondays.

The Castle—Bristol (Clifford 3-9806) A new restaurant on a promontory overlooking Narragansett Bay with the appearance of a medieval castle. There is an enclosed terrace with a sunken bar and very comfortable seating, and a museum. The menu is made up of steaks and chops and lobster served in several different ways. The restaurant is open from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Muenchinger King Hotel—Newport (Viking 7-3700) Bellevue Ave. Famous since it was built in 1885, this year-round hotel is both charming and old-fashioned. Guest accommodations are on European plan, and the dining room is open to the public from 7:30 a.m. till 11 p.m. with a la carte prices.

The Red Door—Newport (Viking 7-9696) On one of Newport's tiny side streets, this restaurant is quite charming once inside. To add to the charm, the walls are hung with an exhibition of oils by various New England artists. The Petersons specialize in Continental cuisine with emphasis on lobster casserole maison, homemade Swedish cocktail sauce, schnitzel Holstein, home cured salmon and marinated herring. There is no liquor except domestic and imported wines and sherries. As it is small, reservations necessary. Luncheon $1.25 to $3. Dinner $2.50 to $5.

Larchwood Inn and Restaurant—Wakefield (Narragansett Sterling 3-5454) On U.S. 1. This inn and dining place is a delightful place for a relaxing weekend or just a fine meal. The charming house is set on lovely grounds with large trees around, and is decorated in the traditional manner. A departure from the New England theme, the Tam o'Shanter cocktail lounge has Scottish decor. New England cookery is the main feature with emphasis on seafood. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.35 to $4.50. Dinner 5:30 to 8 p.m., Sundays from 12, $2.25 to $4.50.

White Horse Tavern—Newport (Viking 7-7767) Farewell & Marlborough Sts. This historic tavern, the oldest in the U.S., had its beginnings prior to 1673 and reflects the character of Colonial Newport. Completely restored by the Preservation Society who acquired it in 1954, it is once again open to the public as an eating house. To carry out its historic background, the waiters and waitresses wear 18th century costumes. Rhode Island fare is served every day 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and the menu suggests Tavern beef pie, R. I. clam chowder and the state's famous Johnny cake. Service is table d'hote and a la carte.

Massachusetts

This historic state is one of the finest for the traveler with its good roads and super highways all well marked. The year-old Massachusetts Turnpike has proved itself a boon.

Everyone up here is agog about the restoration and reopening of the famous Wayside Inn in South Sudbury. Three years ago it was severely damaged by fire, now the renovation will restore it to the way it looked when Longfellow wrote his famous "Tales of a Wayside Inn." All due to a Ford Foundation grant.

Massachusetts has plenty to offer to those seeking a fun-filled vacation, whether it be in the mountains, the verdant valleys or seashore. A beautiful folder in color describes the beauty of the state and may be yours by writing to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, 354 Boylston St., Boston 16.

The Berkshires

A beautiful part of the state this, with its 90 woodland lakes and ponds, well-stocked trout streams and acres of state forest preserves. It is ideal for vacationers—New Yorkers find it easily accessible via the Taconic Parkway or the more leisurely Route 7. Resorts nestle in the lovely rolling hills and the summer season offers all sorts of activities. Tours of the county have been planned by the Berkshire Hills Conference at Pittsfield. You may have maps and descriptive material by writing to 50 South Street, Pittsfield, Mass. You might also like the directory of places to stay.

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

Foremost on the agenda is the Music Festival at Tanglewood. The Boston Symphony under the direction of Charles Munch, opens its six-week season in Lenox on July 2.

At the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox on the grounds of the Music Inn, the jazz season opens Sunday, June 29 with The Buffalo Bills from the hit show "The Music Man." Top names and performers will appear during the season.

Again, July to September, the South Mountain Concerts offer a series of recitals and chamber music Saturday afternoons.

Aficionados of the dance turn to the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival under the direction of Ted Shawn, July 1 to August 30. The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Co. and Geoffrey Holder are among the exciting programs.

Three leading museums are located in this area. Foremost is the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute in Williamstown. It is filled with the Clarks' own collection; 17th century European and 19th century American paintings; a French Impressionist collection including 33 Renoirs; also sculpture and silver. . . . The Crane Museum at Dalton has historical exhibits of fine papermaking since 1801. . . . The Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield displays art, science and local history, and there are permanent and loan exhibitions.

For theatre-goers, the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge starts its 27th season June 23. . . . At Williamstown, summer stock starts in the Adams Memorial Theatre July 3.

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

Jug End Barn—South Egremont (Great Barrington 434) Rte. 7 to 23. A grand place for everyone who likes the great outdoors. No matter what your age, you will find it a good place for a relaxing vacation. The acres of ground spread out from the Barn itself, dotted with swimming pool, tennis courts, horseback riding and other sports. The main house has some pretty nice accommodations as do those on the hillside ranged motel style. If you want to be still away from it all, nothing could be nicer than the Homestead on the hill and the delightful new Guilder House. No liquor is served but setups are provided for those who bring their own. There's a fine new store if you've left anything at home, and a tricky new Snack bar called the "Piggery" with amusing three-dimentional murals. American plan rates weekly $70 to $98. Transients are welcome for meals.

Fairfield Inn—Great Barrington (706) An inn of rare charm filled with beautiful antiques, delightful guest accommodations. It's reputation has grown by leaps and bounds for its top-flight cuisine. Gertrude Kelley does all of the cooking and baking, turning out such American and French excellencies as a delicious puff shell with sherried chicken livers, stuffed clams for appetizers, beef Strogonoff, plantation fried chicken to name but a few. The desserts are absolutely divine. Dinner only 6 to 8 p.m., Sunday 1 to 6 p.m., $3.50 to $5.50. Be sure to make a reservation.

Sun Inside—Monterey (Great Barrington 1511 M) Fred and Lucie Lancome's tiny provincial dining room is a must for those who enjoy truly French cuisine. Fred is an excellent chef and prepares a limited menu, but you'll find nothing better than the coq au vin, steak Chasseur, lobster remoulade. As an appetizer, you might sample the oeufs anchois. While I think the omelet soufflee is absolutely dreamy for dessert, you might like the coeur à la crêmie. For luncheon, omelets are a specialty. Service is 12 to 8 p.m. every day with complete meals $2 to $4.50. Since Monterey is a "dry" town, no liquor is served, but you may bring your own and the Lancomes will furnish glasses and ice. Reservations advisable.

Oak N' Spruce—South Lee (Lee 795-W) This is a most congenial and friendly resort where you may relax or be gay as you wish. Some new motel rooms, named Redwood Hall, have been added on the extensive grounds, completely modern and nicely decorated. Would be grand for the young married set or even those a bit older. There's a small golf course on the premises, a wonder-

CAPE COD'S LARGEST and MOST MODERN RESORT
CAPE CODDER HOTEL AND Cabanas
FALMOUTH, MASS
Directly overlooking the ocean. Enjoy spacious swimming pool—private cabanas. Dancing and entertainment nightly, cocktail lounge. Golf nearby. Sprinkler system protection. Famous Cape Cod food.
From $14 Daily, Rooms and Meals
OPENS JUNE 20
Capt. J. Peterson, Host
SPECIAL JUNE RATES • Write for Color Booklet

Hennessy's Steak House featuring
Charcoal Broiled Prize Steaks
Dennis Port, Cape Cod — Lower County Road

CHATEAU MOTEL
"Excellent accommodations with a fine view."
—on Bradford Street extension—
PROVINCETOWN, MASS.

BONNIE DOONE RESTAURANT
Breakfast • Luncheon • Dinner • Cocktail Lounge
Specializing in Lobsters & Seafood
35 Bradford Street Provincetown, Mass.
Recommended by Duncan Hines • Approved by AAA

Lyons' Pier Restaurant
TEL. TEMPLE 8-8200
YOUR HOST, JONESY
FINEST SEAFOOD
BY CAR . . . BY BOAT . . .
144 WATER STREET, SO. NORWALK, CONNECTICUT

The Hearthstone famous for
LOBSTERS & STEAKS
Broiled Over Hickory Logs
Air Conditioned • Tel.: Chapel 6-8075
678-680 MAPLE AVE., HARTFORD, CONN.

Joe C'Est Bon
Prop. Joseph M. Lovetri
Specializing in Prime Steaks and Italian Food
Open Every Day • Air Conditioned
SUNDAY DINNER SERVED FROM 11:30 AM to 9 PM
35 Church St., Greenwich Tel. TO 9-4403

YALE MOTOR INN
A Resort type Motel with Luxury Rooms
Tel. COlony 9-1491
Wallingford, Conn.
Exit 66, Wilbur Cross-Merritt Parkway

, OHIO

958 usical Events

vel-Minded

list is travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

Barra-ance), a new work by [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen ence seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

[40]

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

ful swimming pool with a new-fangled wind break, and there's fishing and good trails for hiking or bicycling. The main house has a pleasant dining room and an outdoor patio for meals or dancing. Downstairs is the Oaken Bucket lounge for a pre-dinner cocktail or evening drink. American plan weekly rates are $66 to $96. There are daily rates, too.

Red Lion Inn—Stockbridge (46) Whether you come for a meal or an extended stay, you will be well served at this fine old inn, filled with handsome antiques. The package plans are in effect again this year, having proved so popular—No. 1, seven days and nights at $83.50 to $96.75 per person; No. 2, five days and 4 nights, $53.20 to $63 per person. These rates for June 30-August 16. Slightly lower before and after. The regular modified American plan rates are $16 to $20 per day per person. Both "The Gate" and the unique "Lion's Den" cocktail lounges are most popular. Transient diners are welcome in the gracious dining room for luncheon 12:30 to 2 p.m., $1.50 to $4. Dinner 6:30 to 8 p.m., all day Sun., $2.75 up.

Avaloch Inn—Lenox (41) Just a stone's throw from Tanglewood, this inn attracts a young crowd interested in music. The two country mansions have nice guest accommodations and there's a fine swimming pool right in front. Modified American plan rates weekly $72.50 to $110. . . . Five Reasons Steak & Ale House (Lenox 8650) On the grounds of Avaloch in a wooded setting, this is the place to have fun, drinks and dine. There's dancing, too, Tuesday to Sunday nights. Charcoal-broiled specialties are steaks, shish kebab and chicken. Dinner only 6 p.m. to 1 a.m., $2.25 to $4.50.

Curtis Hotel & Old Stage Grill—Lenox (16 or 510) Rte. 7. This old hotel has catered to the traveler since 1771, and you will find an air of gracious hospitality whether you come for a vacation or a meal at the Old Stage Grill. The guest rooms are very comfortable and the large public rooms handsomely done. A lovely garden in back has a fine swimming pool and nearby there's golf, tennis, horseback riding. American and modified American plan only July 4 to August 10; European also at other times. Rates may be had on application. . . . The Old Stage Grill is handsome with a New England flavor, serving American cooking, and you'll enjoy fine cocktails in the Peacock Lounge or in the Terrace Garden with its umbrellaed tables.

Seven Hills—Lenox (8677) A dandy old mansion transformed to a vacation spot where you may relax to your heart's content. Especially on the terrace with a grand view of the distant mountains and overlooking the sloping lawns and fine swimming pool. The enlarged dining room, too, boasts a heavenly view and the American menu features home-grown fresh vegetables. There are sports, art classes and dancing classes, if you feel in the mood. There are rooms in the main house, coach house and cottage. Weekly American plan rates $70 to $100 per person (slightly higher July 20 to August 10; slightly lower at other times).

Chef Karl's—Lenox (698) This charming little house is one of the few restaurants around here. You will enjoy Karl's fine cooking as many have before you for he has appeased the appetites here and in the South for more than 18 years. The dining rooms are pleasant and bedecked with pretty flowers, and the service is of the best. Prices are quite moderate considering the good quality. One standard menu with daily specials among which are brook trout, roast duckling, roulade of beef, German sauerbraten for instance. Complete dinners 12 to 2 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m., Sunday 12 to 8 p.m., $2.90 to $4.75 and a la carte. Service bar.

Eastover—Lenox (625) Off Rte. 20. A magnificent mansion amid thousands of rolling acres with plenty of activity for vacationers. If you like the outdoors, this is for you and it's a grand place for the young married set. There are sports galore—a beautiful outdoor pool as well as an indoor one, tennis, horseback riding to name a few but there's loads of space if you want to be alone and relax. The accommodations in the Mansion, the Lodge, Ranch House or Tally Ho are all very comfortable. The food is basically New England and very good. No liquor is served but you may have setups. Weekly American plan rates $84 to $101.50 per person.

The Music Inn—Lenox (610) This is a grand place for a vacation for there are enormous grounds—literally acres in which to relax. The nearby lake is fine for swimming, boating and fishing, if that's your pleasure. Away from the main house and the famous Music Barn, there's a new beautiful mansion, all redecorated with huge rooms, a breakfast room and terrace. American plan, $73 to $122 weekly, per person.

The Potting Shed—Lenox (277) On the grounds of the Music Inn. Once the potting shed on the estate, this long building was converted last year to a place for dinner and late evening. It has an enormous bar, madly gay little tables and an outdoor terrace. The menu includes steak, beef Strogonoff, turkey divan, pecan pie and fruit pies. Dinner only 5 to 8:30 p.m. except Sunday when lunch is served for those attending the afternoon concerts at Tanglewood, $2.25 to $4.75. Closed Mondays. Opens June 29.

The Springs—New Ashford (Williamstown 661-W2) Rte. 7 bet. Pittsfield & Williamstown. One of the finest places to dine, especially if you're in the mood for some excellent French-Italian cookery. The modern restaurant, always immaculate, has a gay, bright atmosphere with its cheery decor and lots of potted plants about. I'd vouch for anything on the menu, but my favorites are the scampi in a delicious sauce, the delicate sweetbreads, flavorful chicken cacciatore. Roast beef and steaks are equally well-prepared. Homemade condiments, rolls, garlic bread are delightful extras served with dinners. And the desserts are yummy. Note, too, the nice display of wines. One menu all day, noon to 10:30 p.m., $2.75 to $5.25. Also a la carte. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Williams Inn—Williamstown (550) Rte. 7. At the meeting point of the famous Taconic and Mohawk Trails on the Williams College campus, you'll find this charming Colonial inn, surrounded by acres of lawns, trees, flower gardens. There is a bird sanctuary here, too. As in all Treadway inns, the New England food is high quality with such good things as baked lobster pie, guinea hen with wild rice and currant jelly, mountain brook trout. Fine desserts, too. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.75 to $4.50. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., Sunday from 12, $2.75 to $5.50. Cocktail lounge. Very good guest accommodations. The excellent Treadway Inns Cookbook is on sale at their inns.

The Tyler Place—Highgate Springs, Vt. This resort on Lake Champlain, almost at the Canadian border, has many things to offer the vacationer. There are charming rooms at the inn or lakeshore cottages with fireplaces. There are all sorts of sports—riding, golf, sailing, fishing and good swimming. A good place for the whole family, too, for there's a modified housekeeping cottage plan. American plan rates $12.50 to $15 per person daily.

(Continued on page 39)

NEW ENGLAND DINING

(Continued from page 30)

Pioneer Valley

Abounding in verdant farmlands and orchards, lush Pioneer Valley follows the course of the Connecticut River. The region is filled with historical significance. There are many lakes and streams, offering wonderful boating, swimming and fishing.

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

Many public parks are scattered through the Valley, but do drive to the summit of Mount Sugarloaf Reservation for a simply grand view of the Connecticut River winding its way through the fertile lands. It might be fun to make a picnic day of it.

In Deerfield, the scene of terrible Indian massacres in 1675 and 1704, visit the Indian House Memorial, Frary House, Memorial Hall Colonial Museum, the Old Manse.

Do visit Storrowton, a restored Colonial village on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition in W. Springfield. A common is rimmed with lovely 18th and 19th century houses, dominated by the Salisbury Meeting House.

Holyoke, though primarily industrial, is well-known for the Valley Players and the Mount Tom Reservation, a center for summer and winter sports.

The National Morgan Horse Show takes place at Northampton at the Three County Fair Grounds, July 25-27. Owners of Morgans come from all over the country to compete and demonstrate the qualities of this oldest American breed. The Tri-County Fair, one of the best, comes to Northampton August 21.

While Sturbridge is not really in the Valley, it is just a short way from this section. The Village brings to life our early American heritage. The Meeting House dominates the Common around which are shops, homes, taverns and a general store. Life goes on as it did then, with craftsmen demonstrating the early skills and crafts—pottery making, silversmithing, weaving, cabinet making. A miller grinds cornmeal at the old mill, the printer runs his flatbed press. Open 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Admission $1.60.

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

Yankee Pedlar Inn—Holyoke (Jefferson 2-9494) Junction Rtes. 202 & 5. Since 1947 when the Tamburis turned an old private mansion into this charming inn, it has been noteworthy for its hearty fare and comfortable lodgings. The series of dining rooms are furnished in lovely early American furniture and wallpapers reproduced from original Colonial designs. Old-fashioned New England cookery is the feature—charcoal broiled lobster, steak, chops and chicken.

CLEAN...
CLEA

That's the taste you get when you make you
Gin 'n Tonic with clean-tasting

FLEISCHMANN
GIN

DISTILLED FROM AMERICAN GRAIN • 90 PROO
THE FLEISCHMANN DISTILLING CORPORATION, NEW Y

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

---

ance), [illegible] new work [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen [illegible] seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball Is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

---

usical Events
vel-Minded

list is travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

, OHIO
53
958

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Luscious desserts to top it all off. A special luncheon 1 to 4 p.m., $1.10 to $2. Dinner noon to midnight, Sunday till 10 p.m., $2.60 to $5.50. The Country Store in back has many items you may wish to take home.

Old Storrowton Tavern—W. Springfield (Republic 2-4188) In Storrowton Village on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition. A charming restaurant in this little Colonial village restored by Eugene Tamburi of the Yankee Pedlar. The tavern is handsomely decorated, has a snug old-fashioned Tap Room, and several dining rooms—the Connecticut Room with its muraled walls, the Tavern Room. There are dining rooms in several of the lovely 18th and early 19th century houses, as well as guest accommodations. The hearty old-fashioned New England menu follows the pattern of the Yankee restaurants—charcoal broiled steak, lobsters, chicken, and other dishes. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., $1.10 to $2. Dinner noon to midnight, Sunday till 10 p.m., $2.60 to $5.50.

The Log Cabin—Holyoke (Jefferson 9-9137) Easthampton Rd. Rte. 141. High on the mountain in the shadow of Mt. Tom, is this delightful restaurant. Surrounded by lovely planting, there's a terrace with a divine view over the valley and distant hills. Nothing better than a window seat in the wood-paneled dining room where you may watch the sun set in a blaze of glory while dining handsomely on some excellent food. Luncheon $1 to $2. Dinner $2.75 to $5.50. Supper items served after 10 p.m., a la carte. Excellent cocktails and good list of wines.

Wiggins Tavern & Northampton Hotel—Northampton (Justice 4-3100) You'll find this hotel just as modern as could be—for the sleeping rooms have been redecorated with handsome furnishings and the baths brought up to date, and air conditioning installed. . . . The Tavern, built in 1786, has a series of six dining rooms with low beamed ceilings, fireplaces and loaded with early Americana. Good American food highlights lobster, pan-fried chicken, grand pecan pie, Wiggins bonbon dessert. On Friday night there's a lobster and shrimp festival featuring Wiggins baked stuffed shrimp. The handsome Coachlight Room is the scene for a grand buffet on Sundays 5 to 9 p.m. at $3.75. Luncheon 11:30 to 3 p.m., $1 to $2.50. Dinner 5 to 10 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9:30 p.m., $2.75 to $6. Air conditioned. Outside in the Courtyard you must visit the Old Country Store, the Weaving House, Wagon Shed, Print Shop.

Roger Smith Hotel—Holyoke (Jefferson 2-1414) 69 Suffolk St. This hotel in the center of town caters to families, and as is usual in this chain of hotels, good bed and board is assured. There's a very pleasant dining room and a large cocktail lounge with a pianist during the evenings. There's dancing on the Roof Garden, high over the city, on Saturday nights from 8 p.m. during July and August with a $1.50 minimum. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 85¢ up. Dinner 5:30 to 9 p.m., Sunday from 12, $1.85 up. Air conditioned.

The Lord Jeffery—Amherst (Alpine 3-2576) Located in this lovely college town, is this lovely Colonial inn with spacious rooms, beamed ceilings, an attractive lounge dominated by a huge fireplace. In summer, the garden enclave in back is a peaceful spot. In the Treadway tradition, the accommodations have all the comforts of modern life, and the food is high quality New England cookery. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $1.75 to $3.75. Dinner 6 to 8:30 p.m., $2.25 to $4.75. Sunday dinner 12 to 2:30 p.m., from $2.50. Supper served Sunday night. You may have cocktails in the pretty garden or the indoor lounge. Air conditioned.

Toy Town Tavern—Winchendon (220) Rte. 202. The Tavern takes its name from the toy maker's village of Winchendon which it overlooks, and the inn is just a short way from the famous Cathedral in the Pines over the border in New Hampshire. There is a fine golf course, swimming in a lovely pool, all sorts of sports and social activities, as well as first-rate accommodations, to make an enjoyable vacation. The New England food is of high calibre, a trademark of the Treadway inns. Luncheon 12:30 to 2 p.m., $1.75 to $2.50. Dinner 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., $2.50 to $4.25; Sunday 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., from $3. The cocktail lounge is in a separate building just a few steps from the Tavern.

Publick House — Sturbridge (Dickens 7-3313) Rte. 20. Winter or summer, this is a fine place to visit. Built as a tavern in 1771 by Ebenezer Crafts, it has a delightful Colonial atmosphere. Located near Old Sturbridge Village, you will find it grand for a meal or a longer stay in the fine guest rooms. There are many charmingly decorated dining rooms with handhewn beams and period furniture —the Barn with its old hayloft and view of the Open Deck; the Tap Room with its enormous old fireplace; the Pineapple Room; and a lovely outdoor terrace. Luncheon 12 to 5:30 p.m., $1.75 to $4.75. Dinner 6 to 8:30 p.m., $3 to $5.25; Sunday 12 to 8:30, $3 to $6. The Common Room (bar) and Ordinary Room (lounge) has organ music weekends.

Boston

There's history at every corner of this fascinating old city with its narrow winding streets. Its tradition as a seaport and fishing town blends happily with its modern role as a center of music, art and culture. Take a stroll along fashionable Beacon Street studded with handsome mansions or Louisburg Square with its stately homes, many of which were designed by Bullfinch. An evening jaunt along the Charles River Esplanade is delightful, especially as the sun goes down. Traffic is one of the main problems, so leave your car in the garage and walk about or take one of the convenient bus tours that cover all the points of interest in town.

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

The Public Garden has 25 acres of beautiful planting, dotted with memorials of noted men in American history and literature and here you may take a ride on the famous swan boats. Nearby is Boston Common, oldest public park in America, purchased in 1634, and set aside for common use as a cow pasture and training field.

Some of Boston's historic sights include Faneuil Hall, the Cradle of Liberty built in 1742; the Old State House where resides a collection of ship models and relics; Old South Meeting House where the historic Boston Tea Party was brewed; Paul Revere House; King's Chapel and Burying Ground with gravestones of many historic personages; Old North Church where the signal lanterns were set for Paul Revere; and Constitution Wharf where "Old Ironsides" was built in 1794.

The Museum of Fine Arts should be a stop. One of the best, it has collections of Asiatic, Egyptian and Colonial art. Excellent, too, is the smaller Isabella Stuart Gardner Museum that has first-rate Raphaels, Titians, Rembrandts, Cellinis. Another stop could be the Museum of Science with its audience participation exhibits.

Already under way is the big Boston Arts Festival, held in the Boston Public Gardens through June 22. Open daily 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. with a full program of daily events.

"Pops" concerts by the Boston Pops orchestra take place in Symphony Hall through June 29.

Horse racing at Suffolk Downs in East Boston through June 28 would be fun for an afternoon, but don't bet away all your money!

Take time to visit Harvard University just across the Charles River. Be sure to drop in at the excellent Fogg Art Museum, the University Museum with its collection of glass flowers and fluorescent minerals. You might visit Longfellow House where most of his poems were written.

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

Darbury Room—271 Dartmouth St. (Kenmore 6-6560) This pleasant restaurant is located just off Copley Square, and is mighty popular for its quality food, reasonable prices and friendly service. The two-level dining room is pleasantly decorated and has dancing on Friday and Saturday nights. You will dine handsomely on the excellent Continental cuisine—I chose a fine cut of prime ribs with baked potato and chef's salad. Other specialties are the rack of lamb, chateaubriand or planked steak, each for two or more persons. Luncheon 11:45 to 3 p.m., $1.25 to $2. Dinner 5:30 to 10:30 p.m., Sunday 4 to 11 p.m., $2.75 to $5.75. The dimly lit bar with intimate seats around the walls, features popular Lou Carter and his Trio; and other music. Air conditioned.

Dinty Moore's—611 Washington St. (Hubbard 2-9040) Located in the heart of the shopping and theatre district, this modern air conditioned spot, handsomely decorated by Franklin Hughes, is the haunt of the theatrical and newspaper crowd. It's always pleasant to dine here, for you're assured of a warm welcome by owner George Maren, just re-elected president of the Massachusetts Restaurant Assn., or his henchman Louis. Headliners, foodwise, are excellent corned beef, charcoal broiled steaks, chops, lobsters. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.10 to $3.50. Complete dinners 5 to 9 p.m., $2.75 to $5.50. Air conditioned. Closed Sundays and first two weeks in July.

Union Oyster House—41 Union St. (Capitol 7-2750) Famous for 132 years of continuous operation as a seafood restaurant, this old building dates back to 1769 and boasts the original stalls and oyster bar. New this year is the addition of a service bar so you can have cocktails and other liquors as well as wine and beer. Every denizen of the deep is served and one menu suffices all day. There are special lunches each day 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. 99¢ and $1.25. Complete for your vacation when you can almost hike to this quiet New England Inn. Unique for its mountain lake setting, its simple country charm, its delectable fare and for the wide range of outdoor activities available in this 1400-acre Timber Trails Club preserve in which the Inn is so fortunately located. These include private beach, championship tennis courts, quality horses, miles of scenic walks. Drive out—via Brewster—for a preview luncheon or dinner. Reservations requested. Buffet Lunch Sat. & Sun. 12-3 P.M.

WHY TRAVEL FAR

TIMBER TRAILS INN
Route 37
Sherman, Conn. • New Milford Elgin 4-6627

The ELMS Inn
CONTINENTAL CUISINE
Main St. (Rte 35) Ridgefield, Conn.
Luncheon, Dinner, Cocktail Lounge
Guest Accommodations
OPEN EVERY DAY
Completely Air Conditioned
Tel.: Ridgefield, IDlewood 8-2541
Chef John Scala, Prop.
EST. 1799

WESTPORT STEAK HOUSE
LUNCHEON • DINNER
Steaks — Chops — Seafood
COCKTAIL LOUNGE (open to 11 P. M.)
Diner's Club Member • Clearwater 9-9036
Conn. Thway, exit 19 — Post Road, Westport, Conn.

Montowese House
OVERLOOKING THE SOUND
Old Fashioned Hospitality
For Summer, a Night, or an Evening
Indian Neck, Branford, Conn. Hubbard 8-2558

COBB'S MILL
by the Waterfall
WESTON - WESTPORT
CONNECTICUT
Cocktails & Dinner
Every Day - All Year
CApital 7-7221
Ex. 42 on Merritt Pky.

CHARPENTIER
Steaks • Lobsters • Chops
Luncheon 11:30 to 2:30 P.M. week days;
Full course dinners 5 P.M. to 9:30 P.M.
Sats. open at 5 P.M. • Sundays, noon to 9 P.M.
232 East Ave. East Norwalk, Conn.
Closed Mondays Tel. Norwalk, VO. 6-0171
Recom'd by Duncan Hines Cue Gourmet & Hillsway

GENERAL PUTNAM INN
On U.S. 1 at
The Village Green
NORWALK, CONN.
Victor 7-2468

DORLON'S SHORE HOUSE
DORLON'S is a rewarding objective for 1 hours drive from the Geo. Washington or Whitestone Bridge.
Seafood—Steaks & Chops
Closed Tuesdays Volunteer 6-1959
JOHN O'SULLIVAN MGR.
MERRITT PKWY. EXIT 39 OR U.S. 1 TO NORWALK

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2 [illegible] 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Giannini's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

OHIO

3 58 sical Events vel-Minded

list is offered as a service to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

Barre ance), a new work [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants [illegible] by a committee including [illegible] Helen ps are occupying audience seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

[40]

dinners till 9 p.m. are priced $1.90 to $4.35. Or you may chose from the a la carte. Air conditioned. Two modern branches at 143 Stuart St. and 122 Canal St.

Jimmy's Harbor Side—248 Northern Ave. (Hancock 6-6444) This is a top flight seafood house right on the old wharf on the Harbor. Hordes of seafood lovers come to partake of the excellent dishes Jimmy Doulas has served for 36 years. The modern restaurant has nautical decor and the wide windows give a grand view of the harbor. Fish chowder is one of Jimmy's specialties and baked stuffed lobster goes like hotcakes, but there is plenty to choose from including steaks and chops. If you can still take it, try the homemade ice cream pie with crushed strawberries. What a production! Service Monday through Saturday 11 a.m. to 9:15 p.m. (better make a reservation at dinnertime) with complete dinners $2.25 to $5, plus a la carte entrees. Air conditioned. Closed Sundays.

Les Tuileries—370 Commonwealth Ave. (Copley 6-0423) Downstairs in the Eliot Hotel. A fairly new French restaurant loaded with charm. Roundabout the intimate dining room are fascinating three-dimensional murals of Paris scenes. I found the food exceptionally good—a delicious quiche Lorraine, chicken Francaise, tender with little onions and mushrooms in a nicely flavored sauce, a perfectly seasoned green salad and a chocolate mousse for dessert. There are some delightful wines to complement your meal, but only French aperitifs may be had. Luncheon 11:30 to 2:30 p.m., $1.35 to $2.50. Dinner 6 to 9 p.m., Sunday 5:30 to 9:30 p.m., $3.25 to $5.25. Closed Monday in winter, Sunday in summer. Air conditioned. The owners have another restaurant, Au Beauchamp at 99 Mt. Vernon St., on Beacon Hill.

Somerset Hotel—400 Commonwealth Ave. (Kenmore 6-2700). This distinguished Back Bay hotel has two celebrated attractions besides fine accommodations. First, there's the Rib Room where you will feast on mammoth slices of roast beef at $3.95 and $4.95. There are steaks, too, if you wish. These are served 5 to 10 p.m. daily. There's luncheon also 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $5.50. A service bar handles the cocktail problem. . . . Second is the alluring Polynesian Village, dimly lit and handsome with carved South Seas idols, rattan furniture and peacock chairs. A fine menu of Cantonese and Polynesian dishes has some excellent suggestions. And drinks take on an exotic note here. Dinner only, 5 to 1 a.m., Friday and Saturday till 2 a.m., a la carte entrees $2.35 to $4.35. A guitarist plays melodies from 7 p.m.

Durgin Park—30 N. Market St. (Capitol 7-2038). No visit to Boston would be complete without a visit to this century plus-old restaurant. Plain old-fashioned tables with family style service, unshaded light fixtures in the helter-skelter dining rooms. Specialties are steaks (charcoal broiled right in the dining room), thick slabs of roast beef, fresh lobster, and enormous servings of strawberry shortcake. Open 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., the à la carte menu reasonable. Closed Sundays.

Patten's—41 Court St. (Capitol 7-8775). This busy, 33-year-old restaurant is located in the heart of town. The Colonial dining room upstairs is enormous, while downstairs there's the very pleasant Georgian Room and the cozy, attractively decorated Pilgrim Lounge with organ music evenings until 11 p.m. New England home-style cooking is the ticket here with homemade corn bread and cinnamon buns. Baked stuffed lobster is the big item and very good, and there are roasts, steaks, chops and all sorts of seafood. Reasonable prices account for its popularity; plate luncheons 11 to 3 p.m., 99¢ to $2.25, and dinners, $1.75 to $4.25. Open 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Closed Sundays. Air conditioned.

Locke-Ober—Boston (Liberty 2-1340) 3 Winter Place. Gourmets have acclaimed this restaurant as a top dining place since 1875. Located in an alley in the heart of the shopping district, it has a simple, but distinguished, atmosphere. The dining rooms consist of the Men's Bar on the first floor with its beautifully carved L-shaped bar and original decorations, and the "Ladies and Gentlemen's Cafe," upstairs, equally nostalgic of the '80s. Be sure to have a well-filled purse, everything is a la carte, dinner till 10 p.m., entrees $2 to $7.50. Strangely, the luncheon, noon to 3, is moderate, for entrees start at $1.65. Air conditioned.

Joseph's—279 Dartmouth St. (Circle 7-8087). An old mansion transformed into a top eating place and under the same management as Locke-Ober. We like the many-leveled dining rooms and the quiet air of intimacy. The cuisine is practically the same as Locke-Ober's and just as expensive at dinner. The extensive a la carte menu has entrees from $1.90 to $7.75. Here, too, luncheon (12 to 3 p.m.) is fairly reasonable—a good selection, with soup, entrêe and beverage priced $1.65 to $3 . A nice downstairs cocktail room with tables around the bar where men only are served at luncheon. Closed Sundays.

Near Boston

Wayside Inn—So. Sudbury. Rte. 20. Now fully restored to its original Colonial self, this inn where Longfellow wrote his "Tales of a Wayside Inn," will again be a popular place to visit. Modern guest rooms, furnished in period antiques, new kitchens and dining rooms will prove welcome to the traveller. The old parlor and other rooms are furnished with the treasures of five generations of Howes. In restoration, the hearth of the original two-room inn, built before 1700 was found. There are three dining rooms serving luncheon and dinner with New England specialties. Dinners are $2.75 to $4.75 with luncheon less. The museum includes all rooms of the original inn, is open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. with a 50¢ charge for adults.

Red Coach—Wayland (Elmwood 8-2331) Rte. 20. I had the pleasure of dining at this restaurant and found it excellent. It was a pretty picture with lovely hydrangea plants all around and the rooms were large and comfortable—the one I was in had a huge fireplace. Roast beef is a top item at $3.45 and very popular, so get there early if you want to partake. However, if you are unlucky, take one of the steaks—the junior filet was excellent, done exactly right and served with baked potato and delicious salad and vegetables. As New England is the place for baked Indian pudding, that's what I had and loved it. Complete dinners are priced $2.95 to $5.50. There are other Red Coaches. too numerous to report on each: 41 Stanhope St., Boston; Middleboro; Hingham; Saugus; Framingham; and Hyannis.

1812 House—Rte. 9, Framingham (Trinity 9-9622). Once a boys' boarding school, this Treadway restaurant is handsomely decorated with early American furnishings; the main dining room centers around a pretty flower-bordered pool with a fountain—a picture at night when the candles are lit. And you'll like the little pine-paneled cocktail room. The menu is New England with lobster the favorite (two one-pound fellows with green salad and beverage costing $3.75). There's steak, chicken and roast beef, too. Luncheon, noon to 2:30 p.m., $1.50 to $4.50.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Tel. Hemlock 5-2372 on US 44 & Conn. 41, between Lakeville & Canaan, Conn. — Open Daily All Year.
RAGAMONT INN
Salisbury Connecticut
FINEST AMERICAN COOKERY served in DELIGHTFUL ATMOSPHERE of an HISTORICAL NEW ENGLAND INN ATTRACTIVE GUEST ROOMS
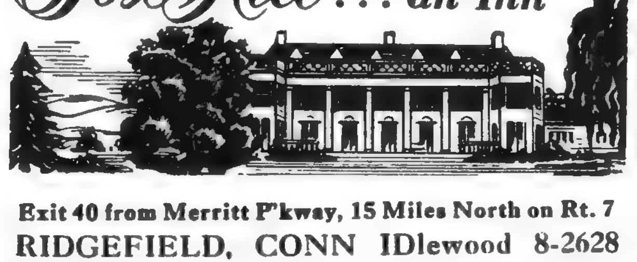
Brochure & Map on Request

Fox Hill . . . an Inn



Exit 40 from Merritt P'kway, 15 Miles North on Rt. 7
RIDGEFIELD, CONN IDlewood 8-2628

Casa Maria Restaurant
"THE FINEST ITALIAN CUISINE"
STEAKS - CHOPS - SEAFOOD
THOMAS LoPIANO, PROP. 680 BOSTON POST RD.
TEL: STAMFORD DA 3-1365 STAMFORD, CONN.

WAVERLY INN
Famous Saratoga Chandelier
Crystal Room seats 500
CHESHIRE, CONN.
LUNCH • DINNER • COCKTAILS
Exit 61 (Merritt Parkway) To Rte. 10A Tel: BR 2-5325

Turnpike Inn
American Cuisine
COCKTAILS • DINNER
10 Min. from Theatre CL 9-9132
Black Rock Tpke. Overlooking Merritt Parkway
Exit 44 BRIDGEPORT

Charles'
a' la pomme soufflée
LUNCHEON
BAR DINNER
la cuisine des creations
157 EAST 55 STREET • EL 5-8280 SUMMER GARDEN

Closed Tues.
Fuji JAPANESE
Restaurant CI • 5 - 8594
LUNCHEON-DINNER featuring
Sukiyaki • Tempura • Donburi
SAKE and JAPANESE BEER
238 W. 56th ST. bet B'way & 8th

Romeo Salta exquisite italian cuisine

Dinner, 12 to 8:30 p.m., including Sunday, $2.50 to $4.50. Air conditioned.

The Colonial—Lynnfield (Crystal 9-3043) On Rte. 128, Exit 21. This handsome restaurant grows more attractive each time I visit. Overlooking a fine golf course where you may indulge in a game, the modern building of brick and wood has a comfortable lounge with peaked, beamed ceiling, cozy groupings of chairs and love seats, and organ music evenings. This year, there's a new Fairway Room, on two levels with wide windows for a view, delightfully decorated. Additional party and banquet rooms have been added, too. The New England cuisine is tops—the cape scallops delicious, as are the stuffed jumbo shrimps. Roast prime ribs and boneless fried breast of chicken are specialties, too, as are the homemade desserts. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., a la carte entrees $1.60 to $2. Dinner 12 to 11 p.m., $2.50 to $4.95. Dancing Friday and Saturday from 8:30, minimum $2 per person. Air conditioned.

The Marguery—Ipswich (105) Rte. 1A. This is an elegant restaurant in a handsome old house surrounded by lovely grounds and trees. Several intimate dining rooms beautifully furnished are off the main entrance hall where there's a gift shop set up with a handsome display of glassware you can buy. A cocktail lounge with a trim bar is wood paneled, and a large bay window gives it a cheery look. For all this atmosphere, I thought the prices quite reasonable, and the menu has fine selections—lobster, of course, shrimps or lamb kebab Orientale with rice pilaff, boneless breast of chicken Tolstoy, steaks, chops. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., $1.75 to $3.75. Dinner 4 to 11 p.m., Sunday 12 to 9 p.m., $2.50 to $6.50. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

The Blacksmith Shop—Rockport (Kingswood 6-2241). Back in the olden days, horses were shod and wagon wheels mended at this fascinating old shop. Now the original forge is used to broil steaks, chops, lobster and native fish over the open coals. The large, colorful restaurant has lights made of old wagon wheels and set with dripping candles, overlooks the harbor and Yacht Club landing. Complete dinners, 5 to 9 p.m., Sunday from 12, are reasonably priced.

Straitsmouth Inn—Rockport (Kingswood 6-3471) Gap Head Rd. Here is a fine American plan resort that has been in the Wilkinson family for half a century. Right out on Rocky Point, it is almost completely surrounded by water and the extensive grounds have a golf club, plenty of good swimming, boating and fishing. Weekly rates run $75 to $125 per person in the main inn or five surrounding houses. The inn welcomes transients for meals in the fine dining room with a gorgeous view of the sea, but be sure to make a reservation. Luncheon 1 to 2 p.m., $1.50 up. Dinner 6 to 7:30 p.m., Sunday 1 to 2 p.m., $2 up.

Andover Inn—Chapel Ave., Andover (903). On the campus of Phillips Academy, this sprawling Georgian inn traces its heritage from 1810 when the home of the school's founder became the first inn. The grounds adjoin the Cochran Bird Sanctuary while across the street is the famous Addison Gallery of Art. Like all Treadway inns, the extra good meals are traditional New England and the lodgings most comfortable. Luncheon, 12 to 2 p.m., a la carte entrees $1 to $2.50. Dinner, 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., $2.35 to $5.25; Sunday 12 to 8 p.m., from $2.50. No liquor is served.

Hugo's Lighthouse — Kimball's — Cohasset (CO 4-0766 and CO 4-0525) Located on a grand harbor, these twin restaurants are ex-

---

NEW YORK, N.Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2 [illegible] 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Giannini's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

ND, OHIO
VS
37,553

1958 usical Events

vel-Minded

his list is [illegible] to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

---

ance), a new work [illegible] Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants [illegible] by a committee including Miss Helen [illegible] are occupying audience seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball Is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome [illegible] of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

cellent places to dine. Kimball's, over 50 years old, is the original, has several nautical dining rooms and has just been redecorated—there's a tricky bar shaped like a longboat and there will be comfortable seats for sipping. Screened windows all about give a view of the water. . . . Hugo's Lighthouse has more modern decor, but the accent is still nautical (dark beams, ships lanterns, candlelight) and the several rooms, too, have a view. The same menu is used at both places—seafood, of course, the all-around favorite. Steaks and roast beef are well received. Luncheon 12 to 4 p.m., $1.65 to $3.25. Dinner 4 to 1 a.m., Sunday from noon, $2.50 to $5.25. Both have docking facilities.

Toll House—Whitman (Gibson 7-4455) Junction Rtes. 18 & 14. Though not on the shore line, this is a must on your places to dine. Celebrated for many years as the home of the famous Toll House cookies, this early American rambling house is full of charm. Delightfully decorated dining rooms, one with its immense tree growing in the center, garden furnishings, pink watering cans tied with pink rakes and hoes make unique wall bracket lights. Fresh flowers and colored glassware grace the tables. From the spotless kitchens come fine chicken, steak, lobster and other food that makes up the New England menu. Each week there's an adventure in foreign foods of different countries. Luncheon 12 to 6 p.m. $2 to $4.95. Dinner all day till 8 p.m., $3 to $4.95. No liquor. Air conditioned. Closed Mondays.

Lord Fox—Foxboro (Kingswood 3-5361) Rte. 1. This beautiful old house of sunny yellow in the midst of gorgeous gardens and trees has had many additions and rambles merrily from the old center hall. Whether you decide to have cocktails on the outdoor terrace or in the Tack Room bar with its fine horse prints and bartenders gay in plaid vests, you will find them excellent, especially with the delicious smoked cheese. Try the buffet luncheon or evening buffet—loads of delightful goodies. Otherwise there's a fine selection on the dinners with New England specialties. A pianist adds to the general enjoyment. Luncheon 12 to 2:30 p.m., $1.25 to $2.25. Dinner noon to midnight, $2.65 to $4.95 and a la carte. Air conditioned.

Mayflower Hotel—Plymouth (Manomet 3311) Rte. 3 to Manomet Point. A grand American plan resort hotel high up overlooking the ocean. The large hotel has acres of grounds with its own lake where you may swim if you tire of the ocean or fine pool. All sorts of planned entertainment, dancing and sports to make your stay enjoyable. A good time to go would be July 6 to 19 when there's Mayflower International Fair, featuring food and drink from different countries served by waitresses in garb of the country feted, sports car exhibits, guest speakers on each country. Weekly rates in hotel, double-decked Club and cottages, $112 to $175 per person.

The Bourne Mill—Buzzards Bay (3513) At Bourne Bridge Rotary. You're sure to like this friendly little restaurant operated by three ex-servicemen. The pine-paneled dining rooms are gay with blue booths, cunning driftwood lamps and ornaments on the tables. You'll get good food, too—roast beef, chicken and steak, lobster and other specials each day. Light lunches 11:30 to 3:30 p.m., 90¢ up and a la carte to $4.25. Dinner 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., Sunday from 11:30 a.m., $2.25 to $5 and a la carte.

Cape Cod

Sailing, swimming and fishing are the sports you will find on this neck of land that juts far out into the ocean, for there are 300 miles of coastline—bays and inlets, ocean and beautiful serene Cape Cod Bay. Green marshes and cranberry bogs abound, sandy white beaches, pungent pines. The north shore of the Cape has stately trees, venerable homesteads and lovely gardens—the 18th and 19th century houses once the homes of clipper captains. At the far tip, Provincetown is the haunt of writers and artists.

Martha's Vineyard and colorful Nantucket, two islands off the southern coast of Cape Cod, are well worth visits also. Northeast Airlines services both islands, as well as the Cape. Boats to the islands leave from Woods Hole, Hyannis and New Bedford. If you're taking your car, be sure to make reservations well in advance.

WHAT TO DO AND SEE

There are a number of summer theatres on the Cape, one of the best known Richard Aldrich's Cape Playhouse at Dennis. The season here opens June 28. There's the Falmouth Playhouse at Coonamessett and, of course, musicals at the Hyannis Music Circus opening June 30 with "Damn Yankee." Lesser known, but good standard stock companies keep things up to snuff at Provincetown and Chatham. The Oberlin College Gilbert & Sullivan Players will perform on the Cape again this year, opening June 22 with "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The Blessing of the Fleet takes place in Provincetown June 29—a colorful festival when the Portuguese fishermen in gay checked shirts parade through the streets to the end of Town Wharf. They board their gaily decorated and newly painted boats and sail around the harbor.

Provincetown Art Assn. has its first show June 29-July 26, followed by the first Cape Cod Art Assn. jury show July 3 in Hyannis.

WHERE TO STAY AND DINE

Cape Codder Hotel—Falmouth (Kimball 8-9777) I can think of nothing nicer than to spend a vacation at this fine hotel on a hill with a gorgeous view of Buzzards Bay. There's an informal, but gracious, atmosphere perfect for relaxation—enjoy a bit of fishing, sit under an umbrella on the nice beach or take a cool plunge in the Olympic-sized pool. There's dancing and entertainment for the frisky. Luncheon buffets at the pool are a daily ritual, and guests enjoy the occasional cookouts. Fresh seafood, sometimes from Capt. Peterson's own catch, and fresh vegetables from his farm are features of the bountiful table. Daily American plan rates $15 to $20 per person in the hotel and cabanas. Transients may enjoy the fine meals—luncheon 12:30 to 2 p.m, $2.50. Dinner 6:30 to 8 p.m., $3.50 and $4.50 on the average.

Nautilus Motor Inn—Woods Hole (Kimball 8-1525) State Rd. A perfectly delightful resort, just a short way from beaches and boats to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. The rooms are handsomely decorated, the windows overlooking the beautifully kept grounds bright with flowers, and the grand swimming pool. You may have breakfast served in your room or your very own balcony (that's for me). Full meal service and drinks can be ordered from the intriguing Dome Restaurant next door. Rates thru June 20, $5-$9 per person per day; June 21 through Labor Day $9-$13. Less off-season.

Dome Restaurant—Woods Hole (Kimball 8-4451) State Rd. Right next to the Nautilus Motor Inn, this unique restaurant is built in the form of a geodesic dome, covered with transparent plastic. All the furnishings come from Denmark and I was told there would be lots of greenery around. The menu is French-American with accent on lobster coquille or a la guy, steaks, sliced tenderloin with noodles, to name a few. Dinner only 4 p.m. to midnight, Sunday from 2 p.m., $3.50 to $6.

Coonamessett Inn—Falmouth (Kimball 8-2300) Jones Rd. & Gifford St. Although Edna Harris' resort and dining spot needs no ballyhooing from me (for it is known far and wide), this memo is just to inform the many people who ask me if I have been here that I have. I think it is grand and food wonderful.

Park Beach Hotel & Cabanas—Falmouth Heights (Kimball 8-1010) This thoroughly modern vacation resort is also owned by Capt. Peterson of the Cape Codder Hotel and is located on a fine white sandy beach. The cool Penthouse Deck on top of the cabanas is a fine place to relax and the Penthouse Lounge is a mighty romantic spot to sip cocktails or evening drinks. The dining room has a view of the ocean and the same good food is served here. The hotel is open, but American plan rates start June 27—$11 to $15 daily per person; in the cabana wing $14 to $18 daily per person. Transient diners are most welcome here, too.

Dinty Moore's—Hyannis (Spring 5-1892) George Maren, owner of the popular Boston Restaurant of the same name, has done wonders with his summer dining place as it goes into its second season. There's a new dining room, like a porch, with jalousied windows, a glass roof—all real summery looking. Wait till you see the handsome new bar and cocktail lounge, too. Here Marie Marcus will play fine piano, alternating with Charlie Carroll who sings as well as plays. Sounds real gay! Dinner only from 5 to midnight every day, $2.95 up and here's some of the things you'll get—roast beef, wonderful corned beef, lobster Savannah, jumbo stuffed shrimp. Late supper specials are available—inexpensive a la carte.

The Blacksmith Shop—South Yarmouth (Exeter 8-3652) This unique red barn is really two barns put together, and now has been enlarged to give ever so much more dining space. I still like the room where the stalls are used for booths, for there's an old forge (enlarged, too) behind glass where the chef broils your steak and lobster. Robert Collins, gourmet, chef, and proprietor of the establishment is a graduate of Paris' Cordon Bleu, but he has the flavor of Cape Cod at his restaurant. You will find the service most friendly. Cranberries are used in 12 different ways, there's a salad bowl with Bob's special dressing and yummy desserts—try the ice cream swan! Dinner only 4:30 to 11 p.m., Sunday from 1 p.m., $1.95 to $3.95. Bar and cocktail lounge.

Riverway Lobster House — South Yarmouth (Exeter 8-2172) Rte. 28. Fine food is to be had at this attractive white restaurant with its lobster-red trim. Informality is the keynote in the Pine Room with its beamed ceiling, old brick fireplace, and in the Captain's Room with its unique three-dimensional murals of Cape Cod scenes and early prints. Fish, lobster, steaks, roast beef are of high

No matter where you are—after nothing like a dram* of DRA

The Cordial with the Scotch W
Made in Scotland since 1745 from th of Prince Charles Edward's pers
Drambuie is famous for its uniqu and exquisite bouquet.
*Dram—A small drink. When Drambuie, a luxurious after-dinner
Imported by W. A. TAYLOR & CO.,

Peppy De Albrew's
Chapeau Rouge
LUNCHEON
COCKTAILS
DINNER
SUPPER
Magic Harp & Piano
OPEN to 2 A.M.
14 EAST 52 ST. • MU 8-3023

The Old Garden
"Brick & Timbered like an Old English Inn"
Open Sat.
Complete Prime Rib of Beef Dinner $2.25
LE 2-9024 15 W. 29 St.

FREEMAN CHUM'S Famous CHINESE RESTAURANT
Open Daily
142 East 53rd St. EL 5-8050
LUNCHEON-COCKTAILS-DINNER

La Petite Marmite
RESTAURANT ET BAR FRANCAIS
LUNCHEON
COCKTAILS
DINNER
CHARLES CASSOU et PIERRE SIMON JU 6-5237
53 WEST 56th ST., JU 6-9823

IT'S FUN T
and after dinner, order a dram o
Scotch whisky base. 80 PROOF
N N Y Sole Distributors for t

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 2 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

AND, OHIO
EWS
137,553

1958

Musical Events
avel-Minded

This list is offered as a service to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

---

ance); a new work by Pierre Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen ence seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

quality, well prepared. For drinks, the Bayberry Lounge is most relaxing with its club chairs and lounges. Dinner only 5 to 10, Sunday and holidays from noon, $2.50 to $4.75. Air conditioned.

Hennessy's Steak House—Dennis Port (Exeter 8-2226) This restaurant is more fun for there is always some sort of hi-jinks going on. The Champagne Breakfast made such a hit last year, that Bob is starting it off again June 30, but the hours will be less rugged—9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, with Ed Marvin's show. All for a mere $2. Herb Lewis, who plays piano and regales with songs evenings, MC's the fashion shows at cocktails 5 to 7 p.m. From 5 to midnight, you dine—seafood is a favorite, so try the special whole, boned bluefish. There's steaks, of course—all kinds! And delicious Caesar salad, flaming desserts to top it all off. Complete dinner $2.50 to $6.50.

Wayside Inn—Chatham (8589) Main St. The atmosphere is most homelike at this 150-year-old country inn where Mrs. Havens and her family outdo themselves to make your visit enjoyable whether you come for a vacation or a meal. Besides rooms in the main house, there's an Annex and two houses on the pretty grounds. Attractive dining rooms take care of guests and transients, where you will get mighty good and flavorful home cooking. Delicious homemade breads, cakes and pies, too. An all-year round hotel, American plan rates prevail June 16 to September 30, $7.50 to $12 per person per day. European plan at other times. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 95¢. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $2.25 to $3.50. There's a buffet supper Sunday 6 to 8 p.m., $3.50.

Christopher Ryder House—Chatham Port (Chatham 608) A captain's home dating from 1790, this restored Colonial house is a perfectly beautiful restaurant. Handsome decorations and wallpapers in three smart dining rooms, candlelit evenings, set the proper mood for the excellent American and Continental cuisine. There's a buffet luncheon every day and a Sunday night buffet. The intriguing Circus Tent will function again for evenings of dancing and entertainment (except Sunday). And the patio terrace is newly decorated this year. The buffet luncheon, 12 to 2 p.m., is $1.95. Dinner 5:45 to 10:15 p.m., $2.75 to $4.95. Sunday 11 to 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95.

Queen Anne Inn—Chatham (394) Queen Anne Rd. For the past 23 years, vacationers have enjoyed the comforts of this delightful summer inn. Charming bedrooms with lovely flowered wallpapers, early American antiques in the public rooms and pretty dining rooms in the main house. There are fine rooms in the cottages on the grounds, too. Oyster Pond Beach is just a short way from the inn, but there's fine swimming at Chatham Light Beach or Harding Beach. Golf and tennis is nearby. American plan rates weekly $63 to $84 per person. Transient diners welcome at luncheon 12 to 1:30 p.m., $2. Dinner 6 to 7:30 p.m., $2.50 to $3.25.

Orleans Inn—Orleans (915) Rte. 6. A nice seafood restaurant is a welcome addition here. This one, right on the water, puts one in the right mood to feast on denizens of the deep. One menu 12 to 10 (till midnight beginning June 30) with luncheon choices $1.65 up. Complete dinners $2.50 up. Dancing during the summer from 9 p.m.

The Governor Prence—Orleans (896) An exceptionally nice resort motel with large modern rooms, handsomely furnished, roomy baths. There's a swimming pool on the grounds, ocean beaches not too far away. Another nice thing, the Pear Tree (named for the tree Gov. Prence brought with him from England) cocktail lounge and coffee shop serves a fine breakfast as well as good drinks. July 1 to Labor Day rates $14 per day double occupancy, in main lodge; $16 in rooms in the pines.

Bonnie Doone—Provincetown (1185) 35 Bradford St. Every year something intriguing goes on at this fine restaurant. This year, the old red roof gives way to a heavenly aquamarine hue and looks smart as could be. The Grille Room is pretty as a picture with its modern coral-colored booths and golden-netted glass partitions. The bar, too, has new stools with ample seats also in the same coral. The other dining rooms—the Terrace Room, the Patio with its wrought iron furnishings and a new softened glow to the fibre glass roof, the Thistle Room upstairs—are sparkling. Seafood is the thing—you might try the deluxe lobster tray, or perhaps a shore dinner. Luncheon 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., $1.25 to $4.95. Dinner all day till 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95. Piano and organ music.

Chateau Motel — Provincetown (1286) Bradford St. extension. This brand new motel has a grand location—on a hilltop overlooking the dunes and with a magnificent view of the ocean, especially when the sun is setting. The soft grey Cape Cod style building is chipper with pink trim and the ten rooms are large and handsomely furnished—colorful draperies and lounge chairs, soft grey furniture.

The Flagship — Provincetown (577) Rte. 6, on the waterfront. A most unique restaurant right out on the water—the windows giving a fine view across the bay. Originally built as a fisherman's shack, the idea has been carried out with ships' timbers for beams, hung with hundreds of old barrels, bells, cork, bottles and things that are found from wrecks. The two bars are made from old fishing dories and couldn't be more seaworthy. Practically everything is charcoal broiled. And the food is delicious. One menu noon to 1 a.m., with complete meals $1.90 to $5.90.

Chillingsworth—East Brewster (Twin Oaks 6-3656) If you appreciate French cuisine of gourmet calibre, you will love this beautiful place. Elegant appointments in the sitting rooms, gift shop and small dining rooms. Be sure to make a reservation here. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $2.50 to $3.50. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $5 to $8. Closed Monday. Whether you dine or no, you will be intrigued with the magnificent gifts in the shop—all made here. I saw some divine things in the Christmas Shop, so you might keep that in mind.

Stageway—Dennis (54) Rte. 6A. This is a nice little place handy to the Cape Playhouse. A special luncheon has several choices at $1.15, served 11:30 to 4 p.m. Dinner 4 to 11 p.m., Sunday from noon, $2.25 to $4.95. Bar and cocktail lounge. Air conditioned.

Harbor View Hotel—Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard (444). This Treadway inn at Starbuck's Neck opens June 25. The large, rambling inn with cheery porches, lounges is right on the water where there's lots of sailing, swimming in the ocean, bay or harbor. There are excellent golf courses nearby. Just the place for an extended vacation. American plan rates prevail and transients may dine on the fine New England specialties.

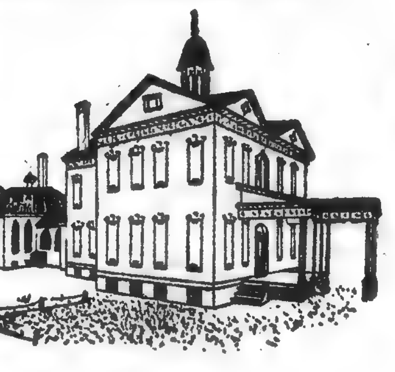
Harborside Inn—Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard (415) A heavenly place to spend a vacation, at this resort right on the water. Fine accommodations in the newer modern buildings or the fine older part of the inn. American plan rates $15 to $21 per person daily.

COVER: Cigar store Indian, menu in hand, symbolizes colorful, rich New England heritage. Area offers, too, a wealth of resort and dining delights. Turn to Vadna Dibble's report, p. 14.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806
JUN 24 1958



MUSEUM NOTES

By HARRIET HULL

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony rchestra, will return this week om Europe in preparation for e six-week Berkshire Festival ogram, July 4 to Aug. 10, at anglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Dr. Munch has recently cometed a series of guest conduct appearances at Strasbourg, e town of his birth. He concted the Orchestre Nationale Paris on June 14 and 15 in ncerts of the 23rd World Festi of the International Society Contemporary Music in the lais des Fetes. First performces at the June 14 concert was the Third symphony by Henry Barraud (first European performance); a new work by Pierre Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen Henshaw of this city; Preston Rockholt and Miss Jeannette Rafter, Albany organists. Dr Elmer Tidmarsh, dean of the local chapter, presented the scholarship to Miss McNab.

Miss McNab, 15, is entering the 10th grade at Bethlehem central school and is active in the Clarksville Methodist Church. She is a piano pupil of Miss Eleanor Schweiker of Albany.

* * *

THE "SWEET ADELINES" and the "Empire Statesmen," two of Gloversville's most distinguished singing groups, are aiding the Sacandaga Summer Theater production of Show Boat. The groups are occupying audience seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS
Cir. D. 137,553

JUL 3 1958

July Musical Events For Travel-Minded

Editor's Note: This list is offered as a service to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Giannini's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

[40]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N.Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUN 24 1958

MUSEUM NOTES

By HARRIET HULL

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will return this week from Europe in preparation for the six-week Berkshire Festival program, July 4 to Aug. 10, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Dr. Munch has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearances at Strasbourg, the town of his birth. He conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris on June 14 and 15 in concerts of the 23rd World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music in the Palais des Fetes. First performances at the June 14 concert was the Third symphony by Henry Barraud (first European performance); a new work by Pierre Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen Henshaw of this city; Preston Rockholt and Miss Jeannette Rafter, Albany organists. Dr. Elmer Tidmarsh, dean of the local chapter, presented the scholarship to Miss McNab.

Miss McNab, 15, is entering the 10th grade at Bethlehem central school and is active in the Clarksville Methodist Church. She is a piano pupil of Miss Eleanor Schweiker of Albany.

* * *

THE "SWEET ADELINES" and the "Empire Statesmen," two of Gloversville's most distinguished singing groups, are aiding the Sacandaga Summer Theater production of Show Boat. The groups are occupying audience seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS
Cir. D. 137,553

JUL 3 1958

July Musical Events For Travel-Minded

Editor's Note: This list is offered as a service to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marçeau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Garmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

---

quality, well prepared. For drinks, the Bayberry Lounge is most relaxing with its club chairs and lounges. Dinner only 5 to 10, Sunday and holidays from noon, $2.50 to $4.75. Air conditioned.

Hennessy's Steak House—Dennis Port (Exeter 8-2226) This restaurant is more fun for there is always some sort of hi-jinks going on. The Champagne Breakfast made such a hit last year, that Bob is starting it off again June 30, but the hours will be less rugged—9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, with Ed Marvin's show. All for a mere $2. Herb Lewis, who plays piano and regales with songs evenings, MC's the fashion shows at cocktails 5 to 7 p.m. From 5 to midnight, you dine—seafood is a favorite, so try the special whole, boned bluefish. There's steaks, of course—all kinds! And delicious Caesar salad, flaming desserts to top it all off. Complete dinner $2.50 to $6.50.

Wayside Inn—Chatham (8589) Main St. The atmosphere is most homelike at this 150-year-old country inn where Mrs. Havens and her family outdo themselves to make your visit enjoyable whether you come for a vacation or a meal. Besides rooms in the main house, there's an Annex and two houses on the pretty grounds. Attractive dining rooms take care of guests and transients, where you will get mighty good and flavorful home cooking. Delicious homemade breads, cakes and pies, too. An all-year round hotel, American plan rates prevail June 16 to September 30, $7.50 to $12 per person per day. European plan at other times. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 95¢. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $2.25 to $3.50. There's a buffet supper Sunday 6 to 8 p.m., $3.50.

Christopher Ryder House—Chatham Port (Chatham 608) A captain's home dating from 1790, this restored Colonial house is a perfectly beautiful restaurant. Handsome decorations and wallpapers in three smart dining rooms, candlelit evenings, set the proper mood for the excellent American and Continental cuisine. There's a buffet luncheon every day and a Sunday night buffet. The intriguing Circus Tent will function again for evenings of dancing and entertainment (except Sunday). And the patio terrace is newly decorated this year. The buffet luncheon, 12 to 2 p.m., is $1.95. Dinner 5:45 to 10:15 p.m., $2.75 to $4.95. Sunday 11 to 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95.

Queen Anne Inn—Chatham (394) Queen Anne Rd. For the past 23 years, vacationers have enjoyed the comforts of this delightful summer inn. Charming bedrooms with lovely flowered wallpapers, early American antiques in the public rooms and pretty dining rooms in the main house. There are fine rooms in the cottages on the grounds, too. Oyster Pond Beach is just a short way from the inn, but there's fine swimming at Chatham Light Beach or Harding Beach. Golf and tennis is nearby. American plan rates weekly $63 to $84 per person. Transient the tree Gov. Prence brought with him from England) cocktail lounge and coffee shop serves a fine breakfast as well as good drinks. July 1 to Labor Day rates $14 per day double occupancy in main lodge, $16 in rooms in the pines.

Bonnie Doone—Provincetown (1185) 35 Bradford St. Every year something intriguing goes on at this fine restaurant. This year, the old red roof gives way to a heavenly aquamarine hue and looks smart as could be. The Grille Room is pretty as a picture with its modern coral-colored booths and golden-netted glass partitions. The bar, too, has new stools with ample seats also in the same coral. The other dining rooms—the Terrace Room, the Patio with its wrought iron furnishings and a new softened glow to the fibre glass roof, the Thistle Room upstairs—are sparkling. Seafood is the thing—you might try the deluxe lobster tray, or perhaps a shore dinner. Luncheon 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., $1.25 to $4.95. Dinner all day till 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95. Piano and organ music.

Chateau Motel — Provincetown (1286) Bradford St. extension. This brand new motel has a grand location—on a hilltop overlooking the dunes and with a magnificent view of the ocean, especially when the sun is setting. The soft grey Cape Cod style building is chipper with pink trim and the ten rooms large and handsomely furnished—colorful draperies and lounge chairs, soft grey furniture.

The Flagship — Provincetown (577) Rte. 6, on the waterfront. A most unique restaurant right out on the water—the windows giving a fine view across the bay. Originally built as a fisherman's shack, the idea has been carried out with ships' timbers for beams, hung with hundreds of old barrels, bells, cork, bottles and things that are found from wrecks. The two bars are made from old fishing dories and couldn't be more seaworthy. Practically everything is charcoal broiled. And the food is delicious. One menu noon to 1 a.m., with complete meals $1.90 to $5.90.

Chillingsworth—East Brewster (Twin Oaks 6-3656) If you appreciate French cuisine of gourmet calibre, you will love this beautiful place. Elegant appointments in the sitting rooms, gift shop and small dining rooms. Be sure to make a reservation here. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $2.50 to $3.50. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $5 to $8. Closed Monday. Whether you dine or no, you will be intrigued with the magnificent gifts in the shop—all made here. I saw some divine things in the Christmas Shop, so you might keep that in mind.

Stageway—Dennis (54) Rte. 6A. This is a nice little place handy to the Cape Playhouse. A special luncheon has several choices at $1.45, served 11:30 to 4 p.m. Dinner 4 to 11 p.m., Sunday from noon, $2.25 to $4.95. Bar and cocktail lounge. Air conditioned.

Harbor View Hotel—Edgartown, Martha's

• FIFTH ANNUAL
NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL
THURSDAY · FRIDAY · SATURDAY
SUNDAY · JULY 3-4-5-6
· A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION ·
Evening Concerts — 8:30 P. M.
THURSDAY — DUKE ELLINGTON TRIBUTE
Duke Ellington Orchestra, Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck 4, Paul Desmond, Marian McPartland 3, Miles Davis 6, Cannonball Adderly, Gerry Mulligan, Rex Stewart, with Ellington Alumni All-Stars, and others.
FRIDAY — BENNY GOODMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA plus All-Star talent array.
SATURDAY — "BLUES IN THE NIGHT" — Gerry Mulligan 4, Joe Turner, Pete Johnson, Ray Charles, Chuck Berry, Big Maybelle, Art Farmer, Jack Teagarden, Jo Jones, Buck Clayton, Georgie Auld, Dakota Staton, Maynard Ferguson Orchestra, and at midnight, Miss Mahalia Jackson, and others.
SUNDAY: LOUIS ARMSTRONG ALL-STARS plus International Youth Band, Dinah Washington, Billy Eckstine, George Shearing 5, Jack Teagarden, Bobby Hackett, Max Roach, Chris Connor, Terry Gibbs, Urbie Green, Don Elliott, and others.
Friday-Saturday-Sunday Afternoon Concerts: 2:30—$1.50 General Admission
Friday Afternoon—International Youth Band, Marshall Brown, conductor; Jimmy Giuffre 3, John LaPorta 4, and others.
Saturday Afternoon — "Critic's Choice" Program to be announced.
Sunday Afternoon — Sonny Rollins 3, Thelonius Monk, Horace Silver 5, Les Jazz Modes, Anita O'Day, Lee Konitz, Sal Salvador, Tony Scott, and others.
• Directed by George Wein •
ALL SEATS RESERVED
$5, $4, $3 per concert
MAIL ORDERS NOW!
We urge you to order your seats by mail immediately. Thousands were disappointed last year by failing to do so.
Add 25c on Mail Orders
Write: JAZZ, NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND
For Tickets in New York City:
National Theatre Tickets, Empire State Bldg.

NEWPORT, R. I.
White Horse Tavern
Serving Good Rhode Island Fare
Open Daily for Lunch and Dinner
VIKING 7-7767
"OLDEST TAVERN IN AMERIC

• FIFTH ANNUAL

NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL

THURSDAY · FRIDAY · SATURDAY
SUNDAY · JULY 3-4-5-6
· A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION ·

Evening Concerts — 8:30 P. M.

THURSDAY — DUKE ELLINGTON TRIBUTE Duke Ellington Orchestra, Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck 4, Paul Desmond, Marian McPartland 3, Miles Davis 6, Cannonball Adderly, Gerry Mulligan, Rex Stewart, with Ellington Alumni All-Stars, and others.

FRIDAY — BENNY GOODMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA plus All-Star talent array.

SATURDAY — "BLUES IN THE NIGHT" — Gerry Mulligan 4, Joe Turner, Pete Johnson, Ray Charles, Chuck Berry, Big Maybelle, Art Farmer, Jack Teagarden, Jo Jones, Buck Clayton, Georgie Auld, Dakota Staton, Maynard Ferguson Orchestra, and at midnight, Miss Mahalia Jackson, and others.

SUNDAY: LOUIS ARMSTRONG ALL-STARS plus International Youth Band, Dinah Washington, Billy Eckstine, George Shearing 5, Jack Teagarden, Bobby Hackett, Max Roach, Chris Connor, Terry Gibbs, Urbie Green, Don Elliott, and others.

Friday-Saturday-Sunday Afternoon Concerts: 2:30—$1.50 General Admission

Friday Afternoon—International Youth Band, Marshall Brown, conductor; Jimmy Giuffre 3, John LaPorta 4, and others.

Saturday Afternoon — "Critic's Choice" Program to be announced.

Sunday Afternoon — Sonny Rollins 3, Thelonius Monk, Horace Silver 5, Les Jazz Modes, Anita O'Day, Lee Konitz, Sal Salvador, Tony Scott, and others.

• Directed by George Wein •

ALL SEATS RESERVED
$5, $4, $3 per concert

MAIL ORDERS NOW!

We urge you to order your seats by mail immediately. Thousands were disappointed last year by failing to do so.

Add 25c on Mail Orders

Write: JAZZ, NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND

For Tickets in New York City:
National Theatre Tickets, Empire State Bldg.

NEWPORT, R. I.

White Horse Tavern

Serving Good Rhode Island Fare
Open Daily for Lunch and Dinner
VIKING 7-7767
"OLDEST TAVERN IN AMERICA

---

quality, well prepared. For drinks, the Bayberry Lounge is most relaxing with its club chairs and lounges. Dinner only 5 to 10, Sunday and holidays from noon, $2.50 to $4.75. Air conditioned.

Hennessy's Steak House—Dennis Port (Exeter 8-2226) This restaurant is more fun for there is always some sort of hi-jinks going on. The Champagne Breakfast made such a hit last year, that Bob is starting it off again June 30, but the hours will be less rugged—9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, with Ed Marvin's show. All for a mere $2. Herb Lewis, who plays piano and regales with songs evenings, MC's the fashion shows at cocktails 5 to 7 p.m. From 5 to midnight, you dine—seafood is a favorite, so try the special whole, boned bluefish. There's steaks, of course—all kinds! And delicious Caesar salad, flaming desserts to top it all off. Complete dinner $2.50 to $6.50.

Wayside Inn—Chatham (8589) Main St. The atmosphere is most homelike at this 150-year-old country inn where Mrs. Havens and her family outdo themselves to make your visit enjoyable whether you come for a vacation or a meal. Besides rooms in the main house, there's an Annex and two houses on the pretty grounds. Attractive dining rooms take care of guests and transients, where you will get mighty good and flavorful home cooking. Delicious homemade breads, cakes and pies, too. An all-year round hotel, American plan rates prevail June 16 to September 30, $7.50 to $12 per person per day. European plan at other times. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., 95¢. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $2.25 to $3.50. There's a buffet supper Sunday 6 to 8 p.m., $3.50.

Christopher Ryder House—Chatham Port (Chatham 608) A captain's home dating from 1790, this restored Colonial house is a perfectly beautiful restaurant. Handsome decorations and wallpapers in three smart dining rooms, candlelit evenings, set the proper mood for the excellent American and Continental cuisine. There's a buffet luncheon every day and a Sunday night buffet. The intriguing Circus Tent will function again for evenings of dancing and entertainment (except Sunday). And the patio terrace is newly decorated this year. The buffet luncheon, 12 to 2 p.m., is $1.95. Dinner 5:45 to 10:15 p.m., $2.75 to $4.95. Sunday 11 to 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95.

Queen Anne Inn—Chatham (394) Queen Anne Rd. For the past 23 years, vacationers have enjoyed the comforts of this delightful summer inn. Charming bedrooms with lovely flowered wallpapers, early American antiques in the public rooms and pretty dining rooms in the main house. There are fine rooms in the cottages on the grounds, too. Oyster Pond Beach is just a short way from the inn, but there's fine swimming at Chatham Light Beach or Harding Beach. Golf and tennis is nearby. American plan the tree Gov. Prence brought with him from England) cocktail lounge and coffee shop serves a fine breakfast as well as good drinks. July 1 to Labor Day rates $14 per day double occupancy in main lodge, $16 in rooms in the pines.

Bonnie Doone—Provincetown (1185) 35 Bradford St. Every year something intriguing goes on at this fine restaurant. This year, the old red roof gives way to a heavenly aquamarine hue and looks smart as could be. The Grille Room is pretty as a picture with its modern coral-colored booths and golden-netted glass partitions. The bar, too, has new stools with ample seats also in the same coral. The other dining rooms—the Terrace Room, the Patio with its wrought iron furnishings and a new softened glow to the fibre glass roof, the Thistle Room upstairs—are sparkling. Seafood is the thing—you might try the deluxe lobster tray, or perhaps a shore dinner. Luncheon 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., $1.25 to $4.95. Dinner all day till 10 p.m., $1.95 to $4.95. Piano and organ music.

Chateau Motel — Provincetown (1286) Bradford St. extension. This brand new motel has a grand location—on a hilltop overlooking the dunes and with a magnificent view of the ocean, especially when the sun is setting. The soft grey Cape Cod style building is chipper with pink trim and the ten rooms large and handsomely furnished—colorful draperies and lounge chairs, soft grey furniture.

The Flagship — Provincetown (577) Rte. 6, on the waterfront. A most unique restaurant right out on the water—the windows giving a fine view across the bay. Originally built as a fisherman's shack, the idea has been carried out with ships' timbers for beams, hung with hundreds of old barrels, bells, cork, bottles and things that are found from wrecks. The two bars are made from old fishing dories and couldn't be more seaworthy. Practically everything is charcoal broiled. And the food is delicious. One menu noon to 1 a.m., with complete meals $1.90 to $5.90.

Chillingsworth—East Brewster (Twin Oaks 6-3656) If you appreciate French cuisine of gourmet calibre, you will love this beautiful place. Elegant appointments in the sitting rooms, gift shop and small dining rooms. Be sure to make a reservation here. Luncheon 12 to 2 p.m., $2.50 to $3.50. Dinner 6 to 8 p.m., $5 to $8. Closed Monday. Whether you dine or no, you will be intrigued with the magnificent gifts in the shop—all made here. I saw some divine things in the Christmas Shop, so you might keep that in mind.

Stageway—Dennis (54) Rte. 6A. This is a nice little place handy to the Cape Playhouse. A special luncheon has several choices at $1.15, served 11:30 to 4 p.m. Dinner 4 to 11 p.m., Sunday from noon, $2.25 to $4.95

---

[40]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

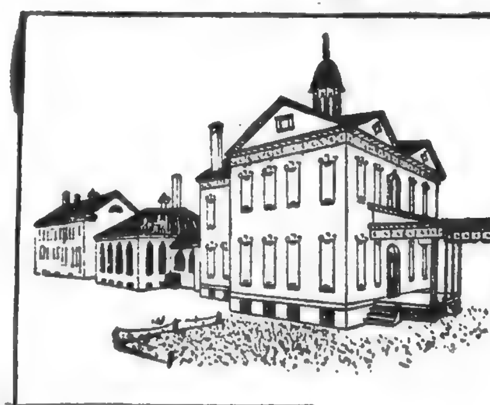
HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series. . . . Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday. . . . Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUN 24 1958



MUSEUM NOTES

By HARRIET HULL

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will return this week from Europe in preparation for the six-week Berkshire Festival program, July 4 to Aug. 10, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Dr. Munch has recently completed a series of guest conducting appearances at Strasbourg, the town of his birth. He conducted the Orchestre Nationale of Paris on June 14 and 15 in concerts of the 23rd World Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music in the Palais des Fetes. First performances at the June 14 concert was the Third symphony by Henry Barraud (first European performance); a new work by Pierre Boulez and a new symphony by Darius Milhaud. A new symphony by Florent Schmitt was featured on the June 15 program.

* * *

RICHARD LOTTRIDGE, recent Yale graduate and bassoonist, has been named for the second season as one of the "Fromm Fellows" to play in the series of Composers Forums at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lottridge is the son of Mrs. Ethel Lottridge of Haigh avenue.

The Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago is sponsoring the extensive program of study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center under the supervision of the staff of the composition department of the school, led by Aaron Copland. The group will present a concert on July 14, which will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

MISS JENNIE McNAB of Clarksville was awarded the one-year scholarship for the study of organ offered by the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She was one of 17 contestants judged by a committee including Miss Helen Henshaw of this city; Preston Rockholt and Miss Jeannette Rafter, Albany organists. Dr. Elmer Tidmarsh, dean of the local chapter, presented the scholarship to Miss McNab.

Miss McNab, 15, is entering the 10th grade at Bethlehem central school and is active in the Clarksville Methodist Church. She is a piano pupil of Miss Eleanor Schweiker of Albany.

* * *

THE "SWEET ADELINES" and the "Empire Statesmen," two of Gloversville's most distinguished singing groups, are aiding the Sacandaga Summer Theater production of Show Boat. The groups are occupying audience seats along the sides of the theater and accompany members on the stage. "Ole Man River," "Captain Andy," "After the Ball is Over," "Why Do I Love You?" "Cotton Blossom" and "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" are among numbers sung by the group.

* * *

MAX ROACH, jazz drummer and faculty member of the School of Jazz, will be soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program on Aug. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Music Barn at Lenox, Mass. Harold Farberman of New York will direct the program. The Barn season will open this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

* * *

CHAUTAUQUA Institution will open its 85th season Sunday for eight weeks of activity. The traditional opening service will be held in the morning and will be followed in the afternoon by a presentation by Jerome Hines of his religious opera, "I Am the Way." Walter Hendl will direct the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in a total of [illegible] concerts during the season, six operas will be presented in English and the Chautauqua Reperatory Theater will present seven plays.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS
Cir. D. 137,553

JUL 3 1958

July Musical Events For Travel-Minded

Editor's Note: This list is offered as a service to travel-minded music lovers.

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-August 10. Symphonic music, jazz, chamber music.

JACOB'S PILLOW Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Aspen Festival, Aspen, Colo. Continues through July. Major works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith and a special series featuring the works and participation of contemporary American composers will highlight the series.

CHAUTAUQUA Institution, Chautauqua, N.Y. Opera begins July 11. Symphony and dance programs also runs through Aug. 18.

STRATFORD FESTIVAL, Stratford, Canada, music portion opens July 14, runs through Aug. 16. Opera, folk music, jazz concerts, recitals, Marcel Marceau.

CLEVELAND ORCHESTRA

invited to take part in the Opera Workshop by Dr. Theron R. McClure, professor and director of the Ohio State University Opera Department, July 24 to Aug. 11.

CINCINNATI SUMMER Opera, Cincinnati. Begins July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier," with Eleanor Steber. "Elixir of Love," "Carmen," "Boris Godounoff," "Madam Butterfly," and "La Boheme" will also be offered in July.

[41]

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Summer Jazz Concerts Are Spreading Through U. S. From Coast to Coast

1 5423

By ROSS PARMENTER

IN 1954, when Louis L. Lorillard, George T. Wein and fellow enthusiasts decided to stage a summer jazz festival at Newport, R. I., they seemed like daring innovators. Yet look what has happened since.

The next year, summer-long jazz was introduced at Music Inn in Lenox, Mass, and it was made part of the Castle Hill Concerts at Ipswich, Mass. In 1956 ten jazz concerts were introduced into the music festival at Stratford, Ont., and the Lewisohn Stadium devoted a whole program to jazz for the first time. Last year the Great South Bay Jazz Festival was established at Great River, N. Y. And this year jazz will have far and away its biggest summer to date.

The new Vancouver Festival is including jazz as part of its basic format. In its second year, the festival at French Lick in Indiana is devoting one of its four week-ends to jazz. The festival at Dogwood Hollow in Stony Brook, L. I., which formerly was devoted to lighter classics, will be nearly all jazz. There will be jazz as part of the festival of the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester, Vt. There will be jazz at the Lewisohn Stadium, at Ravinia in Chicago, at Red Rocks in Colorado, at the Hollywood Bowl and a week of jazz at the Carter Barron Amphitheatre in Washington.

This Week-End

A great deal of that jazz will be concentrated over the coming week-end. This will be the week of the fifth Newport Jazz Festival. Erroll Garner is playing at Ravinia on July 2 and 4. Duke Ellington is playing at Castle Hill on July 4 and 5 and on July 5 Louis Armstrong is headlining a jazz program at the Lewisohn Stadium. The Armstrong program at the Stadium, incidentally, will be the first of two jazz concerts there, for Duke Ellington will also appear on July 24.

Further jazz events in the Metropolitan area will include Lionel Hampton at "Evenings-by-the-River" on July 10 and the third annual New York Jazz Festival on Randall's Island on Aug. 22 and 23.

This wildfire spread of jazz through the summer scene is not being greeted with complete enthusiasm on all sides. It is pointed out that a small jazz group costs far less to hire than a symphony orchestra and that some summer impresarios, taking advantage of this, are replacing concert music with jazz because on the one hand it costs less and on the other it often draws bigger audiences.

FROMM GROUP: Last year eleven young musicians known as the Fromm Fellowship Players gave a fillip to contemporary music at Tanglewood by being able to play any score that was given them. This year there will be Fromm Players there again. They will play for the six lectures in the Contemporary Music Series, which will be devoted to American composers; for the three lectures in the "New Aspects in Music" series and for the Composers' Forums of works written by composition students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Peter Marsh, Richard Lottridge and Paul Ingraham will be the players of last summer who will be back. The new ones will be Theodora Mantz, Scott Nickrenz, Donald McColl, Geruardo Levy, Hubert Resnick, Efrain Guigui, Robert Miller and Corinne Curry. The composers participating in the series on their music will be Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, Marc Blitzstein, Lukas Foss and Aaron Copland. The series and the players are being financed by the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, which is headed by Paul Fromm.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Carlos Chavez has been appointed to the Charles Eliot Norton Professorship at Harvard next year. Stravinsky, Hindemith and Copland have been previous composers who have given the six lectures, which are the post's chief duty. . . . Henry Janiec, who has been musical director of the Charlotte Opera Association since 1956, has been named music director of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra for 1958-59. . . The Hartford Festival of Music, which will present four concerts on the terrace of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company building, will give its first concert on Wednesday. Robert Brawley is the conductor and musical director of the new series.... Leontyne Price, who recently made her debut with the Vienna Opera as Aida, will make her debut at London's Covent Garden in the same role on Wednesday.... Dimitri Mitropoulos will be conducting in Israel for the first time this summer.

REPRISE

Stadium Concerts began their forty-first season. At the opening concert Leonard Bernstein's performance and conducting made Ravel's G major Piano Concerto "particularly beautiful." Alexander Smallens began his twenty-fifth season at the Stadium and showed that conductor and orchestra players "understood and respected each other." He led the Intermezzo from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," which had "vitality enough to stand on its own as an orchestral piece." . . . The Guggenheim Memorial Concerts also got under way, with Richard Franko Goldman leading the Goldman Band. Vittorio Gianinni's "Praeludium and Allegro," performed at the first concert in Central Park, demonstrated the composer's "spontaneous lyrical invention."

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS
Circ. D. 2,156,137 - S. 3,586,789

JUN 29 1958

Excursion to Music Fete

Music lovers as well as those in the mood for a day in the country will be offered five successive Sunday excursions to the Tanglewood concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass., beginning July 13. The one-day New Haven Railroad trips cost $7.95 for adults, $5.75 for children 5 and under 12. Prices cover train and bus transportation, general admission to the music shed and all taxes.

You can take along a picnic lunch and enjoy it on the broad lawns surrounding the shed while listening to the music. Tickets are limited and must be purchased in advance either at the New Haven's ticket offices at Grand Central Terminal, 125th St. station or at Stamford. Departure from Grand Central is at 8:20 A.M., returning at 10:12 P. M.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

Newport international Band
Newport international
Band
Newport international
Band

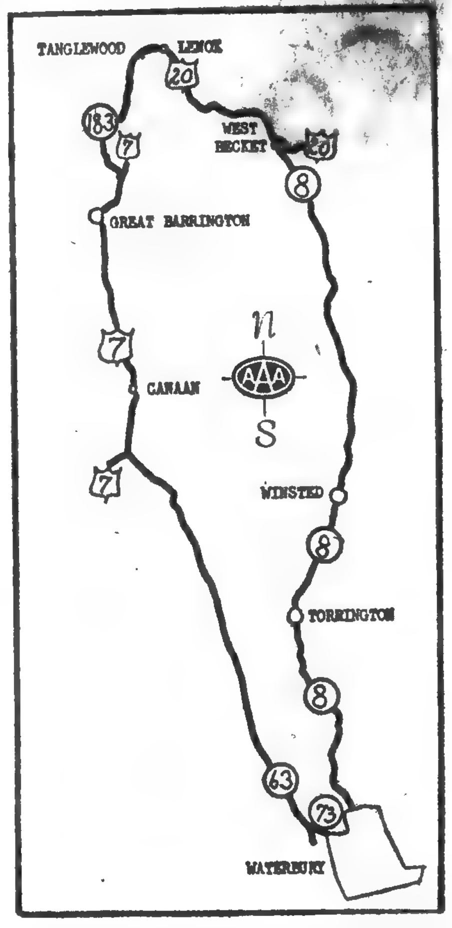
The New York Time

COOL CATS GO TO NEWPORT—Members of the International Youth Band, whose personnel is made up of players from many countries, are conducted by Marshall Brown, left, as they prepare for debut at the Jazz Festival in Freebody Park this week-end.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 46,025

JUL 13 1958

Tanglewood Trip Affords Music, Romance, Scenery



This AAA suggestion involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 145 miles is involved for Waterbury residents who take Route 73 and then Route 63 northwesterly to Canaan. Then it's north on U. S. Route 7 to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and a winter resort center and, just before entering town, the party passes the fair grounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it crosses Route 102 and curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or even walk around if it pleases them.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first-time visitor is apt to get the impression that this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving, the party drives into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winsted and Torrington and bringing the party back to Waterbury.

Item (e)
CLINTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 3,241

JUL 11 1958

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Music In The Air

For more fun on your summer vacation, take in some of the music festivals held throughout the country. Hot or cool, long hair or crew cut, indoors or out under the stars, they'll all add pleasure to any outing.

Here are some you may want to consider:

New York: New York City, July 1 – August 5, "Evenings-by-the-River" presented by Lower Eastside Neighborhoods Association. Islip, L. I., July 26, 27, Aug. 1-3, Great South Bay Jazz Festival.

New Jersey: Ventnor, Aug. 5-26, Ventnor Music Festival. Recitals at Ventnor Pier.

Massachusetts: Lenox, July 2 – Aug. 10, Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Maine: Blue Hill, July 20–Aug. 24, Chamber music concerts at Kneisel Hall.

Indiana: French Lick, Aug. 8-31, Symphonic, choral, jazz and country music programs.

Wisconsin: Fish Creek, Aug. 9-24, Peninsula Music Festival. Symphonic concerts; five world premieres.

Florida: Miami Beach, July 8 – Aug. 10, Pop concerts. University of Miami Summer Symphony.

California: Carmel, July 14-20, Bach Festival. Redlands, July 1 – Aug. 29, Redlands Bowl Festival. Twenty-one programs of symphonic music, grand and light opera, and ballet.

Canada: Stratford, Ontario, July 22 – Aug. 16, Orchestral concerts, folk music, jazz and "The Beggar's Opera".

[42]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUN 25 1958

Festival's Music Is All Over Our Town—Indoors and Out

By HARRIETT JOHNSON

From Brussels to Santa Fe to Vancouver, B. C., to Anchorage, Alaska, the boom in music festivals this summer continues to percolate with growing distinction for American performers and creative artists. The world premiere, for example, of Carlisle Floyd's opera, "Wuthering Heights," takes place July 16, at Santa Fe, while his "Susannah" is currently being heard at the Brussels Fair with an all-American cast.

Vancouver's first International Festival features among its highlights a gala production of "Don Giovanni," with the Metropolitan Opera's glamorous bass-baritone, American-born George London, in the title role.

Our Town, not to be outdone, has also stretched its Festival echelons, though on a more modest scale, to include added summer concerts, indoors and out, and to feature programs of unusual merit and variety.

'Pop' Concerts Begin Aug. 7

Heading the list of additions is the series of "pop" concerts scheduled for the New York Coliseum beginning Aug. 7 and continuing through Sept. 1. The management of the gigantic 59th St. and Central Park West structure is turning over its air-conditioned second floor for this musical entertainment, even introducing, via projections, "Dancing Waters" to induce the illusion that we will really be sitting under the stars and trees, and of course, by a waterfall.

The ensemble, to be known as the N. Y. "Pops" Orchestra, will be conducted by d'Artega, who, so the story goes, was christened with 17 names and now has rebelled to the point where he uses only one of them. Beer, soft drinks and light refreshments will be served, while the lighter classics are played, enhanced by guest soloists. Tables for four can be purchased and there will also be seats available at lesser prices on the sides.

Stadium Concerts Attractive

The summer scene would lose its familiar local color without Stadium Concerts Inc., founded 41 years ago by Mrs. Charles S. (Minnie) Guggenheimer. Therefore, it's good news that these symphonic concerts are currently sounding stronger than ever at Lewisohn Stadium, the City College Amphitheater. The succession of conductors, including Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteux and Josef Krips, is an eminent one, while the list of soloists this summer appears to exceed every other in continuous glamor and distinguished artistry.

Among the Stadium newcomers will be Metropolitan Opera soprano Hilde Gueden, the celebrated German soprano, Elizabeth Schwarzkopf; Brazilian pianist Giuomar Novaes, and the veteran Russo-British pianist, Benno Moiseiwitsch. Singing stars include the Met's Roberta Peters, Licia Albanese, Nell Rankin, Richard Tucker and Jan Peerce; plus Claramae Turner, Irene Jordan, Camilla Williams, Elaine Malbin, Lawrence Winters and Norman Treigle.

Continued on Page F5

Festival's Music Is All Over Our Town

Continued from Page F2

ELAINE MALBIN

Park Concerts Expanding

Violinists Mischa Elman, Zino Francescatti, Joseph Fuchs, Erica Morini, and pianists Claudio Arrau and Eugene List are also on the roster. The programs will continue five nights a week through Aug. 2, with musicians largely recruited from the N. Y. Philharmonic making up the Stadium Symphony. They will include such meaty fare as a four-day Beethoven Festival July 14 through 17.

Concerts in the city's parks are expanding this season to include a series of four symphony concerts in Carl Schurz Park, adjoining the grounds of Gracie Mansion, presented in cooperation with the Park Dept. With members of the Philharmonic and the Symphony of the Air making up the ensemble of 32, the programs will be given Thursday nights in August and will be conducted by the distaff maestro, Frederique Petrides.

Goldman Band Returning

Hoping for clear nights, we may say that under the millions of stars in our galaxy there will be the usual round of concerts in Central Park, headed by the Guggenheim Memorial Concerts by the Goldman Band, also entering their 41st season. Under the direction of Richard Franko Goldman, the concerts will take place on the Mall Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, Thursdays and Saturdays through Aug. 15.

Soprano Sarah Fleming, contralto Mary McKenzie and cornetist James Burke will alternate as soloists. With the Goldman Band occupied elsewhere, the Naumburg Symphony takes over the Mall bandstand the nights of July 4, July 31 and Labor Day, for orchestral concerts.

Among the most interesting and constructive series of outdoor summer events can be counted the Evenings-by-the-River free concerts which are to take place in the amphitheater on FDR Drive at Grand St. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be the guest speaker July 1 for the opening when Wilfred Pelletier will conduct the Lena Symphony and Rose Bampton, soprano, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist.

Open Air Opera Schedled

Continuing through the summer on Tuesday evenings, the programs will also feature two special morning hours for children, presented at 11 a.m. July 8 and July 29. Summer concerts in Washington Square Park will also be given as in former seasons.

For those who wish a longer ride by subway, train or car, there is such diversified fare as the casual open-air opera performances at Triboro Stadium Randall's Island, beginning Friday night with Verdi's "Aida," which promises live elephants, horses and camels, in addition to the musical participants. Or, for those who prefer something more formal, the concert series at Brooklyn College lists such artists as violinist Erica Morini, playing Saturday night, and Mata and Hari, dance satirists, July 26.

Tanglewood Beckons

Sometime or other, every music lover may prefer to eschew the city mood for more idyllic surroundings. The Boston Symphony's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., opens July 4 and continues through Aug. [illegible]. Lenox means, however, a roundabout drive. It's a three-hour trip to the Empire State Music Festival at Ellenville, which will operate for just a week this season, beginning Aug. 14. The concerts at Caramoor, Katonah, N. Y., are closer, an hour from Manhattan, but will continue only through Saturday night, July 5.

Possibly you are among those amateur vocalists who wish to "express" themselves. If so, you will enjoy knowing that Brooklyn College offers "summer sings" for public participation Mondays in July. Such beautiful works as Schubert's Mass in G will be among those performed. The Dessoff Choirs, 130 W. 56th St., holds similar "sings" in Manhattan.

And remembering again the stars, for which all summer concert managers pray, we must not forget the Hayden Planetarium's "A Trip to Palomar," through June 30, and the "Expanding Universe," July 1 through Sept. 29, both of which are inevitably accompanied by suitably atmospheric recorded music.

Thus, limitations notwithstanding, it's obvious that, though we may be "stranded" in the city during the hot weather, we can combine a coke with a Tchaikovsky Symphony and feel well compensated for being separated from the open fields and the endless sea. Music, in time with the breezes themselves, suffuses the urban atmosphere with its own special freshness and inspiration.

GLOUCESTER, MASS.
TIMES
Circ. D. 8,809

JUN 24 19[illegible]

New England Music Moving Outdoors

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI)— Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893 - seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo - pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R.I. jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three - day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkhsire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA.
NEWS

JUN 15 1958

Music Camp Grows In Stature

Summer musical events in various parts of the country have become well established and many places have become outstanding attractions.

A relatively new feature of the summer events are musical tent shows which Variety Magazines says will number 22 this year, with most of them on the east coast. Estimated attendance for these ventures this season is 3.5 million.

That gives some idea of the spread of summer musical programs but does not, by any means, give the complete picture. There are many well - established events that have been taking place regularly for a number of years. The Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., is, perhaps, one of the best known. On July 2 it will open its 23rd season.

At Lake Interlochen in Michigan is the best-known of the summer music camps. But right here, in our own community, we have a summer musical program that deserves more attention that it has been receiving. Friday night the University of Alabama Music Camp staged its 15th annual concert in Foster auditorium. With the weather what it was, only the hardiest of music lovers—and parents of the muscic campers — could be expected to turn out for the performance of the more than 300 young people who were completing two weeks of instruction.

The program was varied and exceptionally well done when it is considered that a limited time is available in a two-week period to work up a concert program. The emphasis in the music camp is not on performance but on instruction for the students.

Included on the program was a march written by a Tallassee high school student dedicated to his band director, Edwin R. Watkins of Northport. This was the second selection played by the Music Camp band that was written by Larry Whatley. Last year's was dedicated to Col. Carleton Butler, University band director.

Use of these numbers indicates another area in which students are encouraged to express themselves and demonstrate their ability.

The University Music Camp may never reach the scope of program and national prominence that the one at Interlochen has, but it certainly must rate as one of the outstanding programs of its kind in this region. If suitable outdoor facilities could be provided for the final concert, it could be developed into one of the outstanding cultural and summer music attractions this community, and this area, has ever had.

CHICAGO, ILL.
TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 935,943 - S. 1,303,615

JUN 22 1958

Bay State Carves an Historic Trail

By William Fulton

BOSTON — When the Pilgrim fathers wanted to get anywhere, they carved a turnpike thru the wilderness. That is just what Massachusetts has done, carved a turnpike thru the modern wilderness of builtup areas, traffic lights, and general confusion of population.

In the first year of its operation just ended, the Massachusetts turnpike, a magnificent 123 mile belt looping across the Bay state's waist, has served 10 million passenger automobiles.

• • •

Lenox Bigelow, travel representative of the Massachusetts department of commerce, says 30 per cent of these vehicles in the summer tourist season come from the middle west.

Visitors entering the western part of the state first fan out and take a look at the Berkshires, lush mountains with 73,000 acres of state forest, 13 rivers, 59 lakes, 23 camping areas, 14 golf courses, and 16 winter sports resorts. Music lovers will find at Tanglewood, in the heart of the Berkshires, the summer home of the Boston Symphony orchestra and the site of the famous music festival.

• • •

Proceeding eastward, the tourist trail traverses the central part of the state near Worcester, with its art museum and colleges. It is well worth shooting off the turnpike for a look at old Sturbridge village, studded with 30 shops, mills, and houses of an early 19th century New England community. Here, too, is the hospitable "Publick House," a Treadway inn.

Leaving the turnpike again, this time northward toward Lexington and Concord, the traveler will see where, on April 19, 1775, the "embattled farmers" warned by Paul Revere engaged the British redcoats with "the shot heard 'round the world."

Entering Boston, the tourist comes upon the Bunker Hill monument, erected in memory of the siege of Boston and eventual evacuation of the British from this area.

• • •

Boston has a "freedom trail" to follow. It leads to the old statehouse, South Meeting house, Faneuil [fay-yul] hall, where debates reverberated over the hated stamp tax; old North church, Cambridge and Harvard university, the Longfellow house.

Here in the beautiful setting of the Boston public garden is held the annual arts festival.

Traveling north along the seacoast from Boston, the newcomer runs into the salty tang of such ports as Marblehead, famous for its sailing regattas and annual race week in August. Boating is a sport in virtually every town and hamlet along the scalloped 1,800 mile coast line of Massachusetts.

• • •

Also along the north shore are Gloucester, with its picturesque streets; Salem of witchcraft notoriety, and Salisbury beach, a four mile long playground of surf and sands.

To the south of Boston lies Plymouth and the rock where the Pilgrims, according to legend, landed in 1629. There the Mayflower II, built in England as a gift to the United States, will be berthed.

Work is progressing two miles from the modern town on the site of the old [newly built] village, with details of the original reproduced as faithfully as possible. There will be 19 houses, a fort meeting house, grist mill, Indian settlement, and trading post. The Mayflower II will be permanently moored in the nearby Eel river.

• • •

Landfall of southeastern Massachusetts is the giant fishhook — Cape Cod — a 65 mile long peninsular jutting out into the Atlantic. The cape is noted for scores of beaches, sports fishing, art colonies, and an endless diversity of entertainment.

Offshore are Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket islands, easily accessible by car-carrying ferry or scheduled air line. They are summer paradises for swimming, surfcasting, sunbathing, hiking, and picnic parties.

Doubling back westward on the turnpike, there are a myriad of fascinating spots remaining to explore if vacation time remains.

FORT WORTH, TEX.
STAR-TELEGRAM
Circ. D. 116,351 - S. 228,437

JUN 22 1958

Summer Schedules

Notable Music Events Due Throughout Nation

BY E. CLYDE WHITLOCK.

For the traveler who goes up and down the land in search of summer recreation and diversion there is a rewarding activity in every region in music, and in many cases in seasons of such length that the tourist hardly can miss some of it.

E. CLYDE WHITLOCK.

Closest to us is the nation's largest enterprise in operetta, that of the Municipal Opera in St. Louis, a 12-week nightly series in the enormous 12,000-seat amphitheater in beautiful Forest Park. The 40th anniversary season opened June 5 with "Show Boat."

Among the singers for the season are Elaine Malbin, Jean Fenn and Ralph Herbert, who have sung in Fort Worth Opera productions, Claramae Turner for Fort Worth Civic Music Association and Margaret Roggero and Thomas Hayward of the Metropolitan. Also listed is Mia Salvenska, artistic director of the Fort Worth Civic Ballet.

Starting dates of succeeding engagements are as follows: June 16, "Roberta"; June 23, "Silk Stockings"; June 30, "Rose Marie"; July 7, "Lady in the Dark"; July 14, "On the Town"; July 21, "Rosalinda"; July 28, "Happy Hunting"; Aug. 4, "Finian's Rainbow"; Aug. 11, "Hansel and Gretel" and "The Nutcracker"; Aug. 18, for 14 nights, "Oklahoma!"

* * *

GRANT PARK CONCERTS.

In Chicago the Grant Park Summer Concerts, conducted by Nicholai Malko, begin in June.

On the North Shore the 23rd Ravinia Park Festival will run from July 1 through the first week in August. The Chicago Symphony will play four concerts a week, conducted by Fritz Reiner, the regular incumbent; Walter Hendl, the new associate conductor; William Steinberg of the Pittsburgh Symphony; Igor Markevitch, Georg Solti and Edouard van Remoortel, new conductor of the St. Louis Symphony. There will also be chamber music by the Budapest String Quartet and New York Pro Musica, and jazz concerts, ballad concerts and interpretative dancing.

The Boston Symphony, directed by Arthur Fielder, will play its customary outdoor series on the Charles River Esplanade through July and early August.

The Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass., an activity of the Boston Symphony, will operate between July 2 and Aug. 10. Charles Munch has invited young American pianists to appear as soloists. They are Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario. Bach's "Mass in B Minor" will be given on July 6.

The 41st season at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York runs from June 23 to Aug. 2, with five programs each week. Conductors will be Leonard Bernstein, Josef Krips, Pierre Monteux, Max Rudolf and Alexander Smallens. A long list of eminent soloists is exhibited.

* * *

DISTINGUISHED SOLOISTS.

The Robin Hood Dell series in Philadelphia will be held from June 16 to July 31. On account of the Philadelphia Orchestra's European tour, the first two weeks will be played by the Cleveland Orchestra. Conductors Pierre Monteux, Erich Leinsdorf, George Szell, Alfred Wallenstein and Josef Krips, and a roster of distinguished pianists, violinists and singers will appear.

At Chautauqua "Don Giovanni," "Susannah," "Faust," "Samson and Delilah," "Tosca" and "The Mikado," all in English, will be sung. The orchestra series is under the direction of Walter Hendl.

Elsewhere in the East there are the Cleveland Summer Orchestra, July 9 to Aug. 31; Pops concerts in New Orleans in June and July; a seven-week season of Pops concerts in Minneapolis, beginning in July; the Moravian Festival in Bethlehem, Pa., in late June; St. Paul pop concerts in July and August; Milwaukee Music Under the Stars, July and August; Detroit Little Symphony, beginning in July.

* * *

WESTERN ACTIVITY.

Some of the most engaging activity is in the West.

The opera season at picturesque Central City, Col., will present 17 performances of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," and 16 of Offenbach's "La Perichole." Metropolitan Opera singers and conductors will operate.

The ninth season of the Aspen Music Festival will be held from June 25 to Aug. 31. Paul Hindsmith and Schubert will be the featured composers. The Aspen Music School will be in session from June 23 to Aug. 23, with perhaps the strongest faculty of any American summer school. A list of 42 includes Mack Harrell and Paul Vellucci of Dallas, Rosina Lhevinne, Alexander Uninsky, William Primrose and Darius Milhaud.

A promising new enterprise, now in its second season, is the Santa Fe Opera. The season, offering four performances a week from June 25 to Aug. 19, will present several performances each of "La Boheme," "Cosi fan tutte," "Falstaff," Rossini's "Cindrella," Strauss' "Capriccio" and the world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's "Wuthering Heights." In addition there will be chamber music and orchestra concerts on Sundays.

(At the time "Wuthering Heights," commissioned by the Santa Fe organization, is in rehearsal, Floyd's other opera, "Susannah," will be in performance at the Brussels Exposition.)

The Carmel, Cal., Bach Festival will be held between July 14 and 20. Denver has orchestra concerts at Red Rocks and Seattle has a two-month series of free concerts on Sunday afternoons.

Wappinger Falls, N. Y.
NEWS
W.

JUL 3 1958

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

For more fun on your summer vacation, take in some of the music festivals held throughout the country. Hot or cool, long hair or crew cut, indoors or out under the stars, they'll all add pleasure to any outing.

Here are some you may want to consider:

New York: New York City, July 1 – August 5, "Evenings-by-the-River" presented by Lower East-side Neighborhoods Association. Islip, L. I., July 26, 27, Aug. 1-3, Great South Bay Jazz Festival.

New Jersey: Ventnor, Aug. 5-26, Ventnor Music Festival. Recitals at Ventnor Pier.

Massachusetts: Lenox, July 2 – Aug. 10, Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. ~~Boston Symphony~~ Orchestra.

Maine: Blue Hill, July 20 – Aug. 24, Chamber music concerts at Kneisel Hall.

Indiana: French Lick, Aug. 8-31, Symphonic, choral, jazz and country music programs.

Wisconsin: Fish Creek, Aug. 9-24, Peninsula Music Festival. Symphonic concerts; five world premieres.

Florida: Miami Beach, July 8 – Aug. 10, Pop concerts. University of Miami Summer Symphony.

California: Carmel, July 14-20, Bach Festival. Redlands, July 1 – Aug. 29, Redlands Bowl Festival. Twenty-one programs of symphonic music, grand and light opera, and ballet.

Canada: Stratford, Ontario, July 22 – Aug. 16, Orchestral concerts, folk music, jazz and "The Beggar's Opera".

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.
JUN 1958

New York

N. Y. Editor and Critic: WALTER F. LOEB, 445 West 23rd Street, New York City 11. Tel: WAtkins 4-5386
Other Critics: Shirley Cecille Cash (Orchestras), Harry L. Fuchs, Sherman Gottesman

With The Orchestras

By Shirley Cecille Cash

Van Cliburn

Rarely has a musician made so many headlines as the 23-year-old lanky pianist from Texas who won the International Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow on April 13. Mayor Wagner proclaimed Tuesday, May 20, as "Van Cliburn Day," the first time in New York City's history that a musician has been accorded this honor.

We had the good fortune to hear Mr. Cliburn perform at Carnegie Hall, March 26. He played the works with which he won the award—the Tchaikovsky First Piano Concerto and the Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto. The orchestra on this occasion was the Symphony of the Air, with conductor Kirill P. Kondrashin. Mr. Kondrashin came from the U.S.S.R. to this country to conduct the Carnegie Hall, Philadelphia and Washington concerts. Kondrashin conducted at the Tchaikovsky competition.

Mr. Cliburn is a big pianist—not only in the size of his person, but in the bigness of his quality. His tone is tremendous, his technique is brilliant. After hearing him, it is easy to understand why he made such a great impression in Moscow. But what is most impressive is the depth of musical sincerity and the lyrical outpouring that this remarkable young pianist evokes.

Musical Ambassadors

It appears that our best ambassadors for international good will recently have been our musicians. In addition to the sensational Mr. Cliburn, two of our major orchestras have been receiving cheers and ovations abroad. The New York Philharmonic is now making its longest journey in its 116-year history, covering more than 15,000 miles between April 27 and June 15 on the 12-country tour of Latin America. The Philadelphia Orchestra is touring Europe (May 12-July 4). The Orchestra will play 43 concerts in 26 cities. The 15,000 mile tour will find the symphonists making appearaces at three music festivals—in Bordeaux, France; Bergen, Norway; and Stockholm, Sweden, concluding with three performances at the Brussels World's Fair. Both orchestras have been showered with praise. Both orchestras have featured American works on their programs, and have thus brought about greater understanding of the work of our native composers. The Philadelphians have been performing on both sides of the iron curtain, and their superlative performances have been received with enthusiasm everywhere.

Cleveland Symphony

The Cleveland Symphony, under George Szell, gave its final concert of the season at Carnegie Hall, March 7, and featured the New York premiere of Peter Mennin's Piano Concerto. Eunice Podis was a soloist equal to the challenge of its brilliance and speed. Mr. Szell and his beautifully trained orchestra gave excellent support, and were outstanding in Mozart's Symphony No. 34 (K.338) and in Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony.

Little Orchestra Society

The Little Orchestra Society ended its season with a concert presentation of Verdi's Macbeth, March 26 at Carnegie Hall. William Chapman sang the title role with robust fervor, while Donald Gramm's Banquo was a masterpiece of expressive vocalism. But it was Leonie Rysanek as Lady Macbeth who stole the show and the ovations. The soprano of the Vienna State Opera in her New York debut displayed a grand dramatic voice with which she could command the entire gamut of emotions and nuances. John McCollum and Madelyn Vose in smaller parts, the Choral Art Society, and Thomas Scherman's dynamic direction all contributed to a rousing performance.—H.L.F.

(Continued on page 22)

New York

(Continued from page 2)

Tanglewood

Tanglewood is the summer home of the Boston Symphony. Simultaneous, and interrelated, are the Berkshire Festival and the Berkshire Music Center. The Festival is a six-week period of musical entertainment in chamber music, opera, and orchestra. Charles Munch is featuring a different composer for each week-end of concerts: Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy and Ravel, Wagner and finally Beethoven. There are other composers included, but these are the accents. Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on six successive weekends: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin. Zino Francescatti will appear on July 27, and a number of other fine soloists are scheduled. The Festival extends from July 2 to Aug. 10.

Center Trains Musicians for Professional Orchestras

The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Charles Munch, is a training school for young musicians offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians. The five departments of the Center are orchestra, chamber music, choral department, composition and opera.

Rochester Philharmonic

Theodore Bloomfield, young American conductor, was recently approved permanent conductor of the Rochester (N.Y.) Philharmonic Orchestra.

He has been the conductor and music director of the Portland Symphony for the past three years, and was the former assistant conductor of the Cleveland Symphony under George Szell.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675
MAR 7 - 1958

Travel Editor's Diary

United States Needs to Sell Tourist Wares to World

By Leavitt F. Morris

Travel Editor of The Christian Science Monitor

Europe continues to "outsell" the United States to the vacationist.

Each year such progressive tourist countries as France, England, Switzerland, Austria, Norway, and Germany come up with a host of "new" attractions which they promote with such vigor and enthusiasm that the American traveler feels he must up and "go."

Such is the case again this year. The list of "special" events is a large one. Headed by the Brussels International World's Fair, opening April 17, the top attractions include the Edinburgh Festival, the Lucerne Music Festival, the Bergen Festival, the Salzburg Festival, Israel Exhibition in Jerusalem, and Lourdes Centennial Celebration, to name a few.

Americans are easy marks for special events. All a foreign country need do is put the word "festival" at the end of some event and they are in the tourist business in a big way.

Take this year, for instance. The largest number of American travelers ever will sweep across Europe. It is estimated that 660,000 of them will travel from Oslo to Istanbul, from Paris to Helsinki. This number is an increase of 10 per cent over those who went abroad in 1957.

Special Events Spur Interest in Europe

It is admitted by high travel officials that it is the special events which have spurred such an interest in Europe.

Now there are a number of domestic resort officials who feel it is high time that the United States take some counteraction to the tantalizing promotion being beamed to the American vacationist by the European countries.

These officials reason that it is necessary to sell Americans the attractions of their own country with the equal vigor that Europe sells its tourist wares. There are thousands of U.S. resorts that, this year more than ever, need some program to stimulate their vacation business.

It is true that 660,000 Americans going abroad is only a drop in the proverbial bucket in relationship to those who must vacation in the United States or adjacent Canada and Mexico for economical reasons.

However, the far-sighted resort operator can see the day coming when air and steamship fares to Europe could well be set as low as $100 round trip. Unless the various sections of the United States can come up and promote events of outstanding interest to the vacationists, resort operators visualize empty lobbies in their inns and hotels while potential customers go gallivanting to Europe as a result of the many "festival" lures dangled in front of them by high-voltage promotion programs.

Day Foreseen When Travel Will Be Two-Way Street

The day is coming when travel will be a two-way street. It is then that the United States should present a program of varied attractions keyed to the interest of the European traveler. These travelers to our shores would, in a large degree, off-set the number of Americans leaving their country for a trip abroad. Such a program also well could get more Americans to move about their own country.

Americans going abroad in larger numbers is a healthy trend. Not only are better relations established between the peoples they meet in foreign lands but dollars spent return to this country for more and more goods, thus providing more and more employment.

Minnesota, for instance, is celebrating its centennial year. The state itself is promoting a varied program of interesting events in connection with this observance. But is its voice loud enough? Can it be heard the length and breadth of the land? This is an occasion when the United States itself could step in and amplify the promotional efforts of Minnesota. Let the word go forth across the seas. Let the word go around the world informing all peoples of the great touristic advantages of the United States. The day will come when they can come and see for themselves. But the time to tell them is now.

The time is now to tell them about Colonial Williamsburg, the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and our great chain of scenic, national playgrounds. Promotion on the local and even state level isn't enough. The deep bass voice of the United States itself should start booming the vacation advantages of the 48 states and possessions not only for its own people to hear but for the peoples of the world.

[44]

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.
JUN 1958

New York

N. Y. Editor and Critic: WALTER F. LOEB, 445 West 23rd Street, New York City 11. Tel: WAtkins 4-5386
Other Critics: Shirley Cecille Cash (Orchestras), Harry L. Fuchs, Sherman Gottesman

With The Orchestras

By Shirley Cecille Cash

Berkshire Festival

Van Cliburn

Rarely has a musician made so many headlines as the 23-year-old lanky pianist from Texas who won the International Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow on April 13. Mayor Wagner proclaimed Tuesday, May 20, as "Van Cliburn Day," the first time in New York City's history that a musician has been accorded this honor.

We had the good fortune to hear Mr. Cliburn perform at Carnegie Hall, March 26. He played the works with which he won the award—the Tchaikovsky First Piano Concerto and the Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto. The orchestra on this occasion was the Symphony of the Air, with conductor Kirill P. Kondrashin. Mr. Kondrashin came from the U.S.S.R. to this country to conduct the Carnegie Hall, Philadelphia and Washington concerts. Kondrashin conducted at the Tchaikovsky competition.

Mr. Cliburn is a big pianist—not only in the size of his person, but in the bigness of his quality. His tone is tremendous, his technique is brilliant. After hearing him, it is easy to understand why he made such a great impression in Moscow. But what is most impressive is the depth of musical sincerity and the lyrical outpouring that this remarkable young pianist evokes.

Musical Ambassadors

It appears that our best ambassadors for international good will recently have been our musicians. In addition to the sensational Mr. Cliburn, two of our major orchestras have been receiving cheers and ovations abroad. The New York Philharmonic is now making its longest journey in its 116-year history, covering more than 15,000 miles between April 27 and June 15 on the 12-country tour of Latin America. The Philadelphia Orchestra is touring Europe (May 12-July 4). The Orchestra will play 43 concerts in 26 cities. The 15,000 mile tour will find the symphonists making appearaces at three music festivals—in Bordeaux, France; Bergen, Norway; and Stockholm, Sweden, concluding with three performances at the Brussels World's Fair. Both orchestras have been showered with praise. Both orchestras have featured American works on their programs, and have thus brought about greater understanding of the work of our native composers. The Philadelphians have been performing on both sides of the iron curtain, and their superlative performances have been received with enthusiasm everywhere.

Cleveland Symphony

The Cleveland Symphony, under George Szell, gave its final concert of the season at Carnegie Hall, March 7, and featured the New York premiere of Peter Mennin's Piano Concerto. Eunice Podis was a soloist equal to the challenge of its brilliance and speed. Mr. Szell and his beautifully trained orchestra gave excellent support, and were outstanding in Mozart's Symphony No. 34 (K.338) and in Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony.

Little Orchestra Society

The Little Orchestra Society ended its season with a concert presentation of Verdi's Macbeth, March 26 at Carnegie Hall. William Chapman sang the title role with robust fervor, while Donald Gramm's Banquo was a masterpiece of expressive vocalism. But it was Leonie Rysanek as Lady Macbeth who stole the show and the ovations. The soprano of the Vienna State Opera in her New York debut displayed a grand dramatic voice with which she could command the entire gamut of emotions and nuances. John McCollum and Madelyn Vose in smaller parts, the Choral Art Society, and Thomas Scherman's dynamic direction all contributed to a rousing performance.—H.L.F.

(Continued on page 22)

New York

(Continued from page 2)

Tanglewood

Tanglewood is the summer home of the Boston Symphony. Simultaneous, and interrelated, are the Berkshire Festival and the Berkshire Music Center. The Festival is a six-week period of musical entertainment in chamber music, opera, and orchestra. Charles Munch is featuring a different composer for each week-end of concerts: Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy and Ravel, Wagner and finally Beethoven. There are other composers included, but these are the accents. Soloists for the Festival will include six outstanding young American pianists appearing on six successive weekends: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin. Zino Francescatti will appear on July 27, and a number of other fine soloists are scheduled. The Festival extends from July 2 to Aug. 10.

Center Trains Musicians for Professional Orchestras

The Berkshire Music Center, headed by Charles Munch, is a training school for young musicians offering a concentrated experience in ensemble performance guided by a distinguished faculty including 22 Boston Symphony Orchestra musicians. The five departments of the Center are orchestra, chamber music, choral department, composition and opera.

Rochester Philharmonic

Theodore Bloomfield, young American conductor, was recently approved permanent conductor of the Rochester (N.Y.) Philharmonic Orchestra.

He has been the conductor and music director of the Portland Symphony for the past three years, and was the former assistant conductor of the Cleveland Symphony under George Szell.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675
MAR 7 - 1958

Travel Editor's Diary

United States Needs to Sell Tourist Wares to World

By Leavitt F. Morris
Travel Editor of The Christian Science Monitor

Europe continues to "outsell" the United States to the vacationist.

Each year such progressive tourist countries as France, England, Switzerland, Austria, Norway, and Germany come up with a host of "new" attractions which they promote with such vigor and enthusiasm that the American traveler feels he must up and "go."

Such is the case again this year. The list of "special" events is a large one. Headed by the Brussels International World's Fair, opening April 17, the top attractions include the Edinburgh Festival, the Lucerne Music Festival, the Bergen Festival, the Salzburg Festival, Israel Exhibition in Jerusalem, and Lourdes Centennial Celebration, to name a few.

Americans are easy marks for special events. All a foreign country need do is put the word "festival" at the end of some event and they are in the tourist business in a big way.

Take this year, for instance. The largest number of American travelers ever will sweep across Europe. It is estimated that 660,000 of them will travel from Oslo to Istanbul, from Paris to Helsinki. This number is an increase of 10 per cent over those who went abroad in 1957.

Special Events Spur Interest in Europe

It is admitted by high travel officials that it is the special events which have spurred such an interest in Europe.

Now there are a number of domestic resort officials who feel it is high time that the United States take some counteraction to the tantalizing promotion being beamed to the American vacationist by the European countries.

These officials reason that it is necessary to sell Americans the attractions of their own country with the equal vigor that Europe sells its tourist wares. There are thousands of U.S. resorts that, this year more than ever, need some program to stimulate their vacation business.

It is true that 660,000 Americans going abroad is only a drop in the proverbial bucket in relationship to those who must vacation in the United States or adjacent Canada and Mexico for economical reasons.

However, the far-sighted resort operator can see the day coming when air and steamship fares to Europe could well be set as low as $100 round trip. Unless the various sections of the United States can come up and promote events of outstanding interest to the vacationists, resort operators visualize empty lobbies in their inns and hotels while potential customers go gallivanting to Europe as a result of the many "festival" lures dangled in front of them by high-voltage promotion programs.

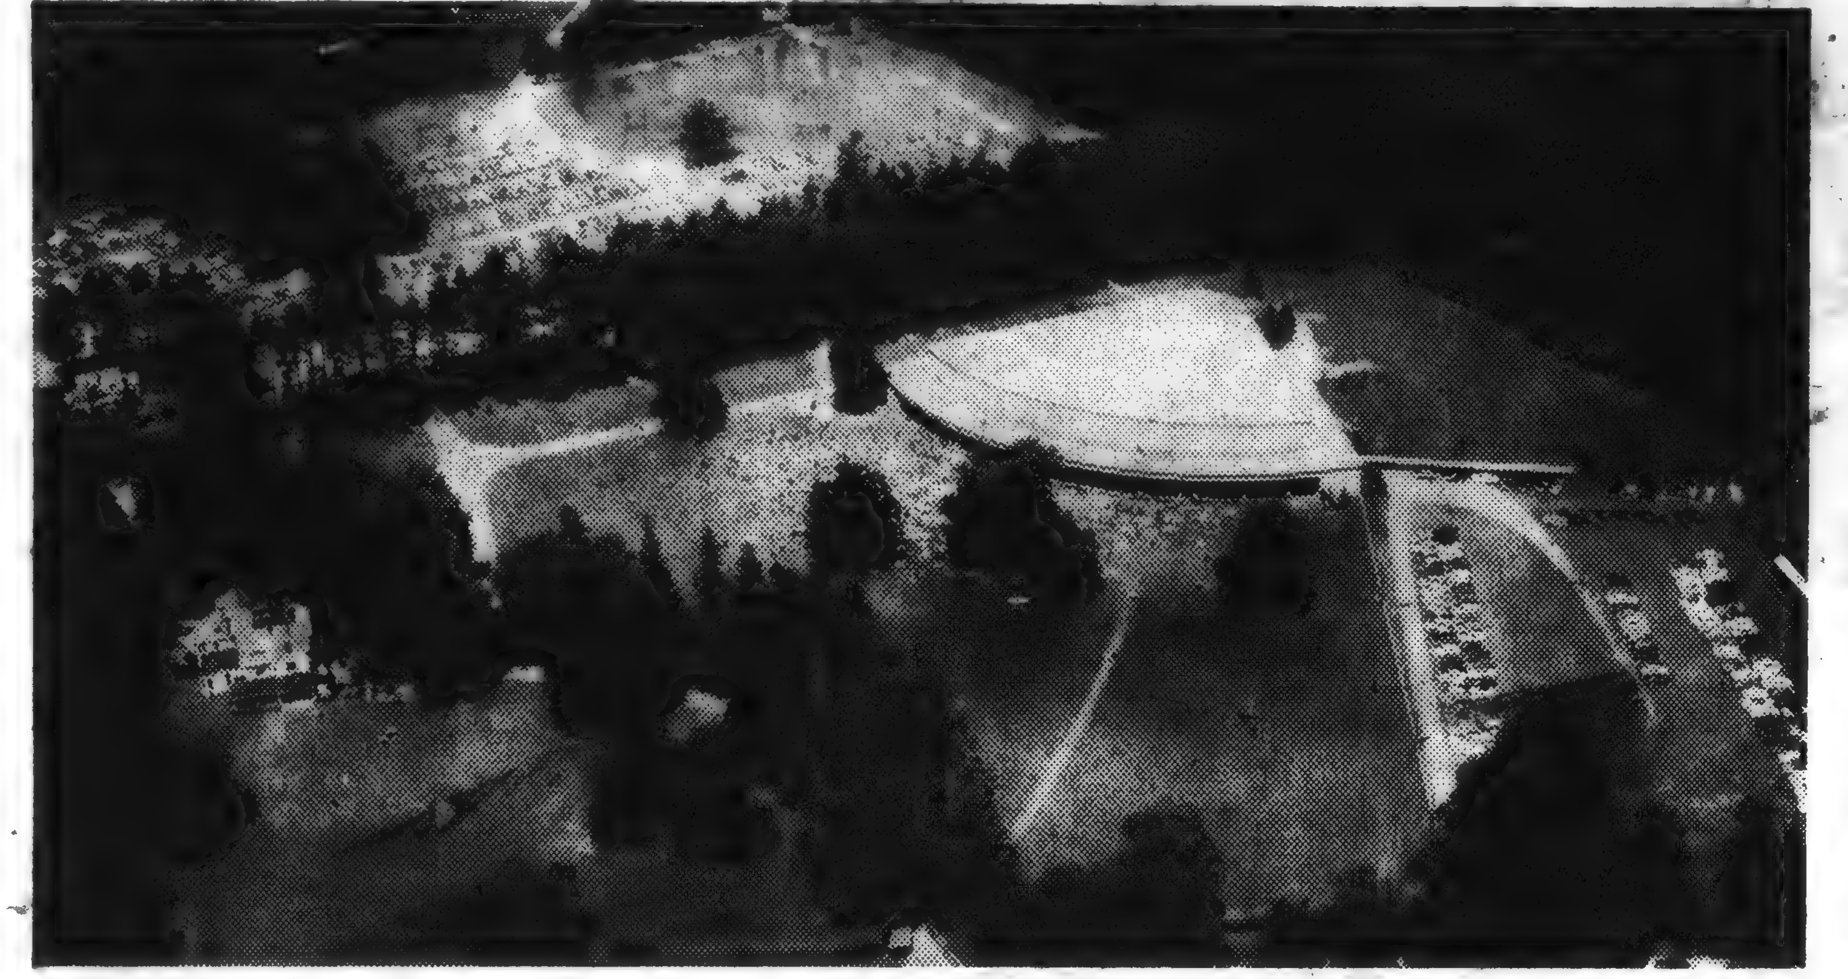
Day Foreseen When Travel Will Be Two-Way Street

The day is coming when travel will be a two-way street. It is then that the United States should present a program of varied attractions keyed to the interest of the European traveler. These travelers to our shores would, in a large degree, off-set the number of Americans leaving their country for a trip abroad. Such a program also well could get more Americans to move about their own country.

Americans going abroad in larger numbers is a healthy trend. Not only are better relations established between the peoples they meet in foreign lands but dollars spent return to this country for more and more goods, thus providing more and more employment.

Minnesota, for instance, is celebrating its centennial year. The state itself is promoting a varied program of interesting events in connection with this observance. But is its voice loud enough? Can it be heard the length and breadth of the land? This is an occasion when the United States itself could step in and [illegible] the promotional efforts of Minnesota. Let the word go forth across the seas. Let the word go around the world [illegible] peoples of the great touristic advantages of the [illegible]. The day will come when they can come and see for themselves. But the time to tell them is now.

The time is now to tell them about Colonial Williamsburg, the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and our great chain of scenic, national playgrounds. Promotion on the local and even state level isn't enough. The deep bass voice of the United States [illegible] start booming [illegible] vacation advantages of the 48 states and possessions [illegible] its own people to hear but for the peoples of th[illegible]



This pleasant, wooded green at Lenox, Mass., is called Tanglewood and is the scene of the annual Berkshire Music Festival. Music students and musicians of the Boston Symphony perform a six-week series of programs.

Since the concerts began in 1934 in a tent, a permanent concert hall has been erected. It is called "The Shed" and is partially open so that the music may flow out across the lawns where many concert-goers like to sit.

Tanglewood—Music In The Making

By GEORGE ELLIOTT 3D

LENOX, MASS.

DO, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Ti, Do.

Two pianos trip discordantly through the diatonic scales. A violin, muted by broad expanses of lawn, stately birches, elms and pines, squeals a theme.

Or a young Baltimorean, with a long pull ahead, nervously bows at a chamber music concert. Or, magnified in dimension, the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra cascades in splendor down to the shores of Lake Mahkeenac.

For this is famed Tanglewood—scene of the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival. This is where musical history is being written or, budding, is still untold.

The twenty-first season of the traditional festival in western Massachusetts will end August 10. Until then, major concerts will be held Friday and Saturday nights and in the afternoon on Sundays during the six-week program. Other events are scheduled on most weekdays.

In European Tradition

The Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch (or Pierre Monteux, its "conductor emeritus"), will feature works by Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Wagner and Beethoven in remaining concerts. The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert, with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra, will be given August 7. There will be many soloists and guest programs.

Here, where Nathaniel Hawthorne planned his "Tanglewood Tales," is the gathering place of music lovers in the tradition of the great European festivals. The crowds, which have exceeded 15,000 at one concert, may surpass last year's total of some 162,936 persons.

But Tanglewood is more than a summer showplace for Dr. Munch and his Bostonians. It is also a noted campus of musical learning.

There are, for instance, 70 pianos on the "campus" of the Berkshire Music Center.

A Farewell Concert

The gloomy, overcast Sunday, July 6, rather typified the operation of Tanglewood's festival and school. That afternoon a crowd of 4,232 applauded the artistry of G. Wallace Woodworth, leading his farewell concert after 25 years as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. History was unfolding at Tanglewood.

That morning a smaller, yet sizable, crowd heard Ronald Knudsen, one of three Baltimoreans among 325 students at the Berkshire Music Center, perform in the first of a series of Sunday morning chamber music concerts.

The students come from 36 states and 17 foreign countries for study, concurrent with the festival, under some of the world's top artists.

"When music means so much to so many people," says Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, "a place like this is justified."

The history of both festival and school are wrapped around the personality of the late Serge Koussevitzky, the longtime conductor of the Boston orchestra who died in 1951. The school, opened in 1940, was the realization of one of the maestro's fondest dreams.

Inaugurated In 1934

Actually, the festival was inaugurated in 1934 when a committee of citizens erected a wooden concert shell on a nearby estate to start a program.

Some 5,000 persons that summer heard Henry Hadley lead 65 players from the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society in three concerts. In 1935 the same cast performed in a hired tent. The site was shifted in 1936 and, with the shift, Dr. Koussevitzky entered the picture.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra "moved" to the Berkshires. In the Winter of 1936 the historic, 210-acre estate called Tanglewood was presented to the orchestra by Mrs. Gorham Brooks (later Mrs. Andrew Hepburn) and her aunt, Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan. Then came a storm.

In the Summer of 1937, Dr. Koussevitzky was conducting an all-Wagner program in the tent. The storm struck, halting the music several times and drenching many in the audience.

It is said that Dr. Koussevitzky insisted that a permanent auditorium be erected if the orchestra was to stay at Tanglewood. The result was a campaign that raised $80,000. The present main concert hall, called "The Shed," which seats 6,037 persons, was completed for the 1938 season.

The Shed was designed by Eliel Saarinen, a Finnish architect, while the remarkable acoustics for the partially-open structure were planned by Prof. Richard D. Fay, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. So fine are the acoustics that the slightest pianissimo carries clearly across the lawn.

And so, the Shed was opened on August 4, 1938, with Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony." There was more rain—but the roof was soundproof and the setting dry.

Season Is Extended

The 1938 season of six concerts in two weeks drew some 38,000 persons. Dr. Koussevitzky increased the season steadily over the years until World War II brought the program to a temporary halt. When it resumed, the crowds swelled again.

In addition to the Shed, facilities at Tanglewood include a 1,200-seat theater-concert hall; a barn, a garage and rehearsal stage, all used for studies, and ten small studio buildings. The rambling mansion house, completed in 1865 and used by the school, harks back to Tanglewood's beginning.

The distant past is clouded, although a tribe of Mohican Indians reputedly lived by the lake. The present estate was laid out in 1849 by William Aspinwall Tappan, a Boston merchant and banker, whose daughters lived there many years and entertained many literary celebrities.

Nathaniel Hawthorne lived at Tanglewood in a little red cottage from 1851 to 1853. He also wrote "The Wonder Book" and assembled material for "The House of Seven Gables" in those years. A reproduction of his cottage stands on the original site.

His creativity is the heritage of students at the Berkshire Music Center. Such is the record of the school that its alumni make up more than 10 per cent of all major United States symphony orchestras.

In addition to Dr. Koussevitzky and Dr. Munch, the director, the school's faculty has included Aaron Copland, assistant director, and Paul Hindemith as teachers of composition; Dr. Herbert Graf and Boris Goldovsky, as opera instructors; Eleazar de Carvalho, the eminent Brazilian conductor who is also an alumnus, and the principal and solo players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Baltimoreans At Center

The Baltimoreans at the center are Mr. Knudsen, of 12 East Centre street, and Joanne Cohen, of 3714 Springdale avenue, both members of the violin section of the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and Philip Eisenberg, of 3100 Gibbons avenue, a student in the Opera Department.

Their school routine is a 9 to 5-plus combination of classes, rehearsals, individual instruction, after-hours practice and attendance at concerts. But there are also informal parties, dances, swimming, boating and other events.

Climaxing the noncredit course is the final student concert on August 9 when various awards are given, including the Koussevitzky Award to the most promising conductor.

Perhaps the most unusual offering of the school is the Tanglewood Study Group, an informal program conducted chiefly for amateur musicians. These music devotees may spend two-week periods or longer at Tanglewood. They share all facilities and perform together. If there happens to be twenty pianists at one time, all twenty may play in one concert session.

The Mood Is Informal

With the clanging of an ancient railroad bell, a crowd begins to file into the Shed for a typical concert. They sit on folding seats under the bare, gray girders of the suspended ceiling.

But this is Tanglewood—best known for those hundreds more who recline on the grass. The mood is informal. Under the trees they spread blankets, open picnic lunches, stare at the sky. The baton raps for quiet.

The music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra surges across the lawn and rings forth its splendor.

This is Tanglewood—1958.

Charles Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a series of programs at the festival.

Two of the three Baltimoreans at the festival are Ronald Knudsen, of East Centre street, and Joanne Cohen, of Springdale avenue. Both are violinists.

[46]

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178
MAY 17 1958

Books and Authors

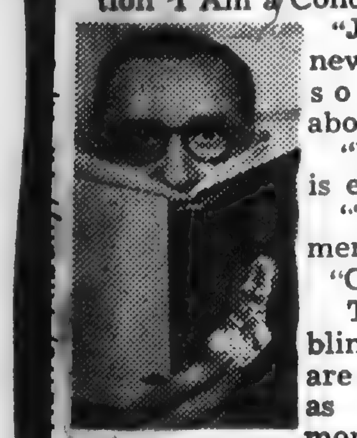
Scribbles Noted

By DUANE LaFLECHE

I HAVE before me a pile of scribblings that have been accumulating on my desk.

They say:

"Tanglewood opening. Mention 'I Am a Conductor.'"



LaFleche

"John O'Hara's new novel. Say something about it."

"Women. East is east, etc."

"The new Simenon."

"Clark Gable!"

Those scribblings, if they are to be taken as anything more than evidence that I am given to talking to myself, require some considerable explanation. This is it.

★ ★ ★

THE APPROACH of a new season for the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood makes it appropriate to mention a not-so-new book, Charles Munch's "I Am a Conductor".

Two years ago Mr. Munch, the dynamic and handsome Alsatian who came to America to become conductor of the Boston Symphony, was persuaded by a French publisher to write one in a series of "I Am a ———" books.

This little book that resulted (it has fewer than 100 short pages) is as lilting as a Mozart fantasia and as thoughtful as a Beethoven symphony. It is a book both modest and wise, and the reading of it now will, I am sure, add to your enjoyment when you watch Mr. Munch mount the podium at Tanglewood this summer.

And how does a conductor feel when he mounts that podium?

"You perch on a pedestal in the middle of a battlefield. You are Saint Sebastian exposed to the Roman arrows. You are Joan of Arc ready to burn at the stake for what you love."

So says Mr. Munch.

And once on his pedestal, what then?

"I believe that every human being endowed with intelligence, memory, and strength of character bears within him a little of the supernatural as well. The highest purpose of the conductor is to release this superhuman potential in every one of his musicians," Mr. Munch declares.

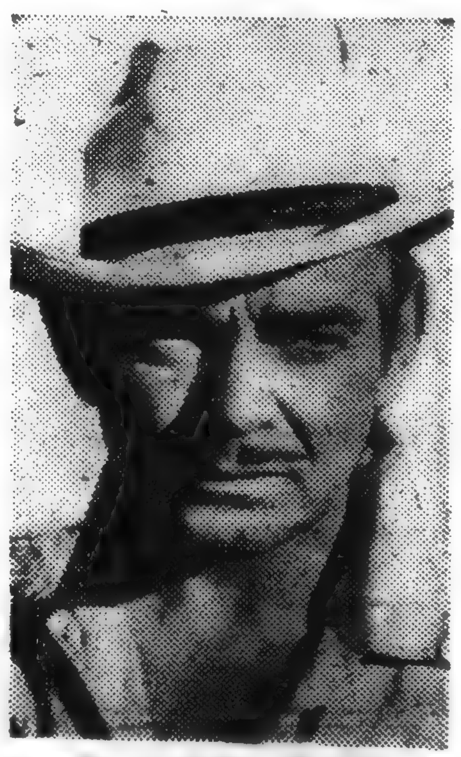
But his book is more than reflections on the conductor's lot and art. It is a very personal book. It tells how Munch became a conductor, it tells how he learned his art and how he teaches it. It tells what hard work it is to be a conductor, it tells about [illegible], about concerts and about musicians' lives, and it reveals the very practical things that Mr. Munch has learned in conducting.

"Be happy when they whistle at you in Chicago," he says, "but not in London. In one city when the audience is perfectly silent at the end of your concert, you may play an encore. In another the applause may make you think you have achieved some kind of wild triumph yet not mean a thing."

Toward critics Mr. Munch takes "a reserved attitude."

"It is not too bad to read in the papers from time to time that one is a blockhead, but if the gentlemen of the press feel free to say that what we are doing is terrible, they might at least take the trouble to let us know how they can tell."

CHARLES MUNCH — The life of a conductor.



CLARK GABLE — Prototype of a reviewer?

Mr. Munch has a point there. He has a lot of points in this book of his. All are sharp, even though that last is the most piercing.

★ ★ ★

THE SECOND of my scribbles concerned John O'Hara. It was a reminder to mention that he is nearing the end of a new novel, "From the Terrace", which will be published in the fall. It should be of particular interest in Albany, for is not Mr. O'Hara currently under indictment here on the ground his "Ten North Frederick" is obscene?

If I were asked to guess I would guess that by fall the indictment will be forgotten and that "From the Terrace" will look down unthreatened from Albany's bookshelves.

★ ★ ★

SCRIBBLE NUMBER THREE was a reminder to bring to your attention with some moderate recommendation "The Moon of Beauty," the work of Jorgen Andersen-Rosendal, a Danish man-about-the-world. It is all about women (Eastern women) with the sub-motif that, despite Kipling, sometimes the "twain" do meet.

Mr. Andersen-Rosendal's thesis is that the women of the East have preserved the "sweet femininity" that has become a rare commodity in the West. He says that Eastern women are submissive because they understand that their weakness is their strength.

Myself not liking women in large numbers (three is a large number) I found following Mr. Andersen-Rosendal around about India, Japan, Java and numerous waypoints something of a strain. At times, too, I found him just a bit too sweet.

I rather imagine a good many American women would find this book infuriating (American women, I notice, infuriate easily). And I warn them that if they follow Mr. Andersen-Rosendal in his travels, they are going to find themselves in places where nice girls don't go.

But then our Danish friend wasn't necessarily looking for "nice girls". His interest, as he says, is in "sweet femininity".

★ ★ ★

MY NOTE ON the "new Simenon" referred of course to the latest of Georges Simenon's Maigret stories. This one is "None of Maigret's Business".

It is not, I am sorry to say, the best of Simenon, but even run-of-the-mill Simenon is better than the best of Erle Stanley Gardner and his ilk.

Maigret, chief inspector of the Sureie, is on vacation when he reads the news of the murder of a doctor's wife. He can't resist dabbling in this murder, but on the other hand he can't resist the insistence of friends and family that he continue with his vacation.

So what Maigret does is read the newspaper reports of the murder. Of course I must say here that they are French newspaper reports and believe me they aren't like any murder reports that I have read in the American press.

But they are most enterprising reports and in some cases, I fear, most libelous. But more important they do let Maigret solve the murder, and Maigret, I must add, is as quietly competent and charmingly reticent as ever.

★ ★ ★

AND THE LAST of my scribbles says "Clark Gable!"

That was written the day I noticed that a young whippersnapper of a movie reviewer had said in the public prints that I am not as pretty as that well-worn star.

For three days I was crushed.

Then I looked at a picture of Mr. Gable.

"I Am a Conductor," Oxford University Press—$2.95.

"From the Terrace," Random House—Fall publication.

"The Moon of Beauty," The John Day Company—$3.95.

"None of Maigret's Business," Doubleday & Company—$2.95.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
World-Telegram & Sun
Circ. D. 569,290 - Sat. 232,097
MAY 21 1958

Tanglewood Opera Readies Season

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has announced his plans for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, June 30 to Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music. The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts 2 and 4 of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act 3 of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) at 8:30.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512
JUN 8 1958

Highlights of Berkshire Fete at Tanglewood

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will bd guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff.

Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem."

The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahm; July 25-26-27 music of Deubssy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

SPACIOUS LAWNS

Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Masachusetts.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in he Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns.

Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attraction to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162
JUN 7 1958

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major; Bartok's Quartet, No. 1 in A minor, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9 in a program featuring Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under Noah Greenberg, will present music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others, on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present German and English songs, including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The final concerts will be given by the Kroll Quartet July 30 and Aug. 6.

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200
JUN 8 1958

Tanglewood . . .

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On August 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

N. Y. POST JUNE [illegible] 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Lists Programs

The orchestral programs of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., a six-week summer season, opens Wednesday night, July 2, with a chamber music concert by the Budapest String Quartet.

Highlights of each week-end:

Friday night, July 4: Bach Suites, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4; Saturday night, the Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Lukas Foss as soloist, plus "The Art of the Fugue"; Sunday afternoon, the "Bach B Minor Mass" with soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Charles Munch will conduct the first two events which will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Mass, to be held in the 6,000-seat Music Shed.

Friday night, July 11: Mozart "Sinfonia Concertante" with violinist Ruth Posselt and violist Joseph de Pasquale as soloists; the "Linz" Symphony, No. 36, in C Major; Saturday night, the two-piano Concerto K. 365, with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as soloists; the Serenade No. 10 in B Flat for Winds, the Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, Charles Munch conducting. The latter event will be in the Music Shed. Sunday afternoon, the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in G Major, K 467, with Lipkin as soloist, Munch conducting, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Friday night, July 18; Brahms Symphony No. 4 Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16, Copland Variations for Orchestra; Saturday night, Brahms "Requiem," with soloists Hilde Gueden and Donald Gramm, Munch conducting. Sunday afternoon, the Brahms Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Leon Fleisher as soloist, Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," Pierre Monteux conducting. All of the final three week-ends' concerts will be held in the Music Shed.

Friday night, July 25, Tchaikovsky Fourth Symphony, Debussy Three Nocturnes; Saturday night, Stravinsky "Agon," Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3, with Byron Janis as soloist; Debussy's "La Mer." Sunday afternoon, Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist.

Friday night, Aug. 1: Excerpts from Wagner, including the Immolation Scene from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Piston Viola Concerto; Saturday night, the Liszt Piano Concerto No. I in E Flat Major, with Leonard Pennario as soloist; Vaughan Williams Symphony No. 8; Sunday afternoon, All-Wagner with Miss Harshaw as soloist. Munch leads the first two events and Monteux the final one.

Friday night, Aug. 8: Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and the "Emperor" Concerto with Eugene Istomin as soloist; Honegger Prelude Fugue and Postlude; Saturday night, Beethoven Music from "Prometheus," the Violin Concerto with Berl Senofsky as soloist; Sunday afternoon, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138
JUN 5 - 1958

Tanglewood Berkshire Night Interest Jumps

Berkshire Night subscriptions to the Berkshire Music Festival concerts at Tanglewood have increased to 402 this year, a gain of 46 per cent.

This was announced yesterday by Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, Berkshire Nights Committee chairman.

Under the Berkshire Nights plan, tickets for four Friday evening concerts, July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8, were offered as a special series to residents of this area. Normal series subscriptions cover one weekend. The plan was inaugurated last year when subscriptions totaled 287. Mrs. Mahanna said that this year many residents of the Albany-Troy, Springfield-Holyoke and Southern Vermont areas were among subscribers.

Beautiful bed-spread • 2 brass boudoir lamps DOWN

[4a]

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178
MAY 1 7 1958

Books and Authors

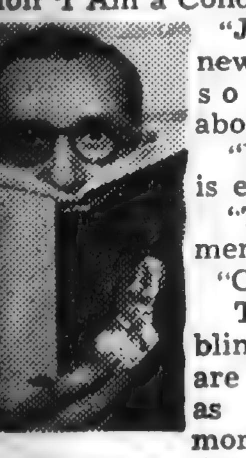
Scribbles Noted

By DUANE LaFLECHE

I HAVE before me a pile of scribblings that have been accumulating on my desk.

They say:

"Tanglewood opening. Mention 'I Am a Conductor.'"



LaFleche

"John O'Hara's new novel. Say something about it."

"Women. East is east, etc."

"The new Simenon."

"Clark G[illegible]"

Those scribblings, if they are to be taken as anything more than evidence that I am given to talking to myself, require some considerable explanation. This is it.

★ ★ ★

THE APPROACH of a new season for the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood makes it appropriate to mention a not-so-new book, Charles Munch's "I Am a Conductor".

Two years ago Mr. Munch, the dynamic and handsome Alsatian who came to America to become conductor of the Boston Symphony, was persuaded by a French publisher to write one in a series of "I Am a ———" books.

This little book that resulted (it has fewer than 100 short pages) is as lilting as a Mozart fantasia and as thoughtful as a Beethoven symphony. It is a book both modest and wise, and the reading of it now will, I am sure, add to your enjoyment when you watch Mr. Munch mount the podium at Tanglewood this summer.

And how does a conductor feel when he mounts that podium?

"You perch on a pedestal in the middle of a battlefield. You are Saint Sebastian exposed to the Roman arrows. You are Joan of Arc ready to burn at the stake for what you love."

So says Mr. Munch.

And once on his pedestal, what then?

"I believe that every human being endowed with intelligence, memory, and strength of character bears within him a little of the supernatural as well. The highest purpose of the conductor is to release this superhuman potential in every one of his musicians," Mr. Munch declares.

But his book is more than reflections on the conductor's lot and art. It is a very personal book. It tells how Munch became a conductor, it tells how he learned his art and how he teaches it. It tells what hard work it is to be a conductor, it tells about [illegible], about concerts and about musicians' lives, and it reveals the very practical things that Mr. Munch has learned in conducting.

"Be happy when they whistle at you in Chicago," he says, "but not in London. In one city when the audience is perfectly silent at the end of your concert, you may play an encore. In another the applause may make you think you have achieved some kind of wild triumph yet not mean a thing."

Toward critics Mr. Munch takes "a reserved attitude."

"It is not too bad to read in the papers from time to time that one is a blockhead, but if the gentlemen of the press feel free to say that what we are doing is terrible, they might at least take the trouble to let us know how they can tell."

CHARLES MUNCH — The life of a conductor.

CLARK GABLE — Prototype of a reviewer?

Mr. Munch has a point there. He has a lot of points in this book of his. All are sharp, even though that last is the most piercing.

★ ★ ★

THE SECOND of my scribbles concerned John O'Hara. It was a reminder to mention that he is nearing the end of a new novel, "From the Terrace", which will be published in the fall. It should be of particular interest in Albany, for is not Mr. O'Hara currently under indictment here on the ground his "Ten North Frederick" is obscene?

If I were asked to guess I would guess that by fall the indictment will be forgotten and that "From the Terrace" will look down unthreatened from Albany's bookshelves.

★ ★ ★

SCRIBBLE NUMBER THREE was a reminder to bring to your attention with some moderate recommendation "The Moon of Beauty," the work of Jorgen Andersen-Rosendal, a Danish man-about-the-world. It is all about women (Eastern women) with the sub-motif that, despite Kipling, sometimes the "twain" do meet.

Mr. Andersen-Rosendal's thesis is that the women of the East have preserved the "sweet femininity" that has become a rare commodity in the West. He says that Eastern women are submissive because they understand that their weakness is their strength.

Myself not liking women in large numbers (three is a large number) I found following Mr. Andersen-Rosendal around about India, Japan, Java and numerous waypoints something of a strain. At times, too, I found him just a bit too sweet.

I rather imagine a good many American women would find this book infuriating (American women, I notice, infuriate easily). And I warn them that if they follow Mr. Andersen-Rosendal in his travels, they are going to find themselves in places where nice girls don't go.

But then our Danish friend wasn't necessarily looking for "nice girls". His interest, as he says, is in "sweet femininity".

★ ★ ★

MY NOTE ON the "new Simenon" referred of course to the latest of Georges Simenon's Maigret stories. This one is "None of Maigret's Business".

It is not, I am sorry to say, the best of Simenon, but even run-of-the-mill Simenon is better than the best of Erle Stanley Gardner and his ilk.

Maigret, chief inspector of the Sureie, is on vacation when he reads the news of the murder of a doctor's wife. He can't resist dabbling in this murder, but on the other hand he can't resist the insistence of friends and family that he continue with his vacation.

So what Maigret does is read the newspaper reports of the murder. Of course I must say here that they are French newspaper reports and believe me they aren't like any murder reports that I have read in the American press.

But they are most ent[illegible]prising reports and in so[illegible] cases, I fear, most libelo[illegible] But more important they [illegible] let Maigret solve the murde[illegible] and Maigret, I must add, [illegible] as quietly competent an[illegible] charmingly reticent as eve[illegible]

★ ★ ★

AND THE LAST of m[illegible] scribbles says "Clark Gable[illegible]

That was written the da[illegible] I noticed that a young whip[illegible]persnapper of a movie re[illegible]viewer had said in the pub[illegible] prints that I am not as prett[illegible] as that well-worn star.

For three days I was crushed.

Then I looked at a pictur[illegible] of Mr. Gable.

"I Am a Conductor," Oxfor[illegible] University Press—$2.95.

"From the Terrace," Random House—Fall publication.

"The Moon of Beauty," Th[illegible] John Day Company—$3.95.

"None of Maigret's Business," Doubleday & Compan[illegible]—$2.95.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512
JUN 8 1958

Highlights of Berkshire Fete at Tanglewood

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will bd guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff.

Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem."

The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahm; July 25-26-27 music of Deubssy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

SPACIOUS LAWNS

Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Masachusetts.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in he Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns.

Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attraction to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Morning Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 225,162
JUN 7 1958

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major; Bartok's Quartet, No. 1 in A minor, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9 in a program featuring Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under Noah Greenberg, will present music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others, on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present German and English songs, including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The final concerts will be given by the Kroll Quartet July 30 and Aug. 6.

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200
JUN 8 1958

Tanglewood . . .

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On August 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox. Mass.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
World-Telegram & Sun
Circ. D. 569,290 - Sat. 232,097
MAY 2 1 1958

Tanglewood Opera Readies Season

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has announced his plans for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, June 30 to Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music. The opera department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts 2 and 4 of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act 3 of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28 and Aug. 4) at 8:30.

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Lists Programs

The orchestral programs of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., six-week summer season, opens Wednesday night, July 2, ith a chamber music concert by the Budapest String uartet.

Highlights of each week-end:

Friday night, July 4: Bach ites, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4; Saturday ght, the Bach Piano Concerto in Minor, with Lukas Foss as solo- , plus "The Art of the Fugue"; inday afternoon, the "Bach B inor Mass" with soloists Adele ddison, Eunice Alberts, Blake ern, Donald Gramm, assisted by e Harvard Glee Club and the adcliffe Choral Society. Charles unch will conduct the first two ents which will be held in the heater-Concert Hall. G. Wallace oodworth will conduct the ass, to be held in the 6,000-seat usic Shed.

Friday night, July 11: Mozart Sinfonia Concertante" with olinist Ruth Posselt and violist Joseph de Pasquale as soloists; the "Linz" Symphony, No. 36, in C Major; Saturday night, the two-piano Concerto K. 365, with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as soloists; the Serenade No. 10 in B Flat for Winds, the Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, Charles Munch conducting. The latter event will be in the Music Shed. Sunday afternoon, the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in G Major, K 467, with Lipkin as soloist, Munch conducting, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Friday night, July 18; Brahms Symphony No. 4 Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16, Copland Variations for Orchestra; Saturday night, Brahms "Requiem," with soloists Hilde Gueden and Donald Gramm, Munch conducting. Sunday afternoon, the Brahms Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Leon Fleisher as soloist, Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," Pierre Monteux conducting. All of the final three week-ends' concerts will be held in the Music Shed.

Friday night, July 25, Tchaikovsky Fourth Symphony, Debussy Three Nocturnes; Saturday night, Stravinsky "Agon," Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No 3, with Byron Janis as soloist; Debussy's "La Mer." Sunday afternoon, Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist.

Friday night, Aug. 1: Excerpts from Wagner, including the Immolation Scene from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Piston Viola Concerto; Saturday night, the Liszt Piano Concerto No. I in E Flat Major, with Leonard Pennario as soloist; Vaughan Williams, Symphony No. 8; Sunday afternoon, All-Wagner with Miss Harshaw as soloist. Munch leads the first two events and Monteux the final one.

Friday night, Aug. 8: Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and the "Emperor" Concerto with Eugene Istomin as soloist; Honegger Prelude Fugue and Postlude; Saturday night, Beethoven Music from "Prometheus," the Violin Concerto with Berl Senofsky as soloist; Sunday afternoon, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138
JUN 5 - 1958

Tanglewood Berkshire Night Interest Jumps

Berkshire Night subscriptions to the Berkshire Music Festival concerts at Tanglewood have increased to 402 this year, a gain of 46 per cent.

This was announced yesterday by Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield, Berkshire Nights Committee chairman.

Under the Berkshire Nights plan, tickets for four Friday evening concerts, July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1 and 8, were offered as a special series to residents of this area. Normal series subscriptions cover one weekend. The plan was inaugurated last year when subscriptions totaled 287. Mrs. Mahanna said that this year many residents of the Albany-Troy, Springfield-Holyoke and Southern Vermont areas were among subscribers.

Beautiful bed-spread • 2 brass boudoir lamps
DOWN

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

JUN 8 1958

GOING PLACES?

On What to Take Where Here Are Some Tips

By ELIZABETH BERNKOPF

This year, the question seems to be not if you're going on a trip, but where you're going on your trip. America is on the move.

And it's up to the lady of the household to plan and pack the wardrobe. Her lord and master is apt to be very casual about the whole thing. And then, when he arrives some place, ask with righteous indignation "why didn't you tell me to bring along a heavy sweater?"

★ ★ ★

Of course, where you go and how you get there determines what you will take. So this can be no more than a broad outline of what to wear, where; but we hope it will be helpful.

If you're discovering—or rediscovering — the great beauty of our own New England, here are a few things to think about.

★ ★ ★

Northern New England—the beautiful Green Mountains of Vermont, the exciting coastline of Maine—has warm, sunny days (we hope), delightfully cool nights. But you will need warm clothing.

★ ★ ★

Here is where those wonderfully packable wool knits are the answer to prayer. In light colors, with slightly scooped necks, they can answer every but the most formal evening need.

Another fine deal here is the coordinated skirt and blouse (these can be cotton or linen) with matching sweater. They always look trim if you stop at one of the good inns or restaurants (and New England abounds in them) for lunch or dinner, and can adjust so re[illegible]ly to the temperature.

Those northern waters can be cold, too. So here is the perfect place for one of the very smart wool swimsuits that are having a revival right now.

And if you plan to stay for any length of time, you might take the advice of a Mainiac friend of ours—"I wouldn't dream of leaving my flannel nighties at home."

★ ★ ★

Now Tanglewood is something else again. The beautiful music festival which is one of the great glories of New England attracts people from all over the world. And it is true that you will see every type of dress from the music-mad youngsters who hitch-hike up, bring their own sleeping bags and live in jeans to some very elegant folk in full evening clothes.

★ ★ ★

A happy medium, and most worn are the soft, pretty Summer dresses in silk or cotton print, or plain color, if you prefer. But here, too, a cardigan to throw over the shoulders is a good idea.

Now the South Shore, the Cape and the Islands provide you with warmer waters, usually more balmy evenings. And unless you plan to go to a resort hotel, dress is quite informal.

Shorts are very much the order of the day—tapered pants with a bright, tied-at-the-waist blouse even go out in the evening. But if you are planning to do the Summer Theaters, you'll want an approximation of a cocktail dress. For this, there are many enchanting sun dresses that do double duty.

For travel abroad—going to the Brussels Fair?—the problems are different. If you're going by ship, you will need some formal clothes. Dances on board are a big part of the fun.

If you're flying, there is the matter of weight. Sixty-six pounds for de luxe — 44 pounds for tourist. But you'd be surprised at the amount of clothes you can get into 44 pounds.

Of course, this presupposes lightweight luggage to start with. We've found those fold-over cases where you hang things a perfect answer. The new ones have frames that won't squash either, and your clothes stay as fresh and unwrinkled as when you started. Furthermore, you arrive complete with hangers — not always readily available.

Again, we must consider where you're going. You can always count on some cold and rainy weather in England and Scotland—that's for sure. And Scandinavia is far from tropical.

Wool is what you'll want. Wool jersey, wool knits, wool sweater and skirt combinations are a must. Also good stout leather shoes. The Nordic peoples walk—and so will you.

★ ★ ★

London dresses after dark. Not necessarily formal—but not casual, either. Dinner and theater—or rather, the other way around, London has never got over the early curtain times of the war—is one of the great and inexpensive pleasures. Particularly theaters which cost incredibly little, by our standards, and which is almost universally excellent.

★ ★ ★

However, there are very chi-chi supper clubs which demand formal clothes. They say they don't, but you'll notice they just never happen to have a table, if you don't meet the captain's critical eye.

On the continent—Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris—smart women wear dark clothes and white gloves. A dark cotton or cotton-and-dacron town suit, a black or navy, very simple but elegant dress marks you as knowing your way around.

(Color is another thing to watch. Pick one that you can harmonize with one set of accessories. You can get your variety by changing costume jewelry, scarves, adding a flower.)

Italy is hotter and gayer and brighter-colored all around. A simple and a-so-packabl chemise in a small-figured all over print, preferably silk be cause it's cool, has no weigl you'll live in. Plus a skir maybe sharkskin or silk dacron—that wraps, witl collection of the lovely o blouses all around this se

And again, comfortable with pretty thick soles. tween the museums ar

---

KINGSTON, N. Y.
DAILY FREEMAN

MAY 14 1958

Music Scholarships Now Available for Tanglewood Sessions

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces a number of scholarships and prizes available to its students.

Important prizes are offered in the names of three great virtuosi interested in the school. The Jascha Heifetz Prize for an outstanding violin student and the Gregor Piatigorsky Award for a cellist were established by the artists whose names they bear. The Albert Spalding Prize for the most promising instrumentalist in the student body was established in the late violinist's name by his widow.

Residents of Berkshire County established the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship in memory of Serge Koussevitzky to aid a conducting student. Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a long time friend of the orchestra, last year established the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund for students of conducting. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation offers a prize to a composition student for the best work written at Tanglewood and also makes grants to students in other departments of the Center. The National Federation of Music Clubs also offers scholarships and grants in its own name and in the name of its former President Mrs. Ann M. Gannett.

Samuel Wechsler of New York offers a commission each year to a present or former composition student of the Berkshire Music Center. Also interested in young Tanglewood composers are Margaret Lee Crofts, who contributes two scholarships, and the Sagalyn family, which offers the Raphael Sagalyn Award for the best orchestral work to a composition student.

The Berkshire Scholarships, for residents of Berkshire County, are offered again this year to students in any division of the departments of instrumental music, choral music, or the Tanglewood Study Group. A Tanglewood neighbor, High Fidelity Magazine, which is published in Great Barrington, Mass., offers a scholarship to the Music Center.

New scholarships for this year are offered by David M. Morgenstern designed to aid outstanding string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

Other scholarships and grants include Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity Scholarship; Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship; Selly A. Eisemann Scholarship; Jenny Fels Memorial Scholarship; Fromm Music Foundation Fellowships; Minneapolis Star-Tribune Scholarship; Saint Louis Symphony Society Women's Association Scholarship and Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts Award.

The Berkshire Music Center's sixteenth session will be held at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this summer between June 30 and August 10. Applications for admission for scholarships are now being received by the registrar at the Berkshire Music Center Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

MAY 25 1958

Morristown Is Named As N. J. Music Capital

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

Morristown will be New Jersey's musical capital from next Saturday through June 7, a period which Gov. Robert B. Meyner has designated as a state-wide Masterwork Chorus Week. The principal events will be two performances of Bach's St. John Passion by the Masterwork Chorus under David Randolph's direction at 8 p. m. Friday and Saturday, June 6 and 7, in the Morristown High School, where the Morris County Art Association will hold an exhibition of paintings on both evenings.

Carl Mosbacher, pianist, will open the festival with a recital at 8 p. m. Saturday, May 31, in Morristown's Macculloch Hall. Mr. Randolph will discuss the music of Bach and his contemporaries in that hall Tuesday night, June 2, with choral illustrations. Many of the members of the orchestra for the St. John Passion have been playing in the recent Casals Festival in Puerto Rico. The orchestral line-up will include all of the contemporary instruments called for in the score. Information about tickets may be obtained by writing to the Masterworks Chorus, Box 106, Morristown, N. J.

• • •

Tanglewood Novelty

Rossini's locally little known "Count Ory" will be the principal production of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department under Boris Goldovsky's direction this summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The opera schedule also includes a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," two acts of Verdi's "La Traviata" and the third act of Puccini's "La Rondine."

The Rossini work will probably be given on the last of the Center's three operatic Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and Aug. 4. It will be sung in an English version by Robert A. Simon which was commissioned by the Juilliard School. The opera department will be supported this summer by the New England Opera Theater's Leadership Training Program, which has benefited from a Ford Foundation grant to be used for developing new scenic materials.

• • •

Benno Lee Honored

Benno Lee, director of the Hunter College concert series, has received the Austrian government's Gold Medal of Honor as a tribute to his services for Austrian culture and music. The award was made soon after Dr. Lee's recent seventy-fifth birthday by the Austrian Consul-General, Dr. Eduard Schiller.

News (e)
FRAMINGHAM, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,207

JUN 24 1958

Boston Pops to Move Outdoors

BOSTON, June 24 (UPI)—Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,8[illegible]-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony hall this week, music moves out of doors. The Pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
PRESS
Circ. D. 37,128 - S. 27,530

MAY 25 1958

This Week in MUSIC

by William McMahon

VAN CLIBURN, the young Texan who since he won the International Tchaikovsky Award in Moscow has been the hottest concert item since the heyday of Iturbi, will be "visited" on the Edward R. Murrow "Person to Person" show on Channel 10 Friday at 10:30 p.m. Cliburn, who got an ovation for his powerful technique in Carnegie Hall, and who is being reserved further ahead than "My Fair Lady" tickets, is a product of American teaching. He went to the Juilliard School of Music on a scholarship to start this trail of training under experts.

Cliburn will also be on the air tonight as a guest of Steve Allen. We hope for a change that Allen shows some breeding and lets the kid play without trying to clown him up for his own glory, as is usually the case.

— — —

O. C. CONCERT

A Memorial Day concert will be played at the Ocean City Music Pier on Friday at 2:30 p.m. by an orchestra under the direction of Harry Chazin of this city. This concert has been arranged between the city of Ocean City and the Atlantic City local, AFM.

The orchestra that plays the pier throughout the summer is under jurisdiction of the AC local. Conductor Chazin has arranged a program in keeping with the day. Dennis McMahon will be master of ceremonies for the occasion.

The program follows:

"Il Guarany"	Gomez
"Over the Waves"	Rosas
"American Patrol"	Meaham
"Nell Glynn Dance"	German
"Without a Song"	Youmans
"Rodger Young"	Loesser
McMahon, baritone,
"Sunny South"	Lampe
"Waltzing Cat" and "Trumpeter"	Anderson
Victor Herbert Favorites
Medley from "My Fair Lady"

— — —

TANGLEWOOD

THE MAJOR operatoric production at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this year will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for its own opera theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Center for performance this summer. The opera dept. of the center will also do a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet".

— — —

TENT SEASON OPENS

SUMMER IS officially here when St. John Terrell opens up his music tent at Lambertville. He begins his 10th season on Saturday, as the Music Mountain tent first raised its flaps as America's first musical arena theatre in 1949.

In the ten years since the initial Lambertville season, 24 more tents have sprung up throughout the United States and Canada. All indications are that outdoor theatres this summer will draw more than ever before with everyone heading for the open country.

Another first for Terrell will be his opening production "Most Happy Fella", Frank Loesser's award - winning musical under canvas for the first time.

— — —

THE TOURING SOVIETS

This area will get a chance to see the well publicized Moiseyev Dance Company of the Soviet Union when it appears for two performances at the Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 11-12 under the wing of Emma Feldman.

The energetic troupe of 100 dancers and full symphony is the first Soviet Company to come to the U. S. under the new cultural exchange program. It is also the largest dance troupe ever to visit this country.

— — —

The National Braille Printing and Distributing Co. of Upper Darby, Pa., announced this week it has acquired the rights to all publications of classical and semi-classical music study books written in the Faber System of Braille Music Notation, and perfected during the past year by Marion Faber of Pleasantville.

TO TOUR EUROPE

THREE LOCAL teachers will joint the All-America Chorus of Dr. Allen Dash this summer for a concert tour throughout Europe leaving here July 2 and returning by way of Canada in Late August.

They are Mida Blake, organist and teacher at the Atlantic City High School; Irma Geiger, supervisor of music in the Pleasantville schools, and Mary Palmer, teacher in the Massachusetts Ave. school.

The chorus was highly acclaimed last year on a similar junket.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUN 6 - 1958

Tanglewood's Opera Dept Announces Summer Plans

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet, Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and August 4, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefited from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

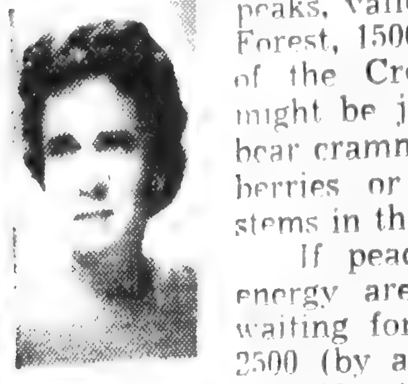
JUN 8 1958

NEW ENGLAND VACATION

Nature Puts On a Show; Man Adds His Wonders

By MARY CREMMEN

You're only young once—except in New England where another chance comes with every vacation.



A vacation anywhere—from Vermont with its 400 lakes to New Hampshire and a wonderland of capped peaks, valleys and its own Sherwood Forest, 1500 feet up in the highlands of the Croydon Range where you might be just in time to see a wild bear cramming its mouth with elderberries or a mouse munching lily stems in the swamp north of the lake.

If peace of mind and renewed energy are what you need they're waiting for you in Maine, with her 2500 (by actual count) lakes, mountains ranging from 3000 to the 4000 foot peak of mighty Mount Katahdin where the famed Appalachian Trail begins.

★ ★ ★

The rock-ribbed coast of Maine goes just where it pleases. Measured as a straight line, the actual distance from southernmost to northernmost tip would run about 210 miles. But the Pine Tree State has the kind of coast that takes its time with a myriad of bays, estuaries, coves, harbors and every other kind of natural indentation that makes it measure 10 times that.

Look any place in Massachusetts, on the shores or inland, to see where American history was in the making when the state was unborn, New England was still to unfold and our nation had yet to be united.

★ ★ ★

Anyone who has the time—and if he doesn't, he should make it—owes it to himself to take Freedom Trail. It starts in front of the State House at the corner of Beacon and Park streets. Along the way is the Park Street Church, described by Henry James as "the most interesting mass of brick and mortar in America." The Old South Meeting House at the corner of Milk and Washington sts. is where Samuel Adams and his "Indians" rallied before proceeding to Griffith's Wharf to hurl the taxed tea into the harbor.

★ ★ ★

But there's more to the Bay State than the past. In the Berkshire's, the westernmost Massachusetts county, nature and culture hold hands when the Music Festival comes to Tanglewood from the first week in July through mid-August. If you love music—the best there is—it would be hard even to day-dream better than listening to a concert by the Boston Symphony under the baton of Charles Munch while you lounge on the lawns of a beautiful estate.

And the Berkshires are hep. The Music Barn in Lenox, a hot trumpet away from the Boston Symphony's Brahms, has nationally known artists sitting in on a weekly series of jazz and folk music concerts from late June to September.

For the art minded, there's also Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket with its ballet and modern dance companies entertaining throughout July and August for their 26th season.

An 1878 New England remedy for headaches was "two teaspoonfuls of powdered charcoal taken in a tumbler of hot water." Nowadays it's a drive through tranquil Pioneer Valley where 2500 miles of peaceful meadows, checkered farmlands and picture book villages look small and white and happy against the Berkshire Hills, the Holyoke Range and Mount Tom.

★ ★ ★

Old roads corkscrew through tunnels of green, bringing the traveler to such undisturbed towns as Deerfield. Its main street, a mile long and shaded by some of the noblest elms remaining in New England, is known as "the most beautiful in America." Fine old houses, standing for three centuries, have been tended and restored so painstakingly that the street could be the same one the Indians raided in the 18th century.

★ ★ ★

Enjoying Pioneer Valley could include looking for dinosaur tracks in Gill, golf courses, tennis courts, trails and camp sites or wondering what in the world balances the famous balancing rock in Leyden.

How the inhabitants of Massachusetts' wondrous North and South Shore feel about each other is best told in a story. A traveler, after hearing a list of the advantages attributed to the North Shore, turned to his guide, a Gloucester man in his middle years, and asked: "You really mean that life is better here than on the South Shore?"

His erstwhile instructor and guide eyed the completely sober traveler: "I dislike people who drink."

"Why?" stammered the other, astonished at the sudden turn in his attitude.

"Because they talk darn foolish."

The North Shore has a strong case with its House of Seven Gables and Old Witch Jail in Salem and with Marblehead, just 17 miles north of Boston, claiming the honors "Birthplace of the American Navy" and "Yachting Capital of the World." Beverly has the North Shore Music Theatre, presenting outstanding musicals-in-the-round during the Summer season, at Cape Ann the men still "go down to the sea in ships" and Rockport, a quiet, almost pastoral seacoast town, is a painter's favorite. The town's famed "Motif No. 1"—a quaint wooden fish house on a stone pier—is said to be the most popular single subject in the nation for artists.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUN 7 1958

Programs for Tanglewood Wednesday Concerts Given

Lenox, June 6—Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Opening Concert July 2

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and August 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1. On August 6, the Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 142.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUN 7 1958

Festival Chamber Music Concert Programs Listed

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, were announced today by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120; Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Ap. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs, including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3; Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office at Tanglewood.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUN 6 1958

Berkshires to Echo Music and Drama

Western Massachusetts Inks Summer Program

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

Pittsfield, Mass.

Dates for six major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills have been announced.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshire's other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6. The first two weekend concerts in the theatre-concert hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to music by Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by Boston Symphony director Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Each weekend will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season on June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. For the first weekend the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season on June 29 and operate through Aug. 31, with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special midweek concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South Street, Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour Folder which outlines six half-day automobile tours of Berkshire County.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

APR 13 1958

Berkshires To Offer 6 Attractions

PITTSFIELD, Mass.

Dates for six of the major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills have been announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6.

Monteux Guest Conductor

Guest conductor Pierry Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Charles Munch. Each week end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob Pillow Dance Festival will open its twenty-sixth season June 26, while the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox gets under way June 29 and operates through Aug. 31 with folk-music concerts Saturdays at 4 p. m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p. m.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS
Circ. D. 2,092,455 - S. 3,653,302

JUN 15 1958

Vamp Muster In Pittsfield

Pittsfield, Mass., June 14 (Special).—With 30 volunteer fire outfits from New England and New York expected to be on hand, there'll be a hot time in this Berkshire Hills town on July 4. The 12th annual Pittsfield Permanent Firemen's Association muster at Wahconah Park also will have 15 drum corps and five bands taking part in the festivities.

Each of the colorfully uniformed volunteer fire companies will show vintage and modern firefighting equipment in a three-hour parade to be held the morning of July 4. That afternoon the vamps will compete in old-fashioned hose cart and pumping races and there will be a tug of war and a ladder race. Also on the agenda are competitions for the bands and drum corps.

Dance Fete

Visitors to the Berkshires in early July will find many other items of interest on the menu. July 1 is opening date for the 26th season at Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. At Tanglewood in the town of Lenox the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open its annual six-week Berkshire Music Festival on July 2.

At the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox the regular schedule of Saturday folk music concerts and Sunday jazz concerts will be under way.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South St., Pittsfield, Mass., can supply data on what to do and where to stay in the area.

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200

JUN 15 1958

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL: At Tanglewood Lenox, Mass.: The Boston Symphony Orchestra headed by Charles Munch, the Orchestra Music Director announces the 16th season during 6 weeks from June 30-Aug. 10. Program to be announced. For information write Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Miss Margo Miller.

"JAZZ" AT THE WESTNOR: Westnor Restaurant, 260 Post Rd., Tel. CA 7-3539.
Tomi & Eddy, the intimate swing duo nightly in the Playgoer Room. Sat. night dancing in the Exurban Room to the Music of Hugh Golden's orch.
Tues. night Jazz, June 17: Emmett Berry, trumpeter with an all star group.

WESTON MUSIC FESTIVAL: Fri. June 27 at 8:45 p.m. at the Weston Music Center, Steep Hill Rd., Weston. Box office CA 7-2186 featuring Anabel Brieff, flute; Tossy Spivakosky, violin; Frank Brieff, viola; Aldo Parisot, cello.

INFORMATION OBSCURED

[49]

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 143,181

MAR 4 - 1958

Travel Notes Here and Abroad

By means of replacing, rearranging and adding to present collections, Mystic Seaport's largest exhibition gallery has been renovated and transformed into what is now called "Figurehead Hall."

Figureheads from a dozen ships have been set along both sides of the south wing of the Stillman Building at the seaport, with carvings some seven feet high in all four corners. Extensive cases below house vast collections of historic maritime artifacts. In the center of the room are two rows of ship models.

The Museum, its exhibitions, ships and lofts, are open to visitors each day, save Thanksgiving and Christmas. Descriptive folders may be had on request by writing to the office of the director.

Vermont Real Estate

The Vermont Development Commission at Montpelier has just published its 1958-59 edition of "Vermont Farms and Summer Homes for Sale," a booklet describing 372 properties available from $600 to $70,000. It's designed for those who are seeking a hidaway in upper New England, either for Summertime purposes, or simply as a retirement home. Free copies may be had by writing to the commission offices at Montpelier.

Festival Tourney

The largest international golf tournament ever planned in Ireland is scheduled at Dublin May 16-18 during An Tostal, Ireland's Spring Festival.

The $14,000 meet will be held at Woodbrook, close to Dublin City, and is open to all members of the PGA as well as amateurs with a handicap scratch or better.

Berkshire Events

Dates for five major events in the Berkshires this Summer have been announced by the Berkshire Hills Conference.

The Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge will be in session from June 23 to Aug. 30. The Williamstown Theater at Williamstown opens July 3, and closes on the same date.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra runs its Tanglewood Festival at Lenox from July 2 through Aug. 30.

Bulletin (e)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 147,099

FEB 17 1958

background

Low-brow nation?

A group of American scholars and thinkers says things aren't quite so bad as supposed

From the Advertising Council

Is the United States a nation of cultural barbarians, concerned only with material wealth, low-brow pleasures and gadgets, as so many critics of American civilization would have us believe? A qualified "no" to this question has been given by some people who ought to know.

A group of intellectual leaders who held an all-day discussion under the joint auspices of Yale University and The Advertising Council agreed that "despite certain manifestations of low taste" America's present performance in the arts compares very favorably with contemporary culture abroad and our culture in the past.

In fact, America's cultural creativity now is out-pacing the various anti-intellectual forces in our society, the panel agreed, indicating that the minority of highbrows are steadily adding to their numbers from the ranks of the middlebrows and lowbrows.

Wriston presided

The all-day discussion, held at the Yale Club in New York, was led by Henry M. Wriston, president emeritus, Brown University.

David M. Potter, Coe professor of American History at Yale, served as recorder and author of the digest of the round table just released.

Under the general heading of "People's Capitalism," the round table conducted "an inquiry into the cultural trends in America under the American system of widely shared material benefits." This was one of a series of panel inquiries started in 1952, under the auspices of the American Round Table, sponsored by The Advertising Council.

In addition to Dr. Wriston and Professor Potter, the following participated in the latest discussion on cultural trends in the United States: Ralph F. Colin, lawyer, trustee, Museum of Modern Art; Lewis Galantiere, counselor, Free Europe Committee, Inc.; Russell Lynes, Jr., managing editor, Harper's Magazine; Mark A. May, director, Institute of Human Relations, Yale University; Norman Holmes Pearson, associate professor of English, Yale University; Liston Pope, Dean, Divinity School, Yale University; Virgil Thomson, composer, music critic; Sylvester L. Weaver, Jr., president, Program Service, Inc. and former president of National Broadcasting Co.; Robert H. L. Wheeler, History instructor, Yale University.

Mass media

The tremendous improvement in all sorts of communications media, such as broadcasting, magazines and newspapers under American capitalism received much attention from the group. The consensus was that while the so-called mass media have tended to develop a mass culture of rather low taste the same media also have given millions of Americans exposure to higher cultural tastes.

The discussion produced convincing evidence that our mass culture still benefits from a great deal of vigor and that this vigor is still increasing. While only a minority of Americans read serious books, listen to serious music, or seek enlightening, educational radio and television programs there still emerge signs which point to an increase of new recruits to the higher cultural interests. Among them: increased buying and borrowing (from libraries) of books and classical records, rising attendance at legitimate theaters and concerts as well as a notable jump in the number of local theater groups and musical organizations throughout the country.

These were some of the significant developments mentioned during the discussion of cultural progress and improvement in America:

More people now visit museums than pay admission to baseball games.

American painters, sculptors, novelists, poets and musicians enjoy higher prestige abroad than ever before in our history.

Today [illegible] major symphonies perform in this country, and the American Symphony League lists 650 professional and semi-professional orchestras (exclusive of college groups) across the country.

More than 25,000 high schools and 2,300 community and civic theaters produce drama.

Many an owner of an LP record collection can hear more first class music than did Beethoven in his whole lifetime.

Millions of Americans have either experimented with oil painting or have adopted it as a hobby.

The total testimony as to public interest in the arts has reached an impressive volume, the panel agreed, and standards of values are improving in many important areas. But some members of the panel thought it would not be realistic to rejoice over these assets without balancing them against certain striking liabilities in the cultural picture.

One of these liabilities, said Mr. Potter, was a strong drive toward conformity in American life.

He pointed out that critics of American conformity blame it on "the desire of every citizen to be 'one of the boys' . . . and this has led to wide public repudiation of anything intellectual or aesthetic as being 'egghead' or 'long hair' . . . and therefore to be avoided. The result has been a pronounced anti-intellectual strain in American life, cutting off the majority of Americans from the cultural values which are, without doubt, present in our society."

Low taste

Some manifestations of low taste are painfully conspicious, the panelists concurred, but they do not represent dominant forces. They seem worse than they are because the media have given them a high degree of public visibility. At the same time, the group did not advocate that the media adhere to or impose any given standard of taste. In a democratic society, they agreed, public taste will extend through a fairly wide range and the media have neither the right nor obligation to sanction one level of taste to the exclusion of others. The obligation of the media, they said, is to make the public aware that there are different levels of taste and different ways of using one's leisure.

Professor Potter summed up the round table findings thus:

"In the final analysis, the entire discussion was devoted to the question whether people's capitalism has weakened the American culture or has strengthened it. On the one hand, people's capitalism can be accused of weakening it by fostering a materialism which neglects spiritual values, and by encouraging what is most popular rather than what is best and by making it the goal of the media to satisfy rather than to cultivate mass taste.

Widened horizons

"On the other hand it is the marriage of capitalism with democracy which has given the people at large access to a great wealth of cultural values and has given them freedom to elect these values or not, as they prefer. While they have not elected them it is also this marriage which has conspicuously multiplied universities, concert halls, theaters, art galleries, and foundations; has extended leisure from the privilege to the many, and through its equalitarianism has made the former heritage of the elite the birthright today of any claimant.

"While the extension of serious cultural values may still have hardly touched the majority in any direct way, it does touch increasingly large numbers of people. If it should later extend to the majority, the resources and the drives of a democratic capitalism will be the forces which have enabled it to do so."

Music lovers crowd the shed at Tanglewood to hear the Boston Symphony.

[50]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,235

FEB 26 1958

Name in the News

Berkshire Benefactor From St. Paul

Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn, with artist Norman Rockwell at Stockbridge art exhibit last summer.

Mrs. Bruce Walter Sanborn is one of the innumerable summer residents who have become taxpayers in Berkshire County because of Tanglewood. But her interests have not been confined to the offerings of the Boston Symphony Orchestra as is attested by her just announced $10,000 gift to the Lenox Library to start a record-lending library.

Actually, she has been active in library affairs almost from the time in 1941 when she bought the rambling white clapboarded house at the foot of Courthouse Hill on Stockbridge Road in Lenox. She was a leading light in establishing the library's music room and has continued her interest as the fine collection of recordings grew. In 1953 she was elected to the executive committee of the Massachusetts Library Trustees' Assn.

A familiar figure at Tanglewood, she is a regular boxholder, a Friend of the Berkshire Music Center, and has served with various groups such as the Tanglewood on Parade Committee. Her interest in music extends also to the opera. She is a member of the National Auditions Committee of the Metropolitan Opera Assn. in New York. At her permanent home in St. Paul, she functions as a board member of the nearby Minneapolis Symphony.

Music comes first, but she also travels in art circles. She has supported the Berkshire Art Assn. in several ways and is on the board of the St. Paul Art Institute.

On Museum Board

Mrs. Sanborn served as a trustee of the Berkshire Museum from 1948 to 1956. Upon the recent formation of the Berkshire zation to foster exhibitions, sales zation to foster txhibitions, sales and education in the field of contemporary fine arts, she was quick to declare her support.

After renting a house in Stockbridge during the Tanglewood season for several years, Mrs. Sanborn bought Plumsted, the former summer home of Joseph S. Whistler, a nephew of the noted painter James McNeill Whistler. She bought the estate just before World War II from Louis Sherman Taylor of Chicago, a vice president of the Pullman Co., who had owned it since 1932. Mrs. Sanborn lives there during the summer, entertaining guests frequently but not ostentatiously.

Born Maud Moon, daughter of a St. Paul lumberman, Mrs. Sanborn married her first husband, Charles A. Weyerhaeuser, in 1898. He was president of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. of Tacoma, Wash., which owns vast tracts of forest land in the Northwest along with numerous subsidiary enterprises. He died in 1930. She is still active in company affairs.

Husband Is Lawyer

She married Bruce W. Sanborn of St. Paul, a widower, in 1943. He is a lawyer who graduated from Dartmouth in 1904 and Harvard Law School in 1907. Since 1948, he has been general counsel and chairman of the board of the North Central Life Insurance Co. of St. Paul.

Mrs. Sanborn has a son, Carl Weyerhaeuser, who lives in Milton, Mass. She is a grandmother. Friends know her as a quiet, charming, yet on occasion plain spoken and vigorous woman. She has traveled extensively. She plays the piano and when younger studied singing. Mrs. Sanborn is an enthusiastic gardener and has been active in the Lenox Garden Club. Although now in her 70s she enjoys a daily swim in her pool in the spacious gardens of her Lenox house.

ISLIP, N. Y.
PRESS-HERALD
Circ. W. 1,568

JAN 29 1958

Smithtown Branch, N. Y.
STAR
Circ. W. 1,600

JAN 29 1958

Spencer P. Kennard Is Chosen First Headmaster of New School

To Direct School

Spencer P. Kennard

The board of trustees of Harbor Country Day School, St. James, announced today the appointment of Spencer P. Kennard Jr. as the school's first headmaster.

"After nearly four months and sixteen interviews of the many well qualified applicants for this post," said Dr. John E. Kuhlke, chairman of the board, "we are very gratified to have received the services of so able and exceptionally well qualified an educator as Mr. Kennard. We are confident that his demonstrated academic leadership will greatly benefit the school, its student body, and as well, the community."

At present head of the Science Department at the widely known Lenox School, Lenox, Mass., where he has been a faculty member for 15 years, Mr. Kennard is also an instructor in physics, mathematics and art history. Additionally, he is alumni secretary for Lenox School, of which he is a graduate, and has served as business manager of the school, 1951-1953. He has also taught English, Latin, French and history.

A graduate of Trinity College in 1938, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree cum laude, Mr. Kennard, 41, has completed an unusually broad range of post graduate work at Columbia University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the University of Chicago.

While committed to complete the current academic year at the Lenox School, Mr. Kennard will make several trips here to assist in readying the school and faculty, before moving permanently to St. James in June, Dr. Kuhlke stated. It is planned to open the school for classes next September, he added, as announced earlier. Also, a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Kennard is planned for February or early March.

Present plans are to cover grades kindergarten through 7, in the school, with a faculty of 8 or 9 instructors. It is hoped, Charles D. Miller Jr., trustee, noted, to secure the remainder of the faculty from surrounding communities, so long as this is consistent with the superior teaching standards which the trustees have set.

Mr. Kennard is married to the former Margaret Marshall Martin of Cincinnati, Ohio. They have two sons, aged six and four. They will reside in the headmaster's quarters of the school, on Three Sisters rd., Head of the Harbor, St. James. An accomplished choir director, Mrs. Kennard is a graduate of Miami University (Ohio), the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and has studied at the Julliard School and at Tanglewood. She was also head of the Music Department of Bennett Junior College.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kennard have been active in outside activities, including parents' organizations, church activities, and musical circles. Mr. Kennard has done summer work for the Boston Symphony as local manager of Friends of Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He is a veteran of four years military service in World War II, which included military government duty in France and Germany. He was awarded the Bronze Star medal.

Mr. Kennard is the son of Mrs. Stuyvesant F. Morris 3rd of Lynbrook, and of the late Spencer P. Kennard of New York City. Mrs. Kennard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Marshall Martin of Cincinnati. Her father is senior partner of the well-known architectural firm of Potter, Tyler, Martin and Roth.

Special Exhibitions Open The Berkshires' Art Season

One-Man Shows Include Sculpture, Paintings and Mosaics; Miss Smith, Native of Springfield, Has Rewarding Style

By WAYNE C. SMITH

The summer season got into full swing in the Berkshires last week with the openings of special exhibitions at the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield, the Tyringham Galleries in Tyringham, Lenox Library, the reception hall at Tanglewood and Festival House in Lenox.

Rewarding Pieces

At the Berkshire Museum the program of exhibitions includes one-man shows of sculpture by Elizabeth MacLean Smith, a native of Springfield and now a resident of Boston; paintings by Thomas Blagden of Lakeville, Conn., in the Southern Berkshires; and paintings and mosaics by David Broudo, head of the art department at Endicott Junior College in Beverly.

Miss Smith's sculpture includes figure pieces in which the female figure is the basis of the compositions and has relief panels in which the subjects, both religous and mythological in nature, are rather conventionally treated.

The figure pieces are the most rewarding of this artist's work and they display competent technical knowledge. Especially notable in this group are those in which Miss Smith has captured the moods of the subjects as "Interlude," "Tranquility" and "St. Francis."

In her explorations for formal relationships, Miss Smith has found a rich source of material in the platic poses of dancers as is evidenced by "Adagio." And she has finely expressed the intimate relationships of a mother and her child in "Mexican Mother" and "Mother and Child." The reclining figure of "Pandora" is another high light of the show.

Abstract Qualities

The contemporary abstract qualities of Blagden's paintings are an interesting contrast to the conventional, representational school of Miss Smith's sculpture. And in their colorful and formal magic the paintings make a very attractive and intriguing presentation.

The paintings, divided about equally between oils and water colors, range between complete abstract and semi-representation and between impressionistic and expressionistic modes of expression. The oils are generally bolder in the execution of the lines and forms and the relationships of the colors, but in their spontaneous creation the artist has achieved compelling and pleasing works in completely contemporary modes.

The water colors are less dashing and daring and have a sort of lyrical beauty in their rich coloring and broader treatment of forms. Especially notable among the water colors are "Miramichi," "Dark Cross," "Medomak Evening," "Autumn" and "Esquinox." "Long Winter," "Big Blue Mountains" and "Thawing Wind" are outstanding among the oils.

Distinguished Works

The work of Broudo is new to these parts but he is visiting the Berkshires this summer as a member of the faculty of the Summer Arts Workshop at the Festival House in Lenox. The group of paintings in water colors includes quite distinguished works, especially "Mountain Forms" and "Brown Mountains," but the most significant part of his group are the mosaics which have an unusual and pleasing quality and it is interesting to see how this artist has adapted this ancient art form to contemporary modes. The treatment of the bull and rooster mosaics is rather conventional but he has achieved very impressive works in "Three Kings" and "Birds and Sun."

The Tyringham Galleries is one of the most attractive and reward of the art centers in the Berkshires with its unusual structure, based upon fairytale lore and old-world architecture, and the quality of the exhibitions planned by Donald Davis, owner-director of the gallery.

The program, as usual, is varied as to the mode of representation and contains the work of some of the foremost artists in the eastern part of the country with Western Massachusetts and neighboring areas in New York and Connecticut being featured.

Included in the present group are one-man shows of paintings by Stanley Bate of Crarvville, N. Y.; Anthony Toney, director of the Summer Arts Workshop in Lenox; Joseph Barber of South Egremont and Liz Nicholls of Pittsfield.

Miss Nicholls' group also contains some brilliantly executed pen and ink drawings which are clever, but not malicious satires including ". . . and the dust shall return to the earth," "Sidewalk" and "Pond in Summer." The paintings are also notable in their formal qualities and individual treatment of subject, especially "Juggler and Lady" and "Danph and Apollo."

Barber's oils are in a representational vein but are unique in their spacial qualities and in the dramatic use of light to soften the contours of the objects. The more notable items in the distinguished group include "The Kite," "Mannano Island," "Desert Storm" and "Taconic Winter."

Abstract Artist

Toney is especially well represented in the Berkshires at this time because his work is being shown in one-man shows both at the Tyringham Galleries and at the Lenox Library. In both of these shows, Toney is seen to be essentially an abstract artist although working entirely within representational limits because he is more concerned with the aesthetic materials of his art than in the representation of his subject.

His work is unique in that his pictures are generally divided into two parts as if a shadow laid over a part of the canvas while being painted, with one part being painted in rich deep colors while the other is painted in lighter hues.

The Bate group of paintings at the Tyringham Gallery is also notable in their varied abstract modes of expression. And particularly interesting in the group are "Bouquet," "Samson and Delilah," "Still Life," "Salmon Run," "Winter Pattern" and "Winter Landscape."

Tanglewood Exhibits

One of the interesting side presentations each year at Tanglewood is the program of weekly exhibitions which are displayed in the reception hall at the main gate by the Berkshire Museum.

The exhibtion this past week was a one-man show of sculptures and drawings by Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge and Deerfield. The drawings showed a new facet of Gunn's art and they were impressive in the character and the quality of the delineations — especially those of the rooster and the horse.

The sculpture group was particularly notable for the presence of two of Gunn's most distinguished works — "The Wrath of Moses" and "Richard III." These contrasting styles showed the depth and the quality of this artist's work and demonstrated the great possibilities present in the construction type of wood sculpture which is based upon the planar character of wood, as used in construction work, rather than that of the block which is the basis from which the wood carvers work.

The Festival House has quite an impressive program lined up for the season as the faculty of the Summer Arts Workshop, housed there, includes distinguished artists and a roster of visiting artists including Anton Refregier, Maxwell Gordon and Moses Soyer. Weekly seminars are also planned and there is on display an exhibition of paintings by artists within the stables of the ACA Gallery in New York.

Included in this exhibition is a painting by Mervin Jules of Northampton entitled "The King" which is in the expressionist traditions and which continues the musical theme for which Jules is famous. Other artists include Evergood, Harry Gottlieb, Gropper, Gwathney, Refregier, Joseph Solman, Moses Soyer, Sternberg, Toney, Reisman and Cikosky.

ART EXHIBITIONS FOR COMING WEEK

CLARK ART INSTITUTE, WILLIAMSTOWN: Exhibitions of paintings, sculpture, silver and ceramics featuring 33 canvases by Renoir.

BERKSHIRE MUSEUM, PITTSFIELD: One-man shows of sculpture by Elizabeth MacLean Smith, paintings by Thomas Blagden and paintings and mosaics by David Broudo.

LENOX LIBRARY, LENOX: One-man show of paintings by Anthony Toney.

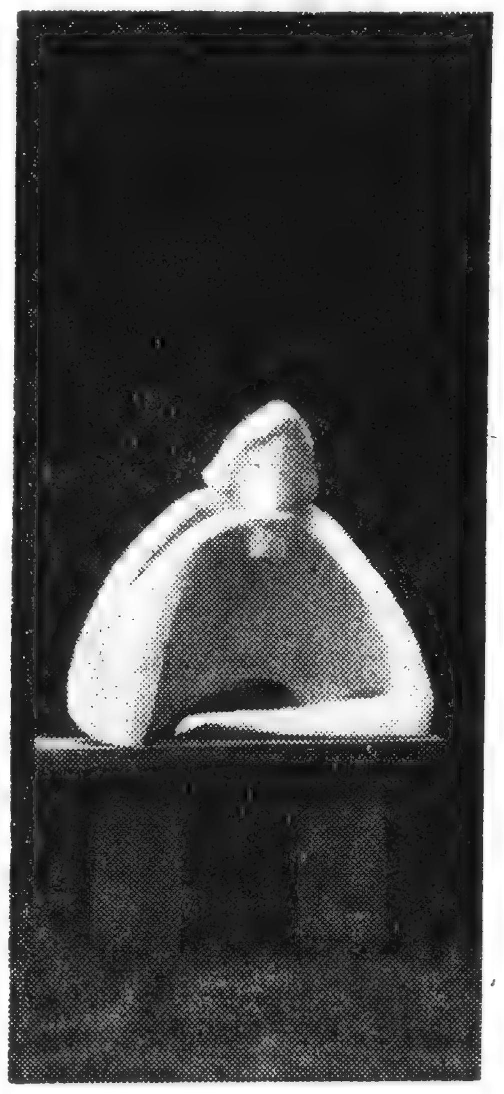
FESTIVAL HOUSE, LENOX: Exhibition of paintings by contemporary American artists, lent by ACA Gallery, New York.

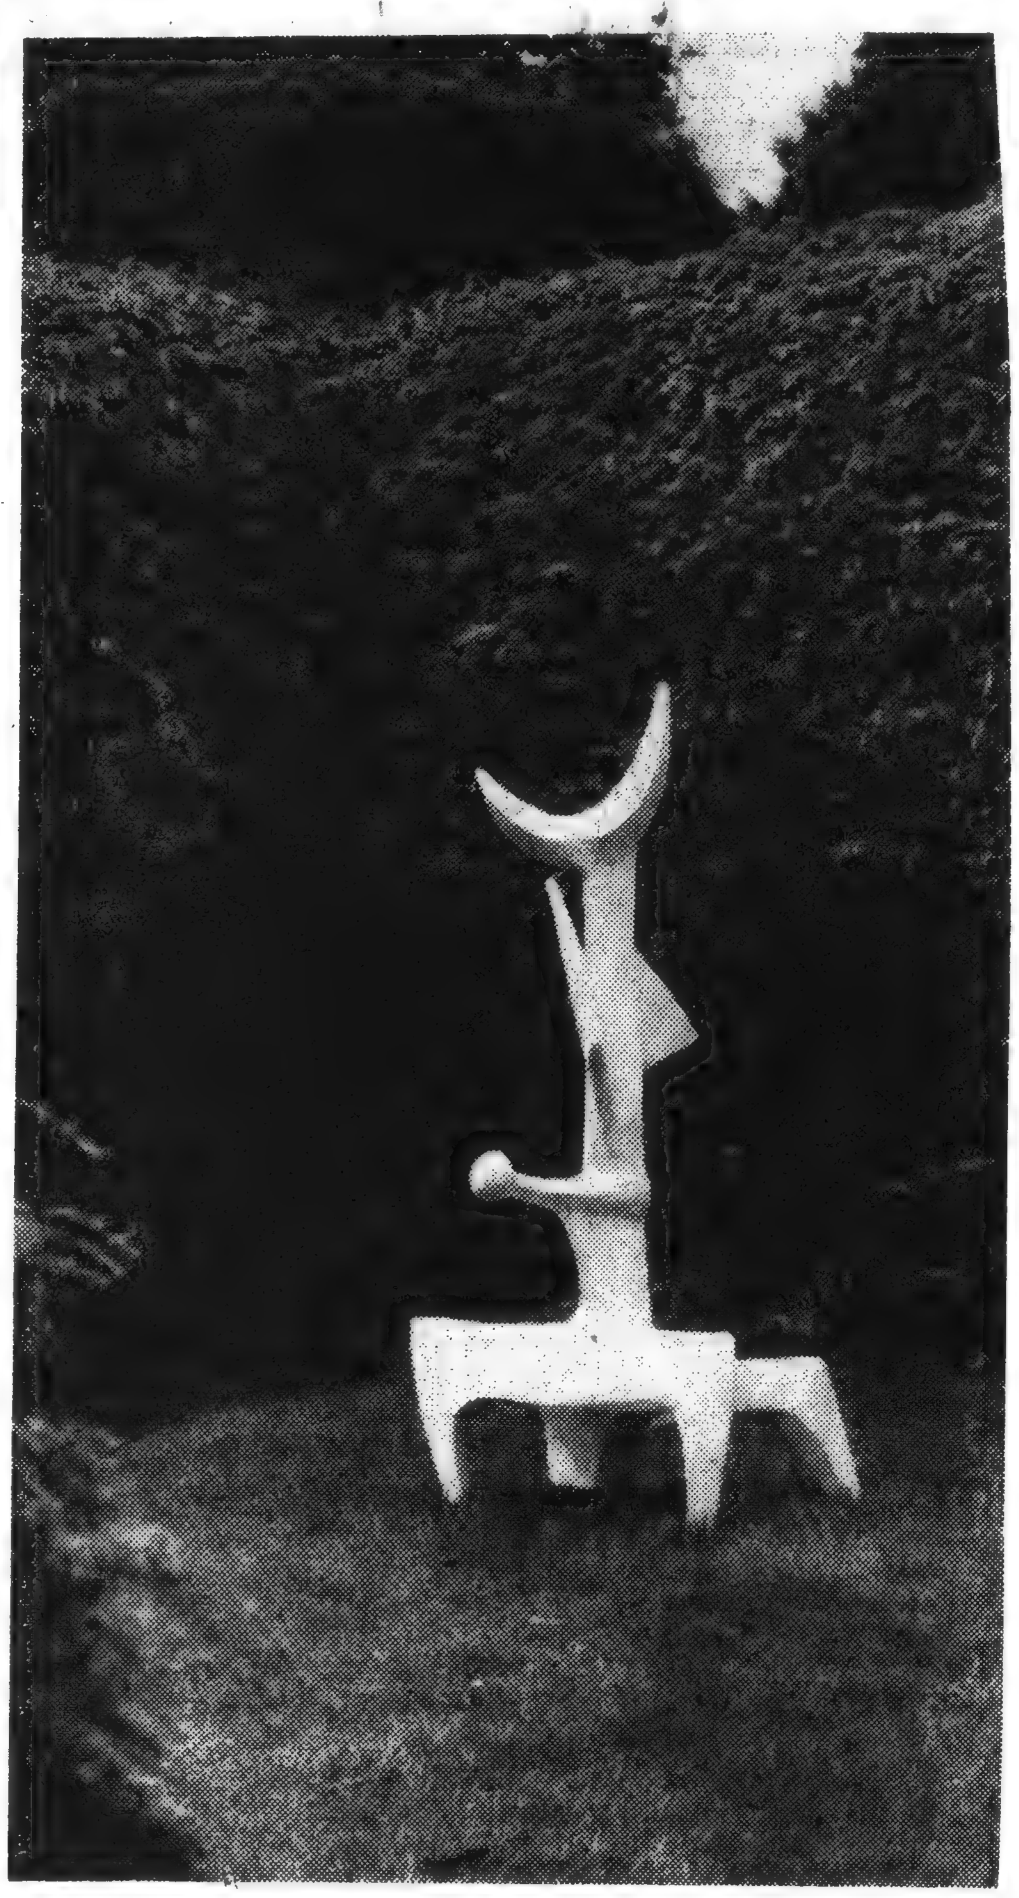
RECEPTION HALL, TANGLEWOOD: One-man show of paintings by Thomas Blagden.

TYRINGHAM GALLERIES, TYRINGHAM: Program of exhibitions including one-man shows of paintings by Stanley Bates, Anthony Toney, Joseph Barber and Gerson Leiber and of paintings, and drawings by Liz Nichols.

TANGLEWOOD GALLERY, STOCKBRIDGE: Exhibition of paintings selected from New York galleries.

Tanglewood Shows Gunn Sculpture





Fourteen sculptures by Homer Gunn, art instructor at Deerfield Academy, are being shown at Tanglewood. Pictured are two of five works on display in the formal gardens. The tall figure is titled "Garden Piece." Smaller one, on pedestal, is "Coffee Break." Gunn, who has a part-time home in Richmond, is active in the Berkshire Art Assn. and has exhibited frequently here as well as in New York. He is represented in New York at the Sculpture Center and at Contemporary Gallery.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

JUL 2 1958

TANGLEWOOD SHOWS HOMER GUNN WORKS

Sculptures by West Stockbridge Man In Glass Exhibition Room

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the main gate of Tanglewood in Lenox. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one-man shows in New York city, as well as the Berkshire Museum, the Tyringham Gallery and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York city at the Sculpture Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

Sculptures on display include the following: Wounded Bird, Fish, Spring Hat, Sun Worshipper, Moby Dick and Friends, Lovers, The Wrath of Moses, Snake, Richard III, Uptown Express, and Eagle. Works in the formal garden are entitled The Family, and Coffee Break.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 10 1958

Tanglewood Sculptures

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the Main Gate of Tanglewood, Lenox. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one-man shows in New York City, as well as the Berkshire Museum, the Tyringham Gallery and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York City at the Sculptures Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

B Herald - July 13

Gunn Sculpture At Tanglewood

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the main gate of Tanglewood. Lenox, Mass. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 3 - 1958

SCULPTURE AT TANGLEWOOD

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the Main Gate of Tanglewood, Lenox. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens. Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area.

[52]

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,360

JUN 25 1958

Miss Capone Wins Music Scholarship

Patricia L. Capone
(Photo by Donald Young)

A full scholarship for this summer to "Tanglewood," the Berkshire ~~Music Festival~~, has been awarded by Delta Omicron, National Professional Women's Fraternity, to Miss Patricia L. Capone gifted young lyric coloratura soprano of Wakefield, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Capone of 351 Lowell st.

"Tanglewood," the pride of New England, is the summer home of world-famous Boston Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch. It is located between Lenox and Stockbridge in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts.

The Music Center offers to a limited number of especially gifted musicians, who come from all over the world, a summer of unique musical experience, stimulating and practical. It is a school for the training of performers through performance. Here the young artist on the threshold of a distinguished career is guided by world-famous teachers and performers, to practice his profession under professional conditions. These performances have a twofold benefit, the experience of the young artist, and music of a high order for the listeners, who in past seasons have totaled audiences of 40,000.

See MISS CAPONE Page 4

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUL 5 1958

Sculpture by Gunn Now at Tanglewood

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition room at the main gate of Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one-man shows in New York city, as well as the Berkshire Museum, the Tryingham Gallery and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York city at the Sculpture Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

Sculptures on display include the following:

"Wounded Bird," "Fish," "Spring Hat," "Sun Worshiper," "Moby Dick and Friends," "Lovers," "The Wrath of Moses," "Snake," "Richard III," "Uptown Express," and "Eagle." Works in the formal garden are entitled "The Family" and "Coffee Break."

---

13 Eagle - July 3

Homer Gunn Sculptures Shown At Tanglewood

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the main gate of Tanglewood. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one man shows in New York City, as well as the Berkshire Museum, the Tyringham Gallery and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York City at the Sculpture Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

Sculptures on display include the following: "Wounded Bird," "Fish," "Spring Hat," "Sun Worshiper," "Moby Dick & Friends," "Lovers, "The Wrath of Moses," "Snake, "Richard III," "Uptown Express," and "Eagle." Works in the formal garden are entitled "The Family" and "Coffee Break."

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512

JUN 29 1958

Berkshire Music Center, Festival Open This Week

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the ~~Boston Symphony~~ Orchestra's summer school of musical performance at Tanglewood, will welcome students from all over the United States and from many European countries to the school's 16th session at the Opening Exercises this afternoon.

The Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervison of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The department of Choral Music under Hugh Ross, assisted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron and Alfred Nash Patterson, offers training in choral conducting. Aaron Copland once again heads the Composition Department assisted by Lukas Foss and Milton Babbitt, and once again this year the Fromm Music Foundation offers its special program for the study of contemporary music supervised by Mr. Copland. The Opera Department, headed by Boris Goldovsky, is this season supported by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre, assisted by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

The performance of a new English translation of Rossini's opera "Count Ory" will take place on Monday evening, Aug. 4. The Tanglewood Study Group will be directed by Ludwig Zirner, with David Kraehenbuehl and Florence Dunn and with the assistance of Vladimir Resnikoff and Einar Hansen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in chamber music study.

Berkshire Music Center events of next week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, July 3, at 8:30; the first in the series of lectures in the Seminar on Contemporary Music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, July 4 at 3:15 (John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives); and the first Sunday morning chamber music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a.m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend these and many other activities of the school

Festival Program

The complete programs for the opening week of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts are as follows:

Wednesday, at 8:30, Budapest String Quartet
String Quartet in D major ("The Lark") Haydn
String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 Bartok
String Quartet in E minor, Op. 59 No. 2 Beethoven
Friday at 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, Conducting
Suite No. 1 in C major Bach
Suite No. 2, in B minor for Flute and Strings
(Flute Solo: Doriot Anthony Dwyer)
Suite No. 3 in D major
Suite No. 4 in D major
Saturday at 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, Conducting
Piano Concerto in D minor Bach
(Soloist, Lukas Foss)
The Art of Fugue (arr. for String Orchestra)
Sunday, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
G. Wallace Woodworth, Conducting
B Minor Mass Bach
(Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass; Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society).

Social Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford R. Sistare and three children of Gladwyne, Pa., are at Bumblebee Cottage, South Mountain, for the summer. Mr. Sistare will be employed at Tanglewood.

Miss Anne Russ of 36 Tamarack Rd. has gone for a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Strong in Mill Valley, Calif. James Russ is employed for the summer by the Adirondacks Trail Improvement Society with headquarters in St. Hubert's, N.Y. Mrs. John C. Russ, their mother, and her other four children will leave for St. Hubert's on Friday. Mr. Russ will join them later in the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald S. Bundy of 108 Allengate Ave. had as weekend guest Mrs. Bundy's niece, Mrs. Walter W. Durant of Mystic, Conn., a former Pittsfield resident.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC CENTER AT TANGLEWOOD TO OPEN TODAY

Dr. Munch, W. J. Cox, Aaron Copland to Greet Students

Lenox, June 28—The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will open here tomorrow. Charles Munch, director of this summer school of musical performance, will again greet students from many parts of this country and Europe at the opening exercises. William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, Friends of the Berkshire Music Center chairman, also will speak, as will Aaron Copland, head of the faculty, members of which will be introduced.

Hugh Ross will conduct the student body in the traditional singing of Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" in bringing the program to a close.

Student Program

The Berkshire Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervision of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin.

The department of orchestral playing offers the opportunity, rarely available to students, of playing a different program each week under professional conditions. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The department of choral music under Hugh Ross, assisted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron and Alfred Nash Patterson, offers training in choral conducting as well as performance of a large variety of choral literature and performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Brahms' "Requiem" and Beethoven's ninth symphony. Aaron Copland once again heads the composition department, assisted by Lukas Foss and Milton Babbitt, and once again this year the Fromm Music Foundation offers its special program for the study of contemporary music supervised by Mr. Copland.

Opera Plans

The opera department, headed by Boris Goldovsky, is this season supported by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater, assisted by a grant from the Ford Foundation. The leadership training will be available in the department, as well as experimental work with new scenic materials and a number of opera scenes, and a performance of a new English translation of Rossini's opera "Count Ory."

The Tanglewood Study Group will again be directed by Ludwig Zirner, with David Kraehenbuehl and Florence Dunn and with the assistance of Vladimir Resnikoff and Einar Hansen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in chamber music study.

Berkshire Music Center events of next week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, July 3, at 8.30; the first in the series of lectures in the seminar on contemporary music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, July 4 at 3.15 (John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives); and the first Sunday morning music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a. m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend these and many other activities of the school. Further information and a calendar of events may be obtained from the Friends office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Miss Capone

(Continued from Page 1)

Miss Capone, who is an honor student at the New England Conservatory of Music, entering her junior year as a voice major in the department of music education, and who is the first vice president of Delta Xi chapter of Delta Omicron at the conservatory, was chosen for this distinguished award by the National Board of the Professional Women's Fraternity. She will be representative of the thousands of young gifted musicians from all over the country out of which she was chosen, to study with other such chosen students from all over the world. Letters from "Tanglewood" directors have stated that they are most pleased with Delta Omicron's choice for this season.

Miss Capone has been chosen for the "Tanglewood Choir," an ensemble of experienced choral singers, selected after audition. The choir members follow an intensive schedule of rehearsal and performance, taking part in the Bach-Mozart concerts of the symphony and performing numerous concerts on their own. The choir forms the nucleus of the famous "Festival Chorus" which will perform great works such as Brahms' "Requiem," and Beethoven's "Ninth" with the Boston Symphony.

Miss Capone has recently received word that she has been chosen as a "Chorus Leader". A limited number of especially qualified singers are chosen for this position. They are musicians who have highly trained voices, fine musicianship, good pitch, and good sight reading ability. "Chorus Leaders" are chosen to perform as soloists in Choir concerts.

Miss Capone is well known to Wakefield audiences as well as audiences in Boston and vicinity where she appears for numerous organizations as guest artist. She has worked on radio and television in Boston, New Hampshire and New York. She appears with the Tour Chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music, and recently appeared at Gardner Museum and Conservatory Night at "Pops".

She has been studying voice under the expert guidance of Dorothy Richards at the Conservatory and has recently been accepted for advanced study and coaching by the world renowned Madame Marie Sundelius.

Miss Capone has been recipient of numerous scholarships to the Conservatory for her outstanding work in the past two years. Besides her school work, professional engagements and private teaching, Miss Capone is soloist at St. Joseph's Church here in Wakefield and this past year has formed and directed an outstanding choir of young people of St. Joseph's Parish. She was graduated from Our Lady of Nazareth Academy in 1956, where she gained much musical experience as chorus soloist and operetta leading lady.

She will be taken to "Tanglewood" by her parents, Saturday, June 28. Opening exercises will be held at "Tanglewood," Sunday afternoon, June 29. She will return home the middle of August at the close of the "Tanglewood" season and will work in this area before resuming her studies at the conservatory.

~~Monitor~~ 7/12/58

Gunn Sculptures

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the Glass Exhibition Room at the Main Gate of Tanglewood at Lenox, Mass. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one-man shows in New York City, as well as at the Berkshire Museum, the Tryingham Gallery, and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York City at the Sculpture Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

l

[53]

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUN 28 1958

Music Center School Opens Its 16th Session Tomorrow

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the ~~Boston Symphony Orchestra's~~ summer school of musical performance at Tanglewood, Lenox, will welcome students from all over the United States and from many European countries to the school's 16th session at opening exercises tomorrow.

Other Features

In addition to Dr. Munch's welcome, students will be greeted by William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, and Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, who will also introduce the members of the faculty, including many principals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The exercises will close with the traditional singing of Randall Thomson's "Alleluia" by the entire student body, conducted by Hugh Ross.

The Berkshire Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervision of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin.

The department of orchestral playing offers the opportunity, rarely available to students, of playing a different program each week under professional conditions. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The department of Choral Music under Hugh Ross, assisted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron and Alfred Nash Patterson, offers training in choral conducting as well as performance of a large variety of choral literature and performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Brahms' "Requiem" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Aaron Copland again heads the Composition Department assisted by Lukas Foss and Milton Babbitt, and again this year the Fromm Music Foundation will offer its special program for the study of ontemporary music supervised by Mr. Copland.

Opera Department

The Opera Department, headed y Boris Goldovsky, is this season upported by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theater, assisted by a grant rom the Ford Foundation. The eadership training will be available in the department, as well as experimental work with new scenic materials and a number of opera scenes. The performance of a new English translation of Rossini's opera "Count Ory" will take place on Monday evening, Aug. 4.

The Tanglewood Study Group will again be directed by Ludwig Zirner, with David Kraehenbuehl and Miss Florence Dunn, formerly of Williamstown, and with the assistance of Vladimir Resnikoff and Einar Hansen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in chamber music study. Open for two, four or six weeks' terms, the Tanglewood Study Group offers an opportunity for teachers and reasonably proficient amateur musicians to work in music and enjoy the many and varied musical experiences and facilities of a summer at Tanglewood. Dean of the Berkshire Music Center is Ralph Berkowitz and the administrator is Leonard Burkat.

Events Next Week

Berkshire Music Center events of next week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, July 3, at 8:30; the first in the series of lectures in the Seminar on Contemporary Music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, July 4, at 3:15 when John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives; and the first Sunday morning chamber music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a.m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are welcome to attend these and many other activities of the school.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUN 28 1958

Open Center At Tanglewood

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer ~~school of musical~~ performance at Tanglewood, welcomed students from all over the United States and from many European countries to the school's 16th session at the opening exercises this afternoon.

In addition to Dr. Munch's welcome, students were greeted by William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, and Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, who introduced members of the faculty, including many principals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The exercises closed with the traditional singing of Randall Thomson's "Alleluia" by the entire student body conducted by Hugh Ross.

The Berkshire Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervision of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin. The department of orchestral playing offers the opportunity, rarely available to students, of playing a different program each week under professional conditions. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 27 1958

Lenox

Lenox School To Board Entire Music Center

LENOX — For the first time the entire student body of the Berkshire Music Center will room and board at the Lenox School for Boys during the Tanglewood season.

About 195 students, both men and women, will arrive at the school tomorrow, the Rev. Robert L. Curry, headmaster of Lenox School, said today. Formal opening of the music school at Tanglewood is Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Curry said the school has boarded only women students for the past 10 years. Busses will transport students to the Tanglewood grounds and back to the school.

Classrooms of the school will become music practice rooms for Tanglewood students. Ten pianos have been moved in.

Supper and breakfast will be served by Lenox School to all students. The boarders will leave the school Aug. 10.

6/20/58

Notes and Footnotes

BATTING THE BALL: Extensive write-up in Saturday N.Y. Herald Tribune of Motel on the Mountain near Suffern, by food columnist Clementine Paddleford. Elaborate Japanese-style establishment, and photo shows Harold Reder, Pittsfield, who owns the handsome motel restaurant and dining room, called Restaurant on the Mountain. Menu follows that of 1896 House, Williamstown, owned by Reder family. . . . Too-short visit with Miss Irene Poirier at Tanglewood reception and tea yesterday. Miss Poirier former librarian at Lenox Library, now holds similar post at North Easton. Appeared in fine health and spirits. . . See where new refreshments stand, hot dogs, hamburgs, coffee, soda has been set up off parking lot near water tower at Jacob's Pillow so operation won't disturb performances in Ted Shawn Theater. . . . Greatest tribute in history of these hills comes from a native Texan employed at GE ordnance plant. "The Berkshires," says he, "is the most beautiful spot I've ever seen, including Texas." . . . Couldn't keeps eyes off large toad crouching inside Tanglewood theater-concert hall yesterday as folks arrived for student reception ceremony. When speeches started, gathered self together and squeezed out through hole in wall. He was unduly alarmed. Talks brief and interesting . . . See where Domnall F. Kelly listed as one who gave correct source of "conversation between the tramp and the angel" in questions department of Sunday New York Times Book Review. From H. G. Wells' "The Wonderful Visit." Mr. K lives in Lanesboro, or "Lanesborough" as Times has it in fine, original spelling.

In Brief . . .

The gallery may have been split on the two finalists in the NCAA championship at Williamstown yesterday, but there was no disagreement at all on the superb condition of the course and facilities. From the standpoint of winner Phil Rodgers, even the Berkshire weather cooperated by being hot and Houston-like . . . Each year we are surprised again to see how many events the Berkshire Music Center can pack into its tight, six-week schedule. As chairman William J. Cox of the Friends of the BMC noted yesterday at the opening exercises, there are 39 of them in all, making membership in the Friends the biggest entertainment bargain of the summer, as well as an important aid to musical scholarship . . .

Establishment of house-to-house mail delivery proves that old Lenox is stepping up into the big-town category. With it, the post office will inevitably become less of a meeting spot and center for the distribution of news, written and verbal . . . The timing of the laurel display on Mount Everett, some weeks behind this year, could not be better for catching the big holiday crowds . . .

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 29 1958

Music at Tanglewood

In his welcoming remarks at the opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood one year ago, Charles Munch stressed the importance of giving contemporary music and its composers a fair hearing. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, which he will again conduct at the annual six-week festival now about to start, has even been reproached for playing so much new music on its regular programs, he noted.

"Is this not our duty?" he asked. "In defending the present, we are preparing the future—without neglecting the past." That Dr. Munch has remained firm in his conviction is evident from a glance at the Music Shed programs for this season; though not all of them are living, the composers Stravinsky, Bartok, Milhaud, Honegger, Hindemith, Vaughan Williams and Walter Piston all are "contemporary," and so is the music of Ravel, Rachmaninoff and Debussy, even if some of the works by which all these men will be represented at Tanglewood were created long ago, and have been often heard.

On the same occasion, Dr. Munch spoke also of the duty of the artist-musician to further the cultural exchange between nations and peoples, for "the development of good will and mutual respect." The experience of his own orchestra on its European tour at the close of the Berkshire Festival two years ago was a major American contribution to this objective. Proof of further impetus toward making new friends and building cordial relations has been given in news reports of the popular as well as artistic successes of the New York Philharmonic on its recent tour of South America and the Philadelphia Orchestra on its visit to Russia (the programs of both included considerable American music), not to mention the personal triumphs of young Van Cliburn.

Special attention also will be focused at Tanglewood on contemporary American music in a seminar sponsored for students by the Fromm Foundation, in which a group of native composers will discuss their own works, at their performance. The appearance during the festival of six young American pianists is another form of recognition of the best in modern musical talent, and still another is the availability of numerous student scholarships. At the same time the concert programs will be leavened as usual with the immortal music of the masters, to achieve the fullness and balance that have helped keep Tanglewood one of the world's foremost summertime music meccas.

One other point emphasized by Dr. Munch a year ago concerned the difficulty of accurately evaluating contemporary compositions, noting that many works since accepted as masterpieces were greeted with public apathy or even hostility when they were first performed. "It is always the future that knows what is good and what is bad music," he said, though still insisting that what seems to be worth while be accorded the finest possible performance. The difficulty, of course, is in distinguishing between the valid and the merely new.

He then touched the heart of the matter in concluding. "If I were asked this question, I should say simply that good music is the music that has its roots in the depths of the human spirit. It makes its way from there, passing through knowledge and intelligence, to the hand that writes on music paper. And from there, it must find its way to the soul of the listener. Bad music has its roots nowhere and arrives nowhere."

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUL 1 1958

Berkshire Festival to Open Friday

Opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be held Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH will conduct the concerts of Friday and Saturday in the Theatre-Concert Hall; G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Sunday afternoon program, featuring the Bach "B Minor Mass," in the Shed.

The opening concert in the Wednesday evening chamber music series will be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Theatre-Concert Hall, featuring the Budapest String Quartet.

* * *

DR. MUNCH will lead the program on Friday including the four suites of Bach, number 1 in C major; number 2 in B minor for flute and strings; number 3 in D major; and number 4 in D major.

Lukas Foss, American pianist, will be the soloist for the Saturday concert appearing in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the Saturday evening program will be devoted to Bach's "Art of Fugue," arranged for string orchestra.

* * *

WOODWORTH is the retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, both of which will assist at the Sunday program. The concert will mark Woodworth's final appearance with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday. The Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The Budapest Quartet will play the Haydn String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet number 1 in A minor, opus 7; and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, opus 59, number 2. Budapest String Quartet members are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists; Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, cello.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 27 1958

Munch Arrives From France For 1958 Tanglewood Opening

Boston Symphony Conductor To Welcome Music Center Students Sunday—First Chamber Music Concert Wednesday Night

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrived at Idlewild Airport in New York this morning from France and will come directly to the Berkshires to make preparations for the opening of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood next week.

To Live in Richmond

Dr. Munch, who arrived on an Air France plane, was met at the airport by Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the BSO, and started for Richmond where he has rented for the six-week Tanglewood season, the Rossiter Road home of Donald B. Miller.

Sunday afternoon Dr. Munch will welcome students from all over the United States and many European countries at the opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. This will be the school's 16th season.

In addition to Dr. Munch's welcome, students will be greeted by William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, and Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, who also will introduce the members of the faculty, including many principles of the BSO. The exercises will close with the traditional singing of Randall Thomson's "Alleluia" by the entire student body conducted by Hugh Ross.

Budapest String Quartet

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place Wednesday, July 2, in the theater-concert hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance, will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Bach Concerts

The Friday and Saturday concerts, both conducted by Dr. Munch, will be held in the theater-concert hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Shed Concert July 6

The July 6 Sunday afternoon concert at 2:30 will be in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the glee club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 30 1958

Tanglewood Opening Exercises Are Attended by Five Hundred

TANGLEWOOD — Dr. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and head of the ~~Berkshire~~ Music Center, welcomed 325 students to the center at opening exercises yesterday.

About 500 persons attended the ceremonies in the theater-concert hall. A reception followed in the formal gardens.

In his short address, Dr. Munch pledged that he and the rest of the administration of the center "will do everything we can to make your stay and your work here during the next six weeks pleasing and profitable."

The competence of students during the past 15 years of the center was praised by William J. Cox, chairman of Friends for the Berkshire Music Center. Of the 3,000 to 4,000 students of the center, those who have gone on in a musical career are "leaving a major imprint on musical America," he said.

Friends' Support Praised

The work of the Friends in raising funds to support the center was praised by Mr. Cox. In the past five years, the Friends have contributed a third of a million dollars toward the expenses of the center, he said.

"We don't go in much for verbiage and speechmaking at Tanglewood," he told the student body. "We would rather let the music speak for itself. We would rather let the student get on to the serious business of the summer—the pursuit of excellence and the perfection of your talents in the incomparable surroundings of this beautiful place.

"This is a most enlightened kind of philanthropy. It far transcends the usual quid pro quo attitude: the what-do-I-get-out-of-it feeling. Inspired by the vision of the founder and the leadership of today's great music director these Friends—with a capital F—have foreseen the effect of the ripples that go all over the world from the stones cast into this musical pool at Tanglewood. Today, for example, there have come together 375 students from 36 different states and 17 foreign countries. Representatives of nations which have been, and even this minute are, making angry threats at each other come here and communicate through music, the only completely understandable international language. From the ferment of creative talents merged together in this atmosphere, people will return to their own countries and even their own states within this country a little better equipped to communicate with their fellow man.

Record Impressive

"I would not have you believe that the students of the BMC go out from here as commissioned officers and petty officers of an international brigade. There is much work to be done at home. Just how effectively that work is being done, just how considerable is the influence of the students and teachers here, was emphasized in some statistics recently isued from Symphony Hall. In 15 previous seasons, there have been perhaps 3,000 or 4,000 students here. Perhaps the largest single group of them returned to nonmusical positions as housewives, even schoolteachers. But the balance, the musicians aspiring to professional status, are leaving a major imprint on musical America. No less than 270 former students who once sat here on opening day are engaged by 45 orchestras in the U.S. Nine of them are conductors; eight are assistants or associated conductors. Five of these orchestras have former BMC students as concertmasters. And approximately 70 are principals of first-desk players in all choirs of their orchestras. And these figures do not include the large number of vocalists on the rosters of the leading opera companies."

Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty of the school, told the student body, that "we assume that you are here because you love music."

Forty-four on Faculty

Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the center, introduced the 44-man faculty of the school. The exercises closed with the traditional singing of Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" by the entire student body directed by Hugh Ross.

Students from Berkshire County at the school are Sue M. Erikson, Clark Road, Stockbridge; Thomas Griswald, Williamstown; Winifred Keane, 310 New Lenox Rd., Lenox; Paul Marino, 19 Britton St., Pittsfield; and Susan B. Strong, 1 Alexander Ter., Pittsfield.

The Tanglewood season opens Wednesday with a concert of chamber music in the theater-concert hall by the Budapest String Quartet. Weekend concerts start Friday.

Herald News (e)
FALL RIVER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,701

JUN 24 1958

Berkshire Music Center Offers Training for Young Players

Berkshire Music Center, the Bosto~~n Sym~~phony Orchestra's summer school of musical performance will open its 16th annual session, Sunday at Tanglewood, in Lenox.

The center, during its six weeks of activity, offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing, to work with musicians of long standing.

The department of orchestral playing offers the opportunity, rarely available to students, of playing a different program each week, under professional conditions.

The Center's Music Festival, a series of concerts, operas and choral offerings, will start with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 4, and will continue for five weeks. Friends of the Berkshire Center are invited to attend the activities of the school. A calendar of events may be obtained from the Friends Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 28 1958

Manos

BSO CONDUCTOR Dr. Charles Munch, right, who arrived from France yesterday for the opening of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood tomorrow, discusses plans for the exercises in the theater concert hall with Hugh ~~Ross, who will~~ lead the student body in Randall Thomson's "Alleluia," and, at left, Leonard Burkat, administrator of the Music Center. The exercises will open at 3:30 p.m.

B. Eagle - July 2 '58

First Concert by Students In Tanglewood Shed Tomorrow

TANGLEWOOD — The first concert of the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, under the direction of Eleazar de Carvalho, will be presented in the Shed tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. These concerts are under the auspices of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and will be held on successive Thursdays, with the exception of the final week of the season. Admission to these concerts is open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. Support of the Friends is maintained by voluntary contributions, which may be sent to Friends Office, Tanglewood, or made in person on the Tanglewood grounds.

Two foreign students will be featured as conductors: Gustav Meier of Zurich, Switzerland, who will conduct Hindemith's "Mathis Der Mahler," and Zubin Mehta of Manchester, England, who will lead the orchestra in Strauss "Don Juan." David Buttolph from Harrisville, N.H., is to be the conductor of "L'Apres Midi D'une Faune" by Debussy. In the concluding work of the program the Brazilian conductor, Eleazar de Carvalho, will perform with his students Beethoven's Symphony No. 6 in F Major, Opus 68.

Eleazar de Carvalho

[55]

Newtown Bee - July 4

Choral Concert Set July 5 At 3 P.M. In Tanglewood

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, under their regular conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, will present a concert of choral works on Saturday afternoon, July 5, at 3 o'clock in the Chamber Music Hall at Tanglewood. The public is admitted to the concert.

The program will be as follows: Four Chansons; Cantate Domino by Hassler; The Nightingale by Weelkes; Let True Love Among Us Be by William Bergsma; Schubert's Valses Nobles, arranged for women's voices; a student song by Schein; Krova d'Amore by Thomas Beveridge of the Harvard Class of 1959; Magnum Mysterium by Handel; O Maria Diana Stella, an Italian 15th Century Laude; and the Miserere of Allegri.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 3 1958

Harvard and Radcliffe To Sing at Tanglewood

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, under their regular conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, will present a concert of Choral works on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock in the Chamber Music Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. The public will be admitted to the concert.

The program will be as follows: Four Chansons; Cantate Domino by Hassler; The Nightingale by Weelkes; Let True Love Among Us Be By William Bergsma; Schubert's Valses Nobles, arranged for women's voices; a student song by Schein; Krova d'Amore by Thomas Beveridge of the Harvard Class of 1959; Magnum Mysterium by Handel; O Maria Diana Stella, an Italian 15th Century Laude; and the Miserere of Allegri.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 2 - 1958

BSO Seeks Rooms For Harvard, Radcliffe Singers

TANGLEWOOD — Wanted: rooms for 150 persons, free, during the 4th of July weekend.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra needs the rooms to house the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, both of which will be performing here Saturday and Sunday.

The rooms are needed Friday and Saturday nights. Persons wishing to contribute rooms should call Leonard Burkat at Tanglewood. The orchestra will provide food for the singers.

B. Eagle July 2 '58

Choral Concert Saturday at 3 At Tanglewood

TANGLEWOOD — The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, under their regular conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, will present a concert of choral works on Saturday afternoon at 3 in the chamber music hall at Tanglewood. The concert is open to the public.

The program will be as follows: Four Chansons: Cantate Domino by Hassler; The Nightingale by Weelkes; Let True Love Among Us Be by William Bergsma; Schubert's Valses Nobles, arranged for women's voices; a student song by Schein; Krova d'Amore by Thomas Beveridge of the Harvard Class of 1959; Magnum Mysterium by Handel; O Maria Diana Stella, an Italian 15th century Laude; and the Miserere of Allegri.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 5 1958

Harvard, Radcliffe Choruses Sing Today

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, will give a public concert at 3 p. m. today in the Chamber Music Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. These choruses also will sing in Bach's B minor Mass with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the regular Berkshire Festival concert tomorrow afternoon in Tanglewood's Theater-Concert Hall.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUL 4 - 1958

Choral Concert At Tanglewood

The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, under their regular conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, will present a concert of choral works on tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock in the Chamber Music Hall at Tanglewood. The public is admitted to the concert.

The program will be as follows: Four Chansons; Cantate Domino by Hassler; The Nightingale by Weelkes; Let True Love Among Us Be by William Bergsma; Schubert's Valses Nobles, arranged for women's voices; a student song by Schein; Korva d'Amore by Thomas Beveridge of the Harvard Class of 1959; Magnum Mysterium by Handel; Maria Diana Stella, an Italian 15th century Laude; and the Miserere of Allegri.

Budapest String Quartet Today At Tanglewood

Lenox, July 1—The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening chamber music concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Wednesday night in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8.30.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, violin-chello.

A group of sculptures in various materials by Homer Gunn is now being shown in the glass exhibition room at the main gate of Tanglewood. Two additional sculptures are placed in the estate's formal gardens.

Mr. Gunn is a native of Massachusetts and has exhibited his work frequently in the Boston area. He has had one man shows in New York City, as well as the Berkshire Museum, the Tryingham Gallery and Hofstra College. He is represented in New York City at the Sculpture Center and at the Contemporary Gallery.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 2 1958

Budapest Quartet At Tanglewood

The Budapest String Quartet will make its first appearance at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., at 8:30 p. m. tonight in the opening chamber music concert of the Berkshire Festival. It will play Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"), Bartok's Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 3 1958

First Lecture Tomorrow In Music Seminar

The first in the series of lectures in the Seminar in Contemporary Music at Tanglewood will take place tomorrow at 3.15 in the Chamber Music Hall. John Kirkpatrick will speak on the music of Charles Ives and the musical program will include six songs, "Emerson" from the Concord Sonata, and the String Quartet No. 2, all performed by holders of Fromm Fellowships at the Berkshire Music Center.

The lecture on Friday, July 11, will be given by Roger Sessions speaking about his own music, and excerpts from his Mass for Unison Choir and the String Quartet in E minor will be performed.

Milton Babbitt will speak on July 18 on his own music and that of Elliott Carter. The musical program will include Eight Etudes and a Fantasy for Woodwind Quartet; and Two Pieces for Kettledrums by Carter; and Babbitt's Composition for Twelve Instruments.

On July 25, Marc Blitzstein will deliver the introductory talk and the musical program will include his short one act opera "Triple Sec", a Serenade for String Quartet, a Piano Sonata and several songs.

The music of Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss will be discussed on Aug. 1 by Mr. Foss and the musical program will include Kirchner's Trio for Violin, Cello and Piano, and Sonata Concertainte for Violin and Piano, and Foss's Concertino for Oboe and Eleven Instruments and Psalms for Chorus and Two Pianos.

The closing lecture will be given by Aaron Copland on Aug. 8th. After a talk about his music, Mr. Copland's Four Songs from Poems of Emily Dickinson and his Piano Fantasy will be performed. Guest artist in the piano Fantasy will be Noel Lee.

An additional series of lectures will be given on Wednesdays at 3.15 in the Chamber Music Hall at Tanglewood. Entitled "Aspects of New Music" the series will include, on July 9, Aaron Copland speaking on New Music from Latin America. The musical program will feature works by Ginastera, Galinda, Guarieri, Chavez and Orbon. On July 23 Milton Babbitt will speak on New Music from Europe and on Aug. 6 Lukas Foss will speak on New Music of the United States. Programs will be announced later.

The concert of contemporary chamber music on Monday, July 14 at 8.30 in the Chamber Music Hall performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists will include works by Charles Ives, Robert Lombardo, Igor Stravinsky, Silvestre Revueltas, David Diamond and Paul Hindemith.

All these events are under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, Paul Fromm, President, and the public has been invited to attend.

B. Globe - July 2

Budapest Quartet At Tanglewood

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening Chamber Music Concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival at Lenox. The concert will be held tonight in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

JUL 20 1958

Music

Spanish Ballet Schedules Extra Performance at Lee

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

So much excitement has been generated by the Jacob's Pillow Dances Festival debut of the Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet, this week at Lee, Mass., that an extra performance has been added to the seven already scheduled.

There will be afternoon and evening performances, Thursday through Saturday — and evening programs on Tuesday and Wednesday. Matinees are at 4, and evening performances begin at 9.

New in America

The Spanish Ballet is a company of 17 dancers, Flamenco singers, and guitarists. Excepting brief engagements in Canada, New York City and Washington in recent months, the troupe is virtually new to American audiences.

Choreographers and artistic directors are Roberto Ximenez, and Manolo Vargas. Both were first dancers with the Pilar Lopez company. In 1950 they formed their own concert group. Because of European and South American successes, they augmented the company to its present size. This is their third season.

One-Act Ballet

Of the eleven numbers to be danced this week at the Pillow, highlights will include a one-act ballet based on the legend of Petenera, a "Suite Aragonesa," "Impresiones Ibericas," "Suite Americana" (dances of Pery, Argentina, Cuba and Mexico), and "Cuadro Flamenco."

The musical backgrounds have been drawn from the catalogues of Albeniz and de Falla — also from Doura, Agama, Pittaluga, and Valadez.

Seats for the Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet are now available at the box-office, by mail—P. O. Box 87, Lee, Mass.

New York Series

New York City is to have what is the equivalent to the rural Civic Music or Community Concert series. The cost to New Yorkers will be about the same.

The Herbert Barrett Management announces a series of four concerts at Carnegie Hall, for the 1958-1959 season, for which all orchestra seats will be only $5.00, inclusive of federal tax, for the entire series.

Artists are Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano; Moura Lympany, British pianist; Joseph Fuchs, violinst; and Clairon Concerts Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Newell Jenkins.

Soloists for the final concert (Sunday evening, March 1) will include Joan Marie Moynagh, Worcester soprano; Charles Bressier, tenor; and Norman Farrow, bass-baritone.

Berkshire Opera

Tomorrow night marks the first program by the Berkshire Music Center Opera at Tanglewood.

Under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, the opera department will present excerpts from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" and a complete performance of Donizetti's "Don Pasquale."

Another evening of operatic scenes will be held on Monday, July 28. The production of Rossini's "Count Ory," on Aug. 4 and 5, will complete the schedule, except for scenes that will be given during the afternoon of "Tanglewood on Parade," Thursday, August 7.

The first three attractions are not open to the general public. Tickets are alloted to those who contribute and become "Friends of the Berkshire Music Center."

Fromm Lectures

Three more lectures remain (also available only to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center) under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago.

This seminar in contemporary music is devoted to American composers.

On Friday afternoon of this week, Marc Blitzstein will discuss his music. Leon Kirchner and Lukas Foss will survey Foss' music on Aug. 1st. And Aaron Copland will discuss his compositions on August 8.

Programs begin at 3:15 p.m.

Postscripts

The American Symphony Orchestra League now represents more than two-thirds of American and Canadian orchestras. Of the 1,090 known orchestras in the United States and Canada, 800 are ow represented by the league. The league sponsors workshops, supplies technical information, conducts surveys, and acts as an information clearing house for its members.

Lukas Foss, one of the leading young American composers, has been commissioned to write an orchestral work for world-premiering at the 30th Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs to be held in San Diego, Calif., April 19-25.

Far more auspicious local news is in the making.

Music Lecture Series Start at Tanglewood

The first in the series of lectures in the Seminar in Contemporary Music at Tanglewood will take place tomorrow at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall. John Kirkpatrick will speak on the music of Charles Ives and the musical program will include six songs, Emerson from the Concord Sonata, and the String Quartet No. 2, all performed by holders of Fromm Fellowships at the Berkshire Music Center. B. Eagle - July 2 '58

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 4 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens At Tanglewood

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 2.—The twenty-first season of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood opened Wednesday night with a concert by the Budapest Quartet in the theater-concert hall. The capacity audience inside the hall and listeners enjoying the music from the lawn outside heard quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven.

Members of the Budapest Quartet, which made its Tanglewood debut at this concert, included Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violins; Boris Kroyt, viola and Mischa Schneider, cello.

This week end's concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be devoted to music of Bach and will be conducted on Friday and Saturday evenings by Charles Munch.

S Republican — July 2

Budapest String Quartet Opens Tanglewood Season

1958 Berkshire Festival's First Audience Hears Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven Works

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 2—The 1958 Berkshire Festival opened tonight with a superb concert by the Budapest String Quartet, held in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

It seemed as though everybody was there.

Familiar Audience

Since their inception, the chamber music concerts have drawn the most musically intelligent audiences of the season. The same people return year after year and listen rapturously to the great ensembles assembled for their pleasure.

There was every reason for listening tonight. Through many years, the Budapest String Quartet has held its top place in the quartet ranks. One only had to listen tonight to know the reason.

The beauty of tone, perfection of balance, meticulous attention to the details and adherence to the wishes of the composers—of these characteristics great cham-

See TANGLEWOOD
Page Nine

Tanglewood

Continued From Page 1

ber music performances are made, and they were in abundance tonight.

Haydn Work Played

The program opened with a delectable performance of Haydn's engaging Quartet in D Major (The Lark), Op 64, No. 5. Then followed a breath-taking performance of Bela Bartok's First String Quartet, a work of amazing intricacies, melodic and rhythmic. Quartet in E Minor, Op. 59, No. 2. This is the minor quartet Beethoven wrote for Count Van Rasoumowski. It was played with a fervor and insight on rarely encounters. Particularly enchanting was the adagio, with its exquisite opening chorus, almost religious in feeling.

No wonder there were bravos and tumultuous applause from an audience who knew they had experienced great performances tonight.

Beauty Abounds

Tanglewood is beautiful now. Everything is so green. The carefully manicured lawns; the beauty of the formal gardens with those weird pieces of sculpture standing white against the green background.

This afternoon the student body heard Boris Goldovsky speak on "The Tanglewood idea." It was an informative speech by one who had been close to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky for many years and who had worked with him to make his dream come true.

Tomorrow night the student orchestra will make its first appearance and we are told that already it appears to equal the fine orchestra heard last season.

To Play Bach Works

Friday night, the first of three concerts devoted to the music of Bach will be performed under the direction of Charles Munch. The four suites will be played.

It is certainly safe to predict that the second suite, written for flute and strings will be the cause for great joy among the audience, for the flute solo will be played by Doriot Anthony Dwyer, first flutest of the orchestra and a great favorite with Tanglewood audiences.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 2 1958

Budapest Quartet Opens Festival At Tanglewood

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening Chamber Music Concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival tonight at Tanglewood, Lenox in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the Quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, Violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, Violin-cello.

Tickets are available for this concert at the Tanglewood Box Office, and may also be secured for the remaining concerts in the Wednesday evening chamber music series. Net proceeds of the concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center. The amounts received for this Fund are doubled by the Rockfeller Foundation under a five-year grant to the Boston Symphony music. Other artists who will appear in the Chamber Music series are the Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Adele Addison, soprano; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Kroll String Quartet.

---

[56]

BERKSHIRE EAGLE 7/3/58

Music Review

Budapest Quartet at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE OPENING program of the Tanglewood season was a concert last night in the theater-concert hall by the Budapest String Quartet. It was the first time this famous chamber music organization had ever appeared on this stage, and a more auspicious beginning of the season would have been hard to devise.

They played the Hayden D major quartet, opus 64, No. 5, popularly recognized as "The Lark," the first Bartok, opus 7, in A minor, and, after intermission, the Beethoven F minor, opus 59, No. 2, the second of the "Rassoumoffsky" quartets.

* * *

THE GREATEST interest of the evening musically lay in the Bartok, still as fresh, forceful and debatable as when it dawned upon an astonished public 50 years ago. The immediate impression is strange in many ways: It is an extremely slow, sustained fugue in which the two violins first make their statement after which the complementary duo enters. There is no concern whatsoever with what was once called vertical writing, and so the horizontal lines persist in unpredictable phrase-lengths and metrical patterns, off the ground entirely. Yet they come to rest betimes with conventional chord structure which is all the more reposeful and gratifying.

* * *

IT IS DOUBTFUL if Bartok tried to be daring for its own sake. It must be stated that the lucidity of the performance not only added extremely to the enjoyment of the music, but added immeasurably to the opportunity to see what was going on. The freedom of Bartok's writing was matched by the elasticity and rhapsodic character of the Budapest's performance.

The three movements are played without pause, and there are all sorts of diversity within the divisions, almost simultaneously modern and primitive. Indeed there is an elemental simplicity which is permeated by an emotional depth which, in last night's performance, was compounded by the individual prowess in the exceptionally strong and equal four chairs of last night's artists, who are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violins, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

* * *

THERE IS authenticity in everything the Budapesters play. Nowhere, probably, was it more apparent than in their Beethoven. This is one of three commissioned by the Russian ambassador to Austria, and in which Beethoven tried to express his gratitude to his patron by inserting short references to Russian melodies. These quartets have come by common usage to be placed in Beethoven's so-called middle period, a classification, we suspect, abetted by contemporary publishing practices of dividing all the Beethovens into three books. In any case they have no vestiges any more of the preceding Hayden-Mozart period nor do they enclose any of the less penetrable labyrinths of the "late" ones.

The sense of proportion of this performance was monumental. This is a reading which has been distilled and refined over many years association and unremitting application. It retains its youthful vigor and vast breadth of color but adheres with unfailing fidelity to the written pages. The tremendous and spontaneous outburst of applause was rewarded with the scherzo of the final Beethoven quartet (opus 135).

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 3 1958

Budapest Quartet Opens Tanglewood '58 Music Festival

A program by the Budapest String Quartet in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood last night opened the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival. Works by Mozart, Bela Bartok and Beethoven were performed.

In the afternoon the student body at the Berkshire Music Center heard Boris Goldovsky speak on "The Tanglewood Idea." Mr. Goldovsky worked closely with the founder of the center, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky.

This evening the student orchestra at the center will make its first appearance, and tomorrow night the first of three concerts devoted to the music of Bach will be performed by a chamber orchestra composed of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch will be on the podium. The other concerts in the series will be held Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 2 - 1958

Budapest Quartet at Tanglewood

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening Chamber Music Concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox. The concert will be held tonight in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major (The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the Quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, Violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, Violin-cello.

Tickets are available for this concert at $2 and $3 at the Tanglewood Box Office, and may also be secured for the remaining concerts in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series. Net proceeds of the concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center. The amounts received for this Fund are doubled by the Rockefeller Foundation under a five-year grant to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of music. The grant is now in its fourth year. Other artists who will appear in the Chamber Music series are the Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Adele Addison, soprano; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Kroll String Quartet.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675

JUN 27 1958

The Budapest Quartet—Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violins; Mischa Schneider, cello; Boris Kroyt, viola—will give a concert at Tanglewood Wednesday night.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
FREEMAN
Circ. D. 15,969

JUL 2 1958

Budapest Quartet Opens Berkshire Festival Tonight; Program to Include Hayden Quartet

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening Chamber Music Concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The concert will be held tonight in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"), Bartok's Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the Quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, Violon-cello.

Tickets are available for this concert at the Tanglewood box office, and may also be secured for the remaining concerts in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series. Net proceeds of the concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship fund of the Berkshire Music Center. The amounts received for this fund are doubled by the Rockefeller Foundation under a five-year grant to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of music. The grant is now in its fourth year. Other artists who will appear in the Chamber Music series are the Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Adele Addison, soprano; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Kroll String Quartet.

[57]

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,960

JUN 28 1958

Music

Budapest String Quartet Opens Berkshire Festival

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL—This year's session of the world famous Berkshire festival wil open Wednesday when the Budapest string quartet will offer a program of Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. This talented ensemble has previously graced the stage at the music center, attracting large gatherings of chamber music lovers.

For this event such pieces as the "String Quartet in D Major" ("The Lark"); "String Quartet No. 1 in A Minor, Op. 7" and the "String Quartet in E Minor, Op. 59 No. 2" will be featured.

On the holiday evening the Boston Symphony orchestra under Charles Munch will present the Bach "Suite No. 1 in C Major;" "Suite No. 2 in B Minor for Flute and Strings"" (Doriot Dwyer, soloist); "Suite No. 3 in D Major" and "Suite No. 4 in D Major."

be the North Shore theater at Beverly. Over the past few years this center of music has given the New England scene much to praise in the way of musical stage.

The American Heritage foundation will present an award to the Smith college singers at a ceremony on Wednesday, for their work as ambassadors of cultural good will in five summer singing tours of Europe, college officials have announced. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is a foundation trustee, will present the award at a concert by the singers and a reception to be held at the world affairs center, United Nations plaza, New York City.

The citation salutes the singers as "60 good citizens," ambassadors of good will, who are carrying the message of our American heritage in the language which speaks to all people—the language of music."

Saturday evening will find Lukas Foss appearing as soloist in the Bach "Concerto in D Minor". The week's highlight will unfold with the Sunday concert of the Bach "B Minor Mass". These soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Assisting will be the Harvard Glee club and the Radcliffe Choral society.

THE ARUNDEL OPERA in Kenebunkport, Me., is ready for another gala season of opera, light opera and musical comedy. This well established center of music in an appropriate setting of singers, stage sets, costuming and the remaining details to make the picture complete, promises to continue the policy of music for the taste of everyone.

Wesley Boynton have completed plans which will include many stage productions in the favorite class. These will be supported by a talented group of young but well-known artists.

Morse Haithwaite wi'l again assume the position as music director. His coaching of the vocal and instrumental arrangements cf these famous scores for duopiano has become a trade mark along the straw hat trail.

Keeping the fast growing tradition of the summer circuit will

---

SCHENECTADY GAZETTE 7/4/58

Budapest String Quartet Opens Berkshire Festival

By D. E. RITZ
Gazette Music Editor

Quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven were played by the Budapest String Quartet in the opening chamber music concert of the Berkshire Festival Wednesday night at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

* * *

OVER 1,300 persons attended the program, the first of the benefits for the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the center.

Festival programs will open tonight in the Theatre-Concert Hall and will continue through Aug. 10. Charles Munch will direct the all-Bach programs tonight and tomorrow at 8:30 o'clock and G. Wallace Woodworth will be the guest conductor Sunday at 2:30 p.m. for the Bach "B minor Mass."

Members of the Budapest String Quartet, all artists of the first rank, are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violins; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, cello.

* * *

LIKE ALL GOOD quartets one never quite hears the members as individuals but as a most amazing ensemble — one of the rare groups which apparently thinks as one man. Their playing has a "crisp" approach to the music which we found particularly invigorating on a very hot night.

The Haydn "Quartet in D major (The Lark), opus 64, number 5" is lovely music with a slow movement of wistful theme, a minuet with an unusual rhythmic figure and a finale, in the character of a perpetuum mobile that is most demanding and most intriguing.

* * *

THE BARTOK Quartet number 1 in three movements, "Lento," "Allegretto" and "Allegro vivace" holds one with its amazing tonalities, its melodies which only Bartok could have written and rhythms that are institent. One comes away with the feeling of strings used as human voices and expressing thoughts almost submerged in the sub-conscious. A performance like that given by the Budapest Quartet is a revelation of Bartok.

One returned to a better-known and well-loved idiom in the Beethoven "Quartet in E minor, opus 59, number 2" which concluded the program. The highly enthusiastic audience gave the quartet members an ovation unusual even for Tanglewood and were rewarded with an encore—an excerpt from one of the late Beethoven Quartets.

Wilton Bulletin
WILTON, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,804

JUN 25 1958

Ridgefield Press
RIDGEFIELD, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 2,077

JUN 26 1958

CHARLES MUNCH — director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will play at the Berkshire Festival from July 2 through Aug. 10.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 1 1958

Budapest Quartet Opens Tanglewood Chamber Concerts

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening chamber music concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival tomorrow night at 8:30. in the theater-concert hall.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Scholarship Fund

Tickets are available for this concert at the Tangle wood box office, and may also be secured for the remaining concerts in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series. Net proceeds of the concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

EAGLE 7/1/58

Budapest Quartet Opens Tanglewood Chamber Concerts

The Budapest String Quartet will appear for the first time at Tanglewood in the opening chamber music concert of the 21st Berkshire Festival tomorrow night at 8:30. in the theater-concert hall.

The program will include Hayden's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Members of the quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violin; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Scholarship Fund

Tickets are available for this concert at the Tangle wood box office, and may also be secured for the remaining concerts in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series. Net proceeds of the concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUL 7 - 1958

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 45,854

JUL 6 - 1958

Berkshire Festival Being Held In Lenox

Lenox, Mass.—Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will take turns conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Music Festival until Aug. 10. Major concerts will be heard on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. Vocalists will include Margaret Harshaw, Hilde Gueden, and Donald Gramm.

HARTFORD CONN. TIMES

JUL 3 1958

String Quartet Heard at Tanglewood

By GEORGE W. STOWE

Lenox, Mass.—Nothing less than the famed Budapest String Quartet performed the opening concert of the chamber music series at Tanglewood, last night, an event that signalized the beginning of the 1958 Berkshire Festival.

Despite sticky weather, close to a capacity audience gathered in the Theater-Concert Hall to eavesdrop upon a program of Haydn, Bartok, and Beethoven and to vociferously applaud the playing of this celebrated group, whose teamwork is always a marvel to ordinary performers.

Haydn's so - called "Lark" Quartet (Op. 64, No. 5), with its buoyant and identifying opening theme, belongs to a period in the composer's creative life when he was in full possession of his extraordinary gifts. It has both depth of feeling and grace of phraseology.

In the interpretation by the Budapest players the predominant characteristic is a mellow glow, a tonal warmth, that gives the music a dimension not usually accorded to it. Too often a string group will give us a polished performance that lacks a vitalizing force, an inner fire.

* * *

THE FINALE was taken at a bravura pace that was breathtaking, a feat that only the superb combination of Joseph Roisman, Alexander Schneider, Boris Kroyt, and Mischa Schneider could carry off with so much technical elan.

Among his many works Bartok's quartets remain inaccessible to the ordinary concertgoers, an enigma to all but the most sensitive listeners. But it behooves us to keep on listening, for the composer has something to communicate, an intensity of expression that is the concomitant of greatness.

The composer's first quartet has been called primitive and brutal yet, despite the slashing rhythms of the finale, it is a work of profound introspection and of tender pathos. We need only consider the first movement to confirm the fact.

Last night the Budapest was less incisive than some other groups we have heard but we could not fail to admire the tendency of the players to probe beneath the notes and to convey an architectonic picture, a musical entity.

* * *

THE FINAL WORK, which this reviewer did not hear, was the second "Rasamouvsky" Quartet of Beethoven (Op. 59, No. 2).

Berkshire Festival Opens This Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held this Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place tomorrow, Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 when the Budapest String Quartet will be making its first Tanglewood appearance.

Berkshire Music Center events this week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, at 8:30; the first in the series of lectures in the Seminar on Contemporary Music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, at 3:15 (John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives); and the first Sunday morning chamber music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a. m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend these and many other activities of the School.

NEW LEBANON
ECHO 7/1/58

MILLERTON, N. Y.
NEWS-REPUBLICAN
Circ. W. 3,617

JUL 3 1958

RED HOOK, N. Y.
ADVERTISER
Circ. W. 925

JUL 3 1958

THE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts, opened its 1958 season on July 2 and will run until August 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the 6,000 seat Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

[58]

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

JUL 6 1958

The Berkshire Festival on th 1958 season last Wednesday and the Boston Symphony Orchestra
Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoons at are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert H

MILLERTON, N. Y.
NEWS-REPUBLICAN
Circ. W. 3,617

JUL 10 1958

At Tanglewood Famed Budapest Quartet

By John Truscott

The Berkshire Festival's 1958 season opened auspiciously indeed, with a magnificent performance by the world famous Budapest Quartet on July 1. Yes, that happened Wednesday a week ago--but, because the News-Republican is a weekly published on Thursday, this is the first opportunity for this reporter's review of this remarkable concert to appear. It's his guess that last Thursday's paper was being run off before the concert was over!

But, in any case, it's never too late to salute the Budapest Quartet, nor to regret that it appears only once on this summer's Tanglewood roster. On that occasion, the quartet's deserved reputation for finish, precision, and balance--to say nothing of refined tone and dazzling virtuosity--was most satisfyingly maintained. A capacity audience, which seemed to include most of the outstanding string players in this part of the country, gave the group a shouting ovation which resulted, after many recalls, in a sparkling encore.

Haydn's ever-popular "Lark" --why do so many amateur quartets consider it "easy?"--opened the program. And though a captious critic might consider it to have been done a little sentimentally at times, the finale afforded passages of sheer, unadulterated magic. The Bartok No. 1, which followed, was played without pause. And it was a rather formidable dose of unrelieved Bartok, this reporter believes, since he cannot but feel that the No. 1 is hardly the best of Bela's important contribution to quartet literature.

The familiar Beethoven Op. 59, No. 2, concluded the program in stunning fashion. Faultless playing, complete interpretative command, mastery of every inner voice, garnered the compliment of hushd silnce on the part of a sophisticated audience until the last chord had been bowed. Then pandemonium broke loose!

Last night's concert of the Wednesday evening Tanglewood series was that of the gifted Beaux Arts Trio. And on next Wednesday night the attraction will be The New York Pro Musica, a choral and instrumental group which within a few very years has become nationally celebrated. According to the Tanglewood grapevine, seats may be hard to come by! This reporter, who once travelled a good many miles to hear his first Pro Musica program, has never regretted that journey, nor has he ever forgotten the performance. So w advise any lover of rare old music beautifully projected by dedicated artists, to call Lenox 600 about reservations. But today!

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

JUL 5 - 1958

Copyright SR

Music Calendar for Week

SUNDAY

2:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra in Bach B minor Mass with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists; G. Wallace Woodworth conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

3—Bergen (Norway) International Festival; CBS radio.

3:30—Insurance City Band; Elizabeth Park.

4—Berkshire Quartet, all-Beethoven program; Music Mountain, Falls Village.

8:30 — Duke Ellington and orchestra; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

8:30—Newport Jazz Festival closing with All-Star Night; Newport, R. I.

TUESDAY

9—Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival: Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline; Donald Sadler & Co. with Maria Karnilova; Lotte Goslar; outside Lee, Mass.

WEDNESDAY

3:30 — Norfolk Music School Chamber Music Series; Music Shed, Norfolk.

7:15 — Plumb Memorial Carrillon concert by Edward Gammons of Groten, Mass.; Trinity College Chapter.

8:30—Hartford Festival of Music: Robert Brawley conducting Festival Singers and Orchestra; terrace of Conn. General Life Ins. Co., Cottage Grove Rd., Bloomfield.

8:30 — Beaux Arts Trio; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

9 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

THURSDAY

4:00 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30—Conn. Valley Music Festival: Ernest and Miles Mauney, twin duo-pianists; Regional High School, Deep River.

8:30—West Indian Night; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

FRIDAY

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday

8:30—Elizabeth Schwartzkopf with Conn. Symphony Orchestra, Jonel Perlea conducting pops concert; Fairfield University Stadium, Fairfield.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale, soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

SATURDAY

3:30—Tony Scott Quintet with poet Langston Hughes; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, piano soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
Post & Times Herald
Circ. D. 382,456 - S. 415,810

JUN 29 1958

End of an Era at ... rd

By Paul Hume

NEXT SUNDAY afternoon up in the big, resonant Music Shed at Tanglewood, there will be a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Hume

The orchestral score will be played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The soloists will be a distinguished four, including Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramms. The choral responsibilities will be handled by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

But it is upon the conductor of the afternoon's performance that attention will center. He occupies a unique position in the musical development of this country, and one not equaled by any other individual. He is G. Wallace Woodworth, who is celebrating his 25th anniversary as conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, and who is now announcing his retirement from that prominent position.

To be sure, this is also the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club, an occasion of no small moment. Yet the day will quite rightfully be a time for the honoring of Woodworth and his wholly distinctive direction of an outstanding pair of choruses.

IT IS WORTH reviewing some of Woodworth's accomplishments to make clear why his 25 years of service to Harvard and its sister college have been so vital an element in our musical life. No assessment of G. Wallace Woodworth can begin without mentioning the name of his illustrious predecessor, Archibald T. Davison, or "Doc," who so nearly singlehandedly lifted the world of collegiate glee club singing from the era of the "Bullfrog on the pond," to the place where today men's clubs sing the great works for male voices of every period.

Succeeding Davison in 1933, Woodworth came along at a time when the Boston Symphony under Serge Koussevitsky was reaching its peak of perfection. And among the most completely thrilling and satisfying to both audiences and participants alike were the many choral machines for which Koussevitsky invariably turned to the ladies and gentlemen of the Radcliffe and Harvard campuses.

From Gabrieli to Walter Piston, in towering works of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, and with side excursions into Debussy and Randall Thompson, these collegians turne formances that pletely justifie lofty places al golden perfecti conductor and

And it was alw
Woodworth who young singers memorable
Italian, French were as much a singing as Latin
It was not a rar son to find th choruses prep major works wi month period, c time they kept school work goi their own progr
and on tour as

IT IS a recor achievemen by any other col in this countr sing-or did Munch alter ng sit-hands, en and d mag-

Romeo Dam-Berlioz, ey apn, and ples of llabora-nphony gers.
as been exciting college
Wallace
l direct or Mass. musical rld will retires.

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,083

JUL 3 - 1958

2 Interesting Mu... Getting Under W...

Two interesting music festivals are starting this week. The Jazz Festival at Newport, R. I., which will be held today through Sunday, and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, which continues through Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteux, who does the moderns so well, will conduct four of the concerts, and Wallace Woodworth will do a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists, Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Francescatti and Berl Senofsky; Violists will be Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale.

Tanglewood-on-Parade, a benefit

Donald Gramm, bass-baritone, appears with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Musical Director, in the performance of Brahms Requiem.

on Wednesday evenings.

Other events will be performed by the Boston Symphony's summer school of music, including student performances of orchestra, chamber music, choral music, and opera, all also open to the public.

Many people are interested in attending the rehearsals in the mornings. Further information about events is available at the Festival Office, Tangelwood in Lenox. Happy Listening!

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Conductor

Charles Munch

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of westren Massachusetts, opened its 1958 season on July 2 and will run until August 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the 6,000 seat Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

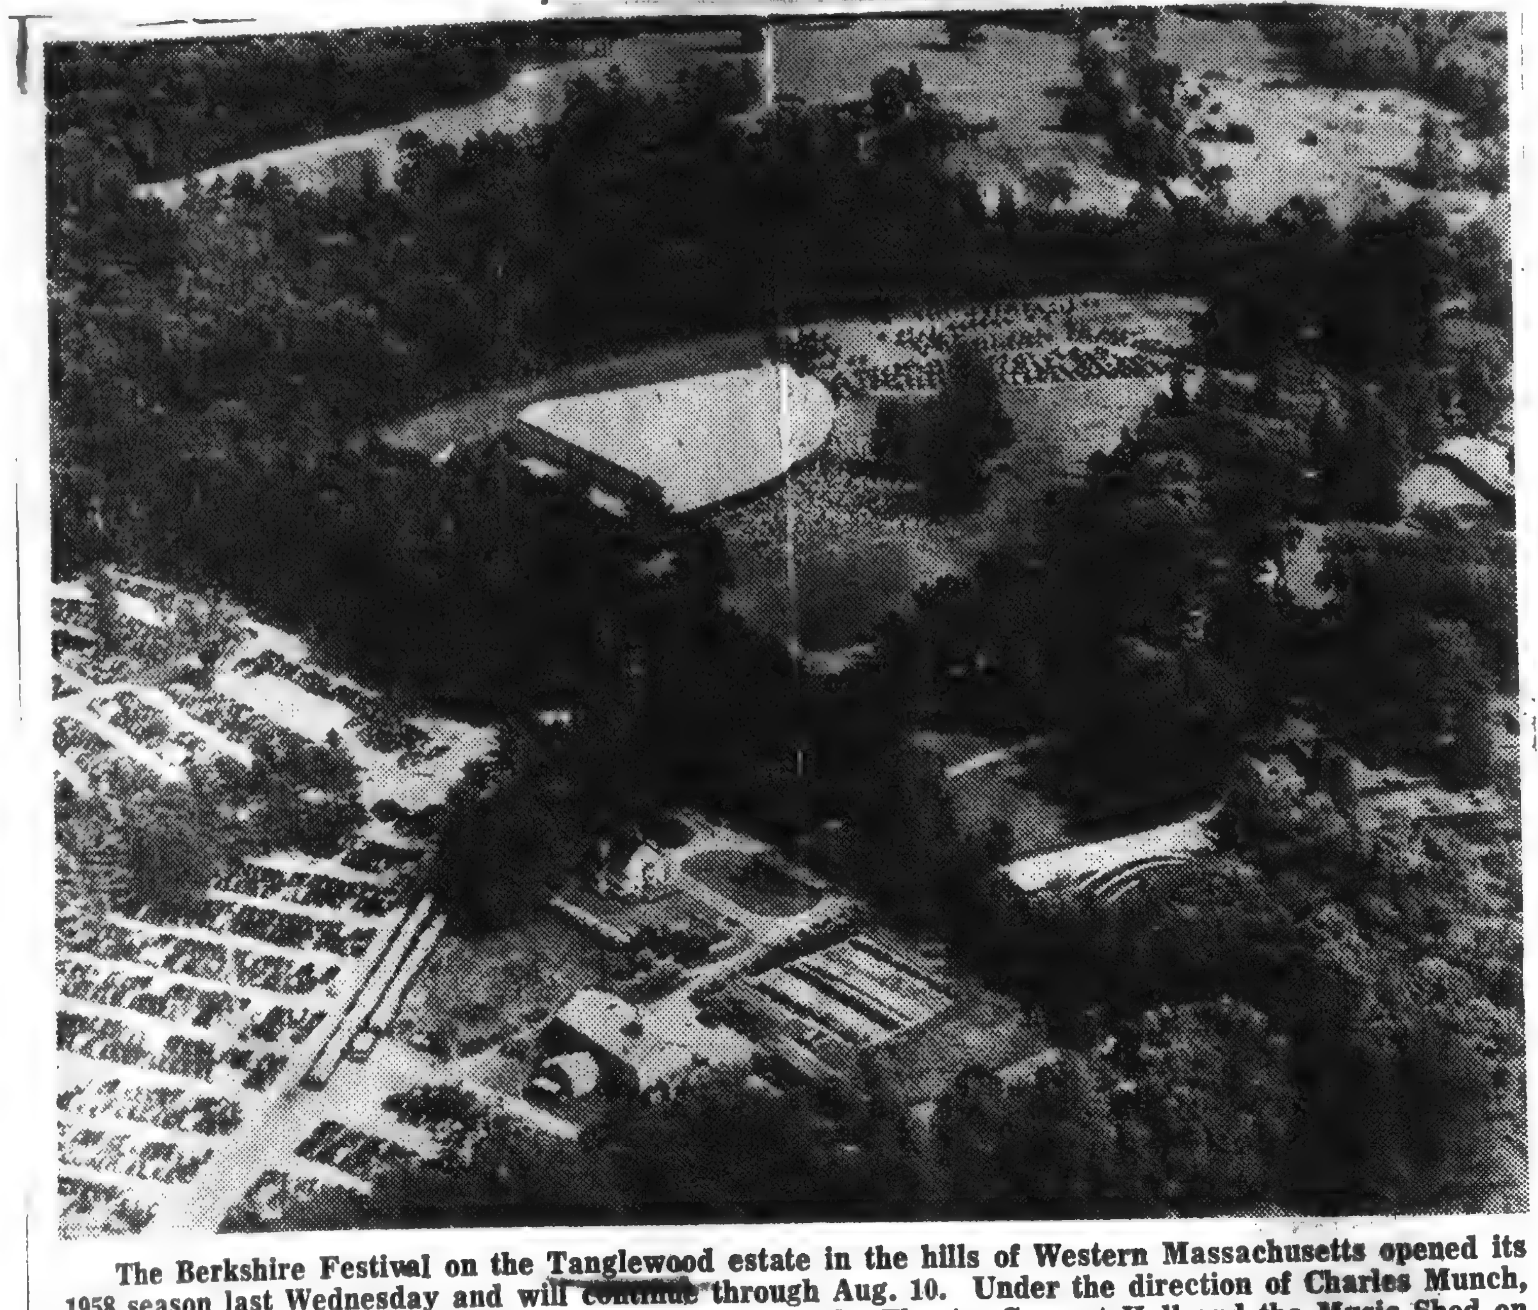
Music

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night. Tickets from Steinway Hall Box-Office, 113 W. 57 or Stadium Concerts Business Office, 50 W. 57.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

JUL 6 1958



The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts opened its 1958 season last Wednesday and will ~~continue~~ through Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and the Music Shed on Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
Post & Times Herald
Circ. D. 382,456 - S. 415,810

JUN 29 1958

End of an Era at Harvard

By Paul Hume

NEXT SUNDAY afternoon up in the big, resonant Music Shed at Tanglewood, there will be a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Hume

The orchestral score will be played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The soloists will be a distinguished four, including Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramms. The choral responsibilities will be handled by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

But it is upon the conductor of the afternoon's performance that attention will center. He occupies a unique position in the musical development of this country, and one not equaled by any other individual. He is G. Wallace Woodworth, who is celebrating his 25th anniversary as conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, and who is now announcing his retirement from that prominent position.

To be sure, this is also the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club, an occasion of no small moment. Yet the day will quite rightfully be a time for the honoring of Woodworth and his wholly distinctive direction of an outstanding pair of choruses.

IT IS WORTH reviewing some of Woodworth's accomplishments to make clear why his 25 years of service to Harvard and its sister college have been so vital an element in our musical life. No assessment of G. Wallace Woodworth can begin without mentioning the name of his illustrious predecessor, Archibald T. Davison, or "Doc," who so nearly singlehandedly lifted the world of collegiate glee club singing from the era of the "Bullfrog on the pond," to the place where today men's clubs sing the great works for male voices of every period.

Succeeding Davison in 1933, Woodworth came along at a time when the Boston Symphony under Serge Koussevitsky was reaching its peak of perfection. And among the most completely thrilling and satisfying to both audiences and participants alike were the many choral machines for which Koussevitsky invariably turned to the ladies and gentlemen of the Radcliffe and Harvard campuses.

From Gabrieli to Walter Piston, in towering works of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, and with side excursions into Debussy and Randall Thompson, these collegians turned out performances that were completely justified in their lofty places alongside the golden perfection of that conductor and orchestra. And it was always Wallace Woodworth who prepared his young singers for their memorable appearances. Italian, French and German were as much a part of their singing as Latin and English. It was not a rarity for a season to find the combined choruses preparing three major works within a seven-month period, during which time they kept their regular school work going, and sang their own programs at home and on tour as well.

IT IS a record of musical achievement not matched by any other college choruses in this country or abroad, and by few professional singing groups either. Nor did the coming of Charles Munch to the Boston scene alter the happy if demanding situation. Under his hands, Woodworth's young men and women have recorded magnificent accounts of "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz, in both of which they appeared in Washington, and these are only samples of the more recent collaboration of the Boston Symphony and Woodworth's singers.

And the man who has been responsible for this exciting achievement with college students is the Wallace Woodworth who will direct next Sunday's B Minor Mass. Harvard and the musical platforms of the world will be poorer when he retires.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

JUL 5 - 1958
Copyright 58

Music Calendar for Week

SUNDAY

2:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra in Bach B minor Mass with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists; G. Wallace Woodworth conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

3—Bergen (Norway) International Festival; CBS radio.

3:30—Insurance City Band; Elizabeth Park.

4—Berkshire Quartet, all-Beethoven program; Music Mountain, Falls Village.

8:30 — Duke Ellington and orchestra; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

8:30—Newport Jazz Festival closing with All-Star Night; Newport, R. I.

TUESDAY

9—Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival: Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline; Donald Sadler & Co. with Maria Karnilova; Lotte Goslar; outside Lee, Mass.

WEDNESDAY

3:30 — Norfolk Music School Chamber Music Series; Music Shed, Norfolk.

7:15 — Plumb Memorial Carrillon concert by Edward Gammons of Groten, Mass.; Trinity College Chapter.

8:30—Hartford Festival of Music: Robert Brawley conducting Festival Singers and Orchestra; terrace of Conn. General Life Ins. Co., Cottage Grove Rd., Bloomfield.

8:30 — Beaux Arts Trio; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

9 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

THURSDAY

4:00 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30—Conn. Valley Music Festival: Ernest and Miles Mauney, twin duo-pianists; Regional High School, Deep River.

8:30—West Indian Night; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

FRIDAY

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30—Elizabeth Schwartzkopf with Conn. Symphony Orchestra, Jonel Perlea conducting pops concert; Fairfield University Stadium, Fairfield.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale, soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

SATURDAY

3:30—Tony Scott Quintet with poet Langston Hughes; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, piano soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Conductor

Charles Munch

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Westren Massachusetts, opened its 1958 season on July 2 and will run until August 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the 6,000 seat Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,083

JUL 3 - 1958

2 Interesting Music Festivals Getting Under Way This Week

Two interesting music festivals are starting this week. The Jazz Festival at Newport, R. I., which will be held today through Sunday, and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, which continues through Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteux, who does the moderns so well, will conduct four of the concerts, and Wallace Woodworth will do a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists, Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Francescatti and Berl Senofsky; Violists will be Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale.

Tanglewood-on-Parade, a benefit concert, will take place Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fielder and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week-ends: July 4-5-6 devoted to the music of Bach; July 11-12-13 devoted to Mozart; and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature the music of Brahms; July 25-26-27, the music of Debussy, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3, the music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10, the music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings.

Other events will be performed by the Boston Symphony's summer school of music, including student performances of orchestra, chamber music, choral music, and opera, all also open to the public.

Many people are interested in attending the rehearsals in the mornings. Further information about events is available at the Festival Office, Tangelwood in Lenox. Happy Listening!

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Music

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night. Tickets from Steinway Hall Box-Office, 113 W. 57 or Stadium Concerts Business Office, 50 W. 57.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

JUL 6 1958

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts opened its 1958 season last Wednesday and will ~~continue~~ through Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and the Music Shed on Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
Post & Times Herald
Circ. D. 382,456 - S. 415,810

JUN 29 1958

End of an Era at Harvard

By Paul Hume

NEXT SUNDAY afternoon up in the big, resonant Music Shed at Tanglewood, there will be a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Hume

The orchestral score will be played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The soloists will be a distinguished four, including Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramms. The choral responsibilities will be handled by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

But it is upon the conductor of the afternoon's performance that attention will center. He occupies a unique position in the musical development of this country, and one not equaled by any other individual. He is G. Wallace Woodworth, who is celebrating his 25th anniversary as conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, and who is now announcing his retirement from that prominent position.

To be sure, this is also the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club, an occasion of no small moment. Yet the day will quite rightfully be a time for the honoring of Woodworth and his wholly distinctive direction of an outstanding pair of choruses.

IT IS WORTH reviewing some of Woodworth's accomplishments to make clear why his 25 years of service to Harvard and its sister college have been so vital an element in our musical life. No assessment of G. Wallace Woodworth can begin without mentioning the name of his illustrious predecessor, Archibald T. Davison, or "Doc," who so nearly singlehandedly lifted the world of collegiate glee club singing from the era of the "Bullfrog on the pond," to the place where today men's clubs sing the great works for male voices of every period.

Succeeding Davison in 1933, Woodworth came along at a time when the Boston Symphony under Serge Koussevitsky was reaching its peak of perfection. And among the most completely thrilling and satisfying to both audiences and participants alike were the many choral machines for which Koussevitsky invariably turned to the ladies and gentlemen of the Radcliffe and Harvard campuses.

From Gabrieli to Walter Piston, in towering works of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, and with side excursions into Debussy and Randall Thompson, these collegians turned out performances that were completely justified in their lofty places alongside the golden perfection of that conductor and orchestra. And it was always Wallace Woodworth who prepared his young singers for their memorable appearances. Italian, French and German were as much a part of their singing as Latin and English. It was not a rarity for a season to find the combined choruses preparing three major works within a seven-month period, during which time they kept their regular school work going, and sang their own programs at home and on tour as well.

IT IS a record of musical achievement not matched by any other college choruses in this country or abroad, and by few professional singing groups either. Nor did the coming of Charles Munch to the Boston scene alter the happy if demanding situation. Under his hands, Woodworth's young men and women have recorded magnificent accounts of "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz, in both of which they appeared in Washington, and these are only samples of the more recent collaboration of the Boston Symphony and Woodworth's singers.

And the man who has been responsible for this exciting achievement with college students is the Wallace Woodworth who will direct next Sunday's B Minor Mass. Harvard and the musical platforms of the world will be poorer when he retires.

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,083

JUL 3 - 1958

2 Interesting Music Festivals Getting Under Way This Week

Two interesting music festivals are starting this week. The Jazz Festival at Newport, R. I., which will be held today through Sunday, and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, which continues through Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteux, who does the moderns so well, will conduct four of the concerts, and Wallace Woodworth will do a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists, Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin, and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Francescatti and Berl Senofsky; Violists will be Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale.

Tanglewood-on-Parade, a benefit concert, will take place Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fielder and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six weekends: July 4-5-6 devoted to the music of Bach; July 11-12-13 devoted to Mozart; and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature the music of Brahms; July 25-26-27, the music of Debussy, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3, the music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10, the music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings.

Other events will be performed by the Boston Symphony's summer school of music, including student performances of orchestra, chamber music, choral music, and opera, all also open to the public.

Many people are interested in attending the rehearsals in the mornings. Further information about events is available at the Festival Office, Tangelwood in Lenox. Happy Listening!

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

JUL 5 - 1958

Copyright 19[illegible]

Music Calendar for Week

SUNDAY

2:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra in Bach B minor Mass with Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists; G. Wallace Woodworth conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

3—Bergen (Norway) International Festival; CBS radio.

3:30—Insurance City Band; Elizabeth Park.

4—Berkshire Quartet, all-Beethoven program; Music Mountain, Falls Village.

8:30 — Duke Ellington and orchestra; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

8:30—Newport Jazz Festival closing with All-Star Night; Newport, R. I.

TUESDAY

9—Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival: Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline; Donald Sadler & Co. with Maria Karnilova; Lotte Goslar; outside Lee, Mass.

WEDNESDAY

3:30 — Norfolk Music School Chamber Music Series; Music Shed, Norfolk.

7:15 — Plumb Memorial Carrillon concert by Edward Gammons of Groten, Mass.; Trinity College Chapter.

8:30—Hartford Festival of Music: Robert Brawley conducting Festival Singers and Orchestra; terrace of Conn. General Life Ins. Co., Cottage Grove Rd., Bloomfield.

8:30 — Beaux Arts Trio; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

9 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

THURSDAY

4:00 — Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30—Conn. Valley Music Festival: Ernest and Miles Mauney, twin duo-pianists; Regional High School, Deep River.

8:30—West Indian Night; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

FRIDAY

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30—Elizabeth Schwartzkopf with Conn. Symphony Orchestra, Jonel Perlea conducting pops concert; Fairfield University Stadium, Fairfield.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale, soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Theater, Lenox, Mass.

SATURDAY

3:30—Tony Scott Quintet with poet Langston Hughes; Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, Mass.

4 & 9—Jacob's Pillow, as Tuesday.

8:30 — Boston Symphony Orchestra with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, piano soloists; Charles Munch conducting; Tanglewood Shed, Lenox, Mass.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Conductor

Charles Munch

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of westren Massachusetts, opened its 1958 season on July 2 and will run until August 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the 6,000 seat Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 14 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Music

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night. Tickets from Steinway Hall Box-Office, 113 W. 57 or Stadium Concerts Business Office, 50 W. 57.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

([59])

News
WEST HARTFORD,
Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,078

JUL 3 - 1958

Goings On

THURSDAY, JULY 3

Newport Jazz Festival. The annual event, to run through July 6, this year features Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Benny Goodman, Billy Eckstine, George Shearing and many others. Tickets are $5, $4, and $3, through "Jazz," Newport, R. I.

Miss Connecticut. The annual competition, with 17 girls competing, at Klein Memorial Auditorium in Bridgeport Thursday, Friday nights.

Play. "Light Up the Sky," at Oval in the Grove, Farmington. Through July 12. Tickets $2 Monday through Thursday, $2.20 Friday, Saturday. Information through OR 7-9119.

Play. "Monique," with Lisa Ferrady. At the Canton Show Shop, Canton. Through Saturday. Tickets and information through OWens 3-8353.

Stratford Plays. "Midsummer Night's Dream," 8:30 Thursday, Saturday, 3 p.m. Sunday, 8:30 p.m . Tuesday, Wednesday. "Hamlet" 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday, 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 10. Tickets are from $2 to $5 and its best to invest a little money and get good seats, as the house is pretty large. Tickets and information through ED 7-4457.

Play. "Teahouse of the August Moon," by University of Connecticut Summer theater at Storrs. 8:30 p.m. through Saturday. Tickets $1.25 in week, $1.75 Friday, Saturday. Information through GArfield 9-9321, Ext. 441.

Play. "The King and I," at Oakdale Musical Theater, Wallingford, through the weekend.

Play. "Thieves Carnival," at Sharon Playhouse. Information through ENdicott 4-5733.

FRIDAY, JULY 4

Fireworks. East Hartford will have a major display, at 9 p.m. at Martin Park, off Burnside Avenue. Also displays in several Hartford parks. Many parks in the area have various games for children during the day.

Tanglewood. First weekend program of season at 8:30 Friday and Saturday and 2:30 Sunday. Boston Symphony, with Charles Munch conducting, will do four Bach suites Friday night. Saturday brings Lukas Foss in Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor. Sunday is the Bach B Minor Mass, with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Tanglewood ticket information through Lennox 600, Lenox, Mass., or by writing to Festival Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

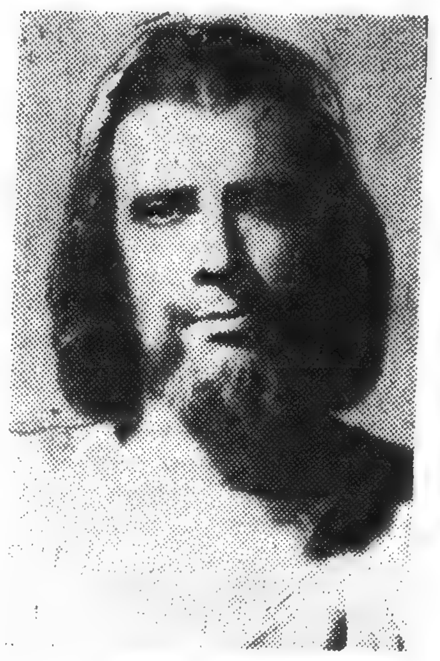
Band [illegible]. Insurance City Band, 7:15 [illegible] at Pope Park, Hartford. [illegible] to public.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER EXPRESS
Circ. D. 168,672 - S. 308,605

JUN 29 1958

In the Realm of Music

Chautauqua Presents Religious Opera



Jerome Hines

Jerome Hines will present his religious opera, "I Am the Way," at the Chautauqua Institute Amphitheater at 3 this afternoon.

Choral parts will be performed by the Erie Symphonic Choir directed by Obed Grender.

This opera, devised by Hines, the composer and lyricist as well as the principal in the role of Christ, will be given in five scenes which include such subjects as "Women at the Well," "Nicodemus," "Two Mary's," "Lazarus" and "The Last Supper."

Portions have been televised, and the whole work was given at Chautauqua last summer with great success. The chorus, plus 22 singers, will aid Hines in the Institutes opening-day feature.

MET SOPRANO—Tomorrow evening, Hilde Gueden, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, performs for Chautauqua. Her program will include lieder of Strauss and Brahams, Mozart arias and art songs of Taylor, Brook and Wilson. She will also present a sheaf of Viennese songs from scores of Lehar, Kalman and Stolz.

BERKSHIRE OPENING — Tanglewood, the scene of the Berkshire Festival, will resume its formal concerts Wednesday evening.

The opening event will be a chamber music concert by the Budapest String Quartet, playing works of Haydn, Beethoven and Bartok.

On Friday, a seminar in contemporary music will be held in the afternoon, followed by Charles Munch conducting a concert in the evening which promises the first four Bach suites.

On Saturday evening, Lukas Foss will be the soloist for Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor with Munch conducting the Boston Orchestra.

Next Sunday afternoon, the Bach B Minor Mass will be given with G. Wallace Woodworth conducting. The soloists will be Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm. The Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Chorale Society will make up the chorus.

LECTURER—Robert Schulz, organist-choirmaster at St. Mary of Sorrows Church, is spending the weekend at Syracuse. He is assisting in a choir and choral workshop presented by the American Guild of Organists of that city.

Others on the guest faculty are John Baldwin of Hamilton College, Will Headlee of Syracuse University, and David Gooding, Buffalo organist who also appears in organ recital at the conclusion of the sessions.

STUDENT RECITAL — A piano recital was given by pupils of Charlotte W. Joy Friday evening in Kleinhans Music Hall. Those taking part were Mary O'Neill, Margaret Deane, Frances O'Keefe, Barbara Miller, Kathy O'Keefe, Nancy Deane, Susan Perry, Richard Ferguson, Melinda Lipps, Nancy Rexford, Leslie Bushnell, Susan Maefs and Barbara Henry.

UNIVERSITY MUSIC — On Monday evening, July 7, the University of Buffalo commences a series of summer chamber music concerts in the Baird Music Building. The Kroll String Quartet will play quartets of Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The ensemble is composed of William Kroll and Louis Graeler, violins; David Mankovitz, viola; and Avron Twerdowsky, cello.

AT LINWOOD — The Linwood Music School concerts start next Sunday with a 7:00 p.m. performance by the Rochester Woodwind Quintet.

The personnel is Walter Coleman, flute; William Harrod, oboe; Robert Gauldin, clarinet; Norman Schweikert, horn; and Glenn Williams, bassoon.

Trios and quintets to be performed are by Souris, Roti and Damase. There also will be the playing of Bach's B Flat Minor Prelude and Fugue and the Trio No. 6 in D Major by Haydn.

DOBLIN RE-ENGAGED — Rudolf Doblin has been engaged as conductor and musical director of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Niagara Falls for the 14th consecutive year. President Arthur M. Teller said plans for the coming season include the appearance of guest artists, and the presentation of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville."

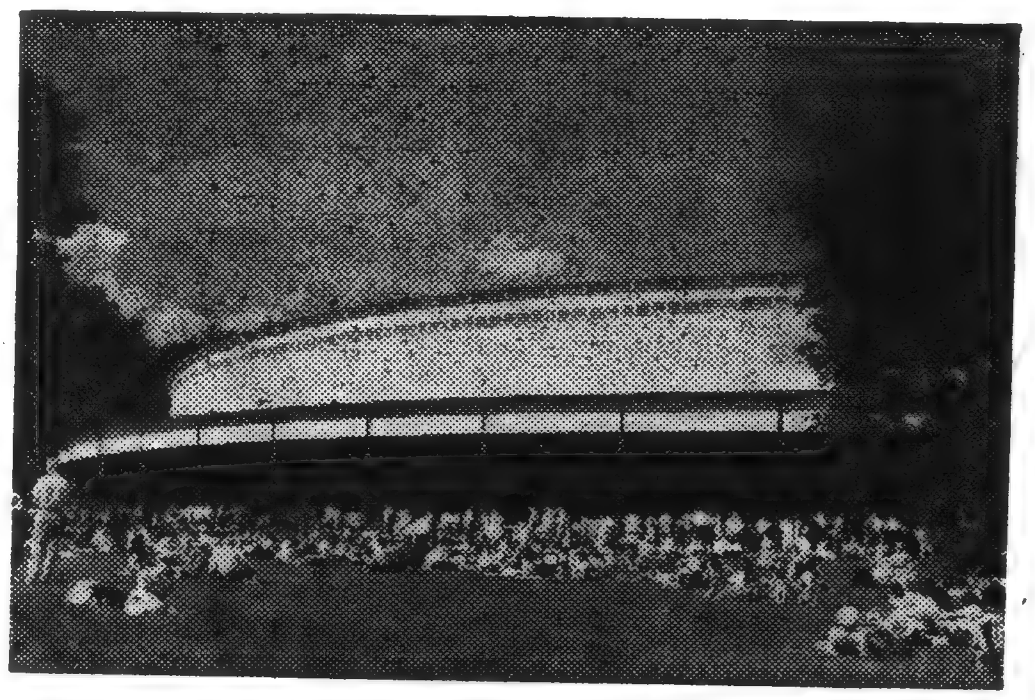
Vacancies in the string section must be filled before the first rehearsal Sept. 10. Area musicians interested in joining should contact Richard H. Kralik, personnel manager.

Wilton Bulletin
WILTON, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,804

JUN 25 1958

Ridgefield Press
RIDGEFIELD, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 2,077

JUN 26 1958



THE MUSIC SHED at Tanglewood — constructed in 1938, seats 5,893 people. The acoustic properties of the Shed allow the music to be heard clearly from the surrounding lawns.

THE FESTIVAL in the hills of Western Massachusetts, will open its 1958 season on July 2 and run until Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the Music Shed on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presentel on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

6/27/58
ENTERPRISE - ALTAMONT, N.Y.

Berkshire Musical Festival

Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Pierre Monteux, veteran director, will conduct concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival by the Boston Symphony during the forthcoming season which opens July 2 in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., continuing through August 10. Other conductors in certain programs: G. Hugh Ross, known as conductor of the Schola Cantorum, New York, and G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe Glee clubs. "Tanglewood on Parade" on August 7 will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops orchestra.

Concerts in Tanglewood take place in the Theater Concert hall, setting for chamber music programs and operas, and in the great Music Shed, where thousands can be accommodated. Soloists engaged for the 1958 season: Violinists Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky, Ruth Posselt; violinist Josepf De Pasquale; pianists Leon Fleisher, Eugene Istomin, Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and singers Margaret Harshaw and Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera, and Donald Gramm, basso. Composers represented in the several concerts: Bach, Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Brahms, Beethoven and Liszt.

Approximately 5,000 young musicians have received training in Tanglewood and many of the alumni now are on rosters on America's symphony orchestras and opera companies. Others are members of faculties of principal music schools.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
Circ. D. 61,009 - S. 119,412

JUN 22 1958

Tanglewood

The Berkshires again will feature the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, beginning July 2 through Aug. 10, with Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux sharing the podium. This year's "Tanglewood on Parade," with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston "Pops" has been scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 7.

NEW LEBANON, N. Y.
6/24/58

Tanglewood Season Opens Next Week

When Tanglewood reopens, summer is really here, and that will be the case next Wednesday when the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival officially opens with a chamber music concert by the Budapest String Quartet in the Theatre at 8:30 p. m. From then on, almost daily, for six wonderful weeks, there will be music programs of all types, to suit all people, at this world-renowned music center. A weekly program of events at Tanglewood will appear in succeeding issues of the ECHO.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 45,854

JUN 8 1958

Morgan Jr.

Berkshire Festival To Open July 2

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUN 27 1958

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. will open its 1958 season on Wednesday, July 2, at 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre Concert Hall, with the Budapest String Quartet. The program will include the Haydn Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2 Scheduled for the week end: Friday, June 4, in the theatre, 8:30 p.m., Bach Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4; Saturday June 5, in the theatre, 8:30 p.m., Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor, soloist, Lukas Foss; Sunday June 6, in the Music Shed at 2:30 p.m., Bach's B Minor Mass, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth. Charles Munch is the conductor Friday and Saturday.

4 A THE BOSTON SUNDAY HERALD, JULY 6, 1958 Section III

Music, Dance Festivals Active

Berkshire Festival This Week

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

The Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall and admission is $1.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra on Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the Seminor on Contemporary Music (Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions) on Friday afternoon at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall; and next Sunday a chamber music concert by students at 10 A.M. in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 P.M.

The complete programs for the week are as follows:

Wednesday, at 8:30, Theatre Concert Hall, Beaux Arts Trio, Beethoven, Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure Trio in D minor, Op. 120; Mendelssohn, Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

Friday at 8:30, Theatre-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra; Charles Munch, Conductor; Mozart, Musical Joke, K. 522; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, (Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph De Pasquale), "Linz" Symphony No. 36, C major.

Saturday 8:30, Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Conductor; Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Two-Piano Concerto K. 365; (Soloists: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin), Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Sunday 2:30, Theatre-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch; Mozart, "Haffner" Symphony, Piano Concerto C major, K. 467, (Soloist: Seymour Lipkin), conducted by Hugh Ross, Mozart, Kyrie K. 341, Graduale, K. 273, "Coronation" Mass., (Soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelst).

The closing concerts of the first Festival weekend will take place today at 2:30 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Berkshire.

EUNICE ALBERTS, contralto, is a soloist in Bach's B minor Mass at the Bershire Festival, Tanglewood in Lennox, with the Harvard and Radcliffe choruses, this afternoon.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566
JUL 2 - 1958

Ed Fitzgerald

G. Wallace Woodworth rehearses the Boston Symphony for Bach's B minor Mass, to be presented in the Music Shed at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon.

ATLANTA, GA.
Journal & Constitution
Circ. S. 493,042
JUN 22 1958

Famed Maestros To Share Duties At Tanglewood

Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and G. Wallace Woodworth will share conducting duties for the Berkshire Festival beginning at Tanglewood, Mass., July 2.

Mr. Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will be pianists Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario; violinists, Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; violists Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675
JUN 28 1958

Tanglewood Set to Get Under Way

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30, and next Sunday, July 6, at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Dr. Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening he will direct the four suites of Bach — No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (with Doriot Anthony Dwyer as soloist); No. 3 in D major; and No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's festival. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary, and this will be his final concert.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2 in the Theater Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance, will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartók's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59.

Berkshire Festival

NY Tribune June 29 '58

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Wednesday, 8:30 Budapest String Quartet. "The Lark" Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5, Haydn. Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, Bartok; Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2, Beethoven.

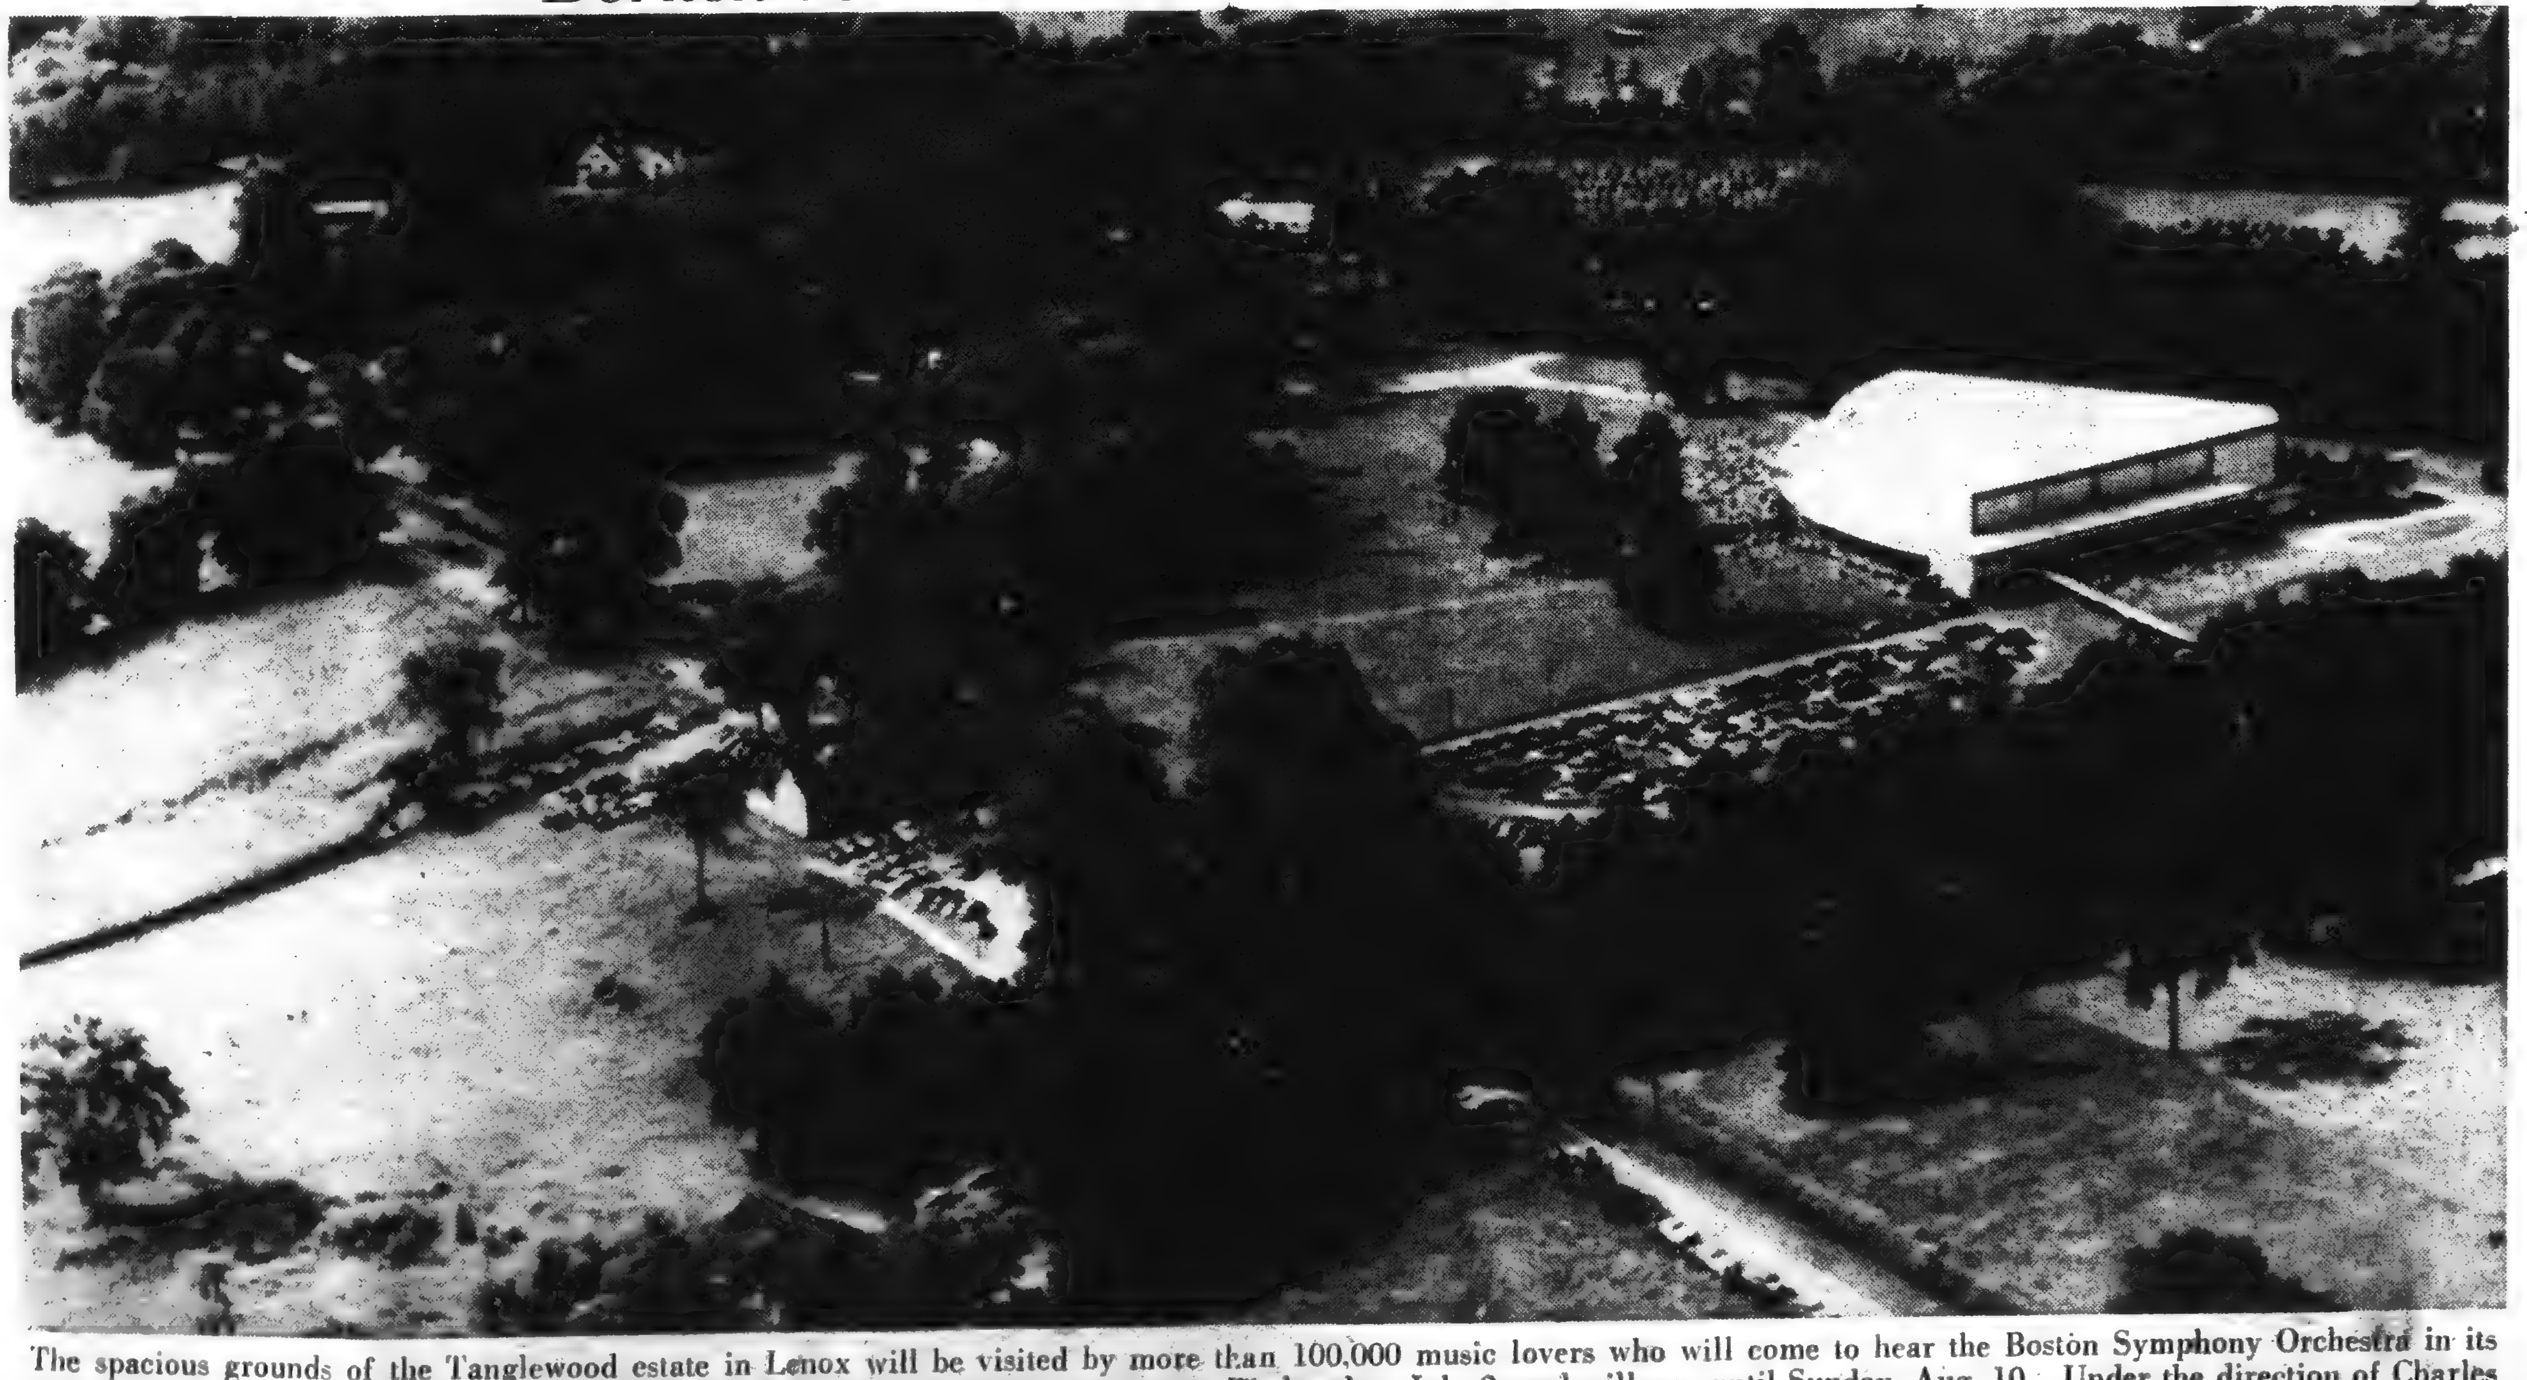
Friday, 8:30 Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. Suites No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (flute solo: Doriot Anthony Dwyer); No. 3 in D major; No. 4 in D major, Bach.

Saturday, 8:30 Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor; soloist, Lukas Foss, pianist. Piano Concerto in D minor; The Art of the Fugue, Bach.

Sunday, July 6, 2:30 Boston Symphony Orchestra; soloists, Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Albert, contralto, Blake Stern, tenor, Donald Gramm, bass, Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, G. Wallace Woodworth conducting B minor Mass, Bach.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286
JUN 27 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens Next Wednesday



The spacious grounds of the Tanglewood estate in Lenox will be visited by more than 100,000 music lovers who will come to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its summer home during the 1958 season of the Berkshire Festival, which opens next Wednesday, July 2, and will run until Sunday, Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch and Pierre Monteaux, the Boston Symphony will present concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and the Music Shed—capacity 6,000—Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts will be presented Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

[61]

BILLBOARD
CINCINNATI, OHIO
Circ. W. 49,359

JUN 23 1958

MUSIC AS WRITTEN

By BOB ROLONTZ

GLEASON SYNDICATED

Ralph Gleason, jazz critic and columnist for a variety of magazines and newspapers, became a syndicated jazz columnist this past week. His column is called "The Rhythm Section" and it is running in six papers: the Los Angeles Mirror News, The Houston Chronicle, New Orleans Item, Milwaukee Journal, Des Moines Register Tribune and the Witchita (Kansas) Beacon, every week. This will be in addition to his regular weekly column under the same title in the San Francisco Chronicle. Syndication was set by the Times-Mirror Syndicate of Los Angeles, and more papers are considering the column.

DIRECTIONAL IN ALL DIRECTIONS

Directional Enterprises, busy, busy management firm owned and operated by Jerry Levy and Fred Amsell, were busy, busy again last week. They signed Mickey Calin of "West Side Story" to pic pact with Columbia and a recording contract. Their Opus Music firm sold a master by the Vanguards to Bob Thiele of Dot Records. Jimmy Nelson, another of their acts, snagged himself a Jubilee wax contract. And Ethel Ayler, currently understudy for Lena Horne in "Jamaica" was tested for a role in the forthcoming play "Take a Giant Step." In addition to these doings, the pair set Johnny Gilbert to host the "Musical Bingo" show over NBC each week.

New York

Jack Rael, confirmed bachelor and man-about-town, as well as the manager of thrush Patti Page, married Racquel Gordon, daughter of cleffer Mack Gordon in Chicago last week. Miss Page was matron of honor. Couple are now honeymooning in Jamaica. . . . Miles Davis and his sextet are now playing the Black Pearl in New York. . . . The Tuneweavers are promoting their new Casa Grande record of "There Stands My Love" in the New England area. . . . Ralph Harlow, veepee in charge of station service for Broadcast Music, Inc., married Mrs. Charles Vaill in Massachusetts last month. . . . Johnny Mathis was saluted last week by the Committee of Friends of the Harlem branch of the Y.M.CA. last week. . . . Don Byrd and his quintet, consisting of Bobby Jaspar, Art Taylor, and Doug Watkins head for the Knokke Festival in Beligum starting July 8. After that the group will play a jazz festival in Cannes.

Al Goodman entered Mount Sinai Hospital in New York this week for minor surgery. . . . Stan Rubin of the Tigertown Five, married Ann Stevens of Northport, N. Y. last week. . . . Bourne Music has snagged the world rights (excepting U. S. and Canada) for "Bird on My Head," the tune by Ross Bagdasarian waxed by the David Seville crew on the Liberty label. . . . Carlton Records artist Jack Scott is out on the road seeing deejays from New Orleans to Cleveland. Carlton has signed Anita Bryant to a term pact. . . . Mischa Elman was awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Music, by Combs College in Philadelphia last week. . . . Soprano Adele Addison will perform with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this summer at the Berkshire Festival on July 6.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUN 25 1958

Tanglewood Concerts to Open July 4, 5

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8.30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2.30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C major, No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Foss Soloist

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2.30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

Rehearsal Open

The final rehearsal for the E Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8.30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUN 27 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens At Tanglewood On July 2

Budapest String Quartet Will Play Haydn

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. opens its 1958 season on Wednesday, July 2, with a chamber music concert in the Theatre Concert Hall by the Budapest String Quartet. The program will include the Haydn Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartok Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The week end will be devoted to the music of Bach. Friday's concert in the theatre will be Bach's Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and on Saturday, also in the theatre, his Piano Concerto in D minor, with Lukas Foss as solist. Both these concerts start at 8:30 p.m. and both will be conducted by Charles Munch.

The great B Minor Mass, with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, will be given Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Music Shed, with G. Wallace Woodworth conducting. Solists will be Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
PRESS

JUL 3 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, at 8.30 and Sunday, at 2.30

Sunday Herald Tribune
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Independent Republican
Circ. 576,176

JUN 29 1958

Doriot Anthony Dwyer rehearses the flute solos which she will play with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its opening concert Friday at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Jazz Festival Opens At Newport Thursday

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

While devotees of symphonic and chamber music go to Lenox for the opening of the twenty-first Berkshire Festival, jazz fans will gather at Freebody Park, Newport, R. I., for that city's fifth annual Jazz Festival which runs from Thursday through next Sunday. The first two evening concerts in Newport will have a partly reminiscent character, since Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman will appear with present and former members of their ensembles. An International Youth Band of young jazz musicians from seventeen countries will play under Marshall Brown's direction on Friday afternoon and in next Sunday's All Star Night.

Mahalia Jackson will provide Gospel singing both on the opening night and in a midnight postlude to Saturday's "Blues in the Night" program. Groups chosen by jazz critics will play Saturday afternoon, and the Sunday matinee will be devoted to modern jazz. Free lecture-recitals are set for Friday and Saturday mornings. The evening concerts will be broadcast in part by CBS. Meanwhile, jazz will have its third annual evening at the Lewisohn Stadium on Saturday.

* * *

Tanglewood Events

Including the Berkshire festival programs and the Berkshire Music Center's public activities, Tanglewood will have thirty-six performances during the next six weeks. The festival's weekly chamber music and recital series begins Wednesday, and a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians gives the first of six week-end concerts Friday night under Charles Munch, who will welcome the Center's students at this afternoon's opening exercises.

The complete Boston Symphony will give the first of its twelve concerts in Tanglewood's Music Shed on Friday, July 18. Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra will again figure in the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" benefit on Thursday, Aug. 7. A song recital by Adele Addison will replace the one originally announced for Margaret Harshaw on Wednesday night, July 23.

* * *

Contemporary Music

The Fromm Foundation of Chicago will again sponsor a program of the study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. Eight American composers will be represented in a seminar on Friday afternoons beginning July 4; most of them will be present to discuss their own music. New music from Europe, South America and the United States will be discussed in three Wednesday afternoon lectures, beginning July 23.

Post
WALLINGFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,408

JUN 26 1958

Tanglewood Music Festival Opens Soon

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings, No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concent will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUL 1 1958

Doriot Anthony Dwyer, solo flutist of the Boston Symphony, will be soloist at the opening concert of the Berkshire Festivel, Friday night at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch will conduct.

[60]

BILLBOARD
CINCINNATI, OHIO
Circ. W. 49,359

JUN 23 1958

MUSIC AS WRITTEN

By BOB ROLONTZ

GLEASON SYNDICATED

Ralph Gleason, jazz critic and columnist for a variety of magazines and newspapers, became a syndicated jazz columnist this past week. His column is called "The Rhythm Section" and it is running in six papers: the Los Angeles Mirror News, The Houston Chronicle, New Orleans Item, Milwaukee Journal, Des Moines Register Tribune and the Witchita (Kansas) Beacon, every week. This will be in addition to his regular weekly column under the same title in the San Francisco Chronicle. Syndication was set by the Times-Mirror Syndicate of Los Angeles, and more papers are considering the column.

DIRECTIONAL IN ALL DIRECTIONS

Directional Enterprises, busy, busy management firm owned and operated by Jerry Levy and Fred Amsell, were busy, busy again last week. They signed Mickey Calin of "West Side Story" to pic pact with Columbia and a recording contract. Their Opus Music firm sold a master by the Vanguards to Bob Thiele of Dot Records. Jimmy Nelson, another of their acts, snagged himself a Jubilee wax contract. And Ethel Ayler, currently understudy for Lena Horne in "Jamaica" was tested for a role in the forthcoming play "Take a Giant Step." In addition to these doings, the pair set Johnny Gilbert to host the "Musical Bingo" show over NBC each week.

New York

Jack Rael, confirmed bachelor and man-about-town, as well as the manager of thrush Patti Page, married Racquel Gordon, daughter of cleffer Mack Gordon in Chicago last week. Miss Page was matron of honor. Couple are now honeymooning in Jamaica. . . . Miles Davis and his sextet are now playing the Black Pearl in New York. . . The Tuneweavers are promoting their new Casa Grande record of "There Stands My Love" in the New England area. . . . Ralph Harlow, veepee in charge of station service for Broadcast Music, Inc., married Mrs. Charles Vaill in Massachusetts last month. . . . Johnny Mathis was saluted last week by the Committee of Friends of the Harlem branch of the Y.M.C.A. last week. . . . Don Byrd and his quintet, consisting of Bobby Jaspar, Art Taylor, and Doug Watkins head for the Knokke Festival in Beligum starting July 8. After that the group will play a jazz festival in Cannes.

Al Goodman entered Mount Sinai Hospital in New York this week for minor surgery. . . . Stan Rubin of the Tigertown Five, married Ann Stevens of Northport, N. Y. last week. . . . Bourne Music has snagged the world rights (excepting U. S. and Canada) for "Bird on My Head," the tune by Ross Bagdasarian waxed by the David Seville crew on the Liberty label. . . . Carlton Records artist Jack Scott is out on the road seeing deejays from New Orleans to Cleveland. Carlton has signed Anita Bryant to a term pact. . . . Mischa Elman was awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Music, by Combs College in Philadelphia last week. . . . Soprano Adele Addison will perform with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this summer at the Berkshire Festival on July 6.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUN 27 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens At Tanglewood On July 2

Budapest String Quartet Will Play Haydn

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. opens its 1958 season on Wednesday, July 2, with a chamber music concert in the Theatre Concert Hall by the Budapest String Quartet. The program will include the Haydn Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartok Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The week end will be devoted to the music of Bach. Friday's concert in the theatre will be Bach's Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and on Saturday, also in the theatre, his Piano Concerto in D minor, with Lukas Foss as solist. Both these concerts start at 8:30 p.m. and both will be conducted by Charles Munch.

The great B Minor Mass, with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, will be given Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Music Shed, with G. Wallace Woodworth conducting. Solists will be Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm.

Sunday Herald Tribune
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Independent Republican
Circ. 576,176

JUN 29 1958

Doriot Anthony Dwyer rehearses the flute solos which she will play with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in its opening concert Friday at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Jazz Festival Opens At Newport Thursday

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

While devotees of symphonic and chamber music go to Lenox for the opening of the twenty-first Berkshire Festival, jazz fans will gather at Freebody Park, Newport, R. I., for that city's fifth annual Jazz Festival which runs from Thursday through next Sunday. The first two evening concerts in Newport will have a partly reminiscent character, since Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman will appear with present and former members of their ensembles. An International Youth Band of young jazz musicians from seventeen countries will play under Marshall Brown's direction on Friday afternoon and in next Sunday's All Star Night.

Mahalia Jackson will provide Gospel singing both on the opening night and in a midnight postlude to Saturday's "Blues in the Night" program. Groups chosen by jazz critics will play Saturday afternoon, and the Sunday matinee will be devoted to modern jazz. Free lecture-recitals are set for Friday and Saturday mornings. The evening concerts will be broadcast in part by CBS. Meanwhile, jazz will have its third annual evening at the Lewisohn Stadium on Saturday.

• • •

Tanglewood Events

Including the Berkshire festival programs and the Berkshire Music Center's public activities, Tanglewood will have thirty-six performances during the next six weeks. The festival's weekly chamber music and recital series begins Wednesday, and a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians gives the first of six week-end concerts Friday night under Charles Munch, who will welcome the Center's students at this afternoon's opening exercises.

The complete Boston Symphony will give the first of its twelve concerts in Tanglewood's Music Shed on Friday, July 18. Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra will again figure in the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" benefit on Thursday, Aug. 7. A song recital by Adele Addison will replace the one originally announced for Margaret Harshaw on Wednesday night, July 23.

• • •

Contemporary Music

The Fromm Foundation of Chicago will again sponsor a program of the study and performance of contemporary music at the Berkshire Music Center. Eight American composers will be represented in a seminar on Friday afternoons beginning July 4; most of them will be present to discuss their own music. New music from Europe, South America and the United States will be discussed in three Wednesday afternoon lectures, beginning July 23.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
PRESS

JUL 3 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, at 8.30 and Sunday, at 2.30.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUN 25 1958

Tanglewood Concerts to Open July 4, 5

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8.30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2.30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C major, No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Foss Soloist

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2.30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

Rehearsal Open

The final rehearsal for the E Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8.30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUL 1 1958

Doriot Anthony Dwyer, solo flutist of the Boston Symphony, will be soloist at the opening concert of the Berkshire Festivel, Friday night at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch will conduct.

Post
WALLINGFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,408

JUN 26 1958

Tanglewood Music Festival Opens Soon

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings, No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concent will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

[62]

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUN 25 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens Next Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the theatre-concert hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flue and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearnces as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after twenty-five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
PRESS

JUL 3 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, at 8:30 and Sunday, at 2:30.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUL 3 - 1958

Bach Concerts This Weekend Will Open Berkshire Festival

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, July 6, at 2:30 p.m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C Major; No. 2 in B Minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D Major and No. 4 in D Major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after twenty-five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, tot conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

CONDUCTOR . . . and musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch. The orchestra will begin its summer series of Tanglewood concerts this weekend with an all-Bach program.

The final rehearsal for the E Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The second concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on July 9 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30, with the Beaux Arts Trio as the featured artists. This new York group will perform Beethoven's Trio in E Flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D Minor, Op. 20; and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor, Op. 66.

WILMINGTON, DEL.
Journal-Every Evening
Circ. D. 70,642

JUN 18 1958

Munch to Direct At Tanglewood

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run July 2 to Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists.

Concerts are given on six week-ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart in the Theatre-Concert Hall); and the final four week-ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven.

Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua; and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUL 6 - 1958

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts opened its 1958 season last Wednesday and will continue through Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and the Music Shed on Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 7 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

American Shakespeare Festival—Repertory season at Stratford, Conn. will begin on June 19th this year with "Hamlet." Information & reservations: CI 5-3110.

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Music

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night. Tickets from Steinway Hall Box-Office, 113 W. 57 or Stadium Concerts Business Office, 50 W. 57.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

MILTON, N. Y.
PIONEER

JUL 2 1958

MARLBORO, N. Y.
RECORD

JUL 2 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday an Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C. major; No. 2 in B. minor for Flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Deoriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist) No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUN 25 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens Next Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the theatre-concert hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flue and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearnces as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after twenty-five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

WILMINGTON, DEL.
Journal-Every Evening
Circ. D. 70,642

JUN 18 1958

Munch to Direct At Tanglewood

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run July 2 to Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists.

Concerts are given on six week-ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart in the Theatre-Concert Hall); and the final four week-ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven.

Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua; and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital. Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
PRESS

JUL 3 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, at 8:30 and Sunday, at 2:30.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
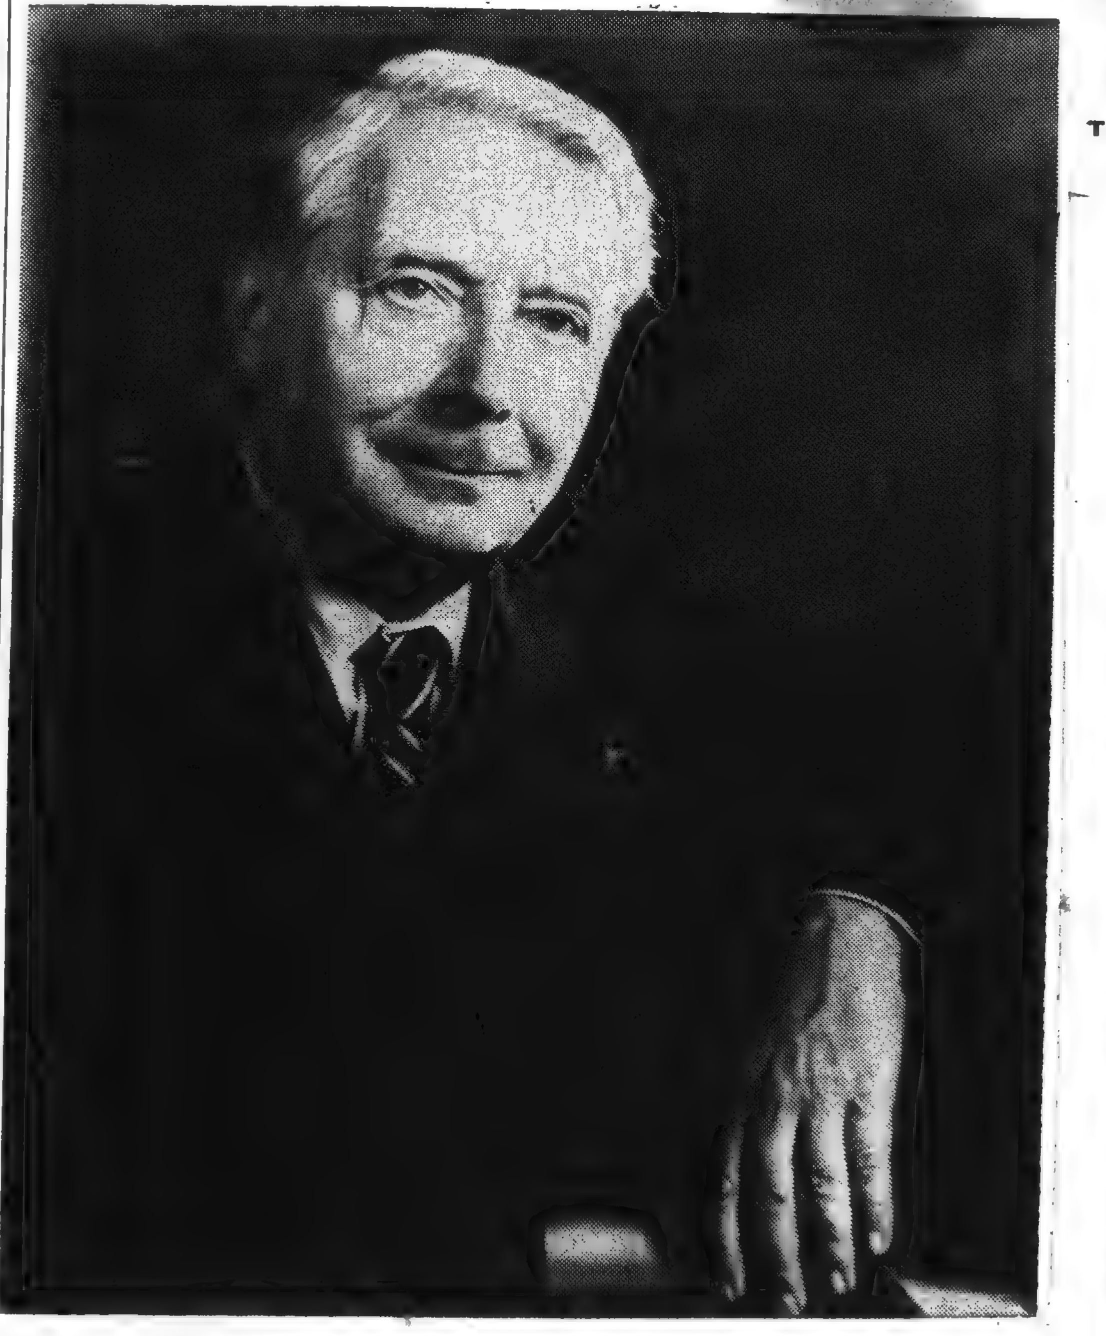
Circ. 2,292
JUL 3 - 1958

Bach Concerts This Weekend Will Open Berkshire Festival



CONDUCTOR . . . and musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch. The orchestra will begin its summer series of Tanglewood concerts this weekend with an all-Bach program.

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, July 6, at 2:30 p.m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C Major; No. 2 in B Minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D Major and No. 4 in D Major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after twenty-five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, tot conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the E Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The second concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on July 9 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30, with the Beaux Arts Trio as the featured artists. This new York group will perform Beethoven's Trio in E Flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D Minor, Op. 20; and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor, Op. 66.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUL 6 - 1958

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts opened its 1958 season last Wednesday and will continue through Aug. 10. Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony Orchestra presents concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and the Music Shed on Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoons at 2:30. Chamber music concerts are presented on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 7 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

American Shakespeare Festival—Repertory season at Stratford, Conn. will begin on June 19th this year with "Hamlet." Information & reservations: CI 5-3110.

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Music

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night. Tickets from Steinway Hall Box-Office, 113 W. 57 or Stadium Concerts Business Office, 50 W. 57.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

MILTON, N. Y.
PIONEER

JUL 2 1958

MARLBORO, N. Y.
RECORD

JUL 2 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday an Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C. major; No. 2 in B. minor for Flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Deoriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist; No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

□ [63]

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 142,739

JUN 29 1958

Tanglewood Will Open This Week

Complete programs for the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., have been announced as follows:

Wednesday, July 2—Chamber music concert, Budapest String Quartet, Haydn, Bartok, Beethoven; theater at 8:30.

Friday, July 4—Charles Munch and members of Boston Symphony, four Bach suites; theater at 8:30.

Saturday, July 5—Munch, Boston Symphony in Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor, Lukas Foss soloist; "The Art Of The Fugue," Bach, arranged for strings; theater at 8:30.

Sunday, July 6—Bach B Minor Mass, Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society, Boston Symphony, G. Wallace Woodworth conductor; shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 9—Chamber music concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York, Beethoven, Faure, Mendelssohn; theater at 8:30.

Friday, July 11—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Musical Joke," Sinfonia Concertante, "Linz" Symphony, Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale soloists; theater at 8:30.

Saturday, July 12—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Two-Piano Concerto (K365), Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss soloists, Serenade No. 10 for winds, Symphony No. 40; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 13—Munch, Boston Symphony, Mozart "Haffner" Symphony, Piano Concerto in C Major, Seymour Lipkin soloist; Kyrie (K341), Graduale (K273), Mass (K317), Hugh Ross conductor; theater at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 16—Chamber music concert, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, music of Flanders and Spain; theater at 8:30.

Main Series Opens July 18

Friday, July 18—Opening of main concert series: Munch, Boston Symphony, Brahms Serenade No. 1, Copland Variations for Orchestra, Brahms Symphony 4.

Saturday, July 19—Koussevitzky Memorial Concert: Brahms Requiem, Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm, Festival Chorus, Munch and Boston Symphony; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 20—Pierre Monteux, Boston Symphony, Brahms "Academic Festival" Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1, Leon Fleisher soloist, Stravinsky "Petrouchka"; shed at 2:30.

Friday, July 25—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Glinka "Russlan and Ludmilla" Overture, Tschaikowsky Symphony No. 4, Milhaud "Eumenides" Overture, Debussy Three Nocturnes, Ravel "La Valse"; shed at 8:30.

Saturday, July 26—Munch, Boston Symphony, Stravinsky Canticum Sacrum, Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto, Byron Janis soloist, Debussy "La Mer"; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, July 27—Munch, Boston Symphony, Bartok Music For Strings, Percussion and Celesta, Ravel "Daphnis And Chloe" Second Suite, Tschaikowsky Violin Concerto, Zino Francescatti soloist; shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, July 30—Chamber music concert, Kroll Quartet, Mozart, Blackwood, Brahms; theater at 8:30.

Wagner Weekend

Friday, August 1—Munch, Boston Symphony, Wagner "Meistersinger" Prelude, "Siegfried" Idyll, Prelude and Love - Death, "Tristan And Isolde," Immolation Scene, Piston Viola Concerto, Joseph de Pasquale soloist; shed at [illegible]

Saturday, August 2—Munch, Boston Symphony, Wagner "Tannhaueser" Overture and Bacchanale, Liszt Piano Concerto No. 1, Leonard Pennario soloist, Vaughan Williams Symphony No. 8, Wagner "Siegfried's Rhine Journey"; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, August 3—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Wagner excerpts "Flying Dutchman," Lohengrin," "Walkuere," "Parsifal," "Tannhaueser," "Rienzi;" shed at 2:30.

Wednesday, August 6—Chamber music concert, Kroll Quartet, Haydn, Bartok, Beethoven; theater at 8:30.

'Parade' Opens Last Week

Thursday, August 7—Tanglewood On Parade, Arthur Fiedler, Boston Pops Orchestra.

Friday, August 8—Munch, Boston Symphony, Honegger Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, Beethoven Symphony No. 7 and Piano Concerto No. 5, Eugene Istomin soloist; shed at 8:30.

Saturday, August 9—Monteux, Boston Symphony, Beethoven music from "Prometheus" and Violin Concerto, Berl Senofsky soloist. Hindemith "Nobilissima Visione," Beethoven "Leoenore" Overture No. 3; shed at 8:30.

Sunday, August 10—Munch, Boston Sympohny, Walton "Johannesburg" Festival Overture, Beethoven Ninth Symphony, Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff, Donald Gramm, Festival Chorus; shed at 2:30.

For tickets and information one may inquire at the Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, phone Lenox 600.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, JUNE 29, 1958. MUSIC

SUMMER CLASSIC—TANGLEWOOD SEASON OPENS

The New York Times (by Sam Falk)

POISED FOR THE DOWNBEAT—The Boston Symphony is set for its opening concert of the Berkshire Festival season on Friday night, when it will give an all-Bach program. Tanglewood's summer season will begin with a concert of chamber music on Wednesday evening.

Dr. I. W. Schmidt

HE GIVES DOWNBEAT—Charles Munch, the festival's music director and conductor.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
Circ. D. 61,009 - S. 119,412

JUL 1 1958

"100 MEN AND A GIRL"

Doriot Anthony Dwyer, first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be the soloist in the Bach Suite No. 2 at the opening concert of the Berkshire Festival Friday at 8:30 P. M. Charles Munch will be the conductor.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS
Circ. D. 2,092,455 - S. 3,652,302

JUN 22 1958

Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival will get underway at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., July 4, with Charles Munch at the helm. The music director of the Boston Symphony will conduct 13 concerts during the six-week fete. G. Wallace Woodworth will be guest conductor, July 6, for a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 411, 971

JUL 3 1958

TANGLEWOOD STEPS OUT

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings

[64]

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

Berkshire Music Festival Opening Concert Friday

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and it will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

Munch Conducting

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the theater-concert hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach — No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major, and No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Sunday Concert

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the music shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the E Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place this Wednesday evening at 8:30 in the theater-concert hall. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance, will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 45,854

29 1958

Tanglewood Opening Events Set

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the ~~Boston Symphony~~ Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Dr. Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchesra, Dorito Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianist who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchesra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

OBSCURED TEXT

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place Wednesday at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Evening Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 149,070

JUL 1 1958

Berkshire Festival

Charles Munch and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open the annual Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, in Lenox, next weekend. All three programs will be devoted to music of Bach.

MUNCH

Dr. Munch also will open the session of the Berkshire Music Center, the school operated in conjunction with the Festival, this afternoon. In addition to the welcome spoken by the conductor, William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, and Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, will speak. The exercises will close with the customary singing of Randall Thomson's "Alleluia" by the entire student body, conducted by Hugh Ross.

Adele Addison, soprano, will give a song recital at the fourth of the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts in the Theater—Concert Hall July 23 at 8:30 p.m. Miss Addison will replace the previously announced Margaret Harshaw. The program will include Schumann's "Frauenliebe und Leben "cycle, Debussy's "Chansons de Bilitis," and works of Scarlatti, Schubert, Hindemith, Sessions, Striker, Copland and Ives.

Friday at 8:30, Theater—Concert Hall. Bach: Suites Nos. 1 in C major, 2 in B minor (Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute soloist), 3 in D major, 4 in D major.

Saturday at 8:30, Theater—Concert Hall. Bach: Klavier Concerto in D minor (Lukas Foss, piano soloist), "The Art of Fugue," arr. for strings.

Sunday, July 6, at 2:30, Music Shed. Bach: Mass in B minor, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth. Choruses: Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists: Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass.

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUN 3 0 1958

Tanglewood Season Opens This Week

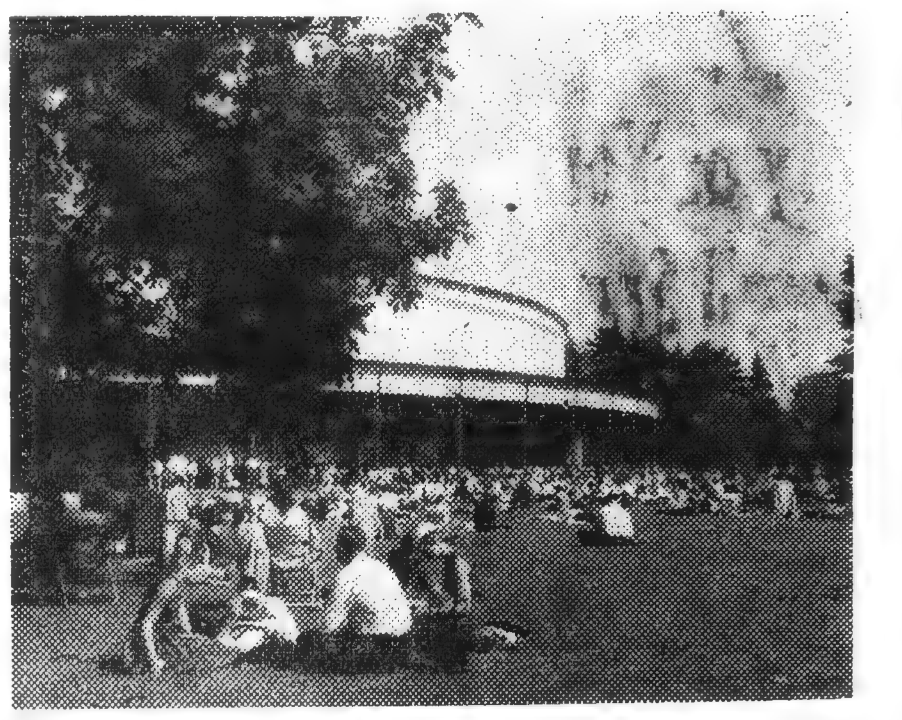
The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Dr Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchesra, Dorito Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major; No. 4 in D major.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchesra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts contralto; Blake Stern, tenor and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebratioon of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place Wednesday at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark") Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59 No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.



THE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL on the Tanglewood estate in the hills of Western Massachusetts opens its 1958 season on Wednesday. Charles Munch, directing, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will play in the Music Shed on weekends.

Boston Herald June 29, '58

Berkshire Music Center, Festival Open This Week

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of musical performance at Tanglewood, will welcome students from all over the United States and from many European countries to the school's 16th session at the Opening Exercises this afternoon.

The Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervisison of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The department of Choral Music under Hugh Ross, assisted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron and Alfred Nash Patterson, offers training in choral conducting. Aaron Copland once again heads the Composition Department assisted by Lukas Foss and Milton Babbitt, and once again this year the Fromm Music Foundation offers its special program for the study of contemporary music supervised by Mr. Copland. The Opera Department, headed by Boris Goldovsky, is this season supported by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre, assisted by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

The performance of a new English translation of Rossini's opera "Count Ory" will take place on Monday evening, Aug. 4. The Tanglewood Study Group will be directed by Ludwig Zirner, with David Kraehenbuehl and Florence Dunn and with the assistance of Vladimir Resnikoff and Einar Hansen of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in chamber music study.

Berkshire Music Center events of next week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, July 3, at 8:30; the first in the series of lectures in the Seminar on Contemporary Music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, July 4 at 3:15 (John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives); and the first Sunday morning chamber music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a.m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend these and many other activities of the school

Festival Program

The complete programs for the opening week of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts are as follows:

Wednesday, at 8:30, Budapest String Quartet
String Quartet in D major ("The Lark") Haydn
String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 Bartok
String Quartet in E minor, Op. 59 No. 2 Beethoven
Friday at 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, Conducting
Suite No. 1 in C major Bach
Suite No. 2, in B minor for Flute and Strings
(Flute Solo: Doriot Anthony Dwyer)
Suite No. 3 in D major
Suite No. 4 in D major
Saturday at 8:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, Conducting
Piano Concerto in D minor Bach
(Soloist, Lukas Foss)
The Art of Fugue (arr. for String Orchestra)
Sunday, 2:30, Boston Symphony Orchestra
G. Wallace Woodworth, Conducting
B Minor Mass Bach
(Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass; Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society).

NEW PALTZ, N. Y.
NEWS
W.

JUL 2 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday an Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C. major; No. 2 in B. minor for Flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Deoriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist) No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/6/58

Harvard and Radcliffe Singers at Tanglewood

Lenox, July 5—The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will close its first week Sunday afternoon with a performance in the Music Shed at 2.30 of Bach's mighty choral work, the B Minor Mass.

The concert will be under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, whose 150 members will make a special trip to Lenox to sing in the performance. Dr. Charles Munch invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the concert in recognition of his 25 years as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and the Glee Club's 100th anniversary.

Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

G [65]

GREENE COUNTY EXAMINER
Catskill Jun4 26, 1958

Summer Theatre Circuit

Woodstock Playhouse

First-nighters at performances at the Woodstock Playhouse this summer will be served demi-tasse before curtain time, it was announced this week by A. L. Sainer. The Playhouse opens on Tuesday, July 1, with "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," the Pulitzer Prize and Drama Critics Award winner by Tennesee Williams. Curtain time is 8:40 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday. The coffee hour Tuesday nights will start at 7:30. There is no performance Monday evenings. The Entertainer will be the second production, opening on July 8.

Phoenicia Playhouse

Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" will be the first production at the Phoenicia Playhouse, on Route 214, Chichester Road. Clinton Anderson and Marguerite Lenert will be starred in the comedy that relates the problems of an aging widower who decides to remarry. Curtain time at this theater is 8:40 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. Terrance Rattigan's "Separate Tables" will be the attraction for the second week of the season.

Ellenville Festival

The first musical comedy tent theatre in the Catskills, the Ellenville Music Theatre, located in the Shawangunk range at Ellenville, rings up the curtain on its premiere show, Frank Loesser's tuneful gem, "The Most Happy Fella," on Tuesday evening, July 1, inaugurating a season of six weeks of Broadway song and dance extravaganzas that will extend through August 10.

Following "The Most Happy Fella" will be "Brigadoon" by the authors of "My Fair Lady," (July 8-13); "Guys and Dolls," the Damon Runyon masterpiece, (July 15-20); Orson Bean in "Where's Charley?", (July 29-August 3); "Damn Yankees," August 5-10. The Empire State Music Festival takes over for the week of August 14 with a program, now being organized, that will highlight the world-famed Symphony of the Air for its fourth Ellenville season.

Each show will be seen for a week, Tuesday through Sunday evenings. The first matinee will be held on Friday, July 4. Matinees thereafter will be on Thursdays.

Malden Bridge

The Malden Bridge Playhouse on Route 66 just west of the village opened Tuesday night with Vidal's "A Visit To a Small Planet" as its first production. The barn-theatre has been enlarged and the size of its parking lot increased. Eight professionals and ten apprentices are living at the Playhouse and will appear in productions this summer.

Berkshire Playhouse

Now playing at the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, Mass., is the comedy "No Time for Sergeants." This is the opening week of the Playhouse now in its 27th season. Performances are given nightly except Sunday at 8:45 p.m. and matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30. Next week Barbar Brady and John Straub will star in the Rattigan comedy "Separate Tables," which opens Monday evening.

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

Jacob's Pillow

Ted Shawn, founder-director of Jacob's Pillow, summer "dance mecca" of the Berkshires, has announced a 55 performance schedule for the festival between July 1 and August 30. The nine program series will again feature solo artists and companies outstanding in the ballet, modern, ethnic and mime fields of dance.

The season's opening program will be presented during the coming week, July 1-5, with 9 p.m. evening performances Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and 4 p.m. matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Colonie Musical Theatre

The first of ten musical productions, Damn Yankees, opened Tuesday night at the Colonie Musical Theatre near the Latham traffic circle. It will be followed by Silk Stockings, Happy Hunting, Kiss Me Kate, The King and I, Can Can, The Student Prince, Pajama Game, Most Happy Fella and Aunti Mame. The King and I, and Most Happy Fella will have two weeks runs. Curtain times at the Musical Theatre are 8:40 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Saturday, and [illegible] p.m. on Sunday.

Sacandaga Theatre

William MacCully is the star of Show Boat the American musical classic that began a two week engagement at the Sacandaga Summer Theatre, Sacandaga Park, on Tuesday. Also appearing in the musical story of the Cotton Blossom, a floating theatre that played on midwest rivers, are Joy Marlene, Patricia White, Marilyn Bradley, Elwood Smith and Alma Lillie.

Shelley Players

The Shelley Players at New Scotland, seven miles from Albany, opened their season this week with "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" The initial offering will run through Sunday night. In addition to the Axelrod comedy, there is an exhibit of original lithographs by Helen Geradia who recently had a one-man show at the Albany Institute of History and Art.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
DAILY FREEMAN

JUN 24 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens July 4; Boston Symphony Orchestra Will Play Bach Music

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's E Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after tweny-five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place on Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre - Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

ATHENS, N. Y.
HERALD

JUL 3 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens This Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox ~~presented by~~ the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held this Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place tomorrow, Wednesday, July 2 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 when the Budapest String Quartet will be making its first Tanglewood appearance.

Berkshire Music Center events this week include a concert by the student orchestra in the Music Shed on Thursday evening, at 8:30; the first in the series of lectures in the Seminar on Contemporary Music in the Chamber Music Hall on Friday afternoon, at 3:15 (John Kirkpatrick speaks on Charles Ives); and the first Sunday morning chamber music concert by students in the Chamber Music Hall on July 6 at 10 a. m.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are cordially invited to attend these and many other activities of the School.

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUN 9 1958

Tanglewood Festival To Open July 2

This year's ~~Berkshire~~ Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts, Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

This year's Berkshire Festival Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall) July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

WALLKILL, N. Y.
VALLEY WORLD
Circ. W.

JUL 2 1958

HIGHLAND, N. Y.
MID HUDSON POST
Circ. W. 956

JUL 2 1958

Tanglewood Concerts

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and next Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday an Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C. major; No. 2 in B. minor for Flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Deoriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist) No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

CAIRO, N. Y.
HERALD
Circ. W. 415

JUL 3 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens This Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held this Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a hamber orchestra of Boston Symphny musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturay, both conducted by Charles Munch vill be held in the Theatre-Concert Iall.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will e Lukas Foss, the first of the young merican pianists who will be featurd at this year's Festival. He will ap-

INCORRECT PAGINATION

MUSIC
RADIO-TV
CLASSIFIED

Springfield Sunday Republican

MUSIC
RADIO, TV
CLASSIFIED

D SPRINGFIELD, MASS., JUNE 29, 1958 D

Berkshire Music Festival Starts 21st Season This Week

MUSIC CENTER AT TANGLEWOOD TO OPEN TODAY

Dr. Munch, W. J. Cox, Aaron Copland to Greet Students

Lenox, June 28—The 16th season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will open here tomorrow. Charles Munch, director of this summer school of musical performance, will again greet students from many parts of this country and Europe at the opening exercises. William J. Cox of Phillips Exeter Academy, Friends of the Berkshire Music Center chairman, also will speak, as will Aaron Copland, head of the faculty, members of which will be introduced.

Hugh Ross will conduct the student body in the traditional singing of Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" in bringing the program to a close.

Student Program

The Berkshire Music Center offers an integrated program of study to young musicians of advanced standing to work for six weeks in music with noted musicians. Students of orchestral conducting may have actual experience in their field under the close supervision of Eleazar de Carvalho, assisted by Seymour Lipkin.

The department of orchestral playing offers the opportunity, rarely available to students, of playing a different program each week under professional conditions. Orchestral and chamber music students are under the direction of Richard Burgin and William Kroll, with the principal players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The department of choral music under Hugh Ross, assisted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron and Alfred Nash Patterson, offers training in choral conducting as well as performance of a large variety of choral literature and performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Brahms' "Requiem" and Beethoven's ninth symphony. Aaron Copland once again heads the composition department, assisted by Lukas Foss and Milton Babbitt, and once again this year the Fromm Music Foundation offers its special program for the study

(Continued On Page 2D)

To Perform This Week in Concerts at Tanglewood

DORIOT ANTHONY DWYER

DR. CHARLES MUNCH

LUKAS FOSS

First Concert Due Today at Falls Village

Falls Village, Conn., June 28—The Berkshire Quartet will present the first concert of the 29th season at Music Mountain here tomorrow at 4 p. m., with Keith Wilson, clarinetist, as assisting artist. The program will include the Quartet in C major, by Mendelssohn.

The Berkshire Quartet recently returned to the United States following a successful stay in Lebanon, teaching at the National Conservatory of Music in Beirut and playing concerts in Lebanon, and other countries of the Middle East. Members of the Berkshire Quartet are Urico Rossi, first violin; Albert Lazan, second violin; David Dawson, viola; and Fritz Magg, cello.

Keith Wilson, who will be the assisting artist in the Mozart clarinet quintet, teaches at the Yale School of Music and this summer is acting as director of the Norfolk Music School, Norfolk, Conn., where Yale maintains a summer music school.

Chamber music concerts will be presented at Music Mountain every Sunday at 4 from tomorrow through Aug. 31. Assisting artists will include Benny Goodman clarinetist; Richard Dyer-Bennet folk singer; and Frank Glazer, pianist.

'MOST HAPPY FELLA' ELLENVILLE OPENER

New York, June 28—The first musical comedy tent theater in the Shawangunk range at Ellenville, N. Y., rings up the curtain on its premiere show, Frank Loesser's tuneful gem, "The Most Happy Fella," on Tuesday evening, July 1, inaiugurating a season of six weeks of Broadway song and dance extravaganzas that will extend through Aug. 10. Opera baritone Norman Atkins heads a cast of 60 principals, singers, dancers and an augmented orchestra.

Gov. Averell Harriman, Edward T. Dickinson, commissioner of commerce of New York state, and other dignitaries, including mayors and prominent officials of the neighboring communities, hae been invited to the premiere performance.

Following "The Most Happy Fella" will be "Brigadoon" by the authors of "My Fair Lady," (July 8-13); "Guys and Dolls," the Damon Runyon masterpiece, (July 15-20); Orson Bean in "Where's Charley?", (July 22-27); the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic, "Carousel, (July 29-Aug. 3); "Damn Yankees," Aug. 5-10. The Empire State Music Festival takes over for the week of Aug. 14 with a program highlighting the Symphony of the Air for its fourth Ellenville season.

Nadia Boulanger, Honored By Smith, Famed Teacher

Aaron Copland Recalls First Meeting With Her At Fontainebleau; Others Her Pupils

By IRVING KOLODIN

New York, June 28—In this season of honorary degrees, few were more genuinely merited than the one bestowed on Nadia Boulanger by Smith College at Northampton, Mass. A composer of distinction herself, Mme. Boulanger has influenced a whole generation of musicians, particularly American ones, by her work at the Ecole Normale in Paris and, during the summer, at the American Conservatory in Fontainebleau.

One of the first to come under her influence was Aaron Copland, who was a youth of 21 when he enrolled at Fontainebleau for its first season in 1921. Copland has written about his experience thus: "Before the summer was very far advanced, rumors began to circulate at the school of a brilliant harmony teacher, a certain Nadia Boulanger. This news naturally had little interest for me, since I had long since finished my harmony studies.

NADIA BOULANGER

"It took a considerable amount of persuasion on the part of a fellow student before I consented to 'look in' on Mme. Boulanger's class . . . I had never before witnessed such enthusiasm and such clarity in teaching. I immediately suspected I had found my teacher."

Not only Copland (who went to France for one year and stayed for three) but a whole coterie of American composers, from Walter Piston to David Diamond and Harold Shapero, found Mme. Boulanger the mentor who meant the most to them. Indeed there could have been no more prophetic gesture of belief in an American music to come than she made herself when she was invited to visit America in 1924 as organ soloist (one of her assorted "specialties") with several symphony orchestras.

New Concerto

She asked the then utterly unknown, unperformed Copland to write a concerto for her to play, and thus introduced to his own countrymen the composer whom many now regard the first authentic voice of American concert-hall music.

Fortunately, her work was not interrupted during the war years, which she spent in America, lecturing and teaching (primarily at Harvard, where her erstwhile pupil Piston is professor of music). On her return to France and the Paris Conservatory, she plunged into the mainstream of European musical life again, this time asserting an influence on a young Rumanian who many thought would be a great composer but only lived long enough to make his name as an outstanding pianist—Dinu Lipatti. Many of the musical precepts which manifest themselves in his great piano recordings may be traced to Mme. Boulanger's influence.

Smith Citation

In awarding her the degree of D.F.A. (Doctor of Fine Arts), President Benjamin F. Wright of Smith College cited her as: "A great musician and a great lady, who is also the foremost teacher of musicians in this century, and the list of her former students includes many of our ablest composers. She inspires those who come to learn from her to the fullest realization of their creative powers by imbuing them with her respect for the discipline and mastery of a craft, with her reverence in the presence of great music, and with the strength and grace of her mind and spirit."

Now gathering in Fontainebleau for another summer of study at the American Conservatory, of which Mme. Boulanger is now director, is another group of Americans who may include leaders of our musical future. They could hardly have a more capable or invigorating doyen than this great lady who has been living music almost every one of the 71 years she will celebrate on Sept. 16.

Carillon Recital At Trinity Church On Tuesday Night

The summer carillon recital series at Trinity Methodist Church will open on Tuesday at 7,30 p. m. with a concert by Kamiel Lefevere, the internationally famous carillonneur of Riverside Church, New York City. The public is cordially invited to attend this program. Seats will be placed around the church property away from street noises. The program:

Trumpet Piece and Air in D	Purcell
Bless This House	Brahe
Prelude in C minor, Op. 28, No 20	Chopin
Menuet and Trio from the Symphonie in E flat	Mozart
The Last Spring	Grieg
Intermezzo, for Carillon	Lefevere
Allegro Vivace from the Sonata in G (1700-1775)	Sammartini
The Lord' Prayer	Malotte
Solveig's Song from the "Peer Gynt Suite"	Grieg
My Country, 'Tis of Thee	Carey
The Star Spangled Banner	National Anthem

CHAMBER MUSIC AT CUMMINGTON

Roberta Cowell, soprano, Prescott Burrows, pianist, and Dr. Nathan Gottschalk will be heard in a concert of chamber music at the Cummington School of the Arts this afternoon, at 4. No tickets are required but an offering will be taken for the benefit of the Cummington Congregational church. The program:

I
Aria di Poppea (Agrippina)	Handel
L'amero saro costante	Mozart
Un moto di Gioja	Mozart
II
Green (Ariettes Oubliees)	Debussy
L'invitation au voyage	Duparc
Nell	Faure
La Chanson de L'Alouette	Lalo
III
Sonata	Scarlatti
Allemande and Gigue	Bach
Fantasy	Chopin
INTERMISSION
IV
Sonata in B flat, K.378 Allegro moderato Andantino sostenuto e cantabile Allegro	Mozart
V
Loveliest of Trees	Duke
Morning in Paris	Duke
I Hate Music	Bernstein

Dulles at Ballet

New York, June 28—The Moiseyev Dance company from Moscow reached Washington recently en route from the West Coast back to New York and Madison Square Garden, and had the honor—somewhat belatedly—of a visit from a high government official. This was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who commented on the quality of the group effort and said they must be happoy because they do what they do so well. How this sounded in Russian, nobody could say.

Music of Bach Features Openings for Tanglewood

Boston Symphony Chamber Orchestra Performs Friday, Saturday and Next Sunday; Budapest String Quartet Plays Wednesday

This is opening week of the 21st Berkshire Musical Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox. The season's calendar of events extends from Wednesday, July 2, through Sunday, Aug. 10, with the entire Festival under the supervision of Dr. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On Wednesday night at 8.30, in the Theater-Concert Hall, the Budapest String Quartet will be making its first Tanglewood appearance and will be heard in compositions by Hadyn, Bartok and Beethoven. On Friday night at 8.30, Dr. Munch will conduct the chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians in a Bach program, and on Saturday at 8.30 p. m. there will be a performance of the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor, with Lukas Foss as the soloist. Both the Friday and Saturday concerts will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Bach B Minor Mass

One week from this afternoon, in the Music Shed, at 2.30, G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Budapest String Quartet

In the opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series (Wednesday, July 2) the Budapest String Quartet will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"), Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

The concerts of both Friday and Saturday will be conducted by Charles Munch. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach, No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Lukas Foss, soloist at the Saturday concert, is the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center. The remainder of the Saturday night program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Harvard, Radcliffe Singers

The Harvard Glee Club, which will be heard with the Radcliffe Choral Society in the Bach B Minor Mass next Sunday, has appeared in more than 100 performances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its conductors—Karl Muck, Pierre Monteux, Serge Koussevitzky and Charles Munch. It has sung innumerable performances of the great masterpieces of choral literature. With Dr. Munch, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society have performed and recorded for RCA Victor the Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Damnation of Faust."

On the occasion of the 100th performance of the joint choruses with the Boston Symphony (in Carnegie Hall on March 9, 1955), Dr. Munch said: "I have conducted choruses in many parts of the world, but never with the pleasure that I find in working with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. They are young, intelligent and, above all, enthusiastic. From their remarkable conductor, G. Wallace Woodworth, they have learned to love music and to love to sing. I am proud to conduct their 100th concert with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It is a joy to make music with them."

In recognition of his 25 years of devoted service to the Harvard Glee Club, Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct the performance of Bach's B Minor Mass at Tanglewood one week from this afternoon. Mr. Woodworth this spring announced his retirement as conductor of the Harvard and Radcliffe groups. After a sabbatical year, he will continue his teaching as James Edward Ditson Professor of Music at Harvard University.

Complete programs for July 2, 4, 5 and 6 are as follows:

Wednesday, July 2, 8.30 p. m. Chamber Music Budapest String Quartet.

Haydn, String Quartet in D major ("The Lark").

Bartok, String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7.

Beethoven, String Quartet in E minor, Op. 59 No. 2.

Friday July 4, 8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting.

Bach, Suite No. 1 in C major. Suite No. 2, in B minor for Flute and Strings. (Flute Solo: Doriot Anthony Dwyer). Suite No. 3, in D major. Suite No. 4, in D major.

Saturday, July 5, 8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, cunducting.

Bach, Piano Concerto in D minor. (Soloist, Lukas Foss). The Art of Fugue (arr. for String Orchestra).

Sunday, July 6, 2.30 p. m. Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, G. Wallace Woodworth, conducting.

Bach, B Minor Mass. (Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass; Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society).

Tanglewood Topics

Lenox, June 28—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, arrived at Idlewild International Airport yesterday morning after a vacation in Paris and several successful guest conducting appearances in his birthplace Strasbourg and in Lyons, France. Dr. Munch assumes his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood tomorrow when he will welcome the student body at the school's opening exercises. He will conduct 14 concerts of this summer's Berkshire Festival.

Aaron Copland, chairman of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, has just returned from conducting the Ojai, Calif., Festival. He will be active this summer directing the Composition Department of the school and will also be in charge of a special program for study and performance of contemporary music.

Members of the Berkshire Music Center, Lukas Foss, Eleazar de Carvalho, and Hugh Ross, all recent fathers, have arrived with their families from their respective homes in California, Brazil and New York for another Tanglewood summer. Hugh Ross has recently acquired a new post as director of the National Chorus of America. Eleazar de Carvalho has been conducting concerts with the Brazil Orchestra.

New faculty members of the school include David Kraehenbuel, flutist, pianist, conductor and member of the faculty of th Yale School of Music, who will be connected with the Tanglewood Study Group, and Albert Bernard, violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will give classes in solfege. There are 23 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on this year's Berkshire Music Center faculty.

An unusual job is filled each year during the Tanglewood season by Armando Maida. He is a tuner for the Baldwin Piano Co. and each each summer he spends six weeks at Tanglewood taking care of the almost 70 pianos, supplied to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. These pianos, ranging in size from the tiny student practice pianos to full size concert grands, arrive on trucks just before the start of the season and are distributed around the Tanglewood grounds—at the Music Shed and in the Theater—for performance and rehearsal purposes, in the Chamber Music Hall and Berkshire Music Center headquarters for classes and practice and to the home of faculty members and staff for the Berkshire Festival and Music Center. Mr. Maida must see that these many pianos are in top working order throughout a busy summer.

About 150 singers from the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society will journey to Tanglewood from Boston, New York, Philadelphia to perform Bach's B-Minor Mass with the Boston Symphony on Sunday afternoon, July 6. The concert will be their last under their regular conductor G. Wallace Woodworth, who retired at the close of the college year. The opportunity to sing once more with their beloved "Woody" brings many of the singers from distant points. They will be housed and fed by the orchestra at Tanglewood and in adition to the July 6 Festival concert, will present a program of choral direction at the Chamber Music Hall Tanglewood on Saturday July 5, at 3 p. m.

Dorothy R. Malone of Longmeadow will be a student in the Orchestral and Chamber Music Department of the Berkshire Music Center. Miss Malone is a cellist.

Alexander Schneider, second violinist of the Budapest String Quartet which makes its first Tanglewood appearance next Wednesday evening, has just returned from Puerto Rico where he performed in the famous Casals Festival. Mr. Schneider is a director of the Fromm Music Foundation which this summer presents a special program of contemporary music study at Tanglewood.

Another Season of Shed Concerts About to Begin

The Berkshire Festival on the Tanglewood estate in Lenox opens its 1958 season Wednesday and runs through Aug. 10. The first concert in the Shed pictured here takes place one week from this afternoon with a performance of the Bach B Minor Mass. Programs in the Theater-Concert Hall this week are scheduled for Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights.

ARTICLE PEELED AWAY

[67]

Tanglewood Series Opens This Week

The month of July brings heat and humidity to the New England countryside, ordinarily, but it also brings dividends of a more cultural nature to the many thousands of music lovers throughout the northeastern states, and sometimes far beyond this area, who journey to Tanglewood, at Lenox, Mass., to hear the Berkshire Fesfamed Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Charles Munch and guest conductors. The extensive and beautiful grounds of Tanglewood are well - suited to their purpose, and every fine weekend will produce crowds of concert-goers who not only sit in the huge music shed or in the Theater Concert Hall to hear the performances, but spread blankets on the spacious lawn to listen to the music in the bright Berkshire sunshine, while taking in the magnificent scenery around this musical showplace.

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held next Friday and Saturday, at 8:30 and Sunday at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

Bach Suites

The concerts on Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Lukas Foss Featured

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

B Minor Mass

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contarlto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after twenty - five years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Wednesday Concert Series

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., were announced as follows by the Boston Symphony Orchestra:

The opening concert on July 2 featured the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-Flat Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op.. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw,

TOWN TIMES (WATERTOWN, CONN.), JULY 3, 1958 — PAGE 7

soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and August 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 4656, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On August 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,675

JUN 28 1958

Howard S. [illegible] Jr. [illegible]

The Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in the Berkshires of Massachusetts, where chamber music concerts are presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and other groups in an annual festival which this year opens Wednesday, July 2, and runs until Sunday, Aug. 10.

WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN
Circ. D. 22,452 - S. 44,706

JUN 29 1958

Tanglewood Opening Events Set

The opening concerts of the Berkshire~~ Festival at~~ Tanglewood~~, Lenox,~~ Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Dr. Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchesra, Dorito Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major; No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianist who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed.

G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebratioon of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place Wednesday at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

WATERBURY, CONN.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 40,107

JUN 30 1958

Tanglewood Season Opens This Week

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, ~~Lenox~~, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Dr. Munch, will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach: No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchesra, Dorito Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major; No. 4 in D major.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed.

G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony~~ Orchestra in a~~ performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the ~~Harvard Glee Club~~, to conduct this concert in celebratioon of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place Wednesday at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. The Budapest ~~String Quartet~~, making its first Tanglewood appearance will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Karsh, Ottawa

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, returns to Tanglewood this week, where he will take up his duties as director of the Berkshire Music Festival.

ARTICLE PEELED AWAY

fe.
July 1-Ap
in [68]

B. Eagle - July 3

BSO Opens Festival Season With Three Weekend Concerts

Lukas Foss

G. Wallace Woodworth

TANGLEWOOD—The Berkshire Festival got under way last night with the first of the Wednesday evening chamber concerts attended by a crowd of about 1,300 in the theater concert hall, featuring the Budapest String Quartet.

The weekend will open the Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with two concerts in the theater concert hall and one in the Music Shed.

Tomorrow and Saturday nights at 8:30, Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the BSO. Tomorrow the orchestra will perform the four suites of Bach No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings, with the BSO flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer as soloist; No. 3 in D major and No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured in this year's Festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center here. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Shed Concert Sunday

The scene of the concerts will shift Sunday afternoon at 2:30 to the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the BSO in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversity. This will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday morning at 10 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The first in the series of lectures in the seminar in contemporary music at Tanglewood will take place tomorrow at 3:15 in the chamber music hall. John Kirkpatrick will speak on the music of Charles Ives and the musical program will include six songs, Emerson from the Concord Sonata, and the String Quartet No. 2, all performed by holders of Fromm Fellowships at the Berkshire Music Center.

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 17,740

JUN 28 1958

Next Week to Usher in Summer Festival Season

Next week is opening week for many of the summer attractions, music and dance festivals, summer theaters and art exhibitions which take to the open fields and hills each year once summer has stepped over the threshold.

The most famous of these, the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will hold its opening concerts next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, when the Boston Symphony Orchestra, directed by Charles Munch will present programs devoted to the music of Bach. Evening programs Friday and Saturday are scheduled for 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Soloist at Saturday night's concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured in this year's festival. He will perform the Bach Concerto in D minor. Four Bach Suites with Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute soloist, will constitute the Friday program. Sunday afternoon's program will consist of Bach's B Minor Mass, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, with soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, and the Harvard Glee club and Radcliff Choral Society.

Berkshire Quartet

The Berkshire Quartet inaugurates its summer season of Sunday afternoon chamber music concerts at Music Mountain, Falls Village, tomorrow. Keith Wilson, clarinetist, will be the assisting artist at this opening concert which is scheduled for 4 o'clock. The concerts will be presented every Sunday afternoon throughout the summer concluding August 31.

Jacob's Pillow

With evening performances next Tuesday and Wednesday and a matinee on Thursday, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival opens its 26th season at Lee, Mass. Founder-director Ted Shawn has announced a 55-performance schedule for the season which ends August 30. Featured performers for the opening week's program will be Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky in selections from the classic ballet repertoire; Pauline Koner, modern dancer with her company in group works; and Shrimathi Gina, a leading American exponent of the dance arts in India.

Rye Tent Theatre

"Fledermaus" opens at the Rye Music Theatre, Rye, N.Y., on Tuesday with Ralph Herbert, a leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, playing the role of Eisenstein and Nancy Kenyon as Rosalinda. The ever-popular Johann Strauss operetta will hold forth for one week at Phil Moloney's Westchester ten theater.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

JUL 2 1958

Tanglewood Opens 1958 Season Friday

Three Week-end Concerts to Be Devoted to Bach

Chamber Orchestra of Boston Symphony Will Perform.—Lukas Foss, Young American Pianist, Will Be Featured Saturday.—Harvard and Radcliffe Singers.

The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Mr. Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist); No. 3 in D major, and No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for string orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th anniversary, and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10:00 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension plan.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place tonight in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance, will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D. major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists; Boris Kroyt, viola; and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 4,988

Tanglewood Concerts To Begin Friday

LENOX, Mass. — The opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, will be held Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5 at 8:30 and Sunday, July 6 at 2:30. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre - Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach No. 1 in C major, No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings (in this work the popular first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concerts will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's Fetival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted, composer, is a member of the Composition Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will appear in Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30 will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the Glee Club's 100th Anniversary and this will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series took place last night, July 2 in the Theatre - Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance was heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are: Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

OBSCURED TEXT

[69]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 6 1958

Boston Symphony Divided Between Home, Tanglewood

By FRANCIS D. PERKINS

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is divided during the first fortnight of July. Thirty-five of its musicians are playing in the Bach-Mozart programs at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., while the other seventy are appearing under Arthur Fiedler's direction in Boston's outdoor Esplanade concerts, which complete their second week on Friday. The orchestra will be reunited next week for the Berkshire Festival's principal series. After its close, the Esplanade contingent returns to Boston for another Esplanade week, Aug. 11 to 16.

G. Wallace Woodworth will make his last appearance as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society at Tanglewood this afternoon, since he is retiring from his longtime leadership of these notable student groups. He will continue, however, in his Harvard professorship of music.

G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct Bach's Mass in B minor this afternoon at Tanglewood.

* * *

Fiftieth Anniversaries

Two of the current week's soloists at the Lewisohn Stadium, Benno Moiseiwitch and Mischa Elman, are celebrating golden jubilees this year, which marks the fiftieth anniversity of the pianist's professional debut and of the violinist's first concert in this country. Mr. Moiseiwitch's appearance tomorrow will be his first in an American popular-priced outdoor summer series. The Rachmaninoff program in which he takes part will commemorate the fifteenth anniversary of the composer's death (April 28, 1943).

* * *

Philadelphians Return

The New York Philharmonic's musicians had a week between their return from their Latin-American travels and the opening of the Stadium season, but most of the Philadelphia Orchestra's members will play in that city's Robin Hood Dell concerts tomorrow, one day after their return from Europe. They were scheduled to leave Brussels last night after their extra World's Fair concert with Van Cliburn as soloist and land in Philadelphia this morning.

Pierre Monteux will conduct this week's three Dell concerts, and Alfred Wallenstein, Josef Krips and Erich Leinsdorf will be in charge for the remaining three weeks. Most of the members of the Cleveland Orchestra, which gave the season's first six Dell concerts, will play in Cleveland's fifteen summer Pop concerts which begin this Wednesday.

In commenting upon the enthusiasm and intelligence of the Philadelphians' audience in Russia, Romania and Poland, Eugene Ormandy noted that listeners indicated a demand for encores by rhythmic clapping of hands and stamping of feet while shouting "Bis, bis." In the United States, rhythmic clapping is a well known method of demonstration by baseball fans, although it is unusual in our concert halls.

* * *

In New England

The Contemporary Chamber Music Ensemble, which has been active for several summers in Provincetown, Mass., will open a series of six concerts there at the Art Association this Saturday. The other dates are July 19 and Aug. 4, 9, 16 and 30, with programs including both modern music and seldom heard earlier works.

In Lenox, at the other end of Massachusetts, the Berkshire Music Barn is holding its annual jazz and folk music series, with Duke Ellington and his ensemble scheduled for tonight and a West Indian program for Thursday.

In Connecticut, the Norfolk Music School of Yale University offers chamber music on Wednesday afternoons. Chamber music will also be heard in Yale's Art Gallery in New Haven on Tuesday nights, July 15 and 29 and Aug. 12. Wilfred Pelletier will conduct the Connecticut Symphony's first Pop concert of the summer at Fairfield University Friday night, with Licia Albanese as soloist. Farther north, Louis Armstrong and his musicians will give a jazz concert tomorrow night at the Southern Vermont Art Center in Manchester.

* * *

Sibelius Broadcast

Jean Sibelius' early "Kullervo" Symphony, for orchestra and chorus, will have its first radio hearing here at 3 p. m. Sunday, July 20, in the CBS World Music Festivals series, as performed by the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra under the direction of the composer's son-in-law, Jussi Jalas. After its first hearing in 1892, Sibelius forbade further performances of the work, which he considered immature, and the score has never been published. A remark, "When you give my 'Kullervo' Symphony," made to Mr. Jalas shortly before the composer's death last year, indicated that Sibelius had withdrawn his ban.

GREENFIELD RECORDER GAZETTE 6/28 58

Around The Clock

Something For Everyone Tanglewood's Formula

By WAYNE A. SMITH

Tanglewood promises to retain its popularity as it moves this year into its third decade. There will be something for everyone and just about everyone will be there for it.

Attendance since World War II has soared to heights undreamed. And with few exceptions they have continued to surpass the year before. Upward of 10,000 is no novelty for one single concert. Sometimes there have been even more.

Such support must be deserved. There are few occasions like it in this country; few, in fact anywhere in the world. Other festivals court wider interests and therefore get greater patronage. But Tanglewood is strictly music on a very high plane. Its basic character is orchestral with an occasional bow to a chorus and sometimes opera.

Munch Guiding Spirit

The man currently behind and in front of the scenes is Dr. Charles Munch, who succeeded Director Serge Koussevitsky several years ago as conductor of Boston Symphony Orchestra. Upon him rests much of the responsibility for success or failure at Tanglewood.

Dr. Munch is a dynamic personality with a touch of Gallic to add spice and zest. His programs reflect this bit of tang.

For the forthcoming season, which will consist of six week-ends, the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists. Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux familiarly known as "Papa", again will share the podium.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D Major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A Minor, Op. 7; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E Minor, Op. 59 No. 2. The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, on July 16. On July 23 Adele Addison, soprano, will present a program of songs and on July 30 and Aug. 6 the Kroll Quartet will play.

During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the theater-concert hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D-Minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D Minor, K. 466 by Moz[illegible] Sunday afternoon, July 1[illegible]

All-Star Lineup

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be in the Music Shed, Foss and Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's two-piano Concerto in E-flat. During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D-minor; Byron Janis, performing Bachmininoff's Piano Concerto No. 3, on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week-end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 4, the "Emperor", will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tschaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde", and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B-Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed.

G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Harvard Glee Club which this year is noting its 100th anniversary, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Gramm also will be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera and the festival chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

Final Concert Aug. 10

The chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert on Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the theater-concert hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six week-ends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: Bach, suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusic", "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4, by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe", Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger", Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

During this past winter Charles Munch fulfilled a long-standing promise to conduct concerts of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra. During his stay in Israel he directed five concerts in the newly built Frederic R. Mann Auditorium in Tel Aviv, one in Haifa and one in Jerusalem. On his return he spoke at Symphony Hall, Boston, on some of his impressions of the trip.

Recently he completed a series of guest conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth, before returning to this country this week to take up his duties at Tanglewood where he will conduct 13 of the festival concerts. A special performance of Bach's D Minor Mass, July 6, will be directed by G. Wallace Woodworth. Hugh Ross will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 1 and 9.

Bach, composer of "Passacaglia" and other musical classics, began as a Lutheran church organist.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
UNION-STAR
Circ. D. 36,678

JUN 28 1958

Tanglewood To Open With String Concert

LENOX, Mass., June 28—The first event of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will be a concert by the Budapest String Quartet Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The program will include Haydn's "String Quartet in D Major (The Lark)," Bartok's "Quartet No. 1 in A Minor, Op. 7" and Beethoven's "Quartet in E Minor, Op. 59, No. 2."

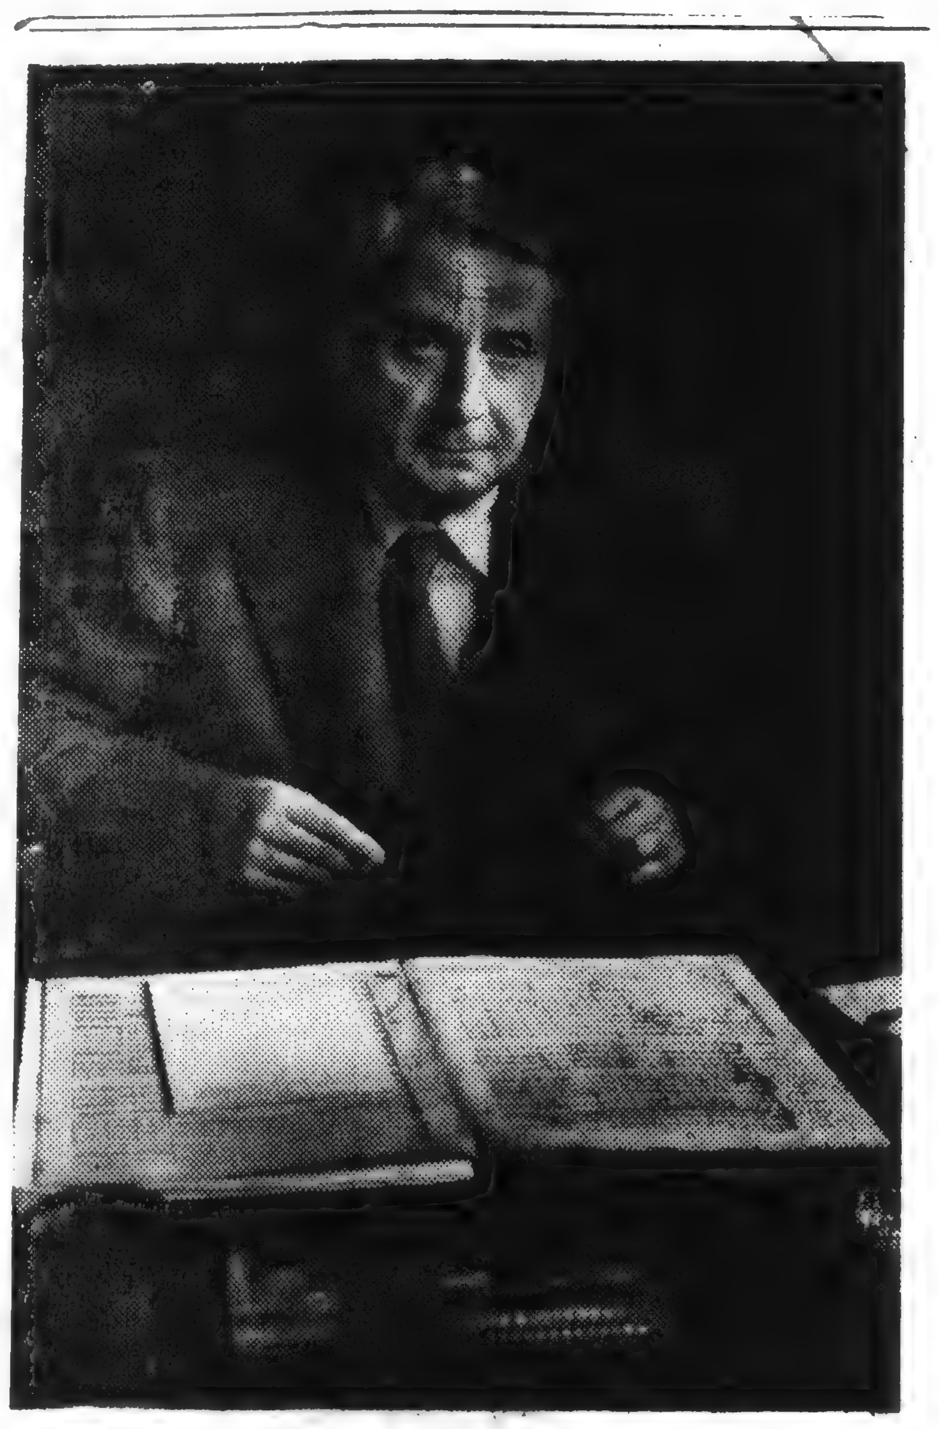
A chamber orchestra made up of players from the Boston Symphony Orchestra will give the first of three Bach concerts Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall when Charles Munch will conduct the group in Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

The second Bach concert, also conducted by Munch, will present Lukas Foss as soloist in the "Piano Concerto in D Minor" Saturday, July 5, at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall. The remainder of the concert will be devoted to "Art of Fugue," arranged for string orchestra.

G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct the third Bach program Sunday, July 6, at 2:30 p.m. at the Shed. The program will consist of the "B Minor Mass" with the two college groups and the Boston Symphony Orchestra assisted by soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

Woodworth was invited by Munch to conduct this concert in celebration of the Harvard Glee Club's 100th anniversary.

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613
JUN 29 1958



CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra and music director of the Berkshire festival in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Music Festival to Open Wednesday at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music festival of the Boston Symphony orchestra at Tanglewood, a 200-acre estate in Lenox, Mass., opens Wednesday and continues through Aug. 10.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, is music director and will have as guest conductors Pierre Monteux, G. Wallace Woodworth and High Ross.

Among the soloists will be violinists Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky and Ruth Posselt; violist, Joseph de Pasquale; pianists, Leon Fleisher, Eugene Istomin, Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis and Leonard Pennario playing concertos of Bach, Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Brahms, Beethoven and Liszt.

Arthur Fiedler To Conduct

Singers will include Margaret Harshaw and Hilde Gueden, sopranos, Donald Gramm, bass.

A feature will be Tanglewood on Parade, Thursday, Aug. 7, when Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Boston Pops orchestra.

The festival officially opens Friday with three nights of Bach. A chamber music concert, however, will precede Wednesday when the Budapest String quartet will play Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven.

Dr. Munch will conduct the Bach Suites 1, 2, 3 and 4 Friday night. On Saturday he will conduct Bach Piano Concerto in D Minor with Lukas Foss as soloist. The Bach B Minor Mass will be presented Sunday at 2:30 p.m. by the Harvard Glee club and Radcliffe Choral society with Mr. Woodworth, conductor.

The following Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 11-13, will be devoted to Mozart; Aug. 1-3 to Wagner, and Aug. 8-10, Beethoven.

6 Chamber Concerts

There will be six Chamber music concerts on Wednesday nights.

In conjunction with the festival is the Music Center, a summer school of young musicians. This is operated under the direction of Dr. Munch and composer Aaron Copeland. The center's orchestra plays each Thursday with the exception of Aug. 7.

This is the 21st season of the Berkshire festival which last year was attended by 162,936 music lovers from all over the world.

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 183,539
JUN 29 1958

G. Wallace Woodworth retires as conductor of Harvard Glee Club after leading it in concert with Radcliffe Choral Society and Boston Symphony at Tanglewood July 6.

Boston Symphony Opening Set For Tanglewood Next Friday

THE opening concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, will be held next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. All three concerts will be devoted to the music of Bach and will be performed by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians.

The concerts of Friday and Saturday, both conducted by Charles Munch, will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall. On Friday evening, Dr. Munch will perform the four suites of Bach. No. 1 in C major; No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings (in this work the first flutist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, will appear as soloist), No. 3 in D major, No. 4 in D major.

Soloist at the Saturday concert will be Lukas Foss, the first of the young American pianists who will be featured at this year's festival. In addition to his appearances as piano soloist, Mr. Foss, a noted composer, is a member of the composition department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. He will play Bach's Piano Concerto in D minor. The remainder of the program will be devoted to Bach's Art of Fugue, arranged for String Orchestra.

Sunday afternoon's concert will be held in the Music Shed. G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will conduct these two groups with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Soloists will include Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch has invited Mr. Woodworth, who this spring announced his retirement after 25 years as regular conductor of the Harvard Glee Club, to conduct this concert in celebration of the glee club's 100th anniversary. This will be his final concert with the two groups.

The final rehearsal for the B Minor Mass Saturday morning at 10 in the Music Shed will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The opening concert of the Wednesday evening chamber music series will take place this Wednesday in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30. The Budapest String Quartet, making its first Tanglewood appearance, will be heard in Haydn's String Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's String Quartet No. 1 in A Minor, Op. 7 and Beethoven's Quartet in E Minor, Op. 59, No. 2. Members of the Budapest String Quartet are Joseph Roisman and Alexander Schneider, violinists, Boris Kroyt, viola, and Mischa Schneider, violoncello.

[71]

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 29 1958

Second Thoughts On Music

Schubert Mass in G Sung By Trinity Church Choir

Melodious Choral Work, With Soloists, Directed by Prescott Barrows; Bonnie Davis Heard in Song Recital at Local Conservatory of Music

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Last Sunday Choir Sunday at Trinity Methodist Church and Prescott Barrows, minister of music, provided a splendid musical service with Schubert's "Mass in G" as the feature. Listening to a choral work performed under Mr. Barrows' direction, certain characteristics stand out. For example, one hears exceptional clarity of enunciation, adherence to pitch, and notes the exactness of attacks and releases. Fine sonorities are available when needed and pianissimi are really pianissimi.

Depth of Feeling

The Mass is a lovely work, perfectly proportioned and melodious. The Gloria is particularly exciting and there is an amazing depth of feeling in the Agnus Dei. The soloists were Betty-Ann Falconer, soprano; Gilbert Vickers, tenor, substituting for the ailing James Scott, and Edouard Beauvais. As always, Mrs. Falconer was a joy to hear, for the voice seems to grow more beautiful each year.

The musical service opened with one of the loveliest of the Bach solo cantatas sung by Calliope Shenas, contralto. Cantata No. 53, "Schlage doch, gewunschte Stunde" employs a glockenspiel which was played by Georgia Sue Reuter. Mrs. Shenas sang the work with thorough understanding of the text and with fine appreciation of its style. The voice was warm and many-hued and projected with skill.

Mr. Barrows conducted from the organ and he also played as an organ prelude, Bach's prelude and Fugue in C minor, and an organ prelude, Bach's prelude and Fugue in C minor, and was played by Leroy Hanson, minister of music of Hope Congregational Church.

Bonnie Davis Sings

This is the time of student recitals, those affairs attended by parents, relatives and close friends. We were fortunate in hearing Bonnie Lynn Davis, soprano, in a full lingth recital. Miss Davis studies with Carolyn Dexter Locke of the Springfield Conservatory of Music. She was accompanied by its director, Mrs. Marion Jensen. A graduate of Classical High School, Miss Davis plans to study music education at the Hartt College of Music in Hartford.

Although her voice is not large, it has remarkable purity and she has been taught to project it effectively. Her enunciation of several languages was excellent. She seems to have an affinity for the French song literature and sang with considerable charm Wekerlin's "Maman, Dites Moi" and "Minuet." In a group of songs by Schubert and Grieg, she provided effective interpretations of "Haiden-Roslein," "Im Kahne and "My Johann." It all added up to a very pleasant recital.

Quite by chance, we stopped at the Springfield Conservatory of Music while a recital by little tots was going on. The youngest pianist was, we believe, all of four years old. It was an amazing demonstration of what can be accomplished working with these youngsters. Utterly uninhibited, each played as if life depended on it. If the going got too tough, the youngsters would start all over again and keep on to the end.

Through it all, one noted regard for rhythms which seldom faltered. Best of all, these little folk were enjoying what they were doing. A love of music had been given them by their teacher and their response to it was evident in their playing.

Tanglewood Notes

For the next six weeks, we shall be in Lenox, attending the Tanglewood concerts. The chamber music concerts open Wednesday night with a concert by the Budapest String Quartet. It will mark the first visit of this distinguished quartet to Tanglewood. Friday night and Saturday night performances will be devoted to the works of Bach, Charles Munch conducting. Sunday afternoon Bach's B-Minor Mass will be sung by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth. This will be his last concert with these groups, as he has retired from Harvard. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor and Donald Gramm, bass.

It has been announced that Adele Addison will give a song recital in the Music Shed, the evening of July 23. She is giving her services and proceeds will go to the orchestra's pension fund.

(Continued On Page 2P)

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 5 – 1958

Bach-Mozart Series Of Music Festival Opens Before 1,500

An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUN 25 1958

TANGLEWOOD OPENING SET FOR JULY 2

Boston Symphony Again To Host Berkshire Music Festival

The 21st Berkshire Music Festival will begin July 2 at Tanglewood in Lenox, the homestead of Berkshire County's celebrated world of arts-in-the-summertime.

Will Play Host

Dr. Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra again will play host for the six weeks of symphonic, chamber, choral and operatic music that last year drew a record 163,000 spectators.

Springfield-born Adele Addison will be one of four famous vocalists in the season's first Sunday concert at Tanglewood's Music Shed on July 6. They will sing the Bach B Minor Mass, backed by the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

The Music Shed, designed by the Finnish architect Eliel Saarinen and acoustics engineer Richard D. Fay of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, seats about 6000. Thousands more have listened each year from the lawn outside.

With Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux at the podium, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will present concerts Saturday nights at 8.30 from July 5 to Aug. 9 and Sunday afternoons at 2.30 through Aug. 10, the closing performance.

The two also will lead chamber and symphonic selections at the shed and the Tanglewood Theater every Friday evening at 8.30 from July 4 to Aug. 10.

Miss Addison will give a song recital Wednesday night, July 23, at the theater, as part of a Wednesday night series of chamber music, open to the public.

Other Performances

Other performances, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, will be open only to Friends of the Festival. They will include a series of Thursday night concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, made up of young musicians studying in the center's six-week course.

On the final Thursday, Aug. 7, however, Arthur Fiedler will lead the Boston Pops Orchestra in one of Tanglewood's most popular public features, "Tanglewood on Parade."

Soloists at the concerts this year will include world-famous violinist Zino Francescatti of nearby Monterey, singers Hilde Gueden, Margaret Harshaw, Florence Kopleff, and Donald Gramm, pianists Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, and violinist Berl Senofsky.

Chamber Groups

The chamber groups will be the Budapest String Quartet, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York, the New York Pro Musica Antiqua and the Kroll Quartet.

The full schedule:

The Wednesday evening chamber music concerts at the theater at 8.30: July 2, Budapest String Quartet playing Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven; July 9, Beaux Arts Trio of New York playing Beethoven, Paure and Mendelssohn; July 16, New York Pro Musica Antiqua playing music of Flanders and Spain and works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others; July 23, recital by Adele Addison; July 30, Kroll Quartet playing Mozart, Blackwood and Brahms; Aug. 6, Kroll Quartet playing Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven.

Friday evening concerts, at 8.30: July 4, Dr. Munch conducting Bach Suites 1, 2, 3 and 4; July 11, Dr. Munch conducting Mozart Musical Joke K. 522, with soloists Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale, and "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C major; July 18, Dr. Munch conducting Brahms Serenade No. 1 in D, Copland Variations for Orchestra and

Opening Set

Brahms Symphony No. 4.

Monteux to Conduct

July 25, Pierre Monteux, conducting Glinka's "Russian & Ludmilla" Overture, Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4, Milhaud's Overture to "Les Eumenides," three nocturnes by DeBussy and Ravel's La Valse; Aug. 1, Dr. Munch conducting four Wagner selections and Piston's Viola Concerto, with soprano Margaret Harshaw and violist Joseph De Pasquale.

Aug. 8, Dr. Munch conducting Honegger's prelude fugue and postlude, Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and Piano Concerto No. 5 with Eugene Istomin as soloist.

Saturday evening (8.30) concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra: July 5, Dr. Munch conducting the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor with Lukas Foss as soloist; July 12, Dr. Munch conducting three Mozart pieces, including "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," a two-piano concerto with Foss and Seymour Lipkin; July 19, the Serge Koussevitsky Memorial Concert, Dr. Munch conducting Brahms Requiem with Hilde Gueden and Donald Gramm soloists; July 26, Dr. Munch conducting Stravinsky's Canticum Sacrum, Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 with Byron Janis as soloist, and DeBussy's La Mer.

Aug. 2, 9 Programs

Aug. 2, Dr. Munch conducting Wagner's "Tannhauser" Overture & Bacchanale, Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat with Leonard Pennario as soloist, Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8 and Wagner's Siegfried's Rhine Journey; Aug. 9, Monteux conducting music from Beethoven's "Prometheus" with violinist Berl Senofsky as solo artist, Hindemith's Nobilissima Visione and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

Sunday afternoon (2.30) concerts: July 6, G. Wallace Woodworth conducting the Bach B Minor Mass with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society and singers Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm; July 13, Hugh Ross conducting the Mozart Haffner Symphony and Piano Concerto in C Major with Seymour Lipkin as soloist; July 20, Monteux conducting Brahm's Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist and Stravinsky's Petrouchka.

July 27, Dr. Munch conducting Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta Ravel's "Daphnis & Chloe" (second suite) and Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist; Aug. 3, Monteux conducting a program of Wagner with Margaret Harshaw as soloist; Aug. 10, Dr. Munch conducting Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with singers Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff and Donald Gramm, and the Festival Chorus.

Thursday, Aug. 7, "Tanglewood on Parade," with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra.

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/6/58

Tanglewood Topics

Among the students who entered the Berkshire Music Center at Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood last week end were 315 from 36 states in the United States and 16 foreign countries including Italy, Japan, Israel, Brazil, Cuba, Argentina, Holland, Peru, England, Switzerland, India, Uruguay, Turkey, the Philippines, Lebanon and Finland.

* * *

Two children of members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra staff are working at Tanglewood this summer. Thomas Doane Perry, III, son of Thomas D. Perry, Jr. orchestra manager, is in the book store, and James Brosnahan, Jr., son of James Brosnahan, the orchestra's assistant treasurer, is lifeguard at the Tanglewood Beach. Miss Joan Berkowitz, daughter of Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center, is a student in the Tanglewood Study Group, and Miss Marina Goldovsky, daughter of Boris Goldovsky of the Opera Department will sing in the Festival Chorus this summer.

* * *

Walter Alford, formerly head of the Tanglewood Press Office, has left the country for a tour of Israel with Katherine Cornell's play "The Firstborn", a broadway success of last season. The play will visit Tel Aviv, Haifa and Jerusalem during the first part of this month.

* * *

Visitors to Tanglewood from the Springfield area, via the Massachusetts Turnpike, will find a greatly improved parking lot to the south of Tanglewood, accessible without the necessity of driving through the center of Lenox. A map, issued by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, shows the location and approaches to the parking lot as well as other features of the Tanglewood estate. A copy of the map is available on request to the Festival Office at Tanglewood.

* * *

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York which will appear Wednesday evening, is making its fourth visit to Tanglewood this season. Although the members of the Trio, Daniel Guilet (violin), Bernard Greenhouse (cello), and and Menahem Pressler (piano), have played chamber music together informally for some years, it was only in 1955 that they formed the Beaux Arts Trio and made their official debut at Tanglewood in that summer, playing on all - Beethoven program. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has said of the Trio: "It was a great pleasure for me to attend the first concert of the Beaux Arts Trio and I am especially proud that this took place in Tanglewood. The marvelous musicality of these three artists has been unknown in trio playing for many years."

* * *

Works by the Massachusetts sculptor, Homer Gunn, are being displayed in the Glass Exhibition Room and the gardens at Tanglewood. Mr. Gunn did a sculpture on commission for the Tanglewood grounds last summer and it may now be seen hanging over the Main Gate.

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 28,708

JUL 5 1958

Berkshire Music Festival Opens

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor. Dr. Munch conducting.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUL 5 1958

Opening Concert Held at Tanglewood

LENOX (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Reformer &
Vermont Phoenix (e)
BRATTLEBORO, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 7,268

JUL 5 1958

Tanglewood Season Opens

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Social News in Brief

With Mrs. William D. Pharmer of 256 South St. are her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Holleran and three sons of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Pharmer Jr. of Holyoke.

Miss Martha Hesse of Arlington, Va., is spending 10 days with her mother, Mrs. Christopher J. Hesse of 121 West Housatonic St.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Blake and children, Lisa, Leslie and Jonathan, of Cincinnati, Ohio, are spending the weekend with Mrs. Blake's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Hendershot of 55 Williams St. Another son-in-law and daughter of the Hendershots, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lennox of Southbury, Conn., and children, Eloise and George Jr., will join their family tomorrow.

With Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hebert of 1646 West Housatonic St. for the holiday weekend will be their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hebert and children, Joy, Wayne, Ronnie and Nancy, of Lawrence and Mr. and Mrs. Martin E. Hebert of Northampton.

Miss Catherine McGill of 26 Lowden St. and Miss Marjorie Plantier of 534 West St. are spending 10 days in Washington, D.C. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. John McGill, former residents of Pittsfielld.

Miss Katharine Garrity of 293 Third St. and Miss Phyllis King of 17 Clinton Ave. are sailing tonight on the SS South American on a seven-day cruise from Buffalo, N.Y., to Duluth, Minn.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Perry Jr. at Buck Lane Farm, Lenox, are Mr. and Mrs. George E. Judd of Cannonsville, N.Y.; Silas W. G. Edman, of New York, assistant tour manager of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra; Ross Edman of Pittsfield and Cambridge, a June graduate of Harvard University; and Miss Catherine Gellert of Rye, N.Y., a Radcliffe student. Ross Edman and Miss Gellert will sing in tomorrow's Tanglewood concert.

Miss Renee Decker of Bell Pond, N.Y., will return home tomorrow after a week's visit to Mr. and Mrs. William A. Phillips of 191 Crane Ave. George Earl Phillips of Petersburg, Va., was with his parents for a short visit this week also.

Sun (e)
ATTLEBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 10,457

JUL 5 - 1958

1,500 AT CONCERT

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Journal (m)
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 58,758

JUL 5 1958

Overflow Crowd Attends Opening At Tanglewood

Lenox, Mass. — (AP) — An overflow crowd of some 1,500 attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night until heavy rain scattered those seated outside the Tanglewood Theater.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the concert, which starts the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded in 1940 by the orchestra in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

The program consisted of Bach suites 1, 2, 3 and 4. Soloist Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flautist, received a standing ovation from the audience at the completion of Suite 2.

Tonight Lukas Foss will appear as soloist playing Bach's piano concerto in D minor, with Dr. Munch again conducting.

News (e)
NEWPORT, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 12,400

JUL 5 - 1958

Berkshire Symphonic Festival Opens With Bach-Mozart Series

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

News-Tribune (e)
WALTHAM, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 16,007

JUL 5 - 1958

Munch Leads Bach–Mozart At Berkshire

LENOX (AP) — An estimated 1500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4, and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

~~Schenectady~~
Union-Star 7/5/58

1,500 Attend Tanglewood Bach Concert

LENOX, Mass., July 5—(AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program, which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Munch conducting.

Eagle (e)
CLAREMONT, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 9,030

JUL 5 - 1958

Tanglewood Music Concerts Begin

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 17,740

JUL 5 - 1958

Concerts Start At Tanglewood

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 8, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Journal (e)
LEWISTON-AUBURN, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 14,890

JUL 5 1958

1,500 Attend Opening Bach-Mozart Concert

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

News (e)
GARDNER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,631

JUL 5 - 1958

1,500 Attend Music Festival At Tanglewood

LENOX (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUL 4 - 1958

1,500 Attend Concert At Lenox Music Center

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist, flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 7 - 1958

First Tanglewood Weekend Enjoyed by 9,500 Persons

The first weekend concert series of the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival wound up yesterday with a performance of Bach's "Mass in B Minor." Attendance at the three programs at Tanglewood Friday and Saturday nights and yesterday afternoon totaled some 9,500 persons.

Joining with the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony for yesterday's concert were the Harvard Glee Club and the Radclifee Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring director of the Harvard group.

Vocal soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Instrumental soloists were James Stagliano, horn; Doriot Dwyer, flute; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Louis Speyer and John Holmes, oboe d'amore; Sherman Walt and Ernest Panenka, bassoon; Alfred Nash Patterson, organ, and Daniel Pinkham, harpischord.

Saturday night's program, moved from the theater-concert hall to the big shed because of poor weather, was devoted to Bach's D Minor Concerto and two groups of Bach fugues. Lukas Foss was piano soloist, and Dr. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducted.

Sentinel (e)
KEENE, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,575

JUL 5 - 1958

Berkshire Festival Pulls 1,500 People

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 5 - 1958

Tanglewood Has Bach Concerts

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Herald News (e)
FALL RIVER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,701

JUL 5 - 1958

Berkshire Festival Opens

LENOX, Mass., (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

G [73]

Monitor & New Hampshire Patriot (e)
CONCORD, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 12,496

JUL 5 - 1958

Crowd of Music Lovers Attends Tanglewood Act

LENOX, Mass., July 5 (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berksthire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Fos as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Standard-Times (e)
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 62,179

JUL 5 - 1958

1,500 Hear Opener At Tanglewood

LENOX, July 5 (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program, which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center. Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Journal (e)
BIDDEFORD, Me.
Independent
Circ. 8,921

JUL 5 1958

Bach, Mozart Series Opens At Tanglewood

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Christian Science Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 5 - 1958

Berkshire Symphony Scores Hit

By the Associated Press

Lenox, Mass.

An overflow crowd of some 1,500 persons attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night, until heavy rain scattered those seated outside the Tanglewood Theater.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchtra, conducted the concert, which starts the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded in 1940 by the orchestra in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitzky.

The program consisted of Bach Suites 1, 2, 3 and 4. Soloist Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flautist, received a standing ovation from the audience at the completion of Suite 2.

Call (e)
WOONSOCKET, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 26,133

JUL 5 1958

1,500 At Opening Of Berkshire Symphonic Fete

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Journal-Courier (m)
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 23,885

JUL 5 1958

1,500 ATTEND CONCERT

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—An overflow crowd of some 1,500 attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood Friday night until heavy rain scattered those seated outside the Tanglewood Theater.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the concert, which starts the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded in 1940 by the orchestra in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky. The program consisted of Bach Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4. Soloist Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flutist, received a standing ovation from the audience at the completion of Suite 2.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,839

JUL 5 - 1958

Tanglewood Concert Attended By 1,500

LENOX (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewooc last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director o the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted the program whicl consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3 and 4 and featured as solois flautist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitsky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's piano concerto in D minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 6 - 1958

OVER 9000 HEAR 2D TANGLEWOOD BACH PROGRAM

Munch Conducts Major Works; Foss Soloist In Concerto

By WILLARD CLARK

Lenox, July 5 Sold out three weeks in advance, this second concert devoted to the music o Johann Sebastian Bach drew a very large audience. Because of the inclement weather, it was held in the big music shed, whicl permitted everyone to be under cover. An estimated 9286 persons heard the concert.

Concerto, Fugue Played

Charles Munch, conductor of he Boston Symphony Orchestra, hose for this concert two of the nost important, perhaps the reatest works of Bach, namely ie "Piano Concerto in D Minor" nd the "Art of the Fugue."

Added lustre was given the conrt by the appearance of pian-t-composer Lukas Foss as solo- in the concerto. Mr. Foss is ite the most popular pianist th Tanglewood audiences and appearance was reason for a ıst cordial greeting and a well erved ovation when he had npleted his task. Technical ncy sensitivity and rhythmic nusicality are characteristics of his pianist's performances and hey were present in abundance onight.

The piano concerto provides ıardly any respite for the pianst. This is a concerto of tremendous interest from first to ast. The first and last movenents in particular are virile, hythmic and ebullient in style. The middle movement, an adagio, ıs a rarely lovely episode, almost religious in feeling.

Performance Lauded

Mr. Munch and Mr. Foss were in complete agreement and some exquisite phrasing and nuance was the result. Mr. Foss's performance of the brilliant cadenza, which leads to the culmination of the final movement, was tremendously effective. It was a great performance of a great work.

One hears too seldom the "Art of the Fugue." It was in the last months of his life that Bach undertook to demonstrate in a single work every possible treatment of a fugal subject. Starting with a simple theme, he explored every possibility and the result is a work which has never been equalled. But it is far more than an exercise or demonstration of fugal problems. It is a work in which imagination is given free play, where the conductor must employ all his skill, sensitivity and musicality in its interpretation. The score bears no tempi or dynamic marks.

Rapt Audience

When a group of virtuosi, like those of the Boston Symphony, undertake to play a work like this, one hears it at its greatest. Mr. Munch divided it into two parts, thus enabling one to di gest, as it were, every phrase. There was a fine clarity of tone and justness of tonal values. We had feared that in the great spaces of the shed, the inner voices might not be heard, but each came through satisfactorily. As is the custom, the work closed with Bach's last composi tion, the chorale "Dein Will Ge- cheh, Herr Jesus Christ." Nothing could more fittingly conclude such a piece of musical perfection.

We have seldom witnessed a more rapt audience. There was absolute silence during the performance and even during the brief intermissions between ex amples.

Sunday afternoon Bach's "Mass in B Minor" will be sung by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Chorale under the direction of Wallace Woodworth. The soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN
7/6/58

10B

Second Thoughts On Music

First Week at Tanglewood Proves to Be Exciting One

Budapest String Quartet in Stunning Performance As Chamber Music Concerts Get Under Way; Student Orchestra in Busy Start

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 5—The first week of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood is over. It has been an exciting week with the students getting adjusted and the first series of concerts devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach getting under way. We will not be able to relate all that has happened this week, but news of the high lights will come along.

Budapest String Quartet

Perhaps the most important concert of this opening week was the first of the chamber music concerts. It was given by the Budapest String Quartet. Since their inception these chamber concerts have drawn the most discriminating audiences of the entire Festival. The Theater-Concert Hall was filled for this concert with the audience listening with rapt attention to performances that were, to say the least, superb.

The program opened with a delectable reading of Haydn's "String Quartet in D major, 'The Lark', Op. 64, No. 5." For many years this eminent quartet of players have been at the top of the list and the reasons for the success are not hard to find. One notes the perfection of tonal balance, the beauty of tone, the sensitivity of the phrasing and nuance and the adherence to pitch. All these characteristics were abundantly present during this particular concert.

The audience's reaction to Bartok's first string quartet was one of admiration, as much for the skill of the players as for the work itself. There was a magnificent and vital surge in this performance and minute attention to its intricate tonal and rhythmic patterns. Of one thing listeners could be sure. They were hearing this music as it was written.

Beethoven's second "Rasoumowsky" Quartet in E minor concluded the program. Weaker than its two companions, nevertheless, this quartet has great charm and, in the adagio, a solemn beauty that was breathtaking. The work was given a flawless performance and the players deserved the bravos and tumultuous applause that greeted them at its conclusion.

Beaux Arts Trio

The chamber music concert Wednesday night, July 9, will be given by the Beaux Arts Trio of New York. Its members are Menahem Pressler, pianist; Daniel Guilet, violinist and Bernard Greenhouse, cellist. This is one of the most exciting trios now playing. The program will include "Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1", Beethoven; "Trio in D minor, Op. 120", Faure; and "Trio in C minor, No. 2, Op. 66", Mendelssohn.

The introduction of the Student orchestra to the public is an important moment of the opening week at Tanglewood. Several hundred people were on hand to greet the young players and their student conductors and also the popular Brazilian conductor Eleazar de Carvalho, their director.

It was pleasant to watch again the young Swiss conductor Gustav Meier, who scored such a fine success last season. He opened the program with a stunning reading of "I Angelic Concert" from Hindemith's "Mathis Der Maler". This young man has assurance which comes from a fine musicality and his conducting technique is flexible and to the point.

Another interesting student conductor was David Buttolph who put the orchestra through its paces in a nicely balanced performance of "L'Apresmidi D'un Faune" by Debussy.

The final student conductor was Zubin Mehta who undertook the job of presenting "Don Juan" by Strauss. If all its problems were not fully met, it was not for lack of temperament on the part of young Mr. Mehta. After all, this is hardly a work for an initial appearance of either orchestra or conductor.

Fine Music Ahead

The performance ended with a really fine reading of the "Pastorale" symphony by Tschaikowsky. It was directed by Mr. de Carvalho. The students rose to the occasion and gave him splendid co-operation.

That's about all I can tell you this week about the opening week of the Berkshire Festival. It may be added that there is a splendid esprit de corps here, particularly among students and faculty. There is going to be fine music heard here during the next six weeks and much of it will come from these students.

It's a tremendous grind for these young people. In six short weeks they undergo a concentrated course in their chosen field of music. There is little time for amusement, but the students seem serious and willing to work. They come from the United States, from Canada, Argentina, Great Britain, Switzerland, India, Israel and Japan. The free exchange of ideas which come from close relationship the next six weeks will prove as valuable as the study itself.

Times (e)
BARRE, Vt.
Republican
Circ. 8,323

JUL 5 1958

1,500 Attend Concert

LENOX, Mass., (AP)—An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart Series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUL 8 1958

Bach-Mozart Series Opens At 21st Tanglewood Season

The Bach-Mozart series of the 21st festival season opened Friday evening at Tanglewood in the Theatre-Concert Hall with the four Bach Suites for Orchestra performed by the Boston Symphony chamber orchestra directed by Dr. Charles Munch.

Threatening skies and the ensuing drenching downpours did not deter an enthusiastic audience from attending and enjoying a rather tedious evening of these variously orchestrated dance suites.

The most enjoyable and empathic suite was the second for flute and strings which were muted for the most effective balance and the most authentic feeling. Long a favorite with Tanglewood audiences, it evoked thunderous and really appreciative applause. Doriot Dwyer was superbly fluent; one continues to marvel at her agile virtuosity and fine musicianship.

Dr. Munch's free tempi and exaggeratedly elongated cadences lend an individual coloring to these overtures, with their gracious, sometimes stately or exuberant dance forms, though one is not always in accord with his interpretations.

Although the Theatre-Concert seems ideally suited for this intimate music, the third and fourth suites, with the added winds and brasses, especially the high trumpets, resounded with an ear-splitting shrillness that quite overshot the bounds of joyous exuberance an evening of Bach evokes.

Because of Friday's showers and the ensuing bustle of sheltering the outdoor listeners, Saturday's concert was held in the music shed, where the rear sections are held unreserved for general admission.

Lukas Foss, pianist and faculty member of the Berkshire Festival School, continuing the weekend of music devoted to Bach, performed the D Minor Con-Concerto with invigorating style and welcome freshness. During the first movement, Dr. Munch and soloist were at variance as to tempi, but as the work unfolded an interpretative understanding was reached. The melodic invention of the second movement was a marvel of subtlety as displayed by Mr. Foss and orchestra. Complete accord in the third movement illuminated the play between orchestra and piano, bringing the concerto to a lively close. The audience recalled soloist and conductor with prolonged applause.

For the first time, Bach's unbelievably intricate and masterful work, "The Art of the Fugue," written for string quartet, was played in its entirety by the chamber ensemble. Fortunately, it was presented in two servings, with an intermission between digests. It is not easy listening at one sitting. In the first place the whole is in the key of D with the minor mode prevailing, and in the second place it never leaves the contrapuntal style, except at the very end when the brief but shining chorale makes a roundly harmonic closing.

Even here, however, the phrases are presented frugally. Throughout this opus, figures are treated in every imaginable manner, singly, in twosomes, threesomes and foursomes, inverted, contrary motion, in clusters and variations. The first four were for string orchestration, with the remainder for both strings and winds.

Dr. Munch and the orchestra delineated these ingenious works with facile artistry and their usual consummate skill, although the wide dispersion of sound in the shed tends to diffuse the evocal clarity of the thematic material. (Here one wished for the smaller hall.)

One should be deeply grateful to Dr. Munch and his musicians for the rare opportunity of hearing what many believe to be not only Bach's "ultimum opus" but also his "magnum opus."

Sunday's audience of 4,232 brought the weekend total to 9,716, as cloudy skies welcomed the Bach enthusiasts to a performance of the B Minor Mass by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony chamber orchestra, under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring and beloved conductor for 25 years of the Harvard Glee Club. Dr. Munch invited Mr. Woodworth to conduct this concert in celebration of the club's 100th anniversary. This also was his final concert with the two groups.

It was a brilliant performance. Mr. Woodworth has a marvelous innate feeling for the sustained line and contrapuntal texture of Bach's music. He certainly trains his choruses with the greatest care and precision. Their entrances were clean, diction clear for the most part, their enthusiasm and devotion apparent in the timbre of their voices.

Soloists included Adele Addison, with her warm and well-suited soprano voice; Eunice Alberts, contralto, blending cleanly with Miss Addison in the "Christe Eleison;" Blake Stern, tenor, whose aria "Benedictus" with flute solo was particularly moving, and Donald Gramm, with the two oboi d'amore in the profound "Et in spiritum sanctum," one of the most beautiful arias in the Mass. The artistic virtuosity of the orchestral soloists and the orchestra itself was apparent throughout the entire work. It was an inspired performance, a fitting close to a dedicated career.

The cheering audience lingered long to applaud their enthusiasm and approval of a work well done. Mr. Woodworth received the acclaim with humility and graciousness and at all times shared the applause with his performers, who, in turn, cheered him with affectionate warmth.

Next weekend will be devoted to the works of Mozart and will include soloists Ruth Posselt, Joseph DePasquale, Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin. The concerts will be directed by Charles Munch, with Hugh Ross directing the Coronotion Mass excerpt on Sunday.—M. deB. B.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 5 1958

PROGRAM OF BACH HEARD AT LENOX

Four Suites for Orchestra Given Fine Reading by Boston Symphony

By JOHN BRIGGS
Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 4—The all-Bach week-end at Tanglewood opened tonight with a chamber music concert played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting.

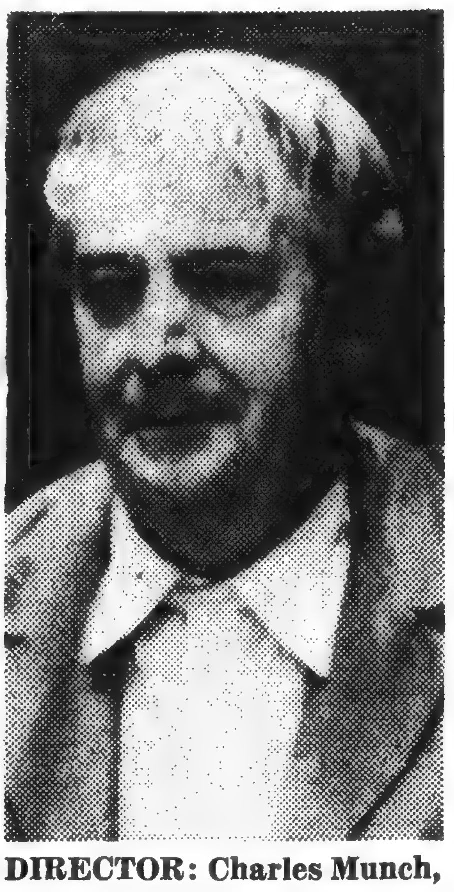
Tonight's program consisted of the four Suites for Orchestra, No. 1, in C; No. 2, in B Minor, for Flue and Strings; No. 3 in D, and No. 4 in D. In the B Minor Suite, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, the admirable flutist of the Boston Symphony, had an opportunity to display her considerable dexterity, and made the most of it.

Mrs. Dwyer performed brilliantly throughout the work, impressing listeners with her ability to spin out long phrases without perceptible pauses for breath, and with the lightness, delicacy and precision of her playing. The final movement was a virtuoso display that was applauded by Mrs. Dwyer's colleagues as well as the audience, and which earned her five recalls to the stage.

The evening's music as a whole was of a sort that displays the Boston Symphony to wonderful advantage. The orchestra is, in fact, a remarkable phenomenon.

The full orchestra is a glorious ensemble. When one hears part of it, on the other hand, one can appreciate the superb individualism of the players and the fine solo qualities that make up the whole. In a passage like the famous slow movement of the Third Suite, the Boston strings are in their element. It is ensemble playing of finest quality.

Mr. Munch conducts Bach with gusto. His merry approach to the music may occasionally scandalize those who believe the music of Bach should be done with solemnity. His almost invariable habit of ending a movement with a big ritardando-crescendo may cause lifting of eyebrows.



DIRECTOR: Charles Munch, who led Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood.

His rollicking tempi err, if at all, on the side of briskness. But the music comes to life, and Mr. Munch's conducting of Bach is as far removed from hidebound pedantry as it is possible to get.

Mr. Munch is to lead the "Art of Fugue" tomorrow evening, and some listeners are waiting with great interest to see what he will make of it.

WATERBURY, CONN.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 40,107

JUL 7 1958

Tanglewood Festival Is Held Indoors

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 7—The Bach week-end of music which opened this year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Friday evening ended yesterday afternoon with the performance of his "B Minor Mass" sung by a chorus of Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth who was making his last appearance as regular conductor of the two student groups since he is retiring.

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted Friday evening when Bach suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 were presented to an audience greeted by a down-pour of Berkshire rain. Saturday evening's performance presented Lukas Foss in the Bach "Piano Concerto in D minor" and "The Art of the Fugue." This concert was moved to the large music shed because of the inclement weather and was broadcast over a national radio hook-up.

The orchestra's young first flutist, Doriot Anthony Dwyer, who distinguished herself so well last season as soloist, repeated her success Saturday night in "Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings."

The Sunday performance by the chorus in the Music Shed showed exceptional diction with the female soloists giving the better performances. The male voices were somewhat weak and overpowered by the strong bass section. The conductor gave a fine reading of the score but the brasses and woodwind suffered somewhat due to the bad weather. Adele Addison soprano soloist, sang with robust and vibrant voice.

The other soloists were Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Albert Nash Patterson was at the organ.

Concerts this week-end will be devoted to the music of Mozart with Munch conducting Friday and Saturday evenings and for the first half of the Sunday concert when Seymour Lipkin will play a piano concerto. Hugh Ross will conduct the second half of that concert when the "Kyrie and Mass" will be presented. Saturday night Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will present Mozart's "Two Piano Concerto, K. 365."

The four-week schedule of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed will begin the following week and continue through Aug. 10. S. M.

In Brief . . .

Both esthetically and at the box office, the curtain-raising weekend at Tanglewood was a singularly happy omen for the 1958 season . . . Not the least of the good things about a Bach weekend, by the way, is the relatively discriminating—and conservatively attired—audience that it tends to attract . . . Once again, Berkshire County can take satisfaction from its failure to contribute to a grim holiday toll on the nation's highways . . .

This morning's opening of the playground program for retarded youngsters at the Crosby place on West Street is a welcome event. Certainly no worthier employment for the property could be found pending its anticipated use as a new school site . . . If ever an ovation was well-earned it was the one given at the Music Shed yesterday for G. Wallace Woodworth at his farewell appearance as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club. The Harvard-Radcliffe singers' magnificent performance of the B Minor Mass made a fitting finale to a distinguished career . . .

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,839

JUL 7 - 1958

4,200 Hear B Minor Mass At Tanglewood

By JOHN F. KYES

LENOX — The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood drew 9,716 listeners to its first weekend, devoted to the music of Bach. Of these, 4,232 came to the music shed yesterday afternoon to hear portions of the B minor Mass.

The occasion, notable musically and from a sentimental standpoint, marked the last appearance of G. Wallace Woodworth as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, both of which he has led for 25 years. Woodworth, who has brought the Harvard Glee Club to Worcester nearly a dozen times in the Becker Series, will continue as a member of the University's faculty.

The huge audience gave him a standing ovation.

In fine fettle also were Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, a chorus of 75 women and 55 men, and 40 players from the Boston Symphony. The results were always interesting and frequently thrilling.

Eleven choruses provided the meat of the afternoon. The "Kyrie eleivson" at once set a massive goal; I was astonished that college students could produce and maintain such full tones. The early fear that phrasings might become ponderous was dispelled in "Gloria excelsis Deo" and "Cum santo spiritu," where vital sounds from orchestra and chorus managed to be both explosive and lyric, a highly successful combination for transmitting immense religious ideas.

"Qui tollis," sung seated, was a lovely choral revery.

Choruses from the "Credo" were extremely varied, "Credo in unum Deum" being the least integrated and most jerky. "Et incarnatus est" and "Crucifixus" were flexible streams of song, tone-poems expressing moods appropriate to the Passion. "Et resurrexit," beginning with a flashing attack, revealed unlimited zest and stamina.

"Sanctus," followed without pause by "Osanna in excelsis," was a stately declamation. The final chorus, "Dona nobis pacem," was another fine revelation of mature breadth and fullness.

Solo Artists

The soloists sang with an attitude of devotion to the score, seeking little individual glory. Miss Addison and Miss Alberts blended handsomely in "Christe eleison" and "Et in unum Dominum," the latter adding the sweet tones of two Oboi d'Amore played by soloists Louis Speyer and John Holmes. Gramm's luscious baritone had the same accompaniment for "Et in spiritum sanctum." Less fortunate were the balances in "Quoniam tu solus sanctus," where Gramm seemed somewhat suppressed and James Stagliano's well-played horn a bit obtrusive. The interesting background was completed by the bassoons of Sherman Walt and Ernst Panenka.

Miss Alberts' "Agnus Dei" was highly praiseworthy. Stern's "Benedictus" brought lovely vowels but almost a complete lack of consonants. Here and in Stern's duet with Miss Addison, "Domine Deus," flute solos by Doriot Anthony Dwyer were fine embellishments for the accurate tones of the vocalists.

Roger Voisin's trumpet was marvellously brilliant in choral climaxes. The small, select group accompanying the soloists had as its foundation Daniel Pinkham's harpsichord. Alfred Nash Patterson was an efficient, unobtrusive organist.

The Tanglewood theme shifts next weekend to Mozart.

EAGLE July 7, 1958

[75]

Music Review

Bach Mass at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE FIRST weekend at Tanglewood, devoted entirely to Bach, came to a thrilling close yesterday afternoon when G. Wallace Woodworth, leading the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, played "The High Mass."

This has been played several times before at Tanglewood festivals, but there were several features new and unusual yesterday. First, this concert as well as the Saturday evening program were played in the Music Shed, the weather Saturday making the move from the theater-concert hall imperative, and the size of the audience yesterday afternoon as well as the large chorus making it more practival to use the larger hall.

* * *

IN EACH previous performance the Harvard-Radcliffe choruses had been trained and prepared by Professor Woodworth of the Harvard Music Department faculty but the baton at the concert has been in the hands of either Charles Munch or his predecessor, Serge Koussevitsky. This time Woodworth himself took over the forces for whom he had always been so responsible.

Furthermore, the event was a valedictory for Woodworth in his capacity of choral director at Harvard. He will continue on the faculty, but will now relinquish the post of director after 25 years of creative service. The ovation that followed the final chorus was due appreciation of the magnificence of the performance he had stimulated, but some of the recalls were also influenced by the affection and artistic respect he has engendered over the years.

* * *

THE MEASURE of Woodworth's preparation was apparent at the initial utterance of the youthful chorus. The "Kyrie" consisted of the full-throated, confident response of every individual on the ascending bleachers behind the orchestra and the sound burst out with massive impact. The undergraduates sang with unfailing fervor, indeed, with a bit too unvarying a volume, but there was conviction and understanding in everything they sang, and the conclusion of many of the choruses left an awesome and breathless instant throughout the entire audience which Woodworth, in his immersion in his task, did not attempt to disturb.

mission ticket seat designations in either of the two concert halls proved its worth and foresight Saturday when the weather prompted the decision to afford cover for all who attended. Friday night the storm gave a goodly number a thorough drenching when the rain caught both concert-goers and management unprepared.

* * *

THERE ARE memorable moments of nobility in music as there are in the careers of men, in the sequence of events, in sermons, plays and all the many phases of life. One such short but tremendously impressive example occurred Saturday night at the conclusion of "Art of Fugue" which was the major and concluding half of the evening's program. This was Bach's last work and he never arrived here at a final cadence but left it to vanish in mid-air. Charles Munch came to the end of the printed notes and held a long rhetorical and meaningful moment's silence. He then played the short but deeply touching chorale, also of Bach but of another date, to complete the "Art" and the evening. In its mighty simplicity there was serene beauty beyond calculation and a nobility which music can express even better than words.

"The Art of Fugue" was a play on all the possibilities and vagaries of counterpoint in which Bach was such a paragon. He did not indicate for what vehicle he was writing, and so it has been performed at a keyboard, by a string quartet, and now, for the first time at Tanglewood, by an orchestra, consisting of strings, flutes, oboe, English horn and bassoons. A basic theme is stated at the outset, here in the arrangement by Professor Pillney Cologne, assigned to the second violins, and then for a baker's dozen of complete, individual episodes, the statement is turned and twisted with a skill to continually astonish students and to please audiences' ears.

* * *

THE MAINTENANCE of the single key—D minor— does not become monotonous or academic because other factors serve to enliven and stimulate the pleasure an audience derives. For one thing no other work serves better, or so well, to show the tone quality of the Boston strings. The second violins are given the initial statement in many of the movements, and the tone they produce was an undiluted joy in every instance and reveals, if any evidence were necessary, why the Boston is such a wonderful orchestra. There is no veneer of polish and excellence. It is solid, and wholesome all the way to the last desk. It was a joy to hear string tone of such sonority throughout the evening.

The function of the conductor in such an evening is another factor. It is quite a different task from leading a Tchaikovsky symphony. There are certain attributes required, chiefly balance and the conveyance to the audience of subtle indications of what is really taking place. Mr. Munch did not pay too much attention to these details. He set tempos with insight and moods with contrasting complacence and vigor, but he allowed various passages to remain buried, and permitted his confidence in the capabilities of the orchestra to take the reins more often than not.

* * *

THERE WAS NOT complete agreement between Conductor Munch and soloist Lukas Foss in the D minor piano concerto with which the program began. Foss did not play with his accustomed discipline and Munch was indecisive with tempi. Only occasionally did the soloist emerge from a foggy film which pervaded most of the performance and declaim with his habitual eloquence the lofty pages of this great concerto. When he arrived at the D major episode and then, soon after, at the short cadenza, he was the Foss for which Tanglewood so cordially knows him. At most of the rest of the time, he kept his eyes on the conductor, for some unaccountable reason, and adjusted his playing to an uninspired and unpredictable baton.

The excellent sonority of the strings may have been partially due to their placement at the rear of the large stage of the Shed, but whether this affected the soloist's tone is a matter for conjecture. The fact remained that the piano tone was not projected by Foss. After the first unison the piano solo was not clearly articulated and Foss' usual poetic piano playing did not serve him on this stage. We wish he had not considered this as another Brandenburg where the piano is just another instrument of the ensemble, but had grasped the bit between his own teeth and taken the rail himself.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUL 7 1958

Bach Concerts Rewarding at Tanglewood

By D. E. RITZ
Gazette Music Editor

The music of Johann Sebastian Bach was featured during the first weekend of concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, with Charles Munch conducting on Friday and Saturday evenings and G. Wallace Woodworth yesterday afternoon.

* * *

WE ATTENDED the Saturday evening program to hear "The Art of Fugue" and were rewarded with one of the outstanding programs of the season.

Scheduled to be presented in the Theatre-Concert Hall it was given in the huge Shed because of the rain in the afternoon. A down-pour also occurred during the concert but the audience was one of the largest ever to attend an opening weekend program. It almost filled the huge shed, which seats just under 6,000 persons.

* * *

"THE ART OF FUGUE" exists for most of us in the realm of music history and an opportunity to hear a live performance is a rare treat. Hearing it played by the strings of the Boston Symphony is another of those never-to-be forgotten experiences which only Tanglewood offers to those of us who live in the musical hinterland.

The vibrant music made one forget that here was one of the most marvelously constructed technical acvhievements ever conceived musically and one just reveled and luxuriated in melody.

* * *

ARRANGED for chamber orchestra by Pillney the work makes extreme demands on the string players who carry all but one of the fugues—that was presented by a group of solo woodwinds forming a sharply contrasting tonal interlude. The work concludes with the chorale, "Dein Will Gesheh, Herr Jesus Christ." An ovation followed for Dr. Munch and the musicians, certainly earned with honor.

The Saturday evening program opened with the "Piano Concerto in D minor" with Lukas Foss as soloist with the orchestra. The performance was brilliant and the number a perfect choice as an introduction to the "Art of Fugue." Foss is a favorite of Tanglewood audiences and invariably presents a highly artistic performance.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 7 - 1958

Munch Conducts the Bach Suites

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

Fit, confident and alert, Charles Munch opened this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood before a receptive audience Friday night in the Theater-Concert Hall.

When first started by Serge Koussevitzky, the programs in the Theater-Concert Hall were known as the Bach-Mozart concerts, three in number, which preceded a three-week season by the full orchestral complement in the much larger Music Shed. In the past few years these preliminary concerts have been incorporated as part of a six-week festival, with the number cut down to two and with the Shed utilized for some of the programs.

* * *

The increasing popularity of the chamber orchestra programs also has dictated the management's decision to move into the shelter of the Shed in case of inclement weather. One can easily understand and sympathize with a decision which accommodates a much larger group of listeners than can be seated in the Theater-Concert Hall; but as sometimes may happen, quantity and quality do not necessarily go together.

The smaller hall is as completely suited to chamber orchestra music as the Shed is unsuited. A case in point was the difference in results between Friday's concert and the concert Saturday night which was moved into the Shed.

The pelting rain which marred the opening for those on the lawns outside the Theater-Concert Hall on Friday came too late to change the locale. Yet for the capacity audience seated inside and for those able to seek the shelter of the roof overhang, this was a glorious occasion. Playing the four orchestral suites by Bach, with forces only slightly larger than Bach normally had at his command, Dr. Munch achieved a grandeur of effect and a felicity of expression which completely captured the hearers.

All four suites, with their ceremonious overtures and their delightful mixtures of dances and pieces, were beautifully done. The audience showed particular enthusiasm for the Suite No. 2 for Flute and Strings, in which Doriot Anthony Dwyer distinguished herself as soloist.

With rain imminent on Saturday night, a promise that was regrettably and punctiliously met, the locale was changed to the Shed for another Bach program—the Concerto in D minor for Keyboard and Orchestra with Lukas Foss the soloist, and the Art of Fugue as arranged for chamber orchestra by Pillney.

Mr. Foss's way with the Concerto more than reconciles one with the change from harpsichord to piano as the solo agent. Bach himself transposed the work from violin to harpsichord with his customary easy disregard of particular means. As for Dr. Munch, he in no way fell below the high standards of expressive understanding he has so consistently shown in Bach's music on many occasions in the past.

The effect would have been excellent in Symphony Hall, with its fine acoustics, and perfect in the Theater-Concert Hall, where rapport between performers and hearers becomes an almost tangible reality.

* * *

As it was on Saturday, the vast reaches of the Shed made an intimate effect difficult to achieve, and at least one hearer felt himself somewhat aloof and disengaged from the proceedings on the platform. Nevertheless soloist, conductor, and players were warmly applauded as they deserved to be, and at least nobody got wet.

The Shed, of course, is designed for large performing groups such as for Sunday afternoon's concert, which listed the Mass in B minor with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society and a group of distinguished soloists, vocal and instrumental, with G. Wallace Woodworth the conductor to bring the Bach weekend to a close.

UTICA, N. Y.
PRESS
Circ. D. 26,881

JUN 3 0 1958

Lenox Season to Open; Jacob's Pillow Also Set

The first concerts of the season at Tanglewood, summer home of the Berkshire Festival and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be held Wednesday evening at 8:30. At that time, the Budapest String Quartet will be featured.

On the coming weekend, three Bach concerts will be presented. The Suites 1, 2, 3 and 4 will be performed Friday at 8:30, while Lukas Foss will be piano soloist in an all-Bach program.

The closing concert of the weekend will be Sunday at 2:30 in the music shed at Lenox, when G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm, bass, in an performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

[76]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 7 1958

Harvard, Radcliffe Singers Heard in Tanglewood Choral

By Allen Hughes

LENOX, Mass., July 6.—The first week-end series of the 1958 summer concerts here at Tanglewood ended this afternoon with a performance of Bach's mass in B minor conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth. Assisting the Harvard Glee Club, the Radcliffe Choral Society, and members of the Boston Symphony in the presentation were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. The event marked Mr. Woodworth's farewell appearance as director of the participating choral groups, since he is retiring as their mentor after twenty-five years of association with them.

It must be said that the closing of this chapter of the choral leader's illustrious career was a glorious one, for his interpretation of the mighty mass was truly exciting in the grand manner. Since the combined chorus was a huge one (including alumni as well as current members of the two organizations), this was a performance in the nineteenth-century oratorio tradition, but a brilliant one of its type. If some of the choral attacks seemed excessively explosive, they did not seriously mar the total impression of the day.

Woodworth a Standout

Among the vocal soloists, the contributions of Miss Addison and Mr. Gramm were particularly rewarding, and the trumpet playing of Roger Voisin and his colleagues was nothing short of spectacular. Still, the bulk of the credit for all the eloquence belonged to Mr. Woodworth, whose unflagging intensity and pervasive spirit appeared to stimulate every one involved. In view of this fact, it was a shame that cuts had been made in the mass to shorten the length of the program.

The second concert of the Bach trilogy offered during these last three days was conducted in the Music Shed on Saturday night by Charles Munch. Lukas Foss was piano soloist in the concerto in D minor, and the remainder of the evening was given over to "The Art of the Fugue," played in the Pillney arrangement for chamber orchestra.

The evening was certainly an unfortunate one for Bach, and this listener is doubtful that it reflected any glory on the performers themselves. The works in question were played with so arrogant a disregard for stylistic proprieties that one could not help wondering why they had been elected at all. An enormous twentieth-century concert grand piano played in an heroic, sonorous manner does not exactly suggest the clean, brilliance of the harpsichord, and a large string orchestra pulsating with lush vibratos is scarcely evocative of baroque musical textures.

Variety of Effects

Bach's exhaustive investigation of fugal possibilities in "The Art of the Fugue" was surely not conceived as a set of pieces intended for concert consumption, though it is sometimes presented as such. Here are austere architectural structures in which the exposure of construction transcends in importance any passing effects that may be squeezed out of them in performance. The Saturday evening interpretations, however, seemed dictated by a desire to produce as many effects as possible. One opening fugue subject after another was introduced by massed violins playing in a silken, sweet manner, and the measures that followed might then proceed caressingly or furiously depending on the mood sought at the time. The results were curiously undefinable and infinitely exasperating.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,[illegible] - S. 882,925

JUL 7 1958

AT TANGLEWOOD

Bach Concluded By Woodworth

By MILES KASTENDIECK

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass., July 7—Bach's B Minor Mass summed up the weekend devoted to his music, which traditionally opens the Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, now in its 21st season. G. Wallace Woodworth conducted the performance. The occasion was his farewell appearance as director of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, which he has led for 25 years.

The Bach weekend had opened on the Fourth of July with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony's "Chamber Orchestra" in the four orchestral suites. He also led the Saturday program listing the D Minor Piano Concerto with Lukas Foss as soloist and the "Art of Fugue."

Almost 10,000 people attended the three events, two of them played during heavy rain.

Woodworth gave a straightforward sincere account of the Mass, about a third of which had been cut. When the music called for exultation, the chorus of 150 sang with that youthful esprit quite irresistible.

SENTIMENTAL TIME

Elsewhere, it followed the notes faithfully without that subtlety of phrasing or of coloring needed to illumine the music fully. Thus the "Cum Sancto Spiritu," the "Sanctus" and similar numbers came through best.

More a sentimental occasion than an inspired one musically, the performance had its uneven moments. Some overbrilliant instrumental solos did not help balances. Nevertheless, Roger Voisin's trumpet playing became one of the noted accomplishments of the afternoon. The soloists—Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm—sang well yet without distinction.

The music was the thing. What an incredibly beautiful musical creation it is. No wonder, given in the music shed, the performance drew an audience of [illegible] people.

Munch's crisp, vigorous, yet also gracious way with Bach brought delight to the Friday audience. Doriot Anthony Dwyer's flute playing in the B [illegible] its customary enthusiastic applause. The concert had a quality and an atmosphere of its own.

[77]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
JUL 7 1958

Music: B Minor Mass

Woodworth Conducts at Tanglewood

Fabian Bachrach

G. Wallace Woodworth

By JOHN BRIGGS
Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 6—The Bach week-end at Tanglewood came to an end this afternoon with a fine and stirring performance of the B minor Mass. G. Wallace Woodworth conducted.

The occasion was tinged with sadness, since it marked Mr. Woodworth's final appearance as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society. Mr. Woodworth has directed both groups for the past quarter-century.

The Harvard and Radcliffe choristers, however, had evidently resolved that Mr. Woodworth's career should end on a note of triumph. Thanks in considerable part to their singing the music came alive in magnificent fashion.

The great choruses, which are the kernel of the work, were sung with grandeur. The choristers displayed both musicianship and zeal. One might have quarreled with details, such as the headlong tempo chosen by Mr. Woodworth for "Et Resurrexit." The great solo passage for the basses, "Et Iterum Venturus Est," failed to make its effect, not because the Harvard boys did not know their music but because it was impossible to articulate the notes at such speed.

But this and other small defects could not mar the effect of the performance as a whole. The splendid singing of the choristers was matched by that of the soloists, Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Especially striking was Mr. Gramm's sensitive, musically sound delivery of "Et in Spiritum Sanctum." The members of the Boston Symphony who made up today's small orchestra played with Boston Symphony quality.

It was, in sum, the sort of concert whose lofty fervor will remain in the memory of those who heard it.

Last night Charles Munch and members of the Boston Symphony played an all-Bach program including approximately two-thirds of "The Art of Fugue." This long, complex, intricately wrought work is a fascinating piece of craftsmanship, which does not always come off in performance.

Last night it was evident that Mr. Munch was doing the piece as a labor of love. Between the conductor's earnestness and the sheer beauty of sound achieved by the players, "The Art of Fugue" proved less heavy going than it sometimes can be.

The concert began with the Piano Concerto in D minor, with Lukas Foss as soloist. Mr. Foss played unevenly in the opening movement, but gave an excellent account of himself thereafter.

EAGLE July 5

Music Review

Bach Suites at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE FIRST orchestral concert of the season at Tanglewood consisted of a program of the four Bach suites played last night in the theater-concert hall under the direction of Charles Munch. These first two Tanglewood weekends will again be devoted to Bach and Mozart. A string section of about 29 musicians and a wind section of varying numbers play in this series, and are not joined by the full complement of the orchestra until the third week when the concerts move over to the great Shed.

The suites were played in the regular sequence. They vary in both the number and type of ancient dance rhythms they employ, alternating between the stately and grave to the sprightly and gay. The suite was one of several precursors of what we call a symphony today, a number of pieces in contrasting rhythms and of opposed moods. There was no conscious use of the same idioms or figures in the ancient suites and it was not until the mid-eighteenth century that this practice came into being.

* * *

MUNCH TENDS to exact extremes from his virtuoso band, lingering on the sustained movements and exaggerating the speed of the swift ones. There is no doubt that the contrast of rhythms and of spirit has a stimulating effect on the audience for they broke out into tumultuous applause at the conclusion of each suite.

In the B minor, the second, Munch reduced the string choirs and required even the few he designated to use mutes. The result was very favorable as the flute, beautifully played by Doriot Anthony Dwyer, could be heard much more advantageously in the many instances Bach here affords the instrument. This sort of balance makes it much more like chamber music which is possibly what Bach may have intended originally. In many instances only the principals of the various sections were called upon.

* * *

THE FIRST suite with which the program started uses oboes and bassoons in pairs in addition to strings. The second uses in wind only two flutes. The third and fourth use oboes, bassoons and trumpets, in threes, and tympani, and in the fourth the organ also participated.

The trumpets were allowed to blow excessively, and their tone became piercing, particularly within the sonorous strings and the soft-treading reeds. Munch caught the feeling of the gavottes and bourrees with special felicity, controlling the responsive musicians with a relaxation which was not so apparent in the tense extremes of some of the other movements.

* * *

THERE ARE great rewards in this category of Bach's works, and if one is at all dulled by any particular movement, another comes along with a completely new and fresh pace and character. The first suite is the longest and, for this listener, the most taxing to listen to. But the inclusion of all four on one program is justified by the variety they all, in toto, embrace, and, of course, by the standards of the Boston first chair men who would make music even less inspired a joy to listen to.

Some program makers might find fault with an evening which consists of nothing but suites. But as served by Munch and his confreres last night, it was shown they do not contain more calories than Bach enthusiasts can willingly digest. The program, in fact, attracted an audience which filled the hall, and extended far out on the adjoining lawns. The rain which came after the program started presented a problem which the management happily solved by giving shelter to the outsiders in the aisles and under the wide porticos.

HARTFORD TIMES July 5, 1958

Berkshire Music Festival in Opening

By GEORGE W. STOWE

Lenox, Mass. — Charles Munch, looking as hale and hearty as ever, returned to the podium at Tanglewood last night to initiate the Bach weekend in the Theater-Concert Hall.

To an inveterate concertgoer it seemed that Mr. Munch had made a daring choice when he programed all four of the Bach orchestral suites in one concert. It proved not only an artistic triumph but an economic success, for the hall was entirely sold out.

The Boston Symphony, reduced to the proportions of the Bach orchestra, is an ideal instrument for this music. And just as Koussevitsky was always particularly convincing as a Bach interpreter, Munch has carried on the tradition, shaping the outlines with a firm hand and a sympathetic style.

To Albert Schweitzer these suites are "a fragment of vanished world of grace and elegance" and Munch manages to translate these words into a viable reality, a tonal and stylistic image of the 18th Century. There were times last night when the conductor revealed beauties in the music that are seldom more than skimmed.

* * *

THIS WAS particularly true of the Fourth Suite, which is usually ranked below the Second and Third Suites in musical importance. The vigor of the string playing, the impeccable woodwinds, and the happy choice of tempos made it an exhilarating experience.

Once again Doriot Anthony Dwyer was the incomparable flutist in the Second Suite, which utilizes only the flute and strings. Her Badinerie at the end is a tour de force and invariably elicits wild applause. Despite the enthusiasm the conductor did not repeat the rather questionable practice of replaying this movement.

For many the highlight was the Third Suite, which contains the melody so familiarly known as the "Air for the G String." Munch, once a concertmaster, adopted a tempo that allowed this gorgeous air to unfold with ravishing effect, a tonal investiture that showed off the Boston strings to optimum advantage.

* * *

THERE ARE so many details one could dwell upon when this music is played, such as the wonderfully broad and majestic opening movements which pay homage to the French overtures of Lully or the lively dances that are interspersed between the traditional movements.

If Bach was more preoccupied with line than with color in his orchestral writing, his genius resides in the fact that this music comes alive for us of the 20th Century, who are continually exposed to much more extensive musical spectrum.

Rain was the order of the evening in the Berkshires but it did little to dampen enthusiasm or to dissolve the bond that exists between audience and performers when great music finds sympathetic recreation.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176
JUL 6 1958

Rain Mars Opening Concert Of Season at Tanglewood

By Allen Hughes

LENOX, Mass., July 5.—The Fourth of July, 1958, may well be remembered for a long, long time by those who make music at Tanglewood and those who come to hear it. The twenty-first season of the Berkshire Music Festival was being inaugurated by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Conductor Charles Munch was on hand to lead thirty-five of its members in J. S. Bach's four Suites for Orchestra. An audience of 3,000 persons had settled itself in and around the Theater-oncert Hall when the program egan, and all concerned seemed uite content with the initial roceedings.

Before the evening was half ver, however, the rains came. They were gentle at first, but soon they became torrents that soaked the Tanglewood sod and turned its paths into rivers of mud. For those seated on the grass outside the hall, the disaster was immediate. Those inside heard the entire concert in comfort, but they, too, were doomed to a drenching when the time came to go home.

Music Moves Smoothly

Despite the unfriendly skies, though, the music of the evening moved along smoothly and effectively. Mr. Munch was aglow with enthusiasm for the bourees, gavottes, minuets and other dances that make up the Bach Suites, and he communicated his exuberance to performers and auditors alike.

Still, it must be acknowledged that the conductor's dramatic temperament tended to transform some of the modest, insouciant pieces into rather bigger than life-size projections of themselves. This was not, in short, a concert for purists. Dazzling energy led at times into demoniac frenzy, and the brilliant sonorities of high-riding trumpets were sometimes pushed into realms of blasting fury. There were compensating interludes of intimate sensitivity, however, when some of the gavottes, for instance, were played in the most charming fashion.

The most ravishing sounds and exquisite playing of the evening were heard during the performance of the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings, in which Doriot Anthony Dwyer appeared as soloist. Looking for all the world as though she had stopped by casually on her way to a high school prom, the remarkable young first flutist of the orchestra played with utterly stunning virtuosity and perceptivity. Her incredibly fluent dispatch of the concluding "Badinerie" was enough to make one gasp in astonishment and admiration, and the audience's applause was of the sort usually reserved for the most heroic of romantic pianists or operatic tenors.

All in all, the concert constituted a reputable, if familiar, debut of another Tanglewood season. Following the Bach concerts of this week end and those devoted to music by Mozart next week, the Boston Symphony will reassemble in toto for the full-scale symphonic concerts that make up the remainder of the summer schedule.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541
JUL 5 - 1958

MUNCH OPENS BACH SERIES AT FESTIVAL

Four Orchestral Suites Are Performed at Tanglewood

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 4—Making his first appearance at the Berkshire Festival tonight, Charles Munch inaugurated the annual series of three concerts devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. The theater-concert hall was well filled with the faithful and a number of listeners were seated outside. Mr. Munch chose for this initial program the four suites for orchestra. The chamber orchestra, made up of the first desk virtuosi of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, along with the others in this picked group of instrumentalists, did their best by Bach and their best is just about as fine as may be heard today.

Entirely Secular

These suites were written during the period when Bach was serving as musical director for Prince Leopold of Anhalt-Goethen. He had at his disposal a small group of instrumentalists and it was his duty to entertain the prince. Thus his music of this period was entirely secular and instrumental.

The four orchestral suites are made up of dances of the period, each preceded by an overture. These lively dances, however gay and frivolous they sound, never lose the distinction of noble art. However freely they sparkle and play they are never trivial. Schweitzer writes of them "in the dance melodies of these suites, a fragment of a vanished world of grace and eloquence has been preserved for us. They are the ideal musical picture of the rococo period."

The first suite in C Major adds two oboes and bassoon to the strings. The second, in B minor, is for solo flute and strings. The last two suites, which are in D major, include tympani and a larger wind group in the third suite, also two oboes and three trumpets; in the fourth suite, three oboes, bassoon and three trumpets.

Fresh Interpretation

Listening to the wonders of this music as interpreted by Mr. Munch, one could only marvel at the ingenuity, imagination and understanding of the composer. Everything seemed as new and as fresh as the day it was written.

The eminent conductor was not hurried. The music flowed smoothly, sometimes stately, sometimes gay and even frivolous, but always there was a perfection of balance, clarity of inner voices and an unsurpassed unit.

Doriot Anthony Dwyer, first flutist of the orchestra, was called back at least a half dozen times after the second suite, which is for strings and flute. Finally after the lights were on she came out without her flute and then people realized there was to be no repeat of the brilliant finale.

Superb Playing

There might, under less fortunate conditions, have been a certain monotony in listening to the entire four suites, but due to the superb playing of the orchestra, the subtleties which Mr. Munch found and communicated, there was only joy listening to this, the first concert devoted to the work of Johann Sebastian Bach. After this concert, we can anticipate the two concerts yet to come.

Tomorrow night, the program will feature Lukas Foss, pianist-conductor, playing the "Piano Concerto in D Minor." The all-too seldom-heard "Art of the Fugue" is to be played. What a concert it will be.

NEW YORK POST July 7, 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

All-Bach Draws 9,716 to Tanglewood

Lenox, Mass., July 7—Despite overcast skies at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon, an audience of more than 4,000 assembled here for the performance of Bach's B Minor Mass by the Boston Symphony and collaborators, in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Fortunately, the prediction of thunder showers did not materialize during the concert, so the scattered assortment of those sitting out-of-doors were able to hear the work, dry, if a bit damp from the prevailing mugginess.

This brought the total attendance for the all-Bach week-end to 9,716, which included Friday's concert of four suites in the theater-concert hall and Saturday's event, originally scheduled for the same hall, but transferred to the Shed because of rain which continued throughout the evening.

As the initial work on the latter program was Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, with Lukas Foss as solist, this meant moving Foss' piano, at the last minute, a distance of approximately two blocks. Once accomplished, the piano was retuned, and all proceeded as scheduled, except that this reporter had a bout with a temperamental Fiat and landed in the Pittsfield General Hospital for stitches in the head, instead of on the grounds where Nathanial Hawthorne planned his "Tanglewood Tales," wrote "The Wonder Book" and assembled the material for "The House of Seven Gables." Saturday's concert, conducted by Charles Munch, concluded with "The Art of the Fugue," arranged by Pillney for chamber orchestra.

Woodworth Leads Mass

Yesterday's maestro was G. Wallace Woodworth, who for 25 years has led the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, the ensembles which officiated for the Mass. Though he has conducted previously in the Shed, this was the first time he has led the Bostonians there. The occasion was also his "Swan Song" as leader of these choral societies. He will continue as a member of the Harvard music faculty.

Woodworth was at his best in the spirited movements, notably the "Gloria," the "Et Resurrexit" and the "Osanna in Excelsis." He did achieve an impressively sombre mood in the "Crucifixus" which also was characterized by the most effective soft singing of the afternoon.

The general atmosphere of excitement and breathlessness which he communicated so well in dynamic choruses spilled over occasionally into the more subjective sections. He moved too quickly from a slow to a fast movement, with the result that the slower section would begin without a valid feeling of rhythmic poise.

The glee clubs and conductor, however, should be congratulated on their earnestness, devotion and enthusiasm. During his many years of service at Harvard, Woodworth has been energetic in encouraging college ensembles to perform the great works of the choral literature, as well as their rousing college songs.

Soprano Adele Addison's singing in her two duets, (with contralto Eunice Alberts and tenor Blake Stern, respectively) and basso Donald Gramm's sympathetic rendition of the "Et in Spiritum Sanctum," were among the solo highlights. During the tenor solo, the "Benedictus," the obligato part, usually played by the solo violin, was this time performed by the solo flute. Bach, himself, did not specifically indicate the instrument. Doriot Anthony Dwyer's playing of this portion was beautifully phrased and projected.

The coming week-end's musical fare will be all-Mozart, with the "Haffner" and G Minor, No. 40, symphonies scheduled along with the Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365. Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin will be soloists for the latter piece. The "Coronation Mass," set for Sunday afternoon, will be conducted by Hugh Foss.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 7 - 1958

Former Students Join Chorus In Tribute to G. W. Woodworth

Many former students of G. Wallace Woodworth, for 25 years conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, were in the chorus yesterday at Tanglewood for his final appearance as conductor of the two groups.

Mr. Woodworth, known to the thousands of students who have sung under him as "Woody," will continue as a member of the faculty in the music department at Harvard.

Among his former students in the chorus yesterday for the Boston Symphony's performance of Bach's Mass in B Minor, were Elliot Forbes of Princeton, who is succeeding Mr. Woodworth as conductor, and his wife, the former Kathleen Allen, assistant conductor of the Radcliffe group; Lorna Cooke de Varon, a former assistant conductor of the Radcliffe singers, who is now on the faculty of the New England Conservatory and the Berkshire Music Center; Harold Schmidt, formerly of Fiske University, who is now conductor at Stanford University; Allan Miller, assistant conductor at Harvard this year, who recently won a fellowship to Switzerland to study with Herman Scherchen.

Three others, Joan Reinthaler, assistant conductor of the Radcliffe group; Barbara Connelly, former Radcliffe assistant conductor, who now conducts the Princeton chorus; and Jean McCawley, choral conductor at Milton Academy Girls' School and Vassar Summer Institute, were also in the chorus yesterday as were Mr. Woodworth's two children, Ellery and Harriet, both teachers.

NEW YORK POST July 6, 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Bach Weekend Opens at Tanglewood

Lenox, Mass., July 5—Many of the courageous listeners who turned out Friday night for the opening orchestral concert at The Berkshire Festival here on the Tanglewood Estate would have been grateful for the tents which the tribe of Mohican Indians, who reportedly once lived here, undoubtedly owned.

With 1200 music lovers inside the theater-concert hall for the all-Bach program, and with approximately 1800 sitting on blankets out on the grass, the rain began 20 minutes after the concert had started. Not to be outdone by the exciting music-making of maestro Charles Munch and a complement of the Boston Symphony, soon the downpour was performing in torrents. Thus it continued long after the event had ended.

Everyone who could find a reasonable cover, trees or better, appeared to remain for the four suites which comprised the program, one of the most stimulating orchestral Bach concerts within memory.

Munch conducted as if he had completely forgotten his recent illness. He led the chamber orchestra with a combination of relaxation and fiery temperament which roused the audience to continuous, mounting enthusiasm, despite the dampness which permeated the auditorium, open to the sky at the sides and rear.

Doriot Dwyer Scores

Each of the suites was projected with sensitivity for its aspects of contrast, notably the volatile effervescence of the B Minor for flute and string orchestra, followed after the intermission by the grandeur of the D Major with its three trumpets, two oboes, tympani and strings. Munch had dramatized the varied character of the different suites by using fewer strings in the more lyrical, graceful movements, and by reinforcing the cellos and basses with the organ at certain points.

Doriot Anthony Dwyer, solo flutist of the Bostonians, who for the fourth year in succession has appeared during the opening weekend as soloist in the B Minor suite, scored a hit. Vigorous in personality, uninhibited and a brilliant virtuoso, she highlighted an evening of superb ensemble playing.

The Festival continues with all-Bach over the weekend. Sunday Afternoons Concert features the B Minor Mass with the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society assisting. Soloist will be soprano Adele Addison, contralto Eunice Alberts, tenor Blake Stern and bass Donald Gramm.

Sunday Music...

Guggenheim Memorial Concert by Goldman Band, On the Mall, Central Park, 8:30.

"Music for a Sunday Afternoon," featuring the Seuffert Band, George F. Sueffert, conducting. Leona May Smith, trumpeter. Concert sponsored by Hamburg Savings Bank. Forest Park, Queens, 3.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

JUL 7 1958

Intimacy of Chamber Music Missing in Large Shed

Bach Goes Big in Performance at Tanglewood

By WILLIAM R. ECKHOF
Knickerbocker News Staff Writer

Bach turned big at Tanglewood Saturday night.

Originally scheduled for the small theater-concert hall, the all-Bach concert was moved into the much larger shed because of bad weather. The move itself was a practical one, what with some 6,000 listeners on hand.

* * *

BUT THE EFFECT of the [illegible]-piece chamber music orchestra in the huge shed left something to be desired.

The shed is equipped with an excellent orchestra shell. Accoustics are splendid. There was no trouble hearing the music.

But chamber music is intimate music. A high degree of contact and rapport between musicians and audience is necessary for a really satisfying performance.

• • •

I KNOW the audience felt little closeness with the musicians Saturday night because of the shed's size.

More important, I think the musicians missed the rapport equally. The size of the auditorium took on too much meaning for them, and at times they sawed away as though they were in the middle of a Strauss tone poem instead of the intimate chamber works.

Actually, it wasn't that bad. The music was well performed, and gave new insight into Bach. It even proved that works usually heard in small theaters can take on other — but equally valid — meanings before large crowds.

* * *

THE PROGRAM included the D. Miner piano concerto with Lukas Fess as soloist, and the Art of the Fugue. Charles Munch conducted the weekend series which opened the Berkshire Festival's 21st season.

Mr. Foss, a Tanglewood perennial, is a colorful performer who seems to enjoy every minute of his work. Since he and Mr. Munch share similar opinion about Bach, they worked smoothly through the difficult concerto.

There were times when the orchestra accomponiment seemed a bit muddy — but only a few times, and I suspect this was due to the size of the hall, rather than the performers.

* * *

BACH NEVER indicated what instruments he intended to perform the Art of the Fugue. It was written more as a treatise on counterpoint, and just before his death. It does not fall into what is called Bach's court period, and properly speaking, is not true chamber music.

Perhaps this accounts for the fact that the work seems to have less intimacy than the concerto. And perhaps this is why the work took on great stature, especially in its closing movements.

If the concert had shortcomings, one had to look hard for them. On the other hand, Mr. Munch's group played difficult contrapuntal passages unbelievably well and managed to inject more than "musical mathematics" into the score.

This is the real test of Bach, and the group passed admirably.

LUKAS FOSS
Bach Soloist

[C79]

UNION, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1958

BERKSHIRE CALENDAR

Beaux Arts Trio Will Be at Tanglewood Today

Activities in the Berkshires today include:

Lenox, Tanglewood, Chamber Music Concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York, 8.30.

Stockbridge, Berkshire Playhouse, "The Matchmaker" 2.30 and 8.45.

Becket, Jacob's Pillow, Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline in classic ballet pas de deux. Donald Sadler and Co. with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar, 9 p. m.

Williamstown, Williamstown Theater, "The Madwoman of Chaillot," 8.40.

Sharon, Conn., Sharon Playhouse "The Happy Time" 8.40.

Pittsfield, Berkshire Museum, paintings by Thomas Blagden, sculpture by Elizabeth MacLean Smith and David Broudo, Tuesday-Saturday 10 to 5, Sunday 2 to 5. Closed Monday.

Stockbridge, Chesterwood Studios, half mile off Rte. 183 at Glendale. Casts and bronzes by Daniel Chester French. Daily 10 to 6. Adults 50 cents children free.

Williamstown, Clark art Institute, paintings of six centuries. Also sculptures, ceramics and silver. Tuesday through Sunday 10 to 5; closed Monday.

Pittsfield, Little Cinema, unusual foreign and American feature films, nightly at 8.15; Saturdays continuous from 7.

Stockbridge, Tanglewood Gallery modern American Masters, Monday to Saturday 1 to 6.

Tryingham, Tryingham Galleries, art works by Berkshire and metropolitan artists, 10 to 5 and 6 to 8 daily, admission 25 cents, children under 12 free.

Ashley Falls, off Rte. 7, Bartholomew's Cobble, native ferns and flowers, guided tours; daily 9 to 5, admission 50 cents, children free.

Berkshire Garden Center, at junction of Rtes. 183 and 102; Monday to Saturday 9 to 5; Sunday 10 to 12.30 and 2 to 5.30.

Stockbridge, Chesterwood Studios Gardens, flower displays, 10 to 6 daily, admission 50 cents, children free.

Stockbridge, Mission House Gardens, herbs, hedges, flowers and fruit trees. Trailside Museum, 10 to 5 daily, restraurant, open week days 11 to 8. Sunday 12 to 5.30; closed Monday.

Pittsfield, Berkshire Museum, center of Pittsfield, Tuesday to Saturday 10 to 5.

Beaux Arts Trio At Lenox Today

Lenox, July 8—The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will appear in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Wednesday night at 8.30 in the second of the chamber music concerts which are part of this season's Berkshire Festival.

Members of the Beau Arts Trio are Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello and Menahem Pressler, piano. Their program will include Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120 and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, Op. 66, No. 2.

The trio made its official debut at the Berkshire Festival in 1955 and has since made several appearances in the chamber music series. Artists who will appear on subsequent Wednesday evenings include the New York Pro Musica Antiqua (July 16), Adele Addison, soprano (July 23), and the Kroll Quartet (July 30 and Aug. 6). Net proceeds from all these concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 6 - 195

Berkshire Hills Offers Mixture Of Entertainment

Pittsfield, July 5—A mixture of jazz, poetry and Mozart will be among the entertainment offerings in the Berkshire Hills this week, the second full week in the Berkshire summer schedule.

Wednesday Concert

The Mozart offerings will come from Conductor Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood in Lenox Friday and Saturday evenings and next Sunday afternoon. The mid-week Tanglewood program will feature the Beaux Arts Trio of New York in a chamber music concert Wednesday evening.

The jazz and poetry will be a tandem offering at the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox next Saturday afternoon at 3.30. The Tony Scott Quintet will provide the jazz and poet Langston Hughes, the verse. Thursday night Music Barn will have a West Indian program, and on Sunday evening Lionel Hampton and his orchestra will perform.

At Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket, Lotte Goslar, famous dancing mime, will be one of the featured entertainers in this week's program Tuesday through Saturday. The Pillow this week will also have Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline, and Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova in "This Property Is Condemned."

At the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, Thornton Wilder's famous farce, "The Matchmaker," will open a week's run tomorrow. The Williamstown Summer Theater in Williamstown is presenting Mildred Dunnock in "The Madwoman of Chaillot" this week.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 9 1958

Beaux Arts Trio At Tanglewood Festival Tonight

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will appear in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, tonight at 8:30 in the second of the Wednesday evening chamber music concerts which are part of this season's Berkshire Festival.

Members of the Beaux Arts are Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello and Menahem Pressler, piano. Their program will include Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, Op. 66, No. 2.

The trio made its official debut at the Berkshire Festival in 1955 and has since made several appearances in the chamber music series. Artists who will appear on subsequent Wednesday evenings include The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, July 16; Adele Addison, soprano, July 23, and the Kroll Quartet, July 30 and Aug. 6. Net proceeds from all these concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 10 1958

Beaux Arts Trio Gives Concert In Tanglewood Series

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York performed in the Theater-Concert Hall in Tanglewood last night in the second of the weekly series of chamber music concerts of the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival.

Members of the trio are Menahem Pressler, pianist; Daniel Guilet, violinist, and Bernard Greenhouse, cellist. Works performed included Beethoven's "Trio in E Flat, Op 1., No. 1, "Faure's "Trio in D Minor," and Mendelssohn's "Trio in C Minor, No. 2. Op. 66."

The festival continues this weekend with chamber orchestra concerts by a group of Boston Symphony musicians. The programs, Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon, will be devoted to the music of Mozart.

S Union - July 10

Beaux Arts Trio In Performance At Tanglewood

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 9 — Making a return visit to Tanglewood, the excellent Beaux Arts Trio of New York appeared in the second of the current season of chamber music concerts tonight. The Theater-Concert Hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience who recognized that fine performances of fine music were being heard

Pianist Noted

The members of the trio are Menahem Pressler, pianist; Daniel Guilet, violinist; and Bernard Greenhouse, cellist. The trio in a few seasons has become a homogeneous ensemble and an artistic entity.

Mr. Pressler is an extraordinarily fine pianist. His range of dynamics is limitless and so, unfortunately, is his range of facial grimaces. The range seems to have increased over last year. This centers the interest of the audience upon him, something of which we feel he is not conscious. However, it is a fact that listening to audience remarks during intermission, his name is most prominent.

The program opened with a beautiful performance of Beethoven's "Trio in E Flat, Op. 1, No. 1." It is a work of great beauty, rich in texture and wholly imaginative. Messers. Guilet, Greenhouse and Pressler intrepreted the work with distinction. One seldom hears a performance born of such unity of thought and mutual expression.

Faure Work Heard

After Beethoven, Faure's "Trio in D Minor" was an anticlimax. It is a thoroughly lyrical work, particularly expressive in its second movement, and andantino. It requires virtuoso performers for complete revelation and that was what it had tonight. From our seat it was difficult most of the evening to hear the cellist, except in solo passages where it was rich and colorful. Mr. Guilet's violin sang sweetly the entire evening.

The final work on the program was Mendelssohn's "Trio in C Minor, No. 2, Op. 66." It is the second of his two trios dedicated to Louis Spohr. The first movement is an exquisite exposition of piano arpeggios beneath a melodic line evenly distributed between the violin and piano.

We have seldom heard a more beautiful, sensitive ensemble. The entire work is melodic and it places unusual dynamic demands upon performers. All were met with the distinction possible when undertaken by a trio of virtuosi, willing to subordinate self for the benefit of the whole. Musicianship such as one witnessed tonight is rare and to be cherished.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 9 1958

Tanglewood Stars Trio

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will appear in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, tonight at 8:30 in the second of the Wednesday evening Chamber Music concerts which are part of this season's Berkshire Festival.

Members of the Beaux Arts Trio are Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello and Menahem Pressler, piano. Their program will include Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120 and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, Op. 66, No. 2.

The trio made its official debut at the Berkshire Festival in 1955 and has since made several appearances in the chamber music series. Artists who will appear on subsequent Wednesday evenings include The New York Pro Musica Antiqua (July 16), Adele Addison, soprano (July 23), and the Kroll Quartet (July 30 and August 6). Net proceeds from all these concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

EAGLE
7/8/58

Beaux Arts Trio Appear Tomorrow At Tanglewood

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will appear in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood tomorrow night at 8:30 in the second of the Wednesday evening Chamber Music concerts which are part of this season's Berkshire Festival.

Members of the Beaux Arts Trio are Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, cello and Menahem Pressler, piano. Their program will include Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120 and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, Op. 66, No. 2.

The trio made its official debut at the Berkshire Festival in 1955, and has since made several appearances in the chamber music series. Artists who will appear on subsequent Wednesday evenings include The New York Pro Musica Antiqua (July 16), Adele Addison, soprano (July 23), and the Kroll Quartet (July 30 and August 6). Net proceeds from all these concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUL 9 1958

Chamber Music

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York appears in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, tonight at 8:30 in the second of the Wednesday evening Chamber Music concerts of the Berkshire Festival.

The trio is composed of Daniel Guilet, violin, Bernard Greenhouse, 'cello, and Manahem Pressler, piano. Their program will include Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, Op. 66, No. 2.

EAGLE 7/10/58

Music Review

The Beaux Arts Trio

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

A CONCERT by the Beaux Arts Trio of New York in the theater at Tanglewood last night was the second event in the Wednesday evening chamber music series. They started with the Beethoven E flat trio Opus 1, No. 1, then played the D minor Fauré trio, Opus 120, and ended with the Mendelssohn C minor, No. 2, Opus 66. The members of the trio are Menahem Pressler, piano, Daniel Guilet, violin, and Bernard Greenhouse, cello.

Although the designation would seem to denote a first effort, Beethoven's Opus one was far from his first composition for small ensembles. There is a record of 17 previous quartets, trios, etc., which never were allowed to see the publisher's light of day. Thus the trio played to open last night's program was already the work of a moderately experienced 23-year-old composer. Beethoven himself said "when I reread the manuscript I wondered at my folly in collecting in a single work materials enough for twenty."

* * *

AT THE OTHER end of the scale was the Fauré trio which was written when he was 79, his last year of life. How he still had within his grasp so much elegance, with a minimum of ornamentation, and such rhythmic originality, as in the last movement, is a marvel. At the time he was engaged in writing this trio, he, like Beethoven, had lost his hearing. He had had to give up his post as director of the Paris conservatoire because of this failing, but in his final years of retirement he still was the fastidious and discreet musician of the earlier years.

Mendelssohn wrote his C minor trio when he was 49, shortly before his death. This was the work which seemed to find the most sympathetic response from the artists of the evening. They caught its spirit of agitation, and in the ensuing slow movement the grace of the lovely, expressive melody. They gave the speedy scherzo a virtuoso reading, and ended with such a flourish that they were required to add another little lagniappe, which proved to be the second movement of the Ravel trio, written 10 years before the Fauré. This scintillating little excerpt of Ravel pointed up dramatically how the venerable patriach Fauré still lived musically in the previous century.

* * *

THE INDIVIDUAL members of the trio are all splendid chamber musicians and their ensemble is excellent. Pressler adjusts his piano tone to the limited range of his string colleagues with superb control while still maintaining a wholesome sonority, but the degree of refinement they search for, and achieve, becomes precious to the point of exasperation. It is as though they use the aural equivalent of a microscope to focus their sound lens on the smallest details. Some lovely phrases were "sung" with flowing line, but of all the ingredients required to make a performance completely satisfactory, the factor of [illegible] is one that can least be spared. Pressler's awareness of this essential substance, and at times his cellist confrere, was not sufficient alone to make the evening successful.

[80]

EAGLE 7/10/58

Richard Burgin Conducts Student Symphony Tonight

Richard Burgin

TANGLEWOOD — The student orchestra of the Berkshire Music Center will present its second concert of the season this evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed.

The concert will open with the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, conducted by Claudio Abbado of Milan, Italy. Two works of contemporary composers follow: Six Orchestra Pieces by Anton von Webern conducted by Joseph Kreines of Chicago, Ill., and William Schuman's "New England Triptych" conducted by David Zinman of New York City. The second half of the program will be under the direction of Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and member of the faculty of orchestral conducting at the school. Burgin will conduct the First Symphony of Dimitri Shostakovitch.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 10 1958

Second Sunday Morning Chamber Concert Set

The second in the series of Sunday morning Chamber Music Concerts of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be presented at 10 o'clock this Sunday.

The program will include pieces by Brahms, Ibert and Franck. The work of Brahms was prepared under the direction of William Kroll of the Department of Chamber Music. The Ibert and Franck works were prepared by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Doriot Anthony Dwyer, principal flute and Bernard Zighera, pianist and harpist.

This concert is one of the many under the auspices of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Also in the Chamber Music Hall on Saturday there will be a special concert open to the public. The program will begin at 3 p. m. and feature Walter McKibben, countertenor and viola de gamba, accompanied by Ephraim Segerman, lute and tenor viol, in a program of songs.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.
NEW YORKER
D. 27,999 S. 28,943

Concerts Set At Tanglewood

Concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director, who will share next Sunday afternoon's program with Hugh Ross.

On Friday night in the Theater-Concert Hall, 8:30 o'clock, the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke". Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be the soloists in the "Sinfonia Concertante".

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday night will be conducted in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the "Two Piano Concerto."

EAGLE July 11

Program Listed For Tanglewood Chamber Concert

The second in the series of Sunday morning chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Music Center will be presented at 10 a.m., July 13. The program will include pieces by Brahms, Ibert, and Franck. The work of Brahms was prepared under the direction of William Kroll of the department of chamber music. The Ibert and Franck works were prepared by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Doriot Anthony Dwyer, principal flute, and Bernard Zighera, pianist and harpist.

This concert is another of the many under the auspices of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

The program will consist of the Quartet No. 1 in C Minor, Opus 51, by Brahms; Three Pieces for Wind Quintet by Ibert; and the Quintet in F Minor for Two Violins, Viola, Violincello and Piano by Franck.

Also in the Chamber Music Hall on Saturday there will be a special concert open to the public. The program will begin at 3 p.m. and feature Walt McKibben, countertenor and Viola de Gamba accompanied by Ephraim Segerman, lute and tenor viol, in a program of songs.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

UL 9 1958

Music Center Orchestra Will Play Tomorrow

The student orchestra of the Berkshire Music Center will present its second concert of the season tomorrow evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The concert will open with the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony conducted by Claudio Abbado of Milan, Italy. Two works of contemporary composers follow: Six Orchestra Pieces by Anton von Webern conducted by Joseph Kreines of Chicago, Ill., and William Schuman's "New England Triptych" conducted by David Zinman of New York City. The second half of the program will be under the direction of Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and member of the faculty of orchestral conducting at the school. Mr. Burgin will conduct the First Symphony of Dimitri Shostakovitch.

Express (e)
NEWPORT, Vt.
Republican
Circ. 4146

JUL 12 1958

Vermonter in Washington

By Vonda Bergman

Vermont is to be one of the first states to extend hospitality in the initial Russo-American Student Exchange Program.

Ten Russian students, or one-half of the 20 young Russian men and women just arrived in this country, will spend the first few days of next week within the Green Mountain state.

Middlebury College and The Experiment in International Living at Putney will be hosts to the young Russians, according to the State Department.

The Soviet Youth Committee, which is picking up the check for the students' visit, selected both graduate and undergraduate students for the trip.

While this group tours New England, the Middle West, the South, then comes on to Washington, the second section will be traveling across country and touring the West coast.

Life in the United States—first hand—is the general theme of their visit. Much of the accent will be on meetings with college leaders on different campuses around the country.

Enroute to Vermont they plan to visit the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. In Illinois, they will visit Abraham Lincoln's birthplace at Springfield. A boat trip up the Mississippi, a visit to the TVA development and to a Cherokee Indian Reservation in the Great Smokies of North Carolina are among the highlights on their itinerary.

The State Department admitted that in arranging for the exchange visit it had had to temporarily "open" some of the areas of the United States normally closed to Soviet visitors. Among these is Tanglewood in the Berkshires.

At the same time the Soviet young people arrive in Vermont our United States student exchangees, 40 in number, will be getting their introduction to Moscow and the start of a similar tour of the Soviet Union.

Senator Flanders is seeking a second new highway postoffice in an attempt to improve Vermont's mail service.

The Post Office Department is putting on a new mobile highway postoffice to serve White River Jct., Wells River and several New Hampshire areas July 21, but the Senator also sees need for a second operation between Boston and Rutland.

In a letter to Asst. Postmaster General John M. McKibben he this week noted the discontinuance of the passenger and mail trains between Bellows Falls and Boston and wrote: "I would like to see them replaced with a highway postoffice between Boston and Rutland. This would begin to bring back a service that has been sadly deteriorating."

In making the request the Senator observed that the Albany-Rutland Highway Postoffice has proved successful during its several years of operation.

The Democratic National Committee in its current newsletter, "For and About Women", cites the Vermont Democratic State Committee for recently voting equality to women.

Vermont National Committeewoman Beatrice Schurman of Newport reported that the party's State committee voted 50-50 participation, "meaning that all Democratic Party comittees must have equal representation of men and women."

This brings the number of 50-50 states to 20, according to the news letter editor. Twenty other states have equal representation on some but not all political committees and eight states have no regulation.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
Circ. D. 97,224 - S. 143,181

JUL 6 1958

Mozart Music Week's Feature At Tanglewood

The concerts of the Berkshire Festival this week at Tangelwood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be devoted to Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday evening at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke." Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph DePasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante. The "Linz" symphony will also be given.

Saturday evening Dr. Munch's program will open with "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and the Symphony No. 40.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30. Following a performance of the "Haffner" Symphony, Lipkin will again be soloist in the Piano Concerto in C major. After intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several religious choral works of Mozart.

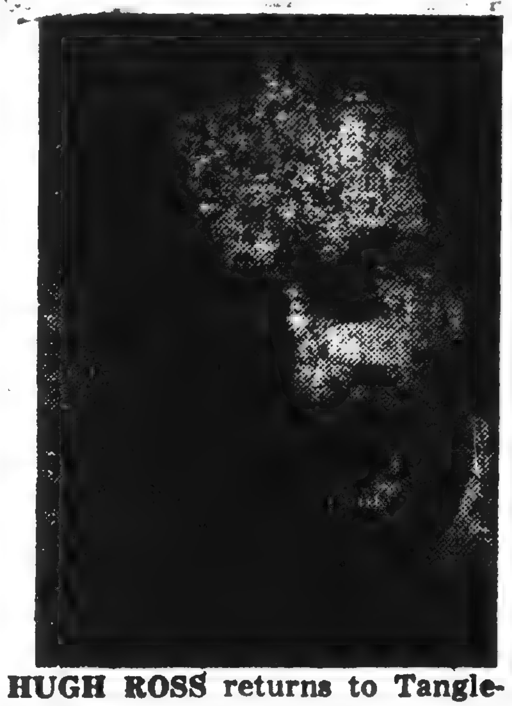
Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Next week's Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., features the works of Mozart on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with the Beaux Arts Trio on Wednesday, July 9, performing music of Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn. Charles Munch conducts the programs on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of the Boston Symphony, with Hugh Ross conducting the second half of Sunday's program, the Kyrie and Graduale from Mozart's Coronation Mass. Details of the week's concerts will be found in the Weekly Calendar.

VALATIE, N. Y.
ROUGH NOTES
Circ. W. 1,000

JUL 4 1958



HUGH ROSS returns to Tanglewood as Choral Director of the Berkshire Music Center. On Sunday, July 13, Mr. Ross will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and ~~the Festival Chorus~~, composed of Berkshire Music Center students. The program will include Kyrie, K. 341; Graduale, K. 273; Mass, K. 317 by Mozart.

All Mozart Concerts at Tanglewood

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, ~~Lenox, Mass.~~, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

On Friday evening, July 11, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturdya evening, July 12, will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

a [1 [82]

ATHENS, N. Y.
HERALD

JUL 10 1958

MILLBROOK, N. Y.
ROUND TABLE
Circ. W. 673

JUL 3 1958

All Mozart Concerts At Berkshire Festival

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

On Friday evening (July 11) in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening (July 12) will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik". The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony ....o. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood appearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert on July 9, at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra on Thursday evening (July 10) at 8:30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the Seminar on contemporary music on Friday afternoon (July 11) at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall; and on Sunday (July 13) a chamber music concert by students at 10 A.M. in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the chamber Music Hall at 8:30 P.M.

Tanglewood Topics

Pierre Monteux, 83-year-old guest conductor at this season's Berkshire Festival, has just returned from a busy round of conducting engagements in Europe. The critic of the London Times said of Mr. Monteux, echoing the feeling of many regular Tanglewood visitors for this beloved conductor:

"He stands firmly erect, his old fashioned Gallic moustachios radiating confidence, a monument to stability. He does not need to coax, let alone intimidate, an orchestra into response; he exercises mastery in serenity, with a narrow beat that is as clear as a bell, and left-hand gestures that do not beckon nor inveigh, but merely jog a player's conscience."

* * *

A popular feature of the Tanglewood season are the Saturday morning open rehearsals by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The opportunity of hearing the orchestra at work preparing for one of the week-end programs in an informal atmosphere is enjoyed by many people each week. A modest admission charge of $1 is donated to the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

* * *

Much-Traveled Man

Harry Ellis Dickson, first violinist of the Boston Symphony and assistant conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, is probably the most-traveled man in the orchestra these days. Between rehearsals at Tanglewood for the Bach-Mozart concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the mornings and conducting concerts on Boston's Esplanade in the evenings, Mr. Dickson has probably set a record for trips between Lenox and Boston. He has made a round trip almost every day.

* * *

Mr. Dickson and his colleagues, about 70 of them, arrive at Tanglewood in the coming week when the entire orchestra of 105 men is asssembled for the four weeks of Music Shed concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Dr. Charles Munch, who has not seen his entire orchestra together since the close of its winter season in April, will meet with them at the first rehearsal on Wednesday afternoon.

* * *

George Humphrey, viola, and Karl Zeise, cello, both members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have recently arrived at Tanglewood after a trip to Iceland. Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Zeise visited Iceland several years ago, and when their plane was grounded in Reykjavik they passed the time playing informal chamber music with two colleagues, both violinists in the National Symphony Orchestra of Iceland.

* * *

On their recent trip, made with the co-operation of the State Department, the four players toured Iceland for three weeks, playing quartets, Mr. Humphrey reports that they were most cordially received everywhere and that their most enthusiastic audiences were in small towns where live chamber music, or indeed music of any kind, is a rarity.

* * *

Back From Europe

Hilde Gueden, Metropolitan opera soprano, who arrives tomorrow for rehearsals in preparation for her performance in the Brahms Requiem Saturday evening at the Berkshire Festival, has just returned from Europe. While there she was presented with the Silver Rose, awarded by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra for "outstanding artistic achievements." Miss Gueden is noted for her performances in Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier." the opera in which the original silver rose is presented to her in her role as Sophie.

* * *

Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, whose name is closely associated with Tanglewood and all its activities will be honored at the Berkshire Festival concert on Saturday evenin ;. Dr. Charles Munch will conduct a performance of the Brahms Requiem inmemory of his predecessor.

* * *

Joanne Smith, 12-year-old daughter of the Boston Esplanade Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. Joanne, who will attend Ted Mack's camp in the Berkshires this summer, performed the first movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 1 in C.

* * *

David Lloyd, tenor, a former student of the Berkshires Music Center who has since become well known throughout the country for his many performances in opera and concert, has returned to the opera department, where he was once a student himself. He will coach students in diction.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS
Cir. D. 137,553

JUL 5 1958

Lively Arts

MUSICIANS — At Newport, R. I., Benny Goodman pointed his clarinet back to the 1930s and nostalgia became the theme of the first annual American Jazz Festival . . . An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire symphonic festival at Tanglewood, Mass., last night, under direction of Dr. Charles Munch

GOODMAN

MUNCH

---

DANBURY, CONN.
NEWS-TIMES
Circ. D. 15,916

JUL 5 1958

Concerts Start At Tanglewood

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 1,500 music lovers attended the opening concert of the Bach-Mozart series of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood last night.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted the program which consisted of Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, and 4 and featured as soloist flutist Doriot Anthony Dwyer.

The program inaugurated the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, founded by the orchestra in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of the late Serge Koussevitzky.

Tonight's program features Lukas Foss as soloist in Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Dr. Munch conducting.

Music

Programs for next week at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass are: Wednesday, July 9, Theatre Concert Hall, Beaux Arts Trio in, Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Beethoven; Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Faure; Trio in C minor, No. 2, Op. 66; Mendelssohn; Friday, July 11, Theatre Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Musical Joke, K. 522, Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, soloists, Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale; Linz Symphony, all by Mozart; Saturday, July 12, Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Two Piano Concerto K 365, soloists, Lukas Foss, Seymour Liptkin, Serenade No. 10 in B flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Mozart, above at 8:30 p.m.; Sunday, July 13, 2:30 p.m., Theatre Concert Hall, Boston Symphony, all-Mozart; Haffner Symphony, Piano Concerto in C major, Lipkin; Kyrie and Graduale from Coronation Mass; this week end, July 5, Bach's Piano Concerto in D Minor, Foss; Sunday, Bach's B Minor Mass.

The second concert of the Berkshire Quartet at Music Mountain, Falls Village, Sunday, July 6, at 4 p.m., will feature an all-Beethoven program. Included will be the Quartet in C major, Op. 18, No. 4; Quartet in E flat major, Op. 74, and the Quartet in C major, op. 59, No. 3.

The Summer Pops Concert Series of the Connecticut Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Jonel Perlea, opens Friday evening, July 11, at 8:30 o'clock, and will feature Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, leading soprano of the Vienna State Opera, with Wilfred Pelletier as guest conductor. The summer concerts of the orchestra are held at the Fairfield University stadium. Ticket orders should be sent to Fairfield County Symphony Society, 1483 Post Road, Fairfield, Conn.

The Don Cossack Chorus, under the direction of Serge Jaroff, will give a concert in Litchfield High School, Litchfield, Saturday afternoon, July 5 at 3 o'clock for the benefit of the St. Nicholas Foundation. Russian liturgical and folk music will be presented.

SCHENECTADY GAZETTE

Berkshire Festival Plans Week of Mozart Concerts

Concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, its music director, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

* * *

EVENING PROGRAMS are at 8:30 o'clock and afternoon programs at 2:30 o'clock.

The Friday evening program will include the "Musical Joke, K. 522," "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale as soloists; and the "Linz Symphoony number 36, C major."

The Saturday evening program will be presented in the Music Shed and will feature "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," the two-piano Concerto K. 365 with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin as soloists; the "Serenade number 10 in B-flat for winds" and the "Symphony number 40 in G minor."

* * *

THE SUNDAY afternoon program, Theatre-Concert Hall, will include the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467" with Lipkin as soloist. The part of the program to be conducted by Ross will include the "Kyrie K. 341," "Graduale, K. 273", and the "Coronation" mass. Soloists will be Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley and Lawrence Chelsi.

The Beaux Arts Trio chamber music program will be this evening in the Theatre Concert Hall. The program will be the Beethoven "Trio in E flat, opus 1, number 1"; Faure "Trio in D minor, opus 120"; and the Mendelssohn "Trio number 2 in C minor, opus 66." Members of the trio are Menahem Pressler, piano; Daniel Guilet, violin; and Bernard Greenhouse, cello. Proceeds of the Wednesday evening concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,176

JUL 5 1958

RUTH POSSELT—A violinist, she will play in Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante at the Berkshire Festival.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 5 - 1958

Mozart Music for Tanglewood

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

On Friday evening (July 11) in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke," K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante, K. 364. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The concert Saturday evening (July 12) will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, and the Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Mr. Lipkin will be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467.

After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart — the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341; the Graduale, K. 273; and the Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317. These works will be performed at Tanglewood for the first time. Soloists for the Mass will include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood appearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert on July 9 at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Members include Menahem Pressler, piano; Daniel Guilet, violin; and Bernard Greenhouse, cello. They will perform Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Fauré's Trio in D minor, Op. 120; and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, No. 2, Op. 66. Proceeds of the concert benefit the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund.

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200

JUL 6 - 1958

HUGH ROSS, choral director of the Berkshire Music Center, in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Sunday, July 13, will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Festival Chorus, composed of Berkshire Music Center students, in a program of music by Mozart.

[82]

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553
JUL 6 1958

NORFOLK MUSIC SCHOOL SERIES

The third concert in Yale's Norfolk Music School series will be given by faculty members on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 in the Music Shed at Norfolk. The program of both vocal and instrumental works is listed as follows: Trio in E flat major for piano, clarinet, and viola (K. 498)—Mozart; Frauenliebe und Leben, Op. 42—Schumann; Folk Songs—Benjamin Britten; Concerto a tre for clarinet, violin, and cello—Ingolf Dahl. The performers are to be Helen Boatwright, soprano; Benjamin De Loache, baritone; Arthur Hague, piano; Howard Boatwright, violin; Luigi Silva, cello; Keith Wilson, clarinet, and Lillian Fuchs, viola.

Mrs. Boatwright and Mr. De Loache, who are to have the featured vocal roles in this third program, won extravagant critical acclaim for their solo performances in Haydn's "The Seasons," which was presented just recently by the Litchfield County Choral Union in the Norfolk Music Shed. On Wednesday, the soprano will be heard in the Schumann opus while the baritone will offer four songs by the contemporary English composer. Mr. Hague will act as accompanist for both singers.

The "Concerto a tre," by the American composer, has also created unusual interest in Wednesday's concert.

BOSTON SYMPHONY'S COMING CONCERTS

The Boston Symphony's three concerts in this second week of the Berkshire Music Festival will be devoted to the music of Mozart. Charles Munch will conduct the Friday and Saturday evening concerts and in next Sunday afternoon's concert he will share the podium with Hugh Ross. The latter has headed the department of choral music of the Berkshire Music Center, the celebrated school at the festival, for many years.

Friday evening's concert in the Theater Concert Hall will present the great composer's Musical Joke (K.522), the Symphony No. 36 in C major ("Linz"), and the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola. The soloists in the latter performance are to be violinist Ruth Posselt and violist Joseph De Pasquale. Both artists are faculty members at the Music Center and De Pasquale is the first chair violist of the Boston Orchestra.

Saturday's all-Mozart concert lists the following works:. "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," the serenade for string orchestra; Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365; Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361; Symphony No. 40 in G minor. Pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, faculty members of the Music Center, are to be the soloists in the concerto.

Lipkin will also have a solo role in next Sunday afternoon's concert. He will be featured in the C major Piano Concerto, K. 467 and Mr. Munch will also conduct the "Haffner" Symphony. Ross will conduct the second half of the concert which will mark the first festival performances of three Mozart choral works. They are the Kyrie in D minor(K. 341), the Graduale (K. 273), and the "Coronation Mass" in C major(K. 317), to be sung by the Festival Chorus and soloists.

The Beaux Arts Trio (Menahem Pressler, piano; Daniel Guilet, violin; Bernard Greenhouse, cello) will appear in Wednesday evening's Chamber Music Concert, playing trios by Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Faure.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
Circ. D. 61,009 - S. 119,412
JUL 6 1958

Week of Mozart Concerts On Tanglewood Schedule

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share next Sunday afternoon's concert with Hugh Ross.

Charles Munch, director of the Tanglewood Music Festival, will conduct the series of Mozart concerts in the Music Shed Friday and Saturday evenings, at 8:30 o'clock and Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 P. M.

Today, the Festival will continue its weekend program devoted to Bach with the presentation of the composer's B-Minor Mass.

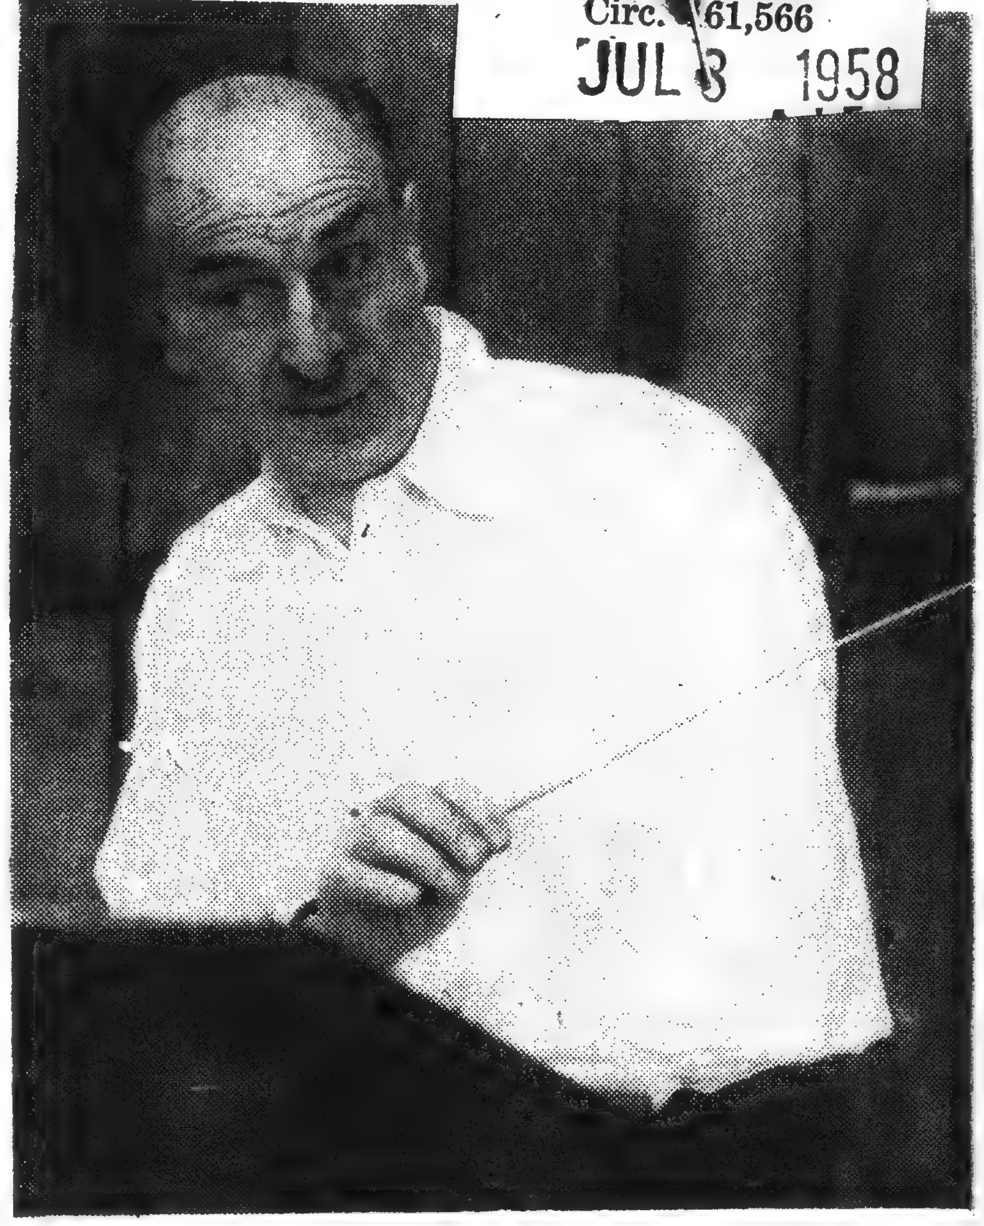
On Friday evening in the Theatre - Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke." Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and the Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart; the Kyrie in D minor, the Graduale, and the "Coronation Mass" in C major, performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall and admission is $1.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Nonpartisan
Circ. 161,566
JUL 8 1958



Hugh Ross, choral director of the Berkshire Music Center, will conduct the Boston Symphony in a program of Mozart choral music at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044
JUL 6 - 1958

Mozart In the Berkshires

The concerts of the second week end of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, beginning next Friday evening, will be devoted to music by Mozart. Charles Munch will conduct an orchestra of Boston Symphony musicians. Programs of the week follow:

Today at 2:30, Music Shed. Bach: Mass in B minor, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth. Choruses: Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Soloists: Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, bass.

Wednesday at 8:30, Theater—Concert Hall. Beaux Arts Trio, in music of Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn.

Friday at 8:30, Theater — Concert Hall. Charles Munch conducting. Mozart: "A Musical Joke"; Sinfonia Concertante, soloists: Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola; "Linz" Symphony.

Saturday at 8:30, Music Shed. Charles Munch conducting. Mozart: "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; Concerto for Two Pianos (K. 365), soloists: Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin; Serenade in B flat, No. 10, for winds, Symphony in G minor, No. 40.

Sunday, July 13, at 2:30, Theater—Concert Hall. Charles Munch conducting: Mozart: "Haffner" Symphony, Piano Concerto in C major (K. 467) soloist: Seymour Lipkin. Hugh Ross conducting: Mozart Kyrie (K. 341); Graduale (K. 273); "Coronation" Mass; soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Cheis..

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271
JUL 6 - 1958

Music, Dance Festivals Active

Berkshire Festival This Week

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

The Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall and admission is $1.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra on Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the Seminor on Contemporary Music (Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions) on Friday afternoon at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall; and next Sunday a chamber music concert by students at 10 A.M. in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 P.M.

The complete programs for the week are as follows:

Wednesday, at 8:30, Theatre Concert Hall, Beaux Arts Trio, Beethoven, Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure Trio in D minor, Op. 120; Mendelssohn, Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

Friday at 8:30, Theatre-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra; Charles Munch, Conductor; Mozart, Musical Joke, K. 522; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, (Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph De Pasquale), "Linz" Symphony No. 36, C major.

Saturday 8:30, Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Conductor; Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Two-Piano Concerto K. 365; (Soloists: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin), Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Sunday 2:30, Theatre-Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch; Mozart, "Haffner" Symphony, Piano Concerto C major, K. 467, (Soloist: Seymour Lipkin), conducted by Hugh Ross, Mozart, Kyrie K. 341, Graduale, K. 273, "Coronation" Mass., (Soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelst).

The closing concerts of the first Festival weekend will take place today at 2:30 in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass. Berkshire.

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 142,739
JUL 6 - 1958

Mozart Music Week's Feature At Tanglewood

The concerts of the Berkshire Festival this week at Tangelwood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be devoted to Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday evening at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke." Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph DePasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante. The "Linz" symphony will also be given.

Saturday evening Dr. Munch's program will open with "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and the Symphony No. 40.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert at 2:30. Following a performance of the "Haffner" Symphony, Lipkin will again be soloist in the Piano Concerto in C major. After intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several religious choral works of Mozart.

OBSCURED TEXT

THE SPRINGFIELD SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., JULY 6, 1958

Among Featured Performers at Tanglewood This Week

SEYMOUR LIPKIN

RUTH POSSELT

Pictured here are a few of this week's featured performers at Tanglewood. Ruth Posselt, violinist, who has had a brilliant career, will be heard with the Boston Symphony Orchestra Friday evening. Miss Posselt will join with Joseph de Pasquale in the Sinfonia Concertante of Mozart in the Theater Concert Hall. Seymour Lipkin, pianist, will appear with Conductor Charles Munch and the orchestra in performances of the works of Mozart Saturday and next Sunday afternoons. The Beaux Arts Trio, pictured above, will present a concert of chamber music at the Theater Concert Hall Wednesday evening.

Tanglewood's Second Week To Be Devoted to Mozart

Charles Munch and Hugh Ross to Conduct Next Sunday's Performance in Theater Concert Hall; Beaux Arts Trio to Be Heard Wednesday

Lenox, July 5 The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday Concert

On Friday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8.30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, Aug. 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening (July 12) will be held in the Music Shed at 8.30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Lipkin Soloist

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at 2.30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission, Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart; the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. 273, and the Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317. All these works are here performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood appearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert on the 9th at 8.30 in the Theater Concert Hall. Members of the trio include Menahem Pressler, Piano; Daniel Guilet, violin, and Bernard Greenhouse, cello, and they will perform Beethoven's Trio in E-flat Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120 and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, No. 2, Op. 66. Proceeds of the concert benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra on Thursday evening at 8.30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music (Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions) on Friday afternoon at 3.15 in the Chamber Music Hall; and on Sunday (July 13) a chamber music concert by students at 10 a. m. in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8.30 p. m.

Complete programs for the coming week are as follows:

Wednesday, July [illegible] Theater Concert Hall, Beaux Arts Trio
Beethoven, Trio [illegible] No. 1
Faure, Trio in D minor, Op. [illegible]
Mendelssohn, Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66
Friday, July 11, at 8.30 p. m. Theater Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Conductor.
Mozart, Musical Joke [illegible] Sinfonia Concertante [illegible] Posselt [illegible] Viola, (Soloists: R[illegible] De Pasquale) "Linz" Symphony No. [illegible] C major; Saturday, [illegible] Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Conductor.
Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" [illegible] Two-Piano Concerto K. 365, (Seymour Lipkin) [illegible] Lukas Foss [illegible] for Winds, Symphony No. [illegible] in [illegible] No. [illegible] in [illegible]
Sunday, July 13, 2.30 p. m. Theater Concert Hall, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor.
Mozart, "Haffner" Symphony [illegible] Concerto C [illegible] K. 467, (Soloist: Seymour Lipkin) [illegible] conducted by Hugh Ross.
Mozart, Kyrie K. 341; Graduale, K. 273 [illegible] "Coronation" Mass (Soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelsi)

Town Crier
WESTPORT, Conn.
Bi-Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,200

JUL 6 - 1958

Mozart's Weekend . . .

A weekend devoted to the music of Mozart will highlight events at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its music director, Charles Munch.

On Friday, July 11, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364.

Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening, July 12 will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss (also members of the Berkshire Music Center Faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday, July 13, concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30 o'clock. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467.

After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Fest[illegible] several choral works of Mozart; the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. [illegible] and the Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317. All these works are here performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
UNION-STAR
Circ. D. 36,678

JUL 7 1958

Trio to Give Program at Tanglewood

LENOX, Mass., July 7—The first of this week's concerts at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will be presented Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. by the Beaux Arts Trio. Its program in the Theater-Concert Hall will include trios by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn.

The first of three Mozart concerts next weekend will take place Friday at 8:30 p.m., also in the Theater-Concert Hall, when Charles Munch will conduct "A Musical Joke," "Sinfonia Concertante" and the "Linz Symphony in C Major, K. 425."

Soloists for the first work will be Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola.

Mozart Programs

On Saturday at 8:30 p.m. the second Mozart concert will be given in the Music Shed and the program will consist of "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," the "Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365" with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as soloists, the "Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361" and "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor." Munch will conduct.

Munch will conduct the first half of the third Mozart concert Sunday at 2:30 p.m. during which the "Haffner Symphony" and the "Piano Concerto in C Major, K. 467" will be played. The soloist for the latter will be Seymour Lipkin.

Choral Works

After intermission, Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several of Mozart's choral works, one of which is the "Coronation Mass in D Minor, K. 317." The soloists for the mass will be Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okersen, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday at 10 a.m. will be open to the public.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 8 1958

Second Week of Tanglewood Will Be Devoted to Mozart

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, this week will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday Evening

On Friday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale have played with the orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C Major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusil." The pianists, Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Munch to Conduct

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart; the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. 273, and the Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317. All these works will be performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood appearance in the second Chamber Music Concert tomorrow evening at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Members of the trio include Menahem Pressler, piano; Daniel Guilet, violin, and Bernard Greenhouse, cello, and they will perform Beethoven's Trio in E-flat Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120 and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, No. 2, Op. 66. Proceeds of the concert benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Music Center

Berkshire Music Center events of the week all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music with Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions on Friday afternoon at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall; and on Sunday a chamber music concert by students at 10 a.m. in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 p.m.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD
Circ. D. 89,399 - S. 97,610

JUL 6 1958

Mozart on Tap At Berkshire

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch.

The all-Mozart concert at 8:[illegible] p.m. Saturday (July 12) [illegible] ture pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss. They will pla[illegible] two-piano concert.

At 2:30 p.m. Sunday the Haffner symphony will be played and Lipkin will be soloist for the piano concerto in C major. Hugh Ross will conduct Mozart's "Coronation Mass."

EAGLE 7/10/58

Lipkin To Conduct At N.Y. Center Opera

TANGLEWOOD — Seymour Lipkin, who will be soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra here Sunday, has been appointed to the regular conducting staff of the New York City Center Opera Company.

Mr. Lipkin will conduct at the City Center in the fall. He conducted two performances of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti" at the center last winter.

A student of conducting at Tanglewood for three years under the late Serge Koussevitsky, Mr. Lipkin has been a faculty member for the past 10 years. He teaches in the department of orchestral conducting.

Mr. Lipkin will be solo pianist with the BSO Sunday and will play a piano duet with Lukas Foss Saturday.

News
WEST HARTFORD,
Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,076

JUL 10 1958

tions through Enterprise 776.

Tanglewood. It's Mozart weekend. "Musical Joke" K 522 and Sinfonia Concertante at 8:30 Friday. Eine Kleine Nachtmusik and Two-Piano Concerto K 365 at 8:30 Saturday. Haffner Symphony and Piano Concerto in C Major, K 467 at 2:30 Sunday. Inforamtion through Lenox

---

The closing [illegible] the first Festival week [illegible] place Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and soloists Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, in a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass.

[83]

OBSCURED TEXT

d Week
Mozart

Conduct Next ater Concert
d Wednesday

5—The concerts
Berkshire Festival
wood, will be de-music of Mozart.
mphony Orchestra
ted by its Music
s Munch, who will ay afternoon con-
Ross.
Concert
evening in the Hall at 8.30 the pen with Mozart's ke" K. 522. Ruth and Joseph De
, will be soloists
a Concertante K.
sselt and Mr. De both familiar to udiences, having e orchestra many n are members of the Berkshire Mu-Ir. De Pasquale,
the Boston Symra, will also be the season in the oncerto on Friday,
program will close
" Symphony in C rt concert of Sat-(July 12) will be usic Shed at 8.30.

program will open ade for String Or-Kleine Nachtmu-pianists Seymour kas Foss (also both e Berkshire Music will be soloists in Concerto, K. 365. will close with the 13 Wind Instru-and the well-known
40 in G minor.
Soloist
will conduct the Sunday afternoon's
Theater-Concert
Following a per-
Mozart's "Haffner"
385, Seymour Lip-be soloist in a per-the Piano Concerto
After the in-
Ross will con-estra and the Fes-
in several choral zart; the Kyrie in 341, the Graduale,
he Coronation Mass
K. 317. All these here performed for ne at Tanglewood.
the Mass include ng, soprano; Doris tralto; Richard Gil-nd Lawrence Chelsi.

Symphony Or-earsal on Saturday 12, at 10 will be public for the benefit on Fund. The rebe held in the rt Hall.
Arts Trio will make anglewood appear-second Wednesday
mber Music Concert
8.30 in the Theater
Members of the Menahem Pressler,
l Guilet, violin, and enhouse, cello, and erform Beethoven's at Op. 1, No. 1:
in D minor, Op. 120
sohn's Trio in C
, Op. 66. Proceeds benefit the Tangle-lving Scholarship

Music Center events
ll of which are open the Center, include the Student Orchesday evening at 8.30
Shed; the second e Seminar on Con-
usic (Roger Sessions his own composiriday afternoon at
hamber Music Hall;
y (July 13) a chamcert by students at the Chamber Music
Composer's Forum,
hamber Music Hall

programs for the are as follows:
July 9, 8.30 p. m.
Hall, Beaux Arts Trio
rio in E-flat, Op. 1,
D minor, Op. 120
Trio No. 2 in C minor.
11, at 8.30 p. m. Theal, Boston Symphony Or-Munch, Conductor
ical Joke, K. 522, rtante for Violin and Ruth Posselt, Joseph
"Linz" Symphony No. 36.
rday, July 12, 8.30 p. m. oston Symphony Orches-nch, Conductor
Kleine Nachtmusik" (Soloists: Serenade
Symphony
m. Theater
Orches-
Piano
Soloist
Hugh Ross,
uale, K. 273, "Cor-
Soloists: Sarah Flem-
erson, Richard Gilley

EAGLE 7/8/58

Soloists at Tanglewood

Lukas Foss, at left, and Seymour Lipkin will join forces Saturday evening in the Shed at Tanglewood to play Mozart's concerto in E-flat major for two pianos and orchestra, K.365, with Charles Munch conducting. All-Mozart program will include "Eine Kleine Nachmusik."

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUL 7 1958

ALL-MOZART CONCERTS SET AT FESTIVAL

Charles Munch, Hugh Ross to Direct Sunday Program

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

On Friday in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8.30 p. m. the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, Aug. 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C. major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday night will be held in the Music Shed at 8.30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2.30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart; the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. 273, and the "Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317. All these works are here performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday at 10 a. m. will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall and admission is $1.

LEBANON ECHO

Mozart Week At Berkshire Festival

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood in Lenox are being devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke". Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante, and the program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major.

The all-Mozart concert of Satu day evening will be held in the Mus Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's progr will open with the Serenade for Str Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusi Then pianists Seymour Lipkin Dukas Foss will be soloists in the T Piano Concerto, and the concert close with the Serenade for 13 W Instruments, and the well-kn Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the f half of Sunday afternoon's concer the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. lowing a performance of Moz "Haffner" Symphony, Seymour kin will again be soloist in a pe mance of the Piano Concerto major. After the intermission F Ross will conduct the orchestra the Festival Chorus in several c works of Mozart.

The Boston Symphony Orche rehearsal on Saturday morning 10 o'clock in the Theatre-Concert will be open to the public for benefit of the Pension Fund.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make i fourth Tanglewood apearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert tomorrow at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Proceeds of this concert will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week, all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a con cert by the Student Orchestra Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Shed; a lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music (Roger Ses speaking on his own compositio Friday afternoon at 3:15 in Chamber Music Hall and on Sund a Chamber music concert by students at 10 a. m. in the Chamber Mus Hall; and the Composer's Forum, in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:3 m.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 44,806

JUL 9 1958

Berkshire Festival Plans Week of Mozart Concerts

Concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Charles Munch, its music director, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

* * *

EVENING PROGRAMS are at 8:30 o'clock and afternoon programs at 2:30 o'clock.

The Friday evening program will include the "Musical Joke, K. 522," "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale as soloists; and the "Linz Symphoony number 36, C major."

The Saturday evening program will be presented in the Music Shed and will feature "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," the two-piano Concerto K. 365 with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin as soloists; the "Serenade number 10 in B-flat for winds" and the "Symphony number 40 in G minor."

* * *

THE SUNDAY afternoon program, Theatre-Concert Hall, will include the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467" with Lipkin as soloist. The part of the program to be conducted by Ross will include the "Kyrie K. 341," "Graduale, K. 273", and the "Coronation" mass. Soloists will be Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley and Lawrence Chelsi.

The Beaux Arts Trio chamber music program will be this evening in the Theatre Concert Hall. The program will be the Beethoven "Trio in E flat, opus 1, number 1"; Faure "Trio in D minor, opus 120"; and the Mendelssohn "Trio number 2 in C minor, opus 66." Members of the trio are Menahem Pressler, piano; Daniel Guilet, violin; and Bernard Greenhouse, cello. Proceeds of the Wednesday evening concerts benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

GREENVILLE, N. Y.
LOCAL
Circ. W. 467

JUL 9 1958

Mozart Week At Berkshire Festival

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood in Lenox are being devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke". Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante, and the program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik". Then pianists Seymour Lipkin and Dukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, and the concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock in the Theatre-Concert Hall will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood apearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert tomorrow at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Proceeds of this concert will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week, all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; a lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music (Roger Sessi speaking on his own compositio Friday afternoon at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall and on Sunday a Chamber music concert by students at 10 a. m. in the Chamber Mus Hall; and the Composer's Forum, a in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 p. m.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 26,550

JUL 10 1958

Mozart Feature At Tanglewood

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

SEYMOUR LIPKIN

On Friday evening (July 11) in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke," K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante, K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the Orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, Aug. 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening (July 12) will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty), will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

[P5]

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 11 1958

25 BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1958

My Boston

By Alan Frazer

My land is fair for any eyes to see—
Now look, my friends—look to the east and west!
This land is mine, I sing of it to you—
My land beneath the skies of white and blue.
—JESSE STUART

STREAMLINES—Old Colony item: One of those South Shore summer theaters should revive a melodrama that enjoyed a long run at the Copley Theater, many years ago. It was called, "The Ghost Train."

THE Hotel Somerset has received a suggestion for a slogan "TED WILLIAMS Slept Here."

HARVARD Stadium concessions—coffee, hot chocolate, hot dogs, cold drinks, candy, popcorn, sun-glasses, seat cushions, rainwear and pennants—have been turned over to the students.

COPLEY SQ. will have its beautiful face lifted with a new four-story building at Boylston and Dartmouth sts., replacing three old ones, thanks to real estater SUMNER WELD—who should get somebody to build at Dartmouth st. and Huntington ave., in place of an ugly parking lot.

A MAN who'll be missed is NEIL BARTHOLOMEW, of Worcester, known to people who like to dine out as just "Neil." He died in his sleep this week. Neil had been headwaiter at the Wayland Red Coach—first of all Red Coaches—ever since JACK LARKIN opened the doors, a quarter-century ago.

GEORGE SHEARING strikes a new note in an article coming out in the Silver Anniversary issue of Esquire in Sept. It is called, "The Hipsters Introduction to Classical Music."

GWEN VERDON says she didn't mind being changed into a 172-year-old "Rhode Island witch" in her role as Lola, in the film version of "Damn Yankees." What bothered her was that the makeup department took such a short time to make her look old and haggard.

JIMMIE WINSTON mailed me an Arizona picture folder which has a photo of Scottsdale where the Red Sox will train. The scene, unfortunately, makes it look like the end of the line.

FROM Denver, Winston sent me a menu of Duffy's Shamrock Restaurant and Bar, situated oddly enough on Tremont st., Denver. One specialty of the house is a Leprechaun Cooler, consisting of a double shot of Irish whiskey, twist of lime or lemon, and some dry quinine water. With a few of these, you don't have to kiss the Blarney Stone.

PAUL O'KEEFE, little Everett boy, is back from Atlantic City where he did his wonderful GEORGE M. COHAN routine at TONY GRANT'S Childrens Theater, a showcase for "Stars of Tomorrow."

A NEW York hotel, the Edison, which put its waitresses in sack-style uniforms, has taken them out again. The girls got so much ribbing they couldn't remember the orders.

MIKE KAVANAGH will open the Wilbur Theater Sept. 8 and it is booked almost solid into January, if the play producers don't switch their plans.

JOHN WALLACE RYAN of the Beacon Hill Theater staff has written 20,000 words on a unique book about beings in inter-stellar space, entitled, "I Am a Flying Saucer."

ALAN LADD insisted on paying for a round of Tom Collinses at the Framingham Red Coach, just before he returned to Hollywood; but the management was adament. No tab for Ladd.

FIVE child actors from Hollywood dined at the same spot, with their mothers, and were described as the politest little people.

ONE of the stations in a Manhattan subway is getting a slot machine for cleaning and pressing service. An outside tailor picks up and delivers. All 487 stations will get this, if the tryout works.

JEFF GULLA of Roslindale, Sheraton Plaza bellman, received a heavy he-man's ring on his birthday, the Fourth of July, from ELLEN HENRICKSEN of Hartford, Ct., whom he'll wed in Sept. She's a Connecticut General Life Insurance girl.

HOWARD JOHNSON, prominent Milton citizen, will be written-up again in the Saturday Evening Post, next week, as "Host of the Highway," and the mag will throw him a party, Monday, at one of his own spots, the Boston Red Coach. Those invited number 100.

Some salesmen couldn't resist that 20 p. c. discount offered by the Group 20 players, Wellesley, to all in that calling who want to see "Death of a Salesman."

I WAS puzzled by "Postage Due Six Cents," stamped on a big postcard received from SHERRI CAYLESS, from Bar Harbor, Me., but will admit she's worth a lot more. Sherri put on the usual two-center.

AL DONAHUE, ex-Boston bandleader, met ex-Bostonian RAY BOLGER and Bostonian TEDDI KING at Las Vegas, where Al was at the opening of the Stardust, which he describes as "what a joint!"

BUSTER HOLT, mgr. of the Saxon Theater, his wife and son, age seven, flew back from California in a plane which had two motors conk out, coming into Kansas City. After repairs, the pilot took it up, refusing to allow even his co-pilot to risk the tryout; and when he came down, he refused to fly that plane to Boston. A replacement plane was sent from Chicago.

A BACK BAY reader reports that a chow dog waits regularly for his master, outside The Stable on Huntington ave., and avoids all strangers with a show of high dignity and disdain. Too bad he isn't a jazz hound. He could go inside.

SOMEBODY keeps postal-carding me about JERRY VALE, like this: "To whom is Jerry Vale making all those phone calls to Havana? Could it be ARLENE FONTANA?" . . . Happy Birthday, Jerry, three days late!

A SALUTE to CORINNE CURRY (Mrs. Harold Farberman), vocalist for eight weeks at Tanglewood, a deserved honor. Her husband is a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

JUL 10 1958

Boston Symphony Features Mozart

Week-end Concerts Devoted to His Music

Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale Will Be Soloists Tomorrow Evening.—Lipkin and Foss Will Play the Two Piano Concerto Saturday Night.—Ross to Conduct Sunday.

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood in Lenox will be devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

On Friday evening, July 11, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K 522. Ruth Posselt violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concentante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times, and both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, August 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening, July 12, will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists, Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart, the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. 273, and the "Coronation Mass" in C major, K. 317. All these works are here performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor; and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, July 12, at 10:00 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the pension fund. The rehearsal will be held in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week, all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra this evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; the second lecture in the seminar on contemporary music (Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions) on Friday afternoon, July 11, at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall, and on Sunday, July 13, a chamber music concert by students at 10:00 a.m., in the Chamber Music Hall, and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 p.m.

BERKSHIRE EAGLE July 11, 1958

Music by Mozart Is Featured In Weekend Festival Programs

TANGLEWOOD — The second week of the Bach-Mozart series of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which opens tonight in the theater concert hall at 8:30, will be devoted to the music of Mozart.

Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra tonight and tomorrow night and on Sunday afternoon will share the concert with Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the Berkshire Music Center.

Tonight's program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times. Both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, Aug. 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

In Shed Tomorrow

The all-Mozart concert of tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:30, will be in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the theater-concert hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission, Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart: the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341; the Graduale K. 273, and the "Coronation Mass" in C major, K. 317. All these works are being performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Rehearsal Tomorrow

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal tomorrow morning at 10 will be open to the public for the benefit of the pension fund. The rehearsal will be held in the theater - concert hall. Admission is $1.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 11 1958

Music by Mozart Is Featured In Weekend Festival Programs

TANGLEWOOD — The second week of the Bach-Mozart series of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which opens tonight in the theater concert hall at 8:30, will be devoted to the music of Mozart.

Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra tonight and tomorrow night and on Sunday afternoon will share the concert with Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the Berkshire Music Center.

Tonight's program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke" K. 522. Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante K. 364. Miss Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale are both familiar to Tanglewood audiences, having played with the orchestra many times. Both are members of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. De Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will also be soloist later in the season in the Piston Viola Concerto on Friday, Aug. 1. The program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425.

In Shed Tomorrow

The all-Mozart concert of tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:30, will be in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Pianists Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the theater-concert hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, K. 385, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. After the intermission, Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart: the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341; the Graduale K. 273, and the "Coronation Mass" in C major, K. 317. All these works are being performed for the first time at Tanglewood. Soloists for the Mass include Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Rehearsal Tomorrow

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal tomorrow morning at 10 will be open to the public for the benefit of the pension fund. The rehearsal will be held in the theater - concert hall. Admission is $1.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 12 1958

2,224 at Tanglewood For First Program In Mozart Series

Tanglewood concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra last night turned to Mozart. Bad weather forced moving the first Mozart concert and its audience of 2,224 from the theater concert hall into the big shed.

Mozart concerts are also scheduled tonight and tomorrow afternoon. Last night's fare included "A Musical Joke," "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" and the "Symphony in C Major, No. 36," known as the "Linz." Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale were soloists for the Sinfonia. Charles Munch conducted.

The Mozart concerts follow the three traditional Bach programs given annually at the Lenox festival.

1, 1958
tured grams embers of the rkshire Music
Pasquale, first on Symphony be soloist later
e Piston Viola
Aug. 1. The with the "Linz"
jor, K. 425.

ncert of tomor-
nning at 8:30, sic Shed. Dr.
vill open with ing Orchestra, htmusik." Pi-kin and Lukas
s of the Berk-faculty, will be
Piano Con-
concert will enade for 13
K. 361, and the ny No. 40 in G

onduct the first rnoon's concert
rt hall at 2:30.
rformance of
Symphony, K. will again be rmance of the major, K. 467.
on, Hugh Ross
chestra and the several choral
he Kyrie in D
the Graduale.
ronation Mass"
All these works
d for the first
d. Soloists for Sarah Fleming,
rson, contralto;
nor, and Law-

phony Orchesorrow morning the public for pension fund.
be held in the Admission

tured grams embers of the rkshire Music
Pasquale, first ston Symphony be soloist later
he Piston Viola
y, Aug. 1. The
with the "Linz"
major, K. 425.

oncert of tomorinning at 8:30,
usic Shed. Dr. will open with ring Orchestra, chtmusik." Pipkin and Lukas
s of the Berk-faculty, will be
Piano Cone concert will renade for 13
K. 361, and the
ny No. 40 in G

onduct the first rnoon's concert
rt hall at 2:30.
rformance of Symphony, K. will again be rmance of the major, K. 467.
on, Hugh Ross
chestra and the several choral
he Kyrie in D
the Graduale.
ronation Mass"
All these works
d for the first
d. Soloists for arah Fleming,
son, contralto;
nor, and Law-

Orchesmorning public for fund. held in the Admission

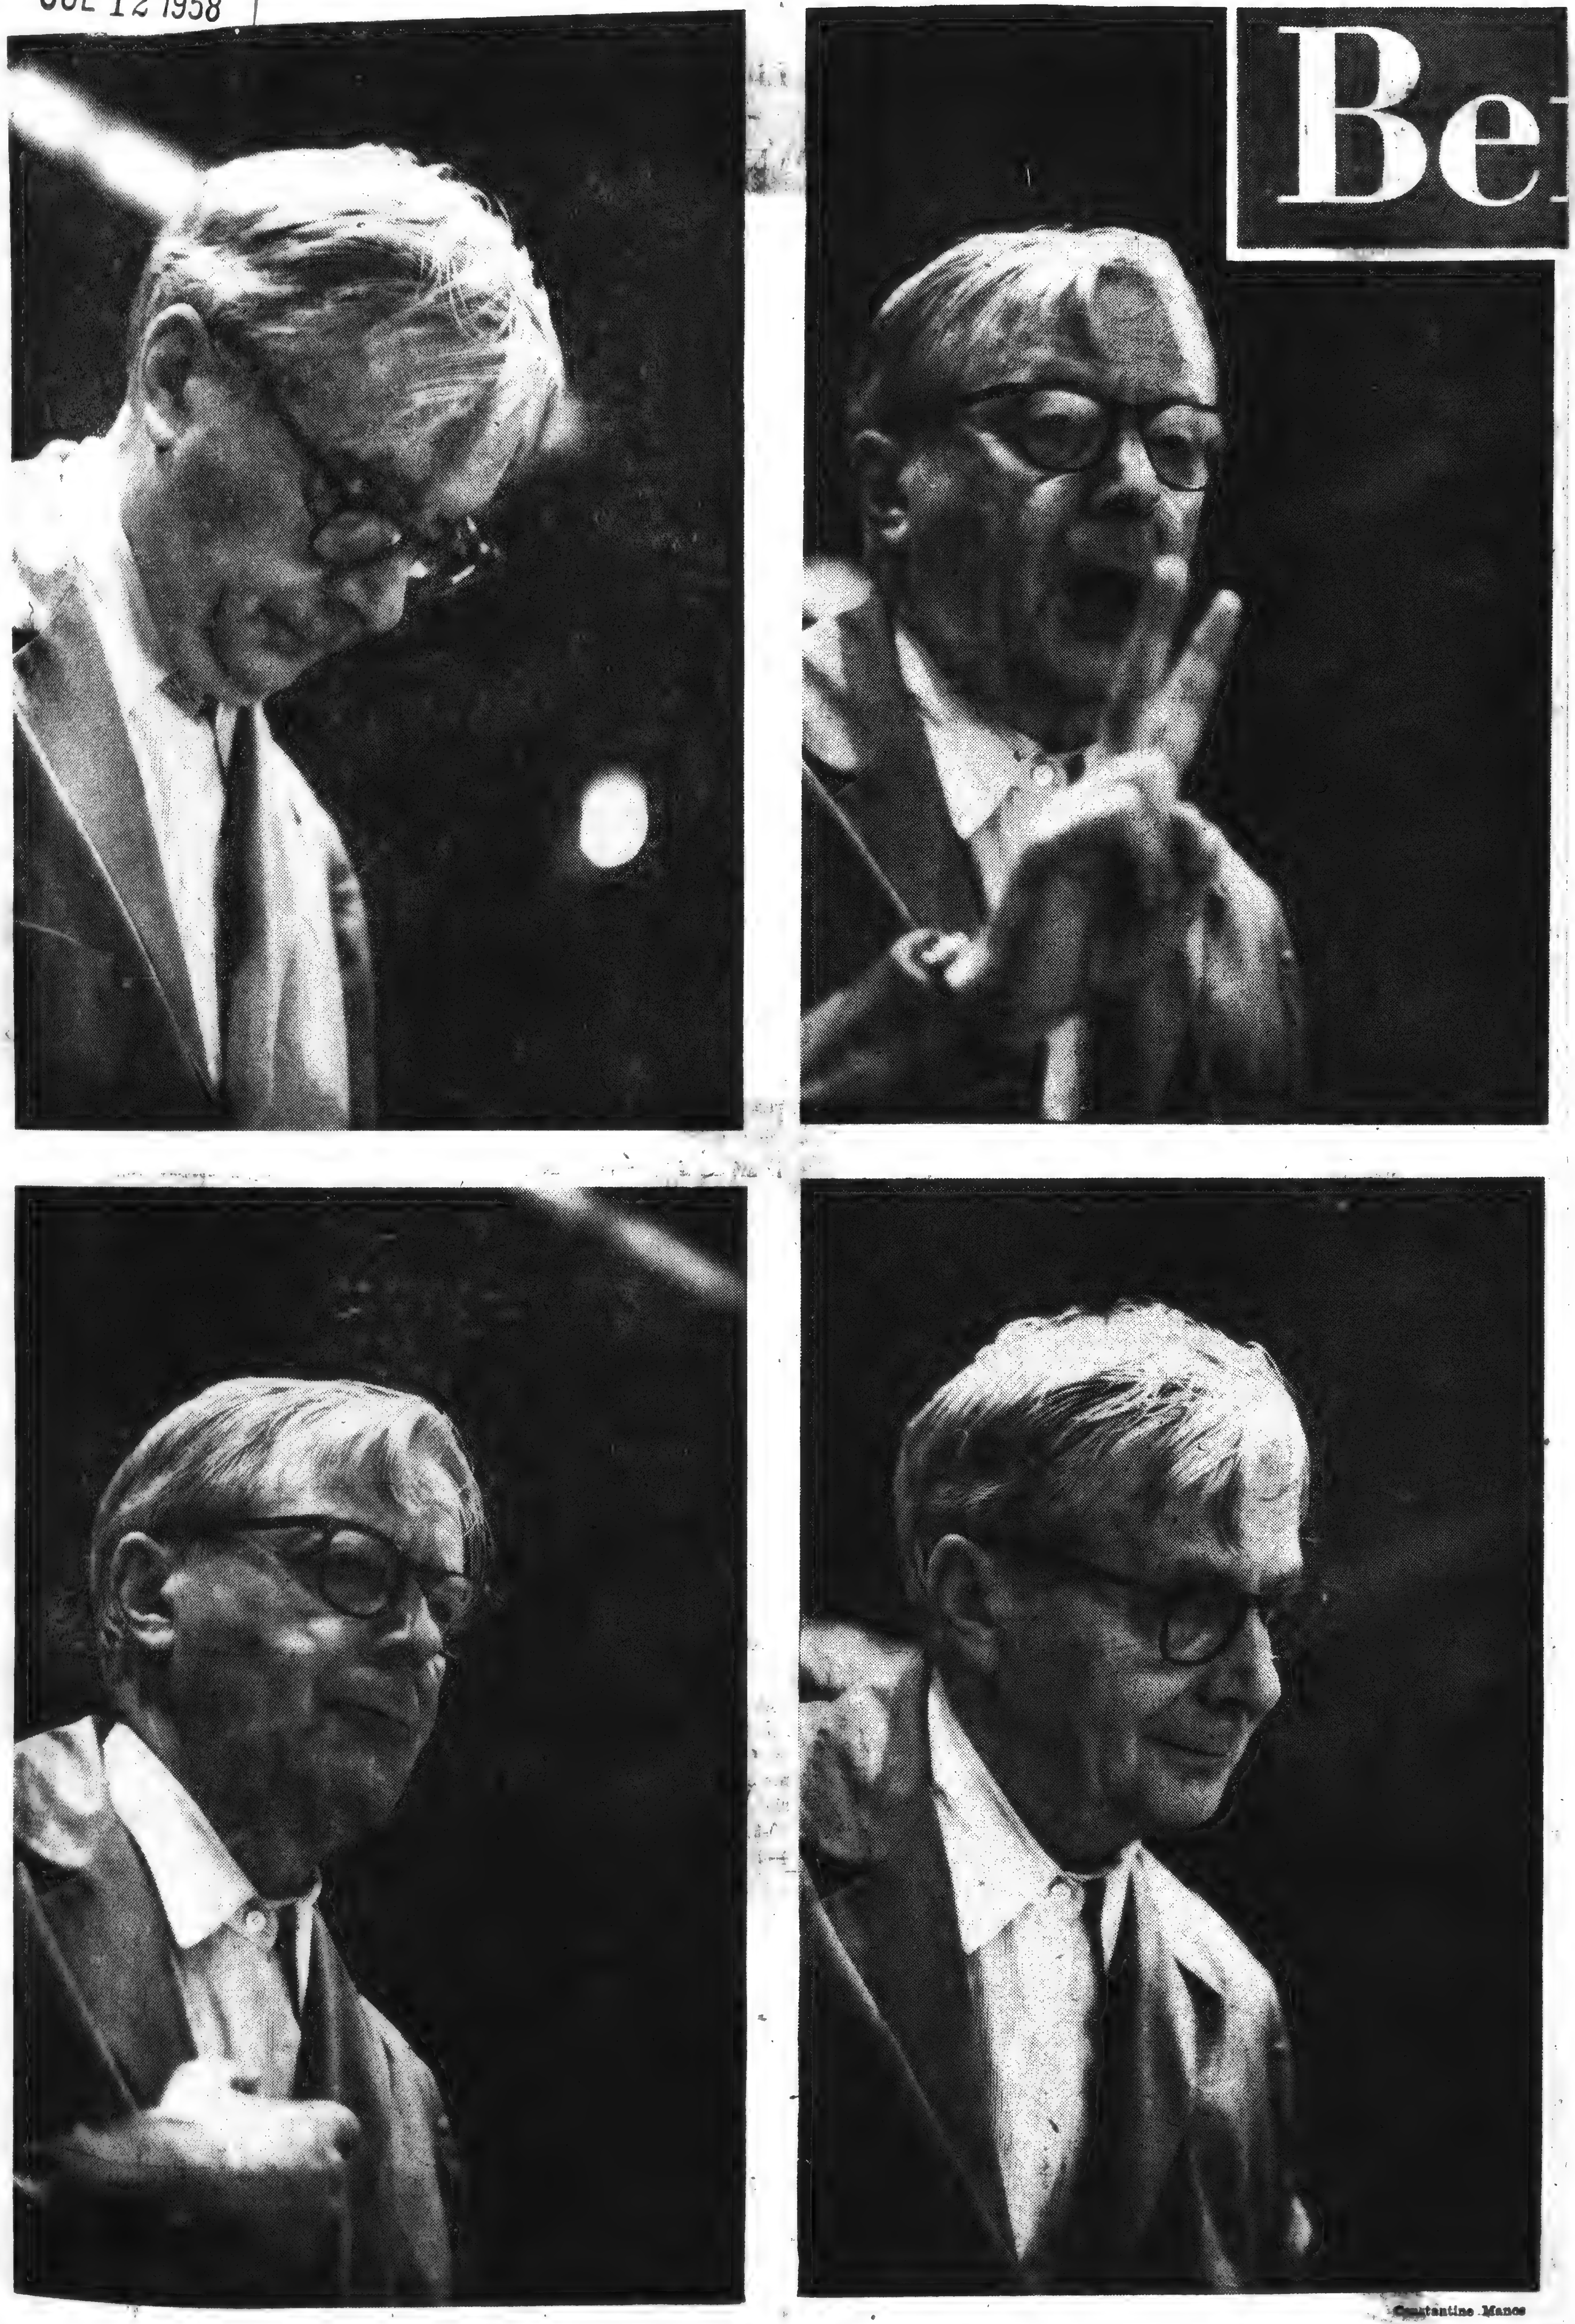
New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200
Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
JUL 12 1958

[86]

Be



Constantine Manos

Dr. Charles Munch rehearsing Boston Symphony Orchestra

OBSCURED TEXT

[87]

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 14 1958

Tanglewood Tangle

Pup Tent Is New Squatters' Mode

By A STAFF REPORTER

Lenox, July 13 — A disk jockey, out of work, out of his element and up to no good, spread the rumor at Tanglewood today that the lawn would be roped off into reserved sections.

Only a few novices among a crowd of 4214 believed him. But even then, the restless movement of chaise longues, ice chests, beach umbrellas and blankets was enough to convince this reporter of the need for a gull's handbook of al fresco concert going.

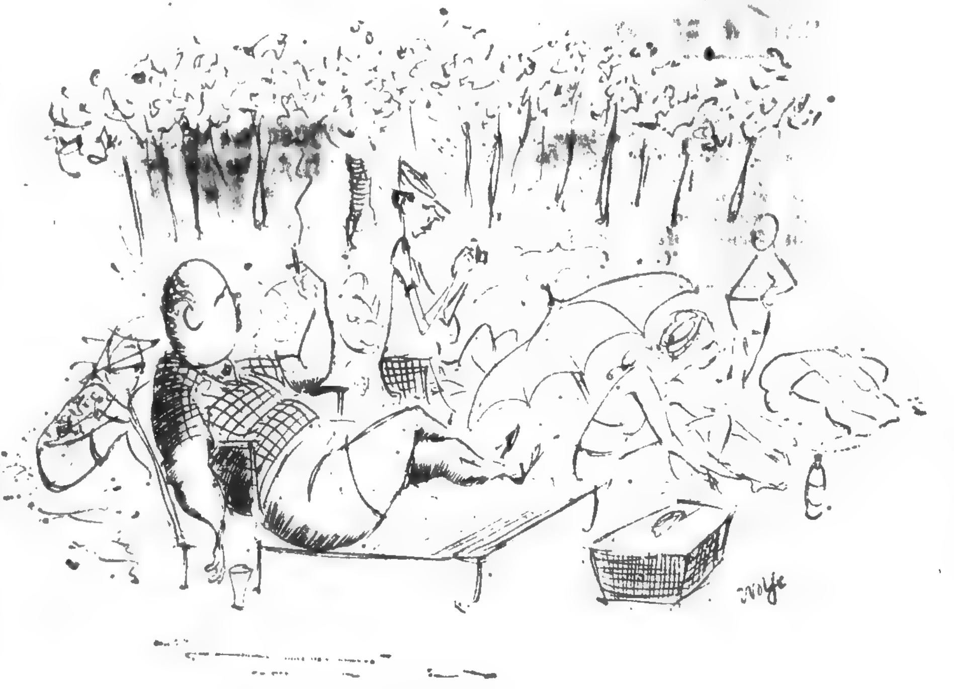
At Tanglewood, as you may know, week-end concert-goers listen to the Boston Symphony Orchestra and renowned guest artists from the lawn of this magnificent old Berkshire County estate. Squatters' rights prevail, first come, first served, and if you own a white linen suit, waistcoat and ascot, never mind. Bermuda shorts will do, and usually do.

True, there are always purists who fill the more expensive reserved seats in the Music Shed or the Theatre-Concert Hall, where today's concert was given. For them, the prospect of Conductor Charles Munch, the Boston Symphony and Mozart (Symphony in D Major and five other pieces) was enough.

For the true Tanglewoodsman, however, the prospect includes

See TANGLEWOOD TANGLE Page Seven

Tanglewood Relaxation



The Compleat Music Lover, on the lawn at Tanglewood in the Berkshires this season, brings his chaise longue along and has his ice chest at the ready. Yesterday he was listening to Mozart; the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Charles Munch at the podium.

Tanglewood Tangle

Continued From Page 1

things that don't go over in the reserved seats—an afternoon's supply of cold beverages and sprawl on the ground to name but two.

Last year we reported that the inflated rubber surf board was very much de mode among the lawn listeners at Tanglewood. A few creatures of last year's habits were prone upon the surf boards today, but the trends were passing them by.

Among the advance guard this year, the most exciting new piece of equipment is the pup tent. This can be fashioned from a rubber poncho and a few short poles and stakes. You may lie with your head under the tent and your body, preferably barelegged in the sun.

Early Arrival Essential

Pup tent fanciers find an early arrival is essential, as lawn space near the Theatre-Concert Hall today, for instance, was at a premium. Late comers found owners of beach umbrellas, chaise longues and deck chairs had staked out the most favorable spots, and the crowd on the lawn was virtually elbow to rib by concert time.

The more resourceful late comers had in reserve this season's fashionable "coolie" sun helmets.

You may walk about the lawn during the concert, at the risk of nothing more than black looks, but you should be aware that this involves a form of maze-walking.

At various points the complex of pup tents, blankets, lawn chairs and, everywhere, sprawling bodies is apt to become impenetrable. This reporter noted more than one neophyte this afternoon trapped hopelessly at midlawn, unable to progress further and too disheartened to try to retrace his steps through the maze of forms behind him.

To get lost like this constitutes a social blunder at Tanglewood. The people you land among will remonstrate with sighs and faint sneers, particularly younger men and women who are alone in the crowd.

Which raises the question of romantic dalliance at Tanglewood. Romance is unquestionably the theme of many a Sunday trip from New York or Boston or Springfield to Tanglewood, but the overly affectionate should be forewarned.

Nestle, Yes; Nuzzle, No

At Tanglewood, a nestle is permissible, but a nuzzle is de trop. Hand-holding and bodies more or less propped against one another are within the conventions. Instincts that prevail at public beaches, however, are definitely frowned upon.

At times, the line is drawn thin, chiefly because customs of dress at Tanglewood have not been firmly set. There are just enough exponents of short shorts, as opposed to long or Bermuda shorts, to make the situation chaotic.

Among the ladies, the style setters this year have introduced modified white ducks, Paisley shirts, out at the tail, and wide-brimmed garden party hats, not always in that combination.

In fact, the combinations often startle. Sometimes the shirts are white and the slacks are Paisley. In other cases, various items of the ensemble are missing to a remarkable degree.

Camera Buffs Busy

Men continue to be backwards, as far as styles go at Tanglewood. The worst offenders, always in great number, are those who arrive in long pants and switch to short pants at midconcert. This they manage by hiking up their trousers to above the knee. The over-all effect resembles pantaloons and reveals poor planning.

Activity during the concerts is not encouraged, but it is more the rule than the exception. Camera buffs are everywhere. More than one brought along his tripod today, along with his chaise lounge and thermos jug.

Among the college girls, reading is a favorite pastime this year and several, no doubt conditioned by long winter nights at Sara Lawrence, were absorbed in Rousseau or Kirkegaard and the Kyrie in D Minor simultaneously.

In fact, the surpassing tribute to Tanglewood fans, and the acoustics, is that you really can hear the music all this time. So far, all efforts to make the portable radio standard equipment at Tanglewood have been resisted.

RAVENA, N. Y.
NEWS-HERALD

JUL 11 1958

Mozart Week At Berkshire Festival

The concerts of the second Berkshire Festival week at Tanglewood in Lenox are being devoted to the music of Mozart. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, who will share the Sunday afternoon concert with Hugh Ross.

Friday evening in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 the program will open with Mozart's "A Musical Joke". Ruth Posselt, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, viola, will be soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante, and the program will close with the "Linz" Symphony in C major.

The all-Mozart concert of Saturday evening will be held in the Music Shed at 8:30. Dr. Munch's program will open with the Serenade for String Orchestra, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik". Then pianists Seymour Lipkin and Dukas Foss will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, and the concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Dr. Munch will conduct the first half of Sunday afternoon's concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 2:30. Following a performance of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, Seymour Lipkin will again be soloist in a performance of the Piano Concerto in C major. After the intermission Hugh Ross will conduct the orchestra and the Festival Chorus in several choral works of Mozart.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock in the Theatre-Concert Hall will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund.

The Beaux Arts Trio will make its fourth Tanglewood apearance in the second Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concert tomorrow at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Proceeds of this concert will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

Berkshire Music Center events of the week, all of which are open to Friends of the Center, include a concert by the Student Orchestra Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Music Shed; a lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music (Roger Sessions speaking on his own compositions) Friday afternoon at 3:15 in the Chamber Music Hall and on Sunday a Chamber music concert by students at 10 a. m. in the Chamber Music Hall; and the Composer's Forum, also in the Chamber Music Hall at 8:30 p. m.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 14 1958

Good Week-End Business Reported by Tourist Places

Berkshire County tourist establishments enjoyed a good weekend business, although, as usual, crowds were somewhat smaller than the July 4 weekend, according to a report today from John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

At Tanglewood, which had its second weekend of so-called "small" concerts, attendance is estimated to be running well ahead of the same period in 1957's record season. Friday's concert at Tanglewood was scheduled for the theater-concert hall but was moved to the Music Shed when heavy rain started late in the afternoon. A Boston Symphony Orchestra spokesman reports Friday's attendance at 2,224.

Saturday night, in the second of the Bach-Mozart series of small concerts by the BSO, a near record 6,333 filled the Music Shed. Yesterday afternoon's performance was back in the theater-concert hall and 4,214 attended, with hundreds of them overflowing to the lush lawns.

Surge Starts Friday

With the first of the four major Tanglewood weekends starting Friday, peak crowds are expected to hit the Berkshires.

Mr. Downing said that in the North Berkshire area, the Wigwam Motel on the Mohawk Trail and Elwal Pines in Williamstown reported "very good" business, and The Springs Restaurant in New Ashford called the weekend "terrific."

The Hotel Wendell-Sherwood in Pittsfield was one of the area establishments reporting a larger crowd than over the Fourth. Manager William H. Clifford said the hotel was 82 per cent occupied Friday and Saturday compared to 75 per cent during the previous weekend.

Mr. Downing said Eastover in Lenox had the SRO sign out with more than 400 guests on hand, and the Tanglewood Motor Court on Route 20 in Lenox was completely filled. The Berkshires' newest motel, Michael D. Hashim's Pittsfield Motel on West Housatonic Street, also reported a full house.

Oak 'n Spruce Up 25 P.C.

The Conference executive said Oak 'n' Spruce in South Lee reported weekend business up 26 per cent over the same period last year.

The volume of traffic at the Kiwanis tourist information center in Lenox was down from the Fourth of July weekend, when all available rooms were rented by Friday evening. Avaloch Inn, Lenox, reported an over-capacity crowd of 148 as the result of late reservations and transients. Avaloch's capacity is 110. Other guests are bedded in tourist homes in the area.

Another Lenox establishment, Music Inn, reported a capacity crowd of 155 guests over the weekend. Mrs. Philip Barber, co-proprietor, also reported the house was two-thirds full during the past week.

Republican (m)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 21,034

JUL 15 1958

Mozart Music Featured At Tanglewood

(Special to The Republican)

Lenox, Mass., July 14—The week end of all Mozart music at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood closed on a note of triumph Sunday afternoon with the performance of his 'Coronation" Mass in C major with the festival chorus and soloist performing before a large Sunday audience favored in every way including the weather.

Saturday evening's "little concert" in the pre-season Shed concerts which began Friday drew an audience of 6,333 for a brilliant concert in which Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss were the pianists in the "Concerto in B-flat Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra." The program which began with "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" found Charles Munch conducting the charming, spirited "Serenade in B-flat Major for 13 Wind Instruments" in an unusual treat for all. He concluded with "Symphony in G. Minor."

The opening Mozart concert Friday evening drew 2,225 despite rain which has come at inauspicious times this festival season. Sunday's concert found Mr. Lipkin back as piano soloist in "Concerto in C major for Piano and Orchestra" with Mr. Munch conducting the first half of the concert. Hugs Ross conducted the second portion with two Mozart selections.

The annual trek to the Berkshire Musical Festival which yearly rolls up new attendance records for the four week-ends of concerts of the major festival will begin this Friday with the music of Brahms featured for the opening Saturday evening when the "Requiem" will be conducted by Munch in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, and again for the Sunday afternoon concert when Pierre Monteux will be back as guest conductor. The Festival Chorus will sing he "Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, Leon Fleisher will be soloist Sunday in the performance of Brahm's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor."

At 8:30 p. m. tomorrow the famous New York Pro Musica Antiqua will perform a chamber music concert of the music of Flanders and Spain, including works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178
JUL 5 1958

SEYMOUR LIPKIN — The pianist will appear in Mozart works next weekend at Tanglewood.

July 11, 1958

BERK

Natural Of Area
Concert

With this issue,
GE News begins shutdown series County's varied tainment schedu net for the county
ing tourist trade.

Because the cou summer places of (two theaters, a dance festival, and music center) are bound to the influx residents find them disassociated from

"Which Ca

Unfortunately, occupy ourselves old "which came f
tainment or the to do so is to miss out formances usually sively for the big ters.

This author is n actor, or a danc qualify as a critic art forms. Like m people, he qualifie tator and his int
GE News readers and hear right h summer.

A local colum year that we County are a "T culturally" just town economic

While some ma possessive overto ment, there can b

Majo

CHARLES M director of th phony Orche of the Berksh is Charles French-born

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER
Circ. D. 61,478 - S. 78,186

JUL 1 3 1958

Fields Varner

Under The Marquee

Since during the summer months live entertainment in Montgomery, with the exception of the Little Theater's annual very fine musical-melodramas, dries up, it is the most difficult season for Marquee. There isn't even any entertainment nearby enough to drive over and get a column. However, one week-end soon I will go to Atlanta and bring back a first hand account of the Theater Under-the-Stars, which is one of the nation's finest spots for summer musicals.

But back to the dullness of the current summer. With practically no one in the entertainment business daring to brave the weather to come here in the summer, it is necessary to rely on what the people of show business are doing and saying in other parts of the country.

Right now many of them are in the northeast, the center of summer theater. A friend of mine recently wrote that where she lives in Connecticut there are seven summer theaters within a radius of 50 miles. Each one has a new production each week, so if she wanted to she could see a different production and a different star every night of the week from now until September.

THE RECENT big talk with the New York Sardi set has been Abbe Lane's exit from "Oh Captain!" Miss Lane, who have never been a favorite performer in our book didn't add much to the show anyway, except an abundance of curves. Due to a disagreement with one of the authors the show's closing notice was posted. Miss Lane's notice followed suit. When the difficulty was ironed out and the show decided to continue, Miss Lane was the only member of the cast who decided she wouldn't. She contends she is more than a Broadway star.

She says she is of international statue and a producer in Italy has been anxious to come there to make another film.

Last night Miss Lane was absent from the show. She was replaced by Dorothy Lamour, a good trouper, who is sure to do a better job than Miss Lane ever did.

THE PLAYWRIGHT'S Company, the most prolific producers in New York, will present eight shows in the big town this fall. They include: "Howie," with Leon Ames and Albert Salmi; "The Pleasure of His Company" with Cornelia Otis Skinner, Cyril Ritchard, Charles Ruggles and Walter Abel; "The Gazebo," a comedy-mystery; "Juno," with Shirley Booth and Melvyn Douglas; "Duel of the Angels," the Christopher Fry adaptation of Jean Giraudoux comedy; "Cue For Passion," a new comedy by Elmer Rice, "Roar Like A Dove," and "Silent Night, Lonely Night," a new play by Robert Anderson.

If this is an indication of what other producers are planning it looks like a brilliant season in New York this fall.

HERE AND THERE: Anthony Quinn, one of Hollywood's top actors, who has two Oscars to prove it says the worst thing about winning one is that you might believe it . . . Columnist Sidney Skolsky says "Hollywood is a place where a man has to be able to divorce a girl in the style to which she's accustomed" . . . The rock'n rollers would probably be interested to know that almost 10,000 people attended the Tanglewood Music Festival last week-end to hear an all-Bach program by the Boston Symphony Orchestra . . . Faye Emerson is one of the many stars now doing the summer theater circuits. She starred last week in "Tonight at 8:30" at the Nyack, N. Y., Playhouse . . . Edie Gorme and Steve Lawrence, who are substituting for Steve Allen, beginning tonight, are doing their show from a television studio in Brooklyn. Audiences will be taken there in buses. NBC has thought of everything. Each bus will have a comic aboard to entertain the people during the ride

---

BERKSHIR

Natural Beauty Of Area Forms Concert Setting

With this issue, the Pittsfield GE News begins a pre-vacation shutdown series on Berkshire County's varied summer entertainment schedule the magnet for the county's mushrooming tourist trade.

Because the county's five major summer places of entertainment (two theaters, a music center, a dance festival, and a jazz and folk music center are so inextricably bound to the influx of tourists, many residents find themselves strangely disassociated from them.

"Which Came First?"

Unfortunately, too many of us occupy ourselves with playing the old "which came first?" (the entertainment or the tourists) game. To do so is to miss out on some fine performances usually reserved exclusively for the big metropolitan centers.

This author is not a musician, an actor, or a dancer, nor does he qualify as a critic of any of these art forms. Like most Pittsfield GE people, he qualifies only as a spectator and his intention is to tell GE News readers what they can see and hear right here at home this summer.

A local columnist wrote last year that we in Berkshire County are a "Tanglewood town culturally" just as we are a "GE town economically."

While some may argue with the possessive overtones of that statement, there can be no quarrel with ewood —— First in a Series on Berkshire's er Entertainment for Tourist and Resident familiar site to Berkshire residents and grams of the Boston Symphony Orchespie-shaped structure.

shorter and more concentrated than that of any of the other four major entertainment places. It runs for six weeks (it began last weekend) with three major concerts planned for each weekend, for the most part employing the full orchestra in the Shed.

Each Wednesday evening, Tanglewood presents a chamber music concert by guest artists (generally quartets and trios) in the Theatre-Concert Hall, a smaller building on the Tanglewood grounds.

Tanglewood, through its Berkshire Music Center, is as much a school for young musicians as it is a summer home for Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts.

This situation provides some excellent student performances to which all who become Friends of the Berkshire Music Center (by contributing an unspecified sum to the school) are invited without admission charge. These performances (in the Theatre-Concert Hall) include Thursday night concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra and Sunday evening operas by the school's opera department.

Pick Your Spot

For the concerts in the Music Shed, $2 will admit you and your blanket to the grounds and you may pick your spot on the lawn at the front or sides of the Shed. Seats in the Shed range in price from $2.50 to $6.50.

If you really abominate classical music but have somehow read this far, there is still one ray of sunlight left. On Thursday, August 7, Tanglewood will present its annual "Tanglewood on Parade" program, originally conceived as a showcase for student performances but more widely known for the appearance of Arthur Fielder and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The Boston Pops, composed mainly of musicians from the BSO, plays semi-classical and popular music in a style which has won it wide acclaim by long-hairs and crew-cuts alike.

Pittsfield GE people figure in the Tanglewood Festival in a number of ways. Among them are Sherwood R. Sprague of the DT tool room and Harry E. Brundige of the Ordnance Section, ticket takers of long standing. They'll be glad to see you.

Major Tang

CHARLES MUNCH—Music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center is Charles Munch, famous French-born conductor.

Symphony, No. 36, C major

July 12 (Shed at 8:30)

MOZART Eline Kleine Nachtmusik
Two-Piano Concerto, K.365
Soloists: Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss
Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for Winds
Symphony No. 40 in G minor

July 13 (Theatre at 2:30)

MOZART Haffner Symphony
Piano Concerto in C major, K.467
Soloist: Seymour Lipkin
Kyrie, K.341; Graduale, K.273; Mass K.317

July 18 (Shed at 8:30)

BRAHMS Serenade No. 1 in D, Op.11
COPLAND Variations for Orchestra
BRAHMS Symphony No. 4

July 19 (Shed at 8:30)

BRAHMS Requiem
Soloists: Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm with Festival Chorus
(In memory of Serge Koussevitzky)

STRAVINSKY Petrouchka

July 25 (Shed at 8:30)

GLINKA "Russian & Ludmilla" Ov.
TCHAIKOVSKY Symphony No. 4
MILHAUD Ov. to Les Eumenides"
DEBUSSY Three Nocturnes
RAVEL La Valse

July 26 (Shed at 8:30)

STRAVINSKY Canticum Sacrum
RACHMANINOFF Piano Concerto No. 3
(Soloist: Byron Janis)
DEBUSSY La Mer

July 27 (Shed at 2:30)

BARTOK Music for Strings, Percussion & Celesta
RAVEL "Daphnis & Chloe," 2nd Suite
TCHAIKOVSKY Violin Concerto
Soloist: Zino Francescatti

August 1 (Shed at 8:30)

WAGNER Prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love; Death from "Tristan and Isolde"
PISTON Viola Concerto
WAGNER Immolation Scene

Pierre Monteux, guest conductor

August 2 (Shed at 8:30)

WAGNER "Tannhauser" Overture & Bacchanale
LISZT Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat
(Soloist: Leonard Pennario)
VAUGHAN WILLIAMS Symphony No. 8
WAGNER Siegfried's Rhine Journey

August 3 (Shed at 2:30)

WAGNER excerpts from "The Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkure," "Parsifal," "Tannhauser," "Rienzi"
Soloist: Margaret Harshaw

August 8 (Shed at 8:30)

HONEGGER Prelude Fugue and Postlude
BEETHOVEN Symphony No. 7
Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor")
Soloist: Eugene Istomin

August 9 (Shed at 8:30)

BEETHOVEN Music from "Prometheus;"
Violin Concerto, (Soloist: Berl Senofsky)
HINDEMITH Nobilissima Visione
BEETHOVEN Leonore Ov. No. 3

August 10 (Shed at 2:30)

WALTON Johannesburg Festival Ov.
BEETHOVEN Ninth Symphony with soloists
Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff, Donald Gramm [illegible]

BERKSHIRE SUMMER

Tanglewood——First in a Series on Berkshire's Summer Entertainment for Tourist and Resident

Natural Beauty Of Area Forms Concert Setting

With this issue, the Pittsfield GE News begins a pre-vacation shutdown series on Berkshire County's varied summer entertainment schedule the magnet for the county's mushrooming tourist trade.

Because the county's five major summer places of entertainment (two theaters, a music center, a dance festival, and a jazz and folk music center) are so inextricably bound to the influx of tourists, many residents find themselves strangely disassociated from them.

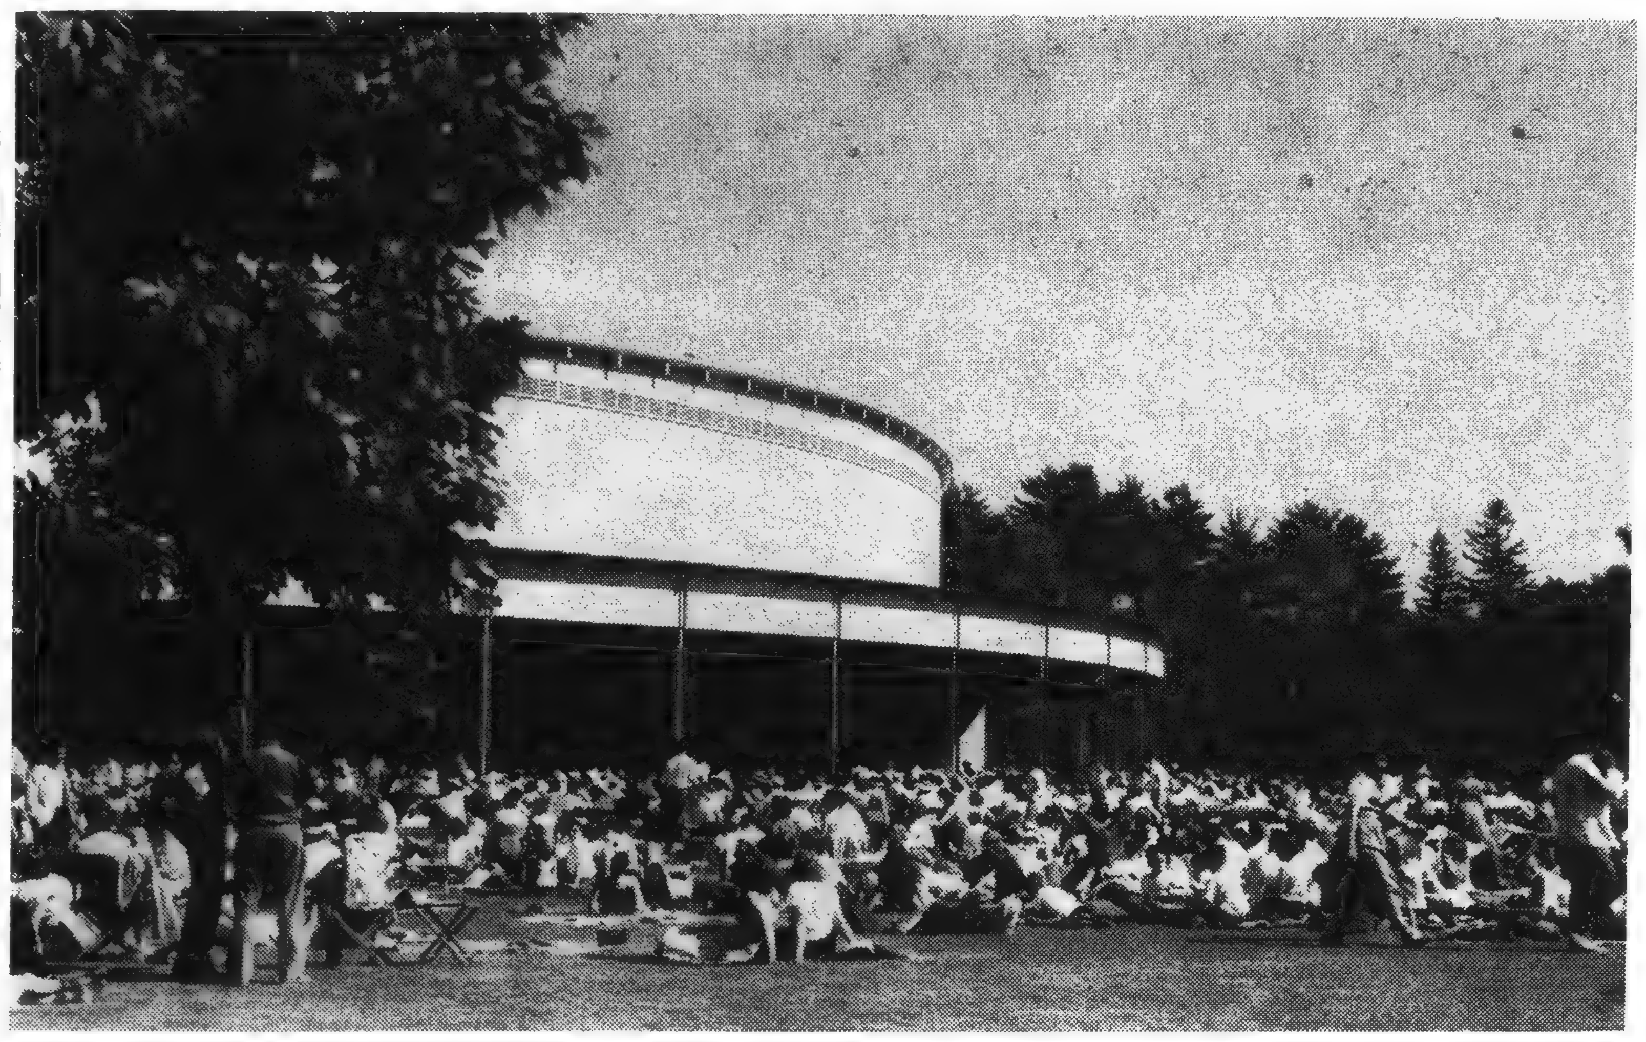
"Which Came First?"

Unfortunately, too many of us occupy ourselves with playing the old "which came first?" (the entertainment or the tourists) game. To do so is to miss out on some fine performances usually reserved exclusively for the big metropolitan centers.

This author is not a musician, an actor, or a dancer, nor does he qualify as a critic of any of these art forms. Like most Pittsfield GE people, he qualifies only as a spectator and his intention is to tell GE News readers what they can see and hear right here at home this summer.

A local columnist wrote last year that we in Berkshire County are a "Tanglewood town culturally" just as we are a "GE town economically."

While some may argue with the possessive overtones of that statement, there can be no quarrel with the fact that Tanglewood is the biggest single summer attraction in the county just as GE is the largest industry. Last year almost 163,000 people visited Tanglewood, giving it a decisive audience margin.



LANDMARK FOR MUSIC LOVERS—The Music Shed, a familiar site to Berkshire residents and tourists alike, is the scene for the major Tanglewood programs of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. There are plenty of seats inside and outside the huge pie-shaped structure.

Limitless seating capacity accounts for only a minor part of Tanglewood's success. The famous Boston Symphony Orchestra commands a large following. Talented guest artists draw many admirers. And, of course, there are hundreds of curiosity seekers.

You Don't Suffer

But probably the greatest lure for Tanglewood audiences is the combination of the Berkshire's natural beauty and fine music. You don't suffer for culture at Tanglewood. These are open-air concerts whether you are sitting in the unwalled Music Shed or on the spacious, green Tanglewood lawn.

Blankets and folding chairs are as much a part of the Tanglewood scene as opera glasses are to the indoor theater. The Boston Symphony Orchestra music, generally superb anywhere, is especially enjoyable under these conditions.

The Tanglewood schedule is shorter and more concentrated than that of any of the other four major entertainment places. It runs for six weeks (it began last weekend) with three major concerts planned for each weekend, for the most part employing the full orchestra in the Shed.

Each Wednesday evening, Tanglewood presents a chamber music concert by guest artists (generally quartets and trios) in the Theatre-Concert Hall, a smaller building on the Tanglewood grounds.

Tanglewood, through its Berkshire Music Center, is as much a school for young musicians as it is a summer home for Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts.

This situation provides some excellent student performances to which all who become Friends of the Berkshire Music Center (by contributing an unspecified sum to the school) are invited without admission charge. These performances (in the Theatre-Concert Hall) include Thursday night concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra and Sunday evening operas by the school's opera department.

Pick Your Spot

For the concerts in the Music Shed, $2 will admit you and your blanket to the grounds and you may pick your spot on the lawn at the front or sides of the Shed. Seats in the Shed range in price from $2.50 to $6.50.

If you really abominate classical music but have somehow read this far, there is still one ray of sunlight left. On Thursday, August 7, Tanglewood will present its annual "Tanglewood on Parade" program, originally conceived as a showcase for student performances but more widely known for the appearance of Arthur Fielder and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

The Boston Pops, composed mainly of musicians from the BSO, plays semi-classical and popular music in a style which has won it wide acclaim by long-hairs and crew-cuts alike.

Pittsfield GE people figure in the Tanglewood Festival in a number of ways. Among them are Sherwood R. Sprague of the DT tool room and Harry E. Brundige of the Ordnance Section, ticket takers of long standing. They'll be glad to see you.

Major Tanglewood Programs

CHARLES MUNCH—Music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center is Charles Munch, famous French-born conductor.

Tonight (Theatre at 8:30)

MOZART Musical Joke K.522
Sinfonia Concertante
Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph DePasquale
"Linz" Symphony, No. 36, C major

July 12 (Shed at 8:30)

MOZART Eline Kleine Nachtmusik
Two-Piano Concerto, K.365
Soloists: Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss
Serenade No. 10 in B-flat for Winds
Symphony No. 40 in G minor

July 13 (Theatre at 2:30)

MOZART Haffner Symphony
Piano Concerto in C major, K.467
Soloist: Seymour Lipkin
Kyrie, K.341; Graduale, K.273; Mass K.317

July 18 (Shed at 8:30)

BRAHMS Serenade No. 1 in D, Op.11
COPLAND Variations for Orchestra
BRAHMS Symphony No. 4

July 19 (Shed at 8:30)

BRAHMS Requiem
Soloists: Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm with Festival Chorus
(In memory of Serge Koussevitzky)

July 20 (Shed at 2:30)

BRAHMS Academic Festival Overture
Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor
Soloist: Leon Fleisher
STRAVINSKY Petrouchka

July 25 (Shed at 8:30)

GLINKA "Russian & Ludmilla" Ov.
TCHAIKOVSKY Symphony No. 4
MILHAUD Ov. to Les Eumenides"
DEBUSSY Three Nocturnes
RAVEL La Valse

July 26 (Shed at 8:30)

STRAVINSKY Canticum Sacrum
RACHMANINOFF Piano Concerto No. 3
(Soloist: Byron Janis)
DEBUSSY La Mer

July 27 (Shed at 2:30)

BARTOK Music for Strings, Percussion & Celesta
RAVEL "Daphnis & Chloe," 2nd Suite
TCHAIKOVSKY Violin Concerto
Soloist: Zino Francescatti

August 1 (Shed at 8:30)

WAGNER Prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love; Death from "Tristan and Isolde"
PISTON Viola Concerto
WAGNER Immolation Scene

Pierre Monteux, guest conductor

August 2 (Shed at 8:30)

WAGNER "Tannhauser" Overture & Bacchanale
LISZT Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat
(Soloist: Leonard Pennario)
VAUGHAN WILLIAMS Symphony No. 8
WAGNER Siegfried's Rhine Journey

August 3 (Shed at 2:30)

WAGNER excerpts from "The Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkure," "Parsifal," "Tannhauser," "Rienzi"
Soloist: Margaret Harshaw

August 8 (Shed at 8:30)

HONEGGER Prelude Fugue and Postlude
BEETHOVEN Symphony No. 7
Piano Concerto No. 5 ("Emperor")
Soloist: Eugene Istomin

August 9 (Shed at 8:30)

BEETHOVEN Music from "Prometheus;"
Violin Concerto, (Soloist: Berl Senofsky)
HINDEMITH Nobilissima Visione
BEETHOVEN Leonore Ov. No. 3

August 10 (Shed at 2:30)

WALTON Johannesburg Festival Ov.
BEETHOVEN Ninth Symphony with soloists Adele Addison, Blake Stern, Florence Kopleff, Donald Gramm

OBSCURED TEXT

ULY 12, 1958. HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE FIVE

Mozart Weekend Opens For Enthralled Audience

The weekend devoted to Mozart, the second in the current Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Munch, opened last evening in the big Shed, the sodden turf necessitating the shift from the theatre-concert hall.

A delighted audience nubering 2,242 sat enthralled throughout an evening of superlative music, both in content and execution.

Dr. Munch's first offering was the charmingly clumsy "Musical Joke' Mozart composed in a witty lampoon of the would-be composer. Dr. Munch directed the work with mock seriousness, the muscians studiously tossing off ridiculously contrived passages with aplomb. Waves of hearty laughter greeted each obvious blunder, especially when the horns insinuated their phrases insistently above the other instruments and their eventual harmonic collapse after bravely and sweetly starting a solo in the "minuet.'

Richard Burgin, concertmaster, evoked a round of applause, apparently "removed" from everyone, with a "cadenza to end all cadenzas," including double-stops, trills, scale passages, in other words, "the works" completely unconnected. The presto, among other contrivances, broadly handling a theme "a la fugue" from one section to another, and inevitably to the horns, ends in complete harmonic disarray.

From the ridiculous to the sublime was the order of the program. Mozart's seldom played "Sonfonia Concertante," for solo violin and viola, in E flat, was performed with dynamic beauty and true virtuosity by Ruth Posselt, concert violinist, and Joseph DePasquale, first violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The magnificent Italian instruments used by the soloists added to one's listening pleasure, their rich timbres beautifully balancing each other. The whole composition is rather like a dialogue, with the orchestra enveloping the players with full symphonic participation.

The infinite beauty of the "andante" especially suggests a tender dialogue between two lovers, so exquisitely are the phrases formed, with full symphonic participation.

The infinite beauty of the "andante" especially suggests a tender dialogue between two lovers, so exquisitely are the phrases formed, with neither instrument dominating the other musicwise. The solo viola was absorbed by the orchestral tones in a few passages, but was quickly adjusted. The remarkably accurate intonation of both instruments on such a hazardously sticky evening only served to point up the skill and artistry of Miss Posselt and Mr. DePasquale.

Dr. Munch directed the soloists and chamber orchestra with his sensitive awareness for the structural strength and dynamic detail the composer indicated, receiving with the solo performers enthusiastic and prolonged applause.

The last half of the program was devoted to the powerful "Linz" Symphony, K425, written, scored and rehearsed in four days, we are told. The full perfection of the symphony was revealed in all its intricate workings by the inspiring conductor, Dr. Munch, and the indefatigable orchestra members. The "landler-like" minuet with trio idyllic play of the solo oboe, horn and strings in the trio, and the insouciant effervescence of the "presto" completed a richly satisfying musical evening.

Although much of the audiences so far has been tardy in arriving at the correct opening hour, or rather half-hour, one must remark on their unflagging appreciation for Dr. Munch and the participants in the Festival concerts; their applause has been warmly and generous, with no apparent rush to leave the concert hall.

This evening's concert will include the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, K365 two-piano concerto, with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, Serenade for 13 wind instruments and the Symphony in G minor, K550. Sunday's program includes the Haffner Symphony, Seymour Lipkin playing the C major piano concerto, with the second half conducted by Hugh Ross in excerpts from the "Coronation Mass."—M. deB. B.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541
JUL 12 1958

MOZART WORKS SERIES IS BEGUN AT TANGLEWOOD

2224 Hear Performance Of Three Selections In Big Shed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 11 — Having completed the traditional three programs devoted to the works of Bach, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, tonight inaugurated the first of a series of three concerts devoted to the music of Mozart. Continuous unpleasant weather necessitated moving the concert from the theater concert hall to the big shed. An audience of 2224 was on hand in spite of the weather.

From All Periods Of Life

During the next two days we shall be privileged to witness the many facets which make up the art of Mozart. The music to be heard will stem from all periods of his short life.

Tonight there were three fine examples of this art. The concert opened with a really hilarious performance of "A Musical Joke," that delectable little work which marked Mozart's only lampoon of a musical score. Then came the lovely "Sonfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale as soloists, and finally, the "Symphony in C Major, No. 36," known as the "Linz."

As noted, the musical joke is something very special. It is in the form of a divertimento, but instead of being a product of the smoothest of composers, it is the exact opposite, for Mozart forced himself to be ungainly in this instance. Thus one hears harmonies which are wrong and chords which are awkward. His cadenza makes fun of that custom and the ensuing cadenza disposes of the dignity of cadences for once and all. The work was played with evident relish by the orchestra and everyone had a fine time.

Exquisite Beauty

The "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" is one of two occasions that Mozart chose to exploit the viola as a solo instrument. Perhaps at the time good violists were scarce. However, once having made up his mind to use the instrument, Mozart paired it with a violin and gave the world a work of exquisite beauty and proportion. The long orchestral exposition before the two soloists enter independently justifies the symphonic character of the title. The andante, in C Minor, is the outstanding movement, for it has a pathetic utterance more poignant than any other slow movement Mozart had written to that moment.

It is unnecessary at this time to comment at length at the excellences of Ruth Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale. Both are prime favorites here at Tanglewood and both have richly contributed to Tanglewood programs in the past.

There was a fine unity in their ensemble work and splendid individual achievement. I have seldom heard Miss Posselt play with greater communication, but I have heard Mr. De Pasquale's viola sing with more luscious tones than it did tonight.

Holds Back Tempo

Mr. Munch, who has been taking tempo pretty fast this season, held back in this work, even in the final presto, and the result was a well balanced and handsome ensemble.

The concert concluded with an excellent performance of the "Linz" symphony, a work for which Mr. Munch seems to have a particular affection. It takes players like those in the Boston Symphony to fully realize this score, a truly prodigious score even though it was written in the space of four days.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886
JUL 13 1958

MOZART WORKS AT TANGLEWOOD DRAW OVER 6000

Biggest Crowd of Season Hears Munch Conduct Chamber Group

By WILLARD CLARK

Lenox, July 12—Lovely music, light textured, elegant and gracious, featured the second program devoted to the music of Mozart and played by members of the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony under the direction of Charles Munch. The concert was given in the shed and drew an audience of 6333 people, the largest to date, for the weather has not been of the sort to draw many people to Tanglewood.

Performance Hailed

The concert opened with a delectable performance of "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," serenade for string orchestra. It was one of the finest performances of the work we have ever heard, but then, what orchestra has a string section the equal of the Boston orchestra? There were moments when it seemed only a single violin was playing, or at the most a quartet. Mr. Munch conducted the work with exceptional care, phrasing the music with infinite skill. This was a performance to be remembered.

Mozart's "Concerto in E Flat Major for Two Pianos" is a work of exceptional charm. It is neither big nor a challenge for the virtuoso, but tonight it had the advantage of two skillful pianists, Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss. The performance was intimate; it might have been played in such manner in a home. The two solo parts were finely balanced and totally mated in the exact echoing of phrases, unisons and solos. The gentle felicity of the orchestral accompaniment was just as it should be, with the result that the performance was communicative and always within its frame.

Wind Serenade

Another facet of Mozart's art was revealed in his "Serenade for Thirteen Wind Instruments." In spite of the limited number of participants, this music has grandeur which approaches magnificence. Written originally in seven movements, Mr. Munch chose to play four tonight. We had feared that his music would be lost within the huge shed, but was perfectly clear at the very rear. Mr. Munch provided a finely detailed reading and he had a flexible and responsive group to meet his wishes.

The program concluded with the "Symphony in G Minor, No. 40." There is little that is massive in this work. It seems to get its strength through deftness and concentration. We could not hear the entire performance, but what we heard revealed again the understanding and the affection Mr. Munch has for the music of Mozart.

EAGLE 7/15/58

Baptized in Lenox

Manos

Godfather Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, holds Charles Nicholas de Pasquale, after the baby was baptized at St. Ann's Church, Lenox, Sunday, July 6. The Rev. Thomas Ferguson officiated at the ceremony. The baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph de Pasquale. He is first violist in the BSO and his wife is the niece of the late Serge Koussevitzky. The baby was born Dec. 19 in Boston but the baptism ceremony was postponed until Dr. Munch arrived here from France. Mr. de Pasquale's sister, Mrs. Pasquale de Grandis, was godmother.

Music: A Mozart Cycle

NY Times

Week-End of Works at Tanglewood Opens With 3 Works by Boston Symphony

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 11—A solid week-end of Mozart was started Friday in the Shed as the second week of the Berkshire Music Festival got under way. The concert had been scheduled for the Theatre-Concert Hall, but a downpour during the afternoon and early evening necessitated the shift.

The Theatre-Concert Hall is an enclosed building. But the grass outside of it gets just as wet as grass does anywhere, and the Tanglewood management takes pity on those who like to sit on the grass to hear the music. Hence, those who entered the grounds on general admission were invited to hear the concert in the main Shed. The audience numbered 2,224.

•

Starting the Mozart series were three works—"A Musical Joke," the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola in E flat and the "Linz" Symphony. Charles Munch conducted a reduced Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the soloists were Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Joseph de Pasquale, violist.

"A Musical Joke"—known in German as "Ein Musikalischer Spass"—is precisely that. Mozart was poking fun at inept composers and inept players, and there are some howlingly funny things in the score. Some are obvious slapstick—horns playing out of key. Some are a little more subtle—an elaborate violin cadenza in which the soloist starts climbing up the scale and ends on a "wrong" note in a completely unrelated key.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the orchestra, played the solo with a deadpan expression. The audience broke in with a round of amused applause for his efforts. At the end of the piece, Mr. Munch walked away with a huge grin.

In the great Sinfonia Concertante and in the "Linz" Symphony, the orchestral playing was lively enough and beautifully disciplined. But the interpretations did leave something to be desired.

Despite the split-second teamwork of soloists and orchestra in the Sinfonia Concertante, the musicmaking sounded just a little coarse. Part of this resulted from the common failing of strings dominating winds in Mozart playing today. The texture, consequently, sounds too thick.

In addition, the soloists on this occasion had somewhat different ideas about the score. Miss Posselt was entirely efficient but hard in tone and not very expressive. When she did attempt a more expressive type of approach, in a slow movement, she used a heavy vibrato, and the music sounded for all the world like the slow movement of the Bruch G minor Concerto.

Mozart is at his most romantic here—it is a mistake to think that the so-called classic composers could not be romantic—but the long, lyric lines of the andante demand a type of refinement that was missing tonight.

Mr. de Pasquale, it seemed to this listener, brought a more subtle type of phrasing to the music. Tonally and technically he was in complete possession of his material.

The "Linz" Symphony a large-scaled, passionate work, received a virtuoso interpretation from Mr. Munch and his players. Again, one could have wished for a little more refinement; not instrumental refinement, of which there was plenty, but rhythmic variety and a lighter touch on the reins.

It is only fair to report that after the concluding presto the audience rose and yelled. Not many orchestras could have taken such a pace and maintained it unfalteringly.

[89]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
JUL 12 1958

Music Review

Mozart Series Opens

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE SECOND Tanglewood weekend, which is to be devoted entirely to Mozart, began last night with a widely diversified program. Charles Munch led the small chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players in "A Musical Joke," Sinfonia Concertante, in which violinist Ruth Posselt and violist Joseph De Pasquale were the soloists, and the C major symphony, (K 425) known as the "Lintz."

The "Joke" is a combination of many things, both straight and gauche, subtle and slapstick, a bit of Victor Borge, some Hoffnung, a suggestion of "L'Alouette" and all the remnants and leftovers in the musical ice-box, and it is just genuine good fun. It is usually heard, if at all, in more intimate circles and then played by a string quartet with two horns. These latter have some hilarious episodes when they weave weird designs. The concert master has a cadenza in the slow movement which ascends, finally, in humor as broad as the steps he takes.

* * *

MISS POSSELT and Mr. De Pasquale draw magnificent tone from their instruments, and they made sonority the most impressive part of the virtuoso performance. Their playing was strong and transparent, warm and vibrant, but they did not realize the full majestic potentialities of the first movement. A speed, unwarranted in our opinion, prevented them from extracting the true character of Mozart's wider canvas and channeled them into a brilliance which is the less favorable of several choices in taste and color.

The lovely "Linz" symphony was played after intermission. Munch gave his peerless little band a loose rein and they rewarded him, and the large audience, with a tightly knit, beautiful-sounding performance. Mozart was in his happiest and most gentle vein in this symphony. After the few short, stately bars of the introductory adagio, he makes a tender plea which is answered with limpid grace in the oboes and bassoons and he then proceeds into the spirited main body of the first movement. Alternating crisp, firm, rhythmic idioms with quietly flowing undulations, the charm of this movement is never allowed to flag. The orchestra was in superb fettle and gave a telling rendition.

* * *

THE ADAGIO is a fitting sequel. It lies in the most effective registers of the strings. The few winds he employs, especially the horns, are used with singular virtues. Munch construed the minuet as a Landler, a jolly, heavy-footed dance, giving it a degree of boisterousness not always conveyed in this movement and not universally considered appropriate. The trio gave the oboes and bassoons opportunities to show their command of the tone color of their instruments and this was one of the most lovely incidents of the whole symphony.

There were new lights erected in the front of the stage ceiling and used last night for the first time. Neon tubes used indirectly are shielded below corrugated plastic panels which also diffuse the original overhead lights. This is part of the experiments Boris Goldvosky of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is making with acoustical goals as well as lighting effects in mind. The stage is lighted more brightly although the artists appear with slightly increased pallor.

* * *

THIS SIZED orchestra can be placed farther to the rear of the stage than the complete instrumentation which they will play next week and the final four weeks of the Festival, and the sound leaps forward with instant release.

This concert had originally been planned for the theater, but the heavy storm of the late afternoon would have made the theater's surrounding lawns impractical for the huge overflow which came in the evening. There were 2,224 paid admissions. With attendance figures at their current heights, there is some doubt whether any of the concerts in which elements of the Boston Symphony orchestra will take part will again be scheduled in the smaller auditorium.

Springfield Union - July 12

MOZART WORKS SERIES IS BEGUN AT TANGLEWOOD

2224 Hear Performance Of Three Selections In Big Shed

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 11 — Having completed the traditional three programs devoted to the works of Bach, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, tonight inaugurated the first of a series of three concerts devoted to the music of Mozart. Continuous unpleasant weather necessitated moving the concert from the theater concert hall to the big shed. An audience of 2224 was on hand in spite of the weather.

From All Periods Of Life

During the next two days we shall be privileged to witness the many facets which make up the art of Mozart. The music to be heard will stem from all periods of his short life.

Tonight there were three fine examples of this art. The concert opened with a really hilarious performance of "A Musical Joke," that delectable little work which marked Mozart's only lampoon of a musical score. Then came the lovely "Sonfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" with Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale as soloists, and finally, the "Symphony in C Major, No. 36," known as the "Linz."

As noted, the musical joke is something very special. It is in the form of a divertimento, but instead of being a product of the smoothest of composers, it is the exact opposite, for Mozart forced himself to be ungainly in this instance. Thus one hears harmonies which are wrong and chords which are awkward. His cadenza makes fun of that custom and the ensuing cadenza disposes of the dignity of cadences for once and all. The work was played with evident relish by the orchestra and everyone had a fine time.

Exquisite Beauty

The "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola" is one of two occasions that Mozart chose to exploit the viola as a solo instrument. Perhaps at the time good violists were scarce. However, once having made up his mind to use the instrument, Mozart paired it with a violin and gave the world a work of exquisite beauty and proportion. The long orchestral exposition before the two soloists enter independently justifies the symphonic character of the title. The andante, in C Minor, is the outstanding movement, for it has a pathetic utterance more poignant than any other slow movement Mozart had written to that moment.

It is unnecessary at this time to comment at length at the excellences of Ruth Posselt and Mr. De Pasquale. Both are prime favorites here at Tanglewood and both have richly contributed to Tanglewood programs in the past.

There was a fine unity in their ensemble work and splendid individual achievement. I have seldom heard Miss Posselt play with greater communication, but I have heard Mr. De Pasquale's viola sing with more luscious tones than it did tonight.

Holds Back Tempo

Mr. Munch, who has been taking tempo pretty fast this season, held back in this work, even in the final presto, and the result was a well balanced and handsome ensemble.

The concert concluded with an excellent performance of the "Linz" symphony, a work for which Mr. Munch seems to have a particular affection. It takes players like those in the Boston Symphony to fully realize this score, a truly prodigious score even though it was written in the space of four days.

Caller, You Know Capital of Alaska Really Is Juneau

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP)—Fred Reedy of the Philadelphia Bulletin library answered a call today.

"What is the capital of Alaska," asked the caller.

"Juneau," replied Reedy.

"If I knew I wouldn't be calling you," retorted the indignant caller.

Chamber-Sized Symphony Program At Tanglewood

Hampshire Gazette 7/19

The Saturday concert of last week's Mozart portion of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood was moved from the previously announced theater concert hall to the cavernous music shed.

The move, of course, made for much better listening for the 6,333 who attended. It also served to detract considerably from the charm, elegance and intimate grace of Wolfgang Amadeus.

Mr. Munch was conducting a chamber-sized Boston Symphony. Mr. Munch was alternately subdued and expressive in his gestures and directing. Unfortunately, many times it seemed as if his waving configurations had little to do with the music at hand.

Be that as it may, the program included the exquisite "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," which retained some of its feathery lightness and delicacy, even in that hall. The string section played this serenade with tender and loving care, and what beautiful sounds were produced! But sounds were not all, for here Mr. Munch sustained his followers at an ethereal and sublimated pitch.

Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss were the soloists in the Concerto in E Flat Major for Two Pianos. It was a skillful collaboration on what is one of the master's minor works. Simple, yet lovely in its simplicity, it was well served by both pianists, though Mr. Foss added excessive manner while Mr. Lipkin performed with a musicianly straightforwardness. They received excellent assist from Mr. Munch and the orchestra, who matched the soloists' rapport with sympathetic concord. Here, too, Mozart's fine-spun beauty was not disfigured by size of the shed.

It was the Serenade for Thirteen Wind Instruments which was battered beyond all recognition, mostly by the building itself, though Mr. Munch was guilty of over-conducting. His wide and furious arm flinging seemed more appropriate for a full 100 pieces than for a mere 13. He pulled and rushed these expert players, until the serenade took on the proportions of Strauss tone poem. Looking at the program before the concert, one would have chosen this to be the high spot of the evening. After all, it is rare when musicians of the caliber of the Boston group are assembled to give service to these lesser works (not in stature, but in size).

And the Symphony in G Minor the familiar No. 40, was not well treated either. The first two movements were ponderous, though things did lighten up considerably for the minuet and the dashing last movement.

It was not a very exhilarating or satisfying evening. One is sure that neither Mozart nor Mr. Munch should have been pleased after their latest encounter.

This week, Brahms will be the featured composer when the festival moves officially to the shed. — B. D.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUL 12 1958

Mozart Weekend Opens For Enthralled Audience

The weekend devoted to Mozart, the second in the current Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under ~~Dr.~~ Munch, opened last evehing in the big Shed, the sodden turf necessitating the shift from the theatre-concert hall.

A delighted audience nubering 2,242 sat enthralled throughout an evening of superlative music, both in content and execution.

Dr. Munch's first offering was the charmingly clumsy "Musical Joke' Mozart composed in a witty lampoon of the would-be composer. Dr. Munch directed the work with mock seriousness, the muscians studiously tossing off ridiculously contrived passages with aplomb. Waves of hearty laughter greeted each obvious blunder, especially when the horns insinuated their phrases insistently above the other instruments and their eventual harmonic collapse after bravely and sweetly starting a solo in the "minuet.'

Richard Burgin, concertmaster, evoked a round of applause, apparently "removed" from everyone, with a "cadenza to end all cadenzas," including double-stops, trills, scale passages, in other words, "the works" completely unconnected. The presto, among other contrivances, broadly handling a theme "a la fugue" from one section to another, and inevitably to the horns, ends in complete harmonic disarray.

From the ridiculous to the sublime was the order of the program. Mozart's seldom played "Sonfonia Concertante," for solo violin and viola, in E flat, was performed with dynamic beauty and true virtuosity by Ruth Posselt, concert violinist, and Joseph DePasquale, first violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The magnificent Italian instruments used by the soloists added to one's listening pleasure, their rich timbres beautifully balancing each other. The whole composition is rather like a dialogue, with the orchestra enveloping the players with full symphonic participation.

The infinite beauty of the "andante" especially suggests a tender dialogue between two lovers, so exquisitely are the phrases formed, with full symphonic participation.

The infinite beauty of the "andante" especially suggests a tender dialogue between two lovers, so exquisitely are the phrases formed, with neither instrument dominating the other musicwise. The solo viola was absorbed by the orchestral tones in a few passages, but was quickly adjusted. The remarkably accurate intonation of both instruments on such a hazardously sticky evening only served to point up the skill and artistry of Miss Posselt and Mr. DePasquale.

Dr. Munch directed the soloists and chamber orchestra with his sensitive awareness for the structural strength and dynamic detail the composer indicated, receiving with the solo performers enthusiastic and prolonged applause.

The last half of the program was devoted to the powerful "Linz" Symphony, K425, written, scored and rehearsed in four days, we are told. The full perfection of the symphony was revealed in all its intricate workings by the inspiring conductor, Dr. Munch, and the indefatigable orchestra members. The "landler-like" minuet with trio idyllic play of the solo oboe, horn and strings in the trio, and the insouciant effervescence of the "presto" completed a richly satisfying musical evening.

Although much of the audiences so far has been tardy in arriving at the correct opening hour, or rather half-hour, one must remark on their unflagging appreciation for Dr. Munch and the participants in the Festival concerts; their applause has been warmly and generous, with no apparent rush to leave the concert hall.

This evening's concert will include the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, K365 two-piano concerto, with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, Serenade for 13 wind instruments and the Symphony in G minor, K550. Sunday's program includes the Haffner Symphony, Seymour Lipkin playing the C major piano concerto, with the second half conducted by Hugh Ross in excerpts from the "Coronation Mass."—M. deB. B.

OBSCURED TEXT

[91]

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN 7/13/58

Second Thoughts On Music

B-Minor Mass Concludes Series of Bach Programs

Harvard and Radcliffe Singers Join Soloists at Tanglewood; Suites for Orchestra, 'Art of the Fugue' and Concerto With Lukas Foss Heard

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 12 — The culmination of the three programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach at Tanglewood was the performance of the master's Mass in B minor under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth, who was conducting his last performance with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. It also marked the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club. It was a pleasant gesture on the part of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, to invite Mr. Woodworth to conduct this performance.

The first of the three Bach programs was made up of the four suites for orchestra. Mr. Munch also directed the second program, which served to present pianist Lukas Foss in the piano concerto in D minor and the orchestra in the "Art of the Fugue" as arranged by Pillney for chamber orchestra.

Chorus Effective

To return to the Mass, it was a powerful performance, one which was sure, straightforward and eminently musical. The choruses sounded wonderfully as the emerged from the young men and women, singing with fresh voices and with boundless enthusiasm. One might question the lack of tonal and dynamic variety, but the overall impression was one of sincerity and joy.

The soloists were Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor and Donald Gramm, bass. Each is an experienced singer, admirably equipped to sing this music. Bach, unfortunately, did not allot a soprano, but Miss Addison's lively voice and expert vocal technique were apparent in her duets with the contralto and tenor.

Miss Alberts, a Tanglewood veteran, is always competent and her singing of the "Agnus Dei" was impressive. Mr. Stern used his very light voice to advantage in the "Benedictus" and was admirably aided by Doriot Anthony Dwyer's flute solo. Donald Gramm is a distinguished artist and was very impressive in his delivery of the great aria "Et in spiritum sanctum" to the accompaniment of two "Oboi d'Amore."

The Suites for Orchestra

There is a deal of fine, solid music in these suites for orchestra. Mr. Munch seems to have an affection for this music, so, with the exception of inordinately fast tempi in the final movements of the third and fourth suites, he provided carefully detailed and well proportioned readings. There is always particular audience interest when Doriot Anthony Dwyer appears as soloist and this she did in the second suite in B minor for flute and strings.

As always, it was a virtuoso performance which pleased the audience greatly. She was rewarded with prolonged applause, bravos and the like. From a purely musical standpoint we found the first suite in C major the most rewarding. It was beautifully phrased and communicated with the exceptional clarity. The chamber orchestra was flexible and always responsive.

The "Art of the Fugue"

In the final months of his life, Bach undertook to demonstrate in a single work every possible treatment of a fugal subject. The result was the "Art of the Fugue. Our only other hearing of this gigantic work was in an arrangement for strong quartet. In this arrangement for orchestra it seemed to take on added stature, and, because of the virtuosity of this chamber orchestra, made up of first-desk players of the orchestra and a picked group, the performance came through with splendid clarity. However, it is not a work to be heard in its entirety in a single performance. It tends to become confusing to the listener. Interpretation of this work, the score of which includes no tempi or dynamic marks, is a test for any conductor. Mr. Munch made of it a lovely, flowing piece of music, transparent in texture and clearly articulated.

Gazette (e)
WORCESTER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 102,839

JUL 14 1958

Mozart Works Are Featured At Tanglewood

By JOHN F. KYES

LENOX — In spite of nasty weather Friday, an attendance of 6,333 at Saturday's Tanglewood concert in the big music shed and a creditable showing Sunday created a weekend total of 12,771, believed to be a high point in the Berkshire Festival's "preliminary" Bach-Mozart weekends.

The Saturday evening concert, conducted by Charles Munch and featuring Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss, pianists, with an orchestra suitably reduced for Mozartean fare, was a vibrant and satisfying experience.

Beautifully alive and clean cut were the four movements of "Eine kleine Nachtmusik," the famous serenade for strings. Munch wore the happiest of expressions, seemingly delighted with the response of his forces. The famous accuracy and tonal qualities of the Boston choirs were agreeably warmed by the romantic tendencies of the Munch approach.

Tremendous Success

Lipkin and Foss scored a tremendous success in the Concerto in E-flat major for two pianos and orchestra. While Foss had the more showy assignments and tossed them off with high skill, Lipkin was obviously completely in love with the music and was at all times a splendid integrator.

The somewhat clangorous orchestral introduction created fears not wholly dispelled by the slightly sluggish responses of the ensemble during the first movement. But the opening of the lovely "Andante" and the difficulties of the final "Rondo" brought the finest cooperation from the group, and the work as a whole left dazzling memories.

Of outstanding interest was the Serenade in B-flat major for 13 wind instruments. Absent from the scoring were brasses and flutes. Instead, the sweet tone of two clarinets was abetted by basset-horns, oboes, bassoons contra-bassoon and French horns. The smoothness and purity of the chords was almost indescribable. Munch devoted as much care to this small ensemble, and took as much joy in the audience's appreciation, as in the major work which followed.

Varied and Fresh

The Symphony in G minor, No. 40, found the conductor working hard to maintain dynamic contrasts and flexibility of phrases without loss of the clarity and technical accuracy demanded by the Mozart score. As a result, the four movements were delightfully varied and fresh. After the abundant energy of the "Molto allegro," the clinging sweetness of the "Andante" featured especially rich chordal foundations in the lower instruments. The considerable difficulties of the final "Allegro assai," approached almost casually, were under unflagging control.

The entire evening was an experience in the human appeal of Mozart's pure music. Next week and the emphasis to Brahms.

NE, SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1958

MUSIC

PAUL HENRY LANG

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program: Musical Joke, 522; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph De Pasquale); "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C major..............Mozart

LENOX, Mass. July 12.—The week end at Tanglewood did not promise any of the big war chariots drawn by two horses—it was only Mozart — but a crowd of more than 2,000 showed up and this in spite of the torrential rains that drenched the Berkshires in the late afternoon. The faithful were rewarded by the playing of three masterpieces which, representing three totally different moods and genres, made a very satisfactory program.

Mr. Munch and his orchestra of nice Mozartian proportions began with "A Musical Joke," for strings and two horns, which is a mature work from the "Don Giovanni" period. It caused endless amusement; it was good to see the audience laugh in delight. Nor did they laugh only when the players were in obvious distress, but also when much more subtle jokes such as a recalcitrant fugue tested their musical intelligence. They did seem to catch the spirit of the work although the conductor tended to emphasize the meaning of the title given the work after Mozart's death: "Sextette for Village Musicians."

As John N. Burk, the able program annotator of the Boston Symphony states, village musicians are not the butt of this joke. Indeed the wrong notes and the slips are only humorous details. The parody is aimed at the composer and it is so murderously pointed and clever that one suspects that its object was some specific person.

Everything is according to the book, all tricks of the trade are present except a truly inventive development of ideas. A great deal of imagination has gone into this work—to prove what the lack of this very thing can do.

* *

This work must be performed with the same careful attention to fine balances usually bestowed on a serious symphony. But Mr. Munch italicized some of the jokes by making the horne too prominent, even raucous. The excellent concertmaster, Richard Burgin, was the one who did the right thing by playing his elaborate and devilishly outrageous cadenza with the earnestness due a serious concerto.

The two soloists who performed the wonderful "Sinfonia Concertante" for Violin and Viola (K. 364) were not well matched. Ruth Posselt is a capable and competent violinist but Mozartian grace, particularly abundant in this radiant work, does not come naturally to her. In contrast, Joseph De Pasquale is a most accomplished violist who played with unerring smoothness. When Miss Posselt momentarily disavowed her blond tresses and went a bit native in the gypsy manner, Mr. De Pasquale refused to follow suit.

This happened at the beginning of the heavenly slow movement and in justice to Miss Posselt it must be said that she soon snapped out of it. The performance was, on the whole, good but routine because Mr. Munch failed to create a poetic atmosphere.

* * *

The conductor's concept of Mozart as a vigorous and not very subtle composer was least objectionable in the last number on the program, the Linz Symphony, K. 425. This is the last of the indeterminate symphonies after which comes a pause, and then nothing but absolutely personal masterpieces. Not that this symphony is not a masterpiece—at this stage of his career Mozart could compose nothing less when it came to a major work—but it is not a personal work.

The symphony is festive, rhetorical and exceedingly well worked, but it is completely under the influence of Haydn. Since, after all, Mozart's was an entirely different personality, this dependence on his reversed senior colleague gives the work a rather formal quality.

Mr. Munch did not minimize this and while the precision and tone of the Boston Symphony was, of course, fully in evidence, a certain monotony was undeniable. Furthermore, while the orchestra was nicely scaled down, its dynamics were not and in the tuttis an imbalance between winds and strings was quite noticeable. Well, Mozart is still enjoyable even when he is a bit weighted down.

Waterbury American, Monday, July 14, 1958—45

Mozart Mass Featured At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 14—The week end of all Mozart music at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood closed on a note of triumph yesterday afternoon with the performance of his "Coronation" Mass in C major with the festival chorus and soloist performing before a large Sunday audience favored in every way including the weather..

Saturday evening's "little concert" in the pre-season Shed concerts which began Friday drew an audience of 6,333 for a brilliant concert in which Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss were the pianists in the "Concerto in B-flat Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra." The program which began with "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" found Charles Munch conducting the charming, spirited "Serenade in B-flat Major for 13 Wind Instruments" in an unusual treat for all. He concluded with "Symphony in G. Minor."

The opening Mozart concert Friday evening drew 2,225 despite rain which has come at inauspicious times this festival season. Sunday's concert found Mr. Lipkin back as piano soloist in "Concerto in C major for Piano and Orchestra" with Mr. Munch conducting the first half of the concert. Lukas Foss conducted the second portion with two Mozart selections.

The annual trek to the Berkshire Musical Festival which yearly rolls up new attendance records for the four week-ends of concerts of the major festival will begin this Friday with the music of Brahms feautred for the opening Saturday evening when the "Requiem" will be conducted by Munch in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, and again for the Sunday afternoon concert when Pierre Monteux will be back as guest conductor. The Festival Chorus will sing the "Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, Leon Fleisher will be soloist Sunday in the performance of Brahm's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor."

At 8:30 p. m. Wednesday the famous New York Pro Musica Antiqua will perform a chamber music concert of the music of Flanders and Spain, including works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others.

S.M.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 13 1958

MUSIC

PAUL HENRY LANG

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program: Musical Joke, 522; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph De Pasquale); "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C major..............Mozart

Charles Munch

LENOX, Mass. July 12.—The week end at Tanglewood did not promise any of the big war chariots drawn by two horses—it was only Mozart — but a crowd of more than 2,000 showed up and this in spite of the torrential rains that drenched the Berkshires in the late afternoon. The faithful were rewarded by the playing of three masterpieces which, representing three totally different moods and genres, made a very satisfactory program.

Mr. Munch and his orchestra of nice Mozartian proportions began with "A Musical Joke," for strings and two horns, which is a mature work from the "Don Giovanni" period. It caused endless amusement; it was good to see the audience laugh in delight. Nor did they laugh only when the players were in obvious distress, but also when much more subtle jokes such as a recalcitrant fugue tested their musical intelligence. They did seem to catch the spirit of the work although the conductor tended to emphasize the meaning of the title given the work after Mozart's death: "Sextette for Village Musicians."

As John N. Burk, the able program annotator of the Boston Symphony states, village musicians are not the butt of this joke. Indeed the wrong notes and the slips are only humorous details. The parody is aimed at the composer and it is so murderously pointed and clever that one suspects that its object was some specific person.

Everything is according to the book, all tricks of the trade are present except a truly inventive development of ideas. A great deal of imagination has gone into this work—to prove what the lack of this very thing can do.

* *

This work must be performed with the same careful attention to fine balances usually bestowed on a serious symphony. But Mr. Munch italicized some of the jokes by making the horns too prominent, even raucous. The excellent concertmaster, Richard Burgin, was the one who did the right thing by playing his elaborate and devilishly outrageous cadenza with the earnestness due a serious concerto.

The two soloists who performed the wonderful "Sinfonia Concertante" for Violin and Viola (K. 364) were not well matched. Ruth Posselt is a capable and competent violinist but Mozartian grace, particularly abundant in this radiant work, does not come naturally to her. In contrast, Joseph De Pasquale is a most accomplished violist who played with unerring smoothness. When Miss Posselt momentarily disavowed her blond tresses and went a bit native in the gypsy manner, Mr. De Pasquale refused to follow suit.

This happened at the beginning of the heavenly slow movement and in justice to Miss Posselt it must be said that she soon snapped out of it. The performance was, on the whole, good but routine because Mr. Munch failed to create a poetic atmosphere.

* * *

The conductor's concept of Mozart as a vigorous and not very subtle composer was least objectionable in the last number on the program, the Linz Symphony, K. 425. This is the last of the indeterminate symphonies after which comes a pause, and then nothing but absolutely personal masterpieces. Not that this symphony is not a masterpiece at this stage of his career Mozart could compose nothing less when it came to a major work—but it is not a personal work.

The symphony is festive, rhetorical and exceedingly well worked, but it is completely under the influence of Haydn. Since, after all, Mozart's was an entirely different personality, this dependence on his reversed senior colleague gives the work a rather formal quality.

Mr. Munch did not minimize this and while the precision and tone of the Boston Symphony was, of course, fully in evidence, a certain monotony was undeniable. Furthermore, while the orchestra was nicely scaled down, its dynamics were not and in the tuttis an imbalance between winds and strings was quite noticeable. Well, Mozart is still enjoyable even when he is a bit weighted down.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

JUL 14 1958

Three Moz

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

No music is quite so much he mercy of the performer
Mozart's. The polyphonic line f Bach will hold interest eve hough the reading is mediocre provided the notes are playe with reasonable accuracy.
Beethoven's music will con vey its message in spite of a fa o middling performance. Cho pin, Mendelssohn, Schuman
Liszt, Brahms—all can surviv conceptions and execution some what lower than the best with ut altogether losing shape an nt.
But Mozart's superlative mu must have superlative pe rmance. It shines and sparkl der the best of performance t anything less destroys t fect, and it is for this reas at musicians will tell you th ozart is the most difficult to play properly.
In programing three Moza ncerts for the second wee d of the Berkshire Festiv Tanglewood, Charles Mun uld point confidently to pressive list of readin hich have delighted his au ces in the past. He approach e composer with a lig arted touch, compounded ual parts of wit and wisdo master of those subtle alte ons in tempo which Mozar usic demands, the conducto exibility invests each phra ith life and each page w eaning.
Thus it was for the grea art of the weekend's mu hen the effect fell a little sh
Dr. Munch's own high star ds, the reason could not fai e layed to his baton.

* * *

Would it be a shock to le at the opening work of ay night's concert was punc ted by gales of laughter, at there was a constant ertone of chuckles accompa ng the music? But how delig d Mozart would have been bserve such a result for
"Ein Musikalischer Spass"—
Musical Joke!
Here the composer lets haft after shaft at inexpert ediocre composers and formers. Nothing escapes hi he tedious sequences, the itional cadenza, the inex
ornists, the obvious dial between instruments. At just right moment the music s o brief and purposely shoc arce, only to recover almost mediately to an even and ri ulously sedate pace.
Conductor and players duced their comedy in just right proportion, and the r was one of the notable trium n the conductor's career.
Those two fine artists, osselt and Joseph de Pasq ere the soloists for the onia Concertante for V nd Viola in E-flat, K. 364.

LANG ival

Charles Munch

manner, Mr. De Pasquale d to follow suit.
s happened at the begin-of the heavenly slow ment and in justice to Posselt it must be said
she soon snapped out of it.
performance was, on the , good but routine be-
Mr. Munch failed to crepoetic atmosphere.

* * *

e conductor's concept of rt as a vigorous and not subtle composer was least tionable in the last number e program, the Linz Sym-y, K. 425. This is the last he indeterminate sym-ies after which comes a e, and then nothing but utely personal masters. Not that this symphony ot a masterpiece—at this of his career Mozart could ose nothing less when it to a major work—but it is personal work.
e symphony is festive, rheal and exceedingly well ed, but it is completely
r the influence of Haydn.
e, after all, Mozart's was an rely different personality, dependence on his reversed or colleague gives the work ther formal quality.
r. Munch did not minimize and while the precision and of the Boston Symphony
of course, fully in evidence, rtain monotony was undele. Furthermore, while the hestra was nicely scaled n, its dynamics were not in the tuttis an imbalance ween winds and strings was e noticeable. Well, Mozart till enjoyable even when he bit weighted down.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

JUL 14 1958

Three Mozart Programs at Tanglewood

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

No music is quite so much at the mercy of the performer as Mozart's. The polyphonic lines of Bach will hold interest even though the reading is mediocre, provided the notes are played with reasonable accuracy.

Beethoven's music will convey its message in spite of a fair to middling performance. Chopin, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Liszt, Brahms—all can survive conceptions and execution somewhat lower than the best without altogether losing shape and point.

But Mozart's superlative music must have superlative performance. It shines and sparkles under the best of performances; but anything less destroys the effect, and it is for this reason that musicians will tell you that Mozart is the most difficult of all to play properly.

In programing three Mozart concerts for the second weekend of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Charles Munch could point confidently to an impressive list of readings which have delighted his audiences in the past. He approaches the composer with a lighthearted touch, compounded in equal parts of wit and wisdom. A master of those subtle alterations in tempo which Mozart's music demands, the conductor's flexibility invests each phrase with life and each page with meaning.

Thus it was for the greater part of the weekend's music. When the effect fell a little short of Dr. Munch's own high standards, the reason could not fairly be layed to his baton.

* * *

Would it be a shock to learn that the opening work of Friday night's concert was punctuated by gales of laughter, and that there was a constant undertone of chuckles accompanying the music? But how delighted Mozart would have been to observe such a result for his "Ein Musikalischer Spass" — A Musical Joke!

Here the composer lets fly shaft after shaft at inexpert and mediocre composers and performers. Nothing escapes him—the tedious sequences, the traditional cadenza, the inexpert hornists, the obvious dialogue between instruments. At just the right moment the music soars to brief and purposely shocking farce, only to recover almost immediately to an even and ridiculously sedate pace.

Conductor and players produced their comedy in just the right proportion, and the result was one of the notable triumphs in the conductor's career.

Those two fine artists, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, were the soloists for the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola in E-flat, K. 364. Both performers have given repeated proof of their skill and high talent in previous appearances with the orchestra and while both were in fine form on this occasion, their joint results did not fully complement each other.

In addition to all the normal skills of ensemble, the Sinfonia needs subtle and constant alterations of timbre from both artists. Miss Posselt's tone was too consistently assertive, putting the more somber viola tones too much in the shade. Consequently the effect suggested more a soloist with an assisting artist than the equality Mozart's score demands.

The "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425, brought the evening to an exciting close.

* * *

Saturday evening's program showed how fine the line that may divide the false from true. The program was beautifully balanced—"Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" for String Orchestra; the E-flat Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra; the Serenade in B-flat for 13 Wind Instruments; and the Symphony in G minor, No. 40, K. 550.

Of the concerto it might be said that the soloists did not fall short but rather that they overshot the mark. Both Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin are refined, discerning, and knowing pianists. But this time they concentrated more on brilliant repartee than on a full realization of the score as a whole.

* * *

Both executed every phrase with such conscious deftness as to make one forget the music in admiration for the performers' skill. Also, and particularly in the first movement, a few rather breathless accelerandi almost caught Dr. Munch and the orchestra by surprise, and if the recovery was almost miraculously quick, again one was made conscious of the means rather than of the end.

Large audiences and enthusiasm were the rule for all three concerts. Listed for Sunday were the "Haffner" Symphony in D major and the Concerto in C major, K. 467, with Mr. Lipkin the soloist, both directed by Dr. Munch. On the same program Hugh Ross conducted the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale ad Festum, K. 273, and the "Coronation" Mass in C major, K. 317.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 14 1958

FINE DAY ADDS TO ENJOYMENT AT TANGLEWOOD

Audience of 4214 Hears Mozart Selections In Concert Hall

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 13—Perfect weather coupled with the music of Mozart drew an audience of 4214 to Tanglewood this afternoon. We have seldom seen so many people seated outside the theater-concert hall in which the concert was given.

Two Conductors

Charles Munch directed the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony in the first half of the program. The second half was directed by Hugh Ross and served to introduce the festival chorus.

The program opened with the Symphony in D Major, op. 35, known as the "Haffner" Symphony. This is party music, happy music. The Minuet has the characteristic Mozartian elegance; the slow andante is entirely gracious and the final presto is as witty as the composer. Mr. Munch provided a finely etched performance, beautiful in texture and phrasing. The profusion of happy thoughts within the work were all revealed.

That fine and dependable pianist Seymour Lipkin was the soloist in the "concerto in E Major for piano and orchestra." It was an ideal choice for this lovely day for its music is caressing, melodic and utterly free from somber thoughts and heaviness. Soloist and orchestra tripped through its measures with delightful delicacy and humor. Mr. Lipkin's performance was a model of grace and elegance and he received complete and sympathetic support from Mr. Munch and the orchestra. The audience was enchanted.

Tonal Quality Below Par

Mr. Ross, head of the center's choral department, does not have the material in this season's festival chorus he has had in the past. The enthusiasm is there, but the tonal quality is lacking. However, when this fine director finishes with any group, he has moulded them into a flexible and responsive instrument. So it was today. The chorus sang with spirit and understanding of texts and styles. The opening "Kyrie in D Minor" is music of impressive breadth. The eloquence of the orchestra combined with the matching vocal and instrumental tone make this one of the finest of Mozart's choral works.

Following this work came the "Graduale Ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis" for chorus, strings and organ. Here again, one could only marvel at the strength and dignity of this music, a simple antiphone for chorus and strings.

Mozart's "Mass in C Major," the "Coronation" mass, complet-soloists were Sarah Fleming, so-ed the program. The admirable prano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Soloists Excel

Of the soloists the burden falls upon the soprano and tenor and both were equal to all demands. In fact, Miss Fleming's singing of the "Angus Dei" with its exact initial resemblance to "Dovo Sono," written seven years later in "The Marriage of Figaro," was as fine a bit of Mozart singing as we have heard in a long time. Her voice is lovely, clear, pure and lofty. Her phrasing as she carried the aria over into the "Dona Nobis Pacem" was to be admired. Miss Okerson and Mr. Chelsi were excellent in the ensemble numbers and Mr. Gilley revealed he is a tenor who should be heard more often. His sense of style was impeccable.

There was a sprightly spirit throughout the work, which, however did not dim its fundamental religious sincerity.

Foss Soloist

On the same program, Lukas Foss addressed his very considerable talents to a performance of the Piano Concerto in D minor. In itself this is a commanding work. Mr. Foss has an affinity for the piano music of Bach and Mozart and he has the technique ot play such music. During this particular performance he seemed a bit nervous, intent more on watching Mr. Munch than the music. This may have been due to insufficient rehearsal time. There were some beautiful moments during the performance, particularly in the exquisite Adagio movement, and there was the requisite brilliance in the final cadenzi which leads to the culmination of the Finale.

The weather has been miserable, rain and more rain. Two of the concerts were moved to the big shed, where it was possible for all listeners to be under cover. A total of 9716 persons attended the three week end concerts in spite of the weather. Those who made the efforts were amply repaid.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUL 17 1958

TANGLEWOOD
July 11 and 12
By A. C. S.

Mozart's lampoon of contemporary composition, A Musical Joke, was milked dry by Charles Munch Friday evening to the obvious delight of the audience. With a firm grasp on his listeners, the conductor turned to more meaty fare from the same pen. Barring some initial tenseness in the solo violin which resulted in harsh tone and poorly articulated ornaments, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale achieved complete rapport in the Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola. The later playing was ever alert to the subtleties of the work.

The performance of the great C major (Linz) Symphony was excellent and might have approached perfection with more rehearsing. All the elements were there and, had Mr. Munch's directions been fully reflected, the results would have been magnificent.

Although there were many rewarding moments in the second evening of Mozart works, an odd feeling of tension was in the air Saturday. There was no apparent reason, for the rains had stopped, the sun had shone, the temperature had dropped, and Charles Munch was obviously relaxed. However, the orchestra seemed to champ at the bit. The final movements of Eine Kleine Nachtmusik and the Serenade in B-Flat for 13 Wind Instruments came precariously close to falling down. Even the marvelous tempo chosen for the opening of the G minor Symphony was quickly unseated by a skittish first-violin section.

The uneven quality evidenced in the E-Flat Concerto for Two Pianos must be laid to Lukas Foss. He seemed determined to push the tempo (to his own detriment) while his colleague, Seymour Lipkin, was the epitome of control, both rhythmically and pianistically.

TANGLEWOOD
July 13
By C. D.

The first half of the Mozart program Sunday afternoon was conducted by Dr. Munch and contained the Haffner Symphony which was given a lively and sparkling performance, and the C Major Piano Concerto. Seymour Lipkin was soloist in the latter work. His playing was brilliant and on the fast side. If the tone had been a little more singing and the last movement more leisurely, it might have been an even more exciting performance. The audience liked it and called the soloist and conductor back for many bows.

(Continued on Page 14)

Grace Notes

(Continued from Page 6)

After the intermission, Hugh Ross conducted three choral works which were a pleasure to hear. There is little opportunity to hear works of this calibre and they are first-rate Mozart. All of them, though based on the text of the Mass, could have been written for a non-religious text as well. Mr. Ross brought out the drama of the music. The tone of the chorus could have been warmer and the quartet of soloists better balanced, but the pace of the works seemed exactly right and there were fine dramatic climaxes.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 14 1958

Third, Final Mozart Concert Draws 4,214 to Tanglewood

The third and final Mozart concert in this year's Berkshire Music Festival attracted a crowd of 4,214 to Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. The audience filled the theater-concert hall and spread out over the lawns outside.

Munch Directs

Charles Munch directed the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony in the first half of the program. The program opened with the Symphony in D Major, op. 35, known as the "Haffner Symphony." Seymour Lipkin was piano soloist for the Concerto in C Major."

The second half of the program was directed by Hugh Ross, head of the Berkshire Music Center's choral department. The opening work in that half was the "Kyrie in D Minor," which was followed by the "Graduale Ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis," for chorus, strings and organ. The "Mass in C Major" completed the program. The soloists were Sarah Flemming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Another Mozart program was presented in the big shed on Saturday evening. Soloists in the two-piano Concerto K. 365 were Mr. Lipkin and Lukas Foss. Mr. Munch was on the podium.

Chamber Music

The festival continues this week with another in the weekly series of chamber music concerts Wednesday evening and the first series of concerts by the full Boston Symphony Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon.

Wednesday's concert in the theater-concert hall will be given by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. The weekend concerts, featuring music by Brahms, will be held in the big shed.

[92]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729
JUL 14 1958

Three Mozart Programs at Tanglewood

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

No music is quite so much at the mercy of the performer as Mozart's. The polyphonic lines of Bach will hold interest even though the reading is mediocre, provided the notes are played with reasonable accuracy.

Beethoven's music will convey its message in spite of a fair to middling performance. Chopin, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Liszt, Brahms—all can survive conceptions and execution somewhat lower than the best without altogether losing shape and point.

But Mozart's superlative music must have superlative performance. It shines and sparkles under the best of performances; but anything less destroys the effect, and it is for this reason that musicians will tell you that Mozart is the most difficult of all to play properly.

In programing three Mozart concerts for the second weekend of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Charles Munch could point confidently to an impressive list of readings which have delighted his audiences in the past. He approaches the composer with a lighthearted touch, compounded in equal parts of wit and wisdom. A master of those subtle alterations in tempo which Mozart's music demands, the conductor's flexibility invests each phrase with life and each page with meaning.

Thus it was for the greater part of the weekend's music. When the effect fell a little short of Dr. Munch's own high standards, the reason could not fairly be layed to his baton.

* * *

Would it be a shock to learn that the opening work of Friday night's concert was punctuated by gales of laughter, and that there was a constant undertone of chuckles accompanying the music? But how delighted Mozart would have been to observe such a result for his "Ein Musikalischer Spass"—A Musical Joke!

Here the composer lets fly shaft after shaft at inexpert and mediocre composers and performers. Nothing escapes him—the tedious sequences, the traditional cadenza, the inexpert hornists, the obvious dialogue between instruments. At just the right moment the music soars to brief and purposely shocking farce, only to recover almost immediately to an even and ridiculously sedate pace.

Conductor and players produced their comedy in just the right proportion, and the result was one of the notable triumphs in the conductor's career.

Those two fine artists, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, were the soloists for the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola in E-flat, K. 364. Both performers have given repeated proof of their skill and high talent in previous appearances with the orchestra and while both were in fine form on this occasion, their joint results did not fully complement each other.

In addition to all the normal skills of ensemble, the Sinfonia needs subtle and constant alterations of timbre from both artists. Miss Posselt's tone was too consistently assertive, putting the more somber viola tones too much in the shade. Consequently the effect suggested more a soloist with an assisting artist than the equality Mozart's score demands.

The "Linz" Symphony in C major, K. 425, brought the evening to an exciting close.

* * *

Saturday evening's program showed how fine the line that may divide the false from true. The program was beautifully balanced—"Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" for String Orchestra; the E-flat Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra; the Serenade in B-flat for 13 Wind Instruments; and the Symphony in G minor, No. 40, K. 550.

Of the concerto it might be said that the soloists did not fall short but rather that they overshot the mark. Both Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin are refined, discerning, and knowing pianists. But this time they concentrated more on brilliant repartee than on a full realization of the score as a whole.

* * *

Both executed every phrase with such conscious deftness as to make one forget the music in admiration for the performers' skill. Also, and particularly in the first movement, a few rather breathless accelerandi almost caught Dr. Munch and the orchestra by surprise, and if the recovery was almost miraculously quick, again one was made conscious of the means rather than of the end.

Large audiences and enthusiasm were the rule for all three concerts. Listed for Sunday were the "Haffner" Symphony in D major and the Concerto in C major, K. 467, with Mr. Lipkin the soloist, both directed by Dr. Munch. On the same program Hugh Ross conducted the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale ad Festum, K. 273, and the "Coronation" Mass in C major, K. 317.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 14 1958

FINE DAY ADDS TO ENJOYMENT AT TANGLEWOOD

Audience of 4214 Hears Mozart Selections In Concert Hall

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 13—Perfect weather coupled with the music of Mozart drew an audience of 4214 to Tanglewood this afternoon. We have seldom seen so many people seated outside the theater-concert hall in which the concert was given.

Two Conductors

Charles Munch directed the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony in the first half of the program. The second half was directed by Hugh Ross and served to introduce the festival chorus.

The program opened with the Symphony in D Major, op. 35, known as the "Haffner" Symphony. This is party music, happy music. The Minuet has the characteristic Mozartian elegance; the slow andante is entirely gracious and the final presto is as witty as the composer. Mr. Munch provided a finely etched performance, beautiful in texture and phrasing. The profusion of happy thoughts within the work were all revealed.

That fine and dependable pianist Seymour Lipkin was the soloist in the "concerto in E Major for piano and orchestra." It was an ideal choice for this lovely day for its music is caressing, melodic and utterly free from somber thoughts and heaviness. Soloist and orchestra tripped through its measures with delightful delicacy and humor. Mr. Lipkin's performance was a model of grace and elegance and he received complete and sympathetic support from Mr. Munch and the orchestra. The audience was enchanted.

Tonal Quality Below Par

Mr. Ross, head of the Center's choral department, does not have the material in this season's festival chorus he has had in the past. The enthusiasm is there, but the tonal quality is lacking. However, when this fine director finishes with any group, he has moulded them into a flexible and responsive instrument. So it was today. The chorus sang with spirit and understanding of texts and styles. The opening "Kyrie in D Minor" is music of impressive breadth. The eloquence of the orchestra combined with the matching vocal and instrumental tone make this one of the finest of Mozart's choral works.

Following this work came the "Graduale Ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis" for chorus, strings and organ. Here again, one could only marvel at the strength and dignity of this music, a simple antiphone for chorus and strings.

Mozart's "Mass in C Major," the "Coronation" mass, completsoloists were Sarah Fleming, soed the program. The admirable prano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Soloists Excel

Of the soloists the burden falls upon the soprano and tenor and both were equal to all demands. In fact, Miss Fleming's singing of the "Angus Dei" with its exact initial resemblance to "Dovo Sono," written seven years later in "The Marriage of Figaro," was as fine a bit of Mozart singing as we have heard in a long time. Her voice is lovely, clear, pure and lofty. Her phrasing as she carried the aria over into the "Dona Nobis Pacem" was to be admired. Miss Okerson and Mr. Chelsi were excellent in the ensemble numbers and Mr. Gilley revealed he is a tenor who should be [illegible] more often. His sense of [illegible] ble.

There was [illegible] spirit throughout the work, which, however did not dim its fundamental religious sincerity.

Foss Soloist

On the same program, Lukas Foss addressed his very considerable talents to a performance of the Piano Concerto in D minor. In itself this is a commanding work. Mr. Foss has an affinity for the piano music of Bach and Mozart and he has the technique ot play such music. During this particular performance he seemed a bit nervous, intent more on watching Mr. Munch than the music. This may have been due to insufficient rehearsal time. There were some beautiful moments during the performance, particularly in the exquisite Adagio movement, and there was the requisite brilliance in the final cadenza which leads to the culmination of the Finale.

The weekend has been miserable, rain and more rain. Two of the concerts were moved to the big shed, where it was possible for all listeners to be under cover. A total of 9716 persons attended the three week end concerts in spite of the weather. Those who made the efforts were amply re- [illegible]

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUL 17 1958

TANGLEWOOD
July 11 and 12
By A. C. S.

Mozart's lampoon of contemporary composition, A Musical Joke, was milked dry by Charles Munch Friday evening to the obvious delight of the audience. With a firm grasp on his listeners, the conductor turned to more meaty fare from the same pen. Barring some initial tenseness in the solo violin which resulted in harsh tone and poorly articulated ornaments, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale achieved complete rapport in the Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola. The later playing was ever alert to the subtleties of the work.

The performance of the great C major (Linz) Symphony was excellent and might have approached perfection with more rehearsing. All the elements were there and, had Mr. Munch's directions been fully reflected, the results would have been magnificent.

Although there were many rewarding moments in the second evening of Mozart works, an odd feeling of tension was in the air Saturday. There was no apparent reason, for the rains had stopped, the sun had shone, the temperature had dropped, and Charles Munch was obviously relaxed. However, the orchestra seemed to champ at the bit. The final movements of Eine Kleine Nachtmusik and the Serenade in B-Flat for 13 Wind Instruments came precariously close to falling down. Even the marvelous tempo chosen for the opening of the G minor Symphony was quickly unseated by a skittish first-violin section.

The uneven quality evidenced in the E-Flat Concerto for Two Pianos must be laid to Lukas Foss. He seemed determined to push the tempo (to his own detriment) while his colleague, Seymour Lipkin, was the epitome of control, both rhythmically and pianistically.

TANGLEWOOD
July 13
By C. D.

The first half of the Mozart program Sunday afternoon was conducted by Dr. Munch, and contained the Haffner Symphony which was given a lively and sparkling performance, and the C Major Piano Concerto. Seymour Lipkin was soloist in the latter work. His playing was [illegible] and on the fast side. [illegible] had been a [illegible] and the last [illegible] leisurely, it [illegible] an even more exciting [illegible]mance. The audience li[illegible] and called the soloist and conductor back for many bows.

(Continued on Page 14)

Grace Notes

(Continued from Page 6)

After the intermission, Hugh Ross conducted three choral works which were a pleasure to hear. There is little opportunity to hear works of this calibre and they are first-rate Mozart. All of them, though based on the text of the Mass, could have been written for a non-religious text as well. Mr. Ross brought out the drama of the music. The tone of the chorus could have been warmer and the quartet of soloists better balanced, but the pace of the works seemed exactly right and there were fine dramatic climaxes.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 14 1958

Third, Final Mozart Concert Draws 4,214 to Tanglewood

The third and final Mozart concert in this year's Berkshire Music Festival attracted a crowd of 4,214 to Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. The audience filled the theater-concert hall and spread out over the lawns outside.

Munch Directs

Charles Munch directed the chamber orchestra of the Boston Symphony in the first half of the program. The program opened with the Symphony in D Major, op. 35, known as the "Haffner Symphony." Seymour Lipkin was piano soloist for the Concerto in C Major."

The second half of the program was directed by Hugh Ross, head of the Berkshire Music Center's choral department. The opening work in that half was the "Kyrie in D Minor," which was followed by the "Graduale Ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis," for chorus, strings and organ. The "Mass in C Major" completed the program. The soloists were Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

Another Mozart program was presented in the big shed on Saturday evening. Soloists in the two-piano Concerto K. 365 were Mr. Lipkin and Lukas Foss. Mr. Munch was on the podium.

Chamber Music

The festival continues this week with another in the weekly series of chamber music concerts Wednesday evening and the first series of concerts by the full Boston Symphony Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon.

Wednesday's concert in the theater-concert hall will be given by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua. The weekend concerts, featuring music by [illegible], will be held in the big shed.

—MUSIC—

Tribune July 14

PAUL HENRY LANG

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; Two-Piano Concerto K. 365 (soloists: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin); Serenade No. 10 in flat for Winds; Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Mozart.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross conducting. The program: "Haffner" Symphony; Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467; Kyrie K. 341; Graduale, K. 273; "Coronation" Mass (soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelsi), Mozart.

LENOX, Mass., July 13.—Tanglewood's Mozart week end culminated in the Sunday afternoon concert which presented a rich and substantial program. A welcome feature of this final event was the variety brought into the proceedings by the appearance of the festival chorus under the expert direction of Hugh Ross. Mozart without vocal music is a very incomplete Mozart, and we might add that Mozart without church music is a very incomplete vocal composer.

The Mass in C Major (K. 317), better known as the "Coronation" Mass, is perhaps the most popular of Mozart's many liturgic works, while the tremendous "Kyrie," a great torso of a mass (K. 341), and the "Graduale" (K. 273) are little known. The selection was intelligent and felcitious, for it showed that Mozart was well acquainted with the works of the great Italians while at the same time he was fully aware of the requirements of the Salzburg tradition.

The "Kyrie" is a very passionate work, yet liturgic in feeling. The "Graduale" is entirely different in texture, purely vocal, with the orchestra in a subordinate role. Both works express very personal confessions which in those days was expected of a church composer. They were well performed and impressed the audience with their intimate tone.

The "Coronation" mass was a shade less successful. Occasionally one felt that the performance tended toward the vigorous "oratio style" of the north ,whereas this is the dramatic-lyric style of Austro-Italian Catholicism, but on the whole everyone enjoyed the spirited singing of this fresh and melodious music. Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, and Lawrence Chelsi were the soloists.

And now we come to the real heroes of the day: Charles Munch and Seymour Lipkin. When Mr. Munch catches fire it's a five-alarm affair, and so it was today. The "Haffner" symphony is a towering work in which Mozart is revealed as one of the greatest symphonists of all time. Mr. Munch played it with extraordinary vigor, but it was the kind of [illegible] this work calls for. The spirit was contagious and every man in the orchestra played with enthusiasm, precision, and brilliance. The elaborate contrapuntal convolutions came out with ment sang with abandoned and the finale was breathtaking without being hurried.

Mr. Munch's role in the great concerto in C (K.467) was taken with equal brilliance, though of course here the lion's share belongs to Seymour Lipkin. After the wonderful introduction the soloist entered as a member of the team, and the give and take was absolutely delightful. Mr. Lipkin played his part with reverence, authority, and imagination, three attributes that seldom are found united.

The day before, Mr. Lipkin teamed up with Lukas Foss in a very enjoyable performance of Mozart's concerto for two pianos (k. 365), an engaging and demanding work. It was interesting to watch these two excellent musicians. Mr. Foss, obviously a first class all round musician, played well and very elegantly, but he is a bit mannered and superficial. Mr. Lipkin, at the other piano, was all business, thoroughly professional, and uncompromising.

The rest of the program, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and the Great G Minor Symphony, was well played if without undie distinction.

However, the seldom-heard "Serenate" for thirteen wind instruments caused some heartache. Almost half of it was omitted. This is no little serenade but a major work of considerable proportions. It is seldom performed by such outstanding instrumentalists, a fact which made the loss of the excised parts doubly painful.

The Boston Symphony players are masters on their instruments, and they regaled the audience with the most exquisite color combinations. All of them were excellent, but I must single out Richard Plaster, the contra-bassoon player, for his incredibly smooth and fluent playing of that difficult instrument.

Seymour Lipkin

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 26,550

JUL 17 1958

Music in Review

Weekend of Music at Tanglewood

By GERALD A. BERLIN

For reasons now largely lost in time I had not, until last week-end, attended Tanglewood concerts in six years. After so long a hiatus, then, the return of the native justifies a certain amount of rumination.

The Festival remains what surely must be one of the more wondrous events of its kind anywhere in the world. The Tanglewood estate is set like a jewel among the lovely, intimate hills of the Berkshire region. The various Saarinen-designed structures maintain their integrity most impressively in the face of incredibly rapid advancement of the architectural arts in recent years. The Festival events themselves continue, as in the past, to move smoothly; the concerts begin on time; shifts necessitated by the weather are carried out without confusion; parking and traffic problems are well in hand.

Other things from the past remain unchanged. The audience continues to defy description. At the same moment that some of its members are clearly undergoing an aesthetic experience, others may be seen reading newspapers, working crossword puzzles, conversing quietly or loudly, making love covertly or otherwise, all as may be, or simply basting themselves like fowl in the oven.

Nonetheless there is a mutation or two . As the crowds have grown, the shorts have shrumk. The general admissions charge to the grounds now includes babies in arms. Combinations of lighting panel and sound baffles — "treatment" seems to be the technical usage —have been added to the overhang of the stage in the great shed. As a result, the musicians look sallow enough to use a little TV make-up, although the sound does seem brighter.

The latter circumstance is significant, for the Bach-Mozart concerts and others which in the first few weeks of the Festival have been performed in the Theatre Concert Hall henceforth are to be held in the shed, irrespective of weather. The music suffers some from the change, but the beneficence to the listener spared wet ground or burnt skin and to the bare symphony coffers, on balance outweight the disadvantages.

Oh, yes, the music. Last week-end's series consisted of three programs devoted to the works of Mozart. The first, on Friday evening, included "The Musical Joke", the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale as soloists, and the "Linz" Symphony. "The Musical Joke" is a parody in divertimento form on the composers of Mozart's day. I for one have always thought that the humor of this over long work is quintessentially Teutonic in its heavy-handedness, but numbers of persons in the audience seemed fairly overcome with mirth at the excessive trills, lame notes and sour harmonies which constitute the jokes.

The Sinfonia Concertante was performed by these artists last fall in Boston. I did not then any more than on the present occasion regard them as a particularly well-matched ensemble for this greatest of the Mozart string concertos. In the main Miss Posselt's hard-riding style of violin playing overpowers the gentler, infinitely elegant musicianship of Mr. De Pasquale. They rose however, to considerable heights on occasion, especially in the slow movement.

The most rewarding portion of the evening was the "Linz." If ever there was a major miracle of music, it is this moving, intricately wrought symphony. The orchestra was in fine form; Mr. Munch seemed a trifle fatigued but in any event was as free as ever with his tempi.

The features of the Saturday evening concert in the Shed was the E-flat Concerto for two pianos with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss as soloists. This big work can be quite exciting, though its rendition here rather tended toward the uneven side. These two soloists also demonstrated quite contrasting styles. Mr. Foss is fastidious to the point of preciousness, Mr. Lipkin's solid to the point of stolidity. By the last movement both players were fairly flying. As one listener remarked, "Why the rush? They both had to finish together anyway?"

The same uneveness and concluding rush characterized Mr. Munch's handling of a rather truncated version of the otherwise endlessly delightful B-flat Serenade for Winds K361. The program, esplanade-like, commenced with the "Eine Kleine Nacht Musik" and ended with the great G minor Symphony.

The Sunday afternoon concert included the "Haffner" Symphony, the C major piano Concerto and three works for chorus: the Kyrie in D minor, the Graduale ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis and the "Coronation" Mass in C major.. Mere inspection of such a program reveals that this is not only a most interesting occasion but indeed a major musical event. The Andante of the Concerto, perhaps the most affecting slow movement in the entire piano concerto literature, alone was worth coming to Tangelwood to hear. The soloist, again Mr. Lipkin, showed to considerably better advantage than on the previous evening, while Mr. Munch's support, superb throughout the series, here achieved the very heights of orchestral accompanying in waiting out a memory lapse by the soloist so skillfully that a potentially disastrous incident passed largely unnoticed. Mr. Ross did a fine job in preparing and leading his choristers, but I thought the soloists a rather ill-assorted lot. The two shorter chorale works were high quality Mozart that I had never heard before. The Mass, filled with beauty from beginning to end, was the perfect vehicle to bring the series to a brilliant and joyous close.

JULY 20, 1958

HERALD TRIBUNE, SUNDAY, JU

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

By PAUL HENRY LANG

The Conductor and His Score

The maestro selects a program, whereupon the orchestra's librarian supplies him with the scores and the players with their parts. All that remains, it seems, is to rehearse the selected works with care, and all participants are well prepared for another set of concerts. So it must have been at Tanglewood, where a few days ago I attended a week end dedicated to Mozart.

The weekend's fare was interesting and enjoyable; symphonies, concertos, serenades, and choral music, presented by excellent artists, but it was marred by the use of archaic scores, by the occasional display of unfamiliarity with Mozartean precepts of performance, by a capricious use of ornamentation, and by arbitrary excisions. Let us take these charges one by one.

A complete edition of Mozart's works was published in 1876-'86. Practically all our orchestras use these scores and orchestral parts, now three quarters of a century old. In many instances no other editions are available, but the situation has changed in regard to some of the most famous compositions. Mozart research has made tremendous strides in the last decades, and missing manuscripts have been found. As a consequence a number of revised scores have appeared, and in fact, a great publishing firm, Baerenreiter Verlag in Kassel and Basel, is in the process of issuing a critically revised and corrected edition of Mozart's entire output.

They All Do It

This raises an unavoidable question: How, in light of these facts, can a responsible body such as the Boston Symphony continue to use the old, faulty scores? Before I answer my own rhetorical question I should like to point out that the Boston Symphony is not alone—cosi fan tutte—but it affords a convenient and typical example.

Take the wonderful serenade, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Its original, lost for over a hundred years, was rediscovered in the 1940's. The magnificently clear manuscript shows every detail with unequivocal precision. An elegant facsimile edition of the original, as well as a modern score and string parts, was published by Baerenreiter, several years ago, and a comparison with the old editions will show important variations in phrasing, dynamics, and even in notes.

Mr. Munch also performed the ever-popular G minor Symphony. Now this work was reworked when Mozart added two clarinets to the original version. The word "reworked" is used advisedly, for the clarinet parts were not just tacked onto the rest; Mozart rewrote the wind parts completely on separate sheets.

Most of the older editions of this score were made by distinguished musicians long on admiration but short on scholarly ability and discipline—they failed to consult all available evidence. Therefore, the several editions of the second version, issued for well over a hundred years, are without exception faulty. In 1930 a really competent scholar, Theodore Kroyer, finally publised a carefully collated score (Eulenburg) which is the only reliable one today. It is never used.

Sad Truth

Now one would think that any musician worth his salt would immediately get hold of these authentic editions, but the sad truth is that most conductors have never even heard of them. If conductors are too proud to read about current events in music, should not the orchestra librarians keep abreast of the times and acquire these new editions as soon as they are announced? The highest praise we bestow on an artist is reserved for those who are "faithful to the composer's intentions," but how can they be faithful if they do not know these intentions?

It must be gratefully acknowledged that Mr. Munch is not one of those who play Mozart with the entire personnel, all leaves canceled, and all walking wounded pressed into service. The Boston Symphony put into the field a nicely balanced chamber orchestra. But the eminent Boston conductor does take liberties with the tempos and with the repeats and the grace notes and trills follow no planned course even though there is a considerable literature on the subject. Conscientious artists are honor bound to study it. They should know, for instance, that in Mozart's time the trill began with its "upper neighbor," but what we heard in Tanglewood was the nineteenth-century variety, i.e., from below.

Finally, we come to the case of the great serenade for winds, K. 361. Again, I wish to compliment the Boston Symphony's obvious solicitude for instrumental authenticity. Mozart demands in this score two basset horns (alto clarinets). These instruments, though their somber tone is magnificent, are obsolete, and most orchestras replace them with clarinets which demand awkward transpositions. The Boston Symphony produced two modern reconstructions of the basset horn and the resulting color combinations were gorgeous.

Not Unique

But Mr. Munch simply omitted several movements of the work and ignored the repeats. If the program was too long, another work should have been selected; amputation of a great score is a very high-handed and inartistic act.

I should like to reiterate that Mr. Munch and his admirable musicians are not unique in these faults; their ways with eighteenth-century scores are shared by most other conductors and orchestras. But when 12,000 persons turn out for a Mozart week end they should hear the best and most authentic Mozart within the powers of the musicians concerned.

[93]

[94]

Dover Lake Sand News - July 17

Music Makers

By HAROLD T. FLARTEY

News And Views About Music And The People Who Make It

LENOX, Mass. — Tony Scott brought his clarinet and baritone sax all the way from NYC to play for a wedding. It was not the usual kind of "I Do" wedding ceremony, but a wedding of the arts of poetry and jazz.

If there is to be a compatible union of the two we pick the poetry of Langston Hughes and the jazz of Tony Scott. Hughes has been around for a long time and his union of poetry and jazz more than 20 years old.

We sat in the small but enthusiastic audience in the Music Barn for the Saturday afternoon session as Mr. Hughes read his verse to the accompaniment of Tony Scott's Quintet. Scott furnished a blue background or a bright beat as the piece demanded. Most of the poetry is of a humorous nature, based on human failings, boy-girl relationships and philosophy. At times Mr. Hughes projects a deep feeling for the blues and his poetry has a lyrical meter which makes for a happy marriage with jazz.

Tony Scott working with trombonist Jimmy Kneeper and three rythm dazzled those assembled with a far out "Exporer" and a fantastic demonstration of clarinet technique in his original "Blues for an African Friend." For a closer he played "Blues for Charlie Parker," another showcase for the Scott clarinet.

We Go Longhair

About a mile from the Music Barn the scene changes completely. We attended a performance of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000 seat Music Shed at Tanglewood. Here in the midst of the rolling Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts is the large tract that serves as the summer home of the Boston Symphony. Each Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon from July 4 to Aug. 10 they perform at Tanglewood.

We sat with a capacity audience Saturday night for an all-Mozart concert. Under the direction of Charles Munch we heard "a little night music" (Eine Kleine Nachtmusik) a serenade for string orchestra for an opener.

Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss took over the two Baldwin pianos in "Concerto in E-Flatt Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra" which brought us up to intermission time.

After the break we heard an interesting Mozart composition, "Serenade in B-Flat Major For 13 Wind Instruments" and the popular Mozart war-horse "Symphony In G Minor, No. 40."

If you want to have a nice trip and an enjoyable day of music, take the old bus over the G.W. Bridge and head north. Get on the Toconic State Parkway and stay with it. When the road runs out, head for Great Barrington, Mass., thence to Lenox for an afternoon in the Music Barn or Music Inn and an evening at Tanglewood. Spend Saturday night at a guest house or hotel in Lenox or Great Barrington and drive back Sunday. You'll love it.

B. Eagle - July 14

Music Review

Mozart at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE MOZART weekend — the second of the Tanglewood season —came to a close yesterday afternoon with a program in which Charles Munch and Hugh Ross shared the baton. Munch played the "Haffner" symphony, D major (K.385), and accompanied Seymour Lipkin in the C major piano concerto (K.467). Ross led the Berkshire Festival chorus in selection of Mozart's vocal works ending with the C major "Coronation" Mass (K.317).

Munch's Mozart has, among other things, one essential attribute. He conceives him as a robust individual and not as someone out of a quaint, powdered era in which music was a fragile, dainty thing. Thus, while there may be many comments to be made about smaller details, his Mozart emerges as music of this day as much as that of another century. The slow movements are given substance and solidity. He does not adhere always to one conception throughout an entire movement and may suddenly vary the tempo usually by hastening, but it remains vigorous contemporary music, not the revival of antiques.

* * *

ONE OF THE most debatable aspects of Munch's Mozart is his choice of tempi. Too many of us come with preconceived notions of specific movements and thus, for example, when the first movement of the "Kleine Nachtmusik," played Saturday evening, comes out so deliberately, we do not agree. But while newspapers may arbitrarily usurp the chair of public arbiter in musical matters, most often the audience pays no heed and applauds and shows its approval in an extremely vociferous manner. This was certainly the case at the concerts yesterday afternoon, and Saturday evening.

The "Haffner" and the great G minor of Saturday are built on a similar framework. Each remains in its respective original key for three of the four movements and departs, in each case, only in the andante.

* * *

THERE IS always considerable traffic and commotion in the area where the wind instruments are placed in every all-Mozart program for he utilizes a different combination each time. The G minor symphony originally called for no clarinets but Mozart later inserted them, and it was this version that Munch used. The "Haffner" furloughs the flutes and clarinets as well as the trumpet and tympani in the andante, reenlists the latter two in the minuet, and only in the finale calls up the full complement.

Seymour Lipkin

Mozart's situation in relation to patrons and sponsors made it necessary for him either to have ready or to compose on demand an endless list of works for all sorts of occasions. Both of this weekend's symphonies were born under these conditions. Mozart never enjoyed the circumstances under which some contemporary composers work by means of grants and fellowships. The rehearsal opportunities and the calibre of musician which were available in his day could not have been as fortuitous and capable as those at Munch's disposal. His slightest wish is intantly reflected in the orchestra's rereflected in the orchestra's remarkably alert attitude and exceptional resources. This affords him a wide palette which he utilizes consistently but which as well lays bare the wide diversity of his whims.

* * *

SEYMOUR LIPKIN is an extremely gifted and disciplined pianist, and his choice of concertos, the C major (K.467) suited his pent up emotion well. But he did not release his full capabilities. The avoidance of ostentation is certainly a laudable factor and an introspective manner of playing is an artist's right, but the audience can only enjoy what it hears. Lipkin did not rise above the orchestra, and yet Munch could not have been more discreet and loving in his accompaniment. Never has the powerfully moving introduction of the andante been played with more beseeching beauty and it was here that Lipkin showed his potentiality best. The line of his entering solo could actually be seen growing and increasing in tension, a marvelously touching utterance, not as spectacular as his swift, even flights of dexterity but a much more rare accomplishment, and one which convinces us he can have a vastly expanded future once he assumes the dominance he is surely capable of.

* * *

ON THE PREVIOUS evening, Lipkin, with Lukas Foss, played the E flat two piano concerto, and its most exhilarating moments were reached in the exuberant finale. Otherwise there was a lack of distinction. Two such brilliant pianists, in their least considered moments, can do nothing exactly dull, but it seems that Tanglewood standards are, or should be, on a higher level. No one cavils at the actual execution of the concerto and the public was obviously elated, but it can be done better and these very executants are capable of it.

The Serenade for 13 wind instruments in B flat major Saturday showed how luscious the tone of that section of the orchestra can be when not blended with nor contaminated by strings. The sonority of the Boston players was superb. Four horns join the clarinets, oboes and bassons for as beautiful a sound as these ears have heard. The dexterity and breadth of color were remarkable features of the performance, too.

* * *

YESTERDAY'S program ended with the Festival chorus under Hugh Ross singing the D minor Kyrie (K. 341), the Graduale ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis (K. 273) and the C Major Mass, the "Coronation." Ross' method of training his chorus gives them confidence and they respond uninhibitedly with full-throated total voice. They give their vocal all and Ross never varied his requests to ask for less. The quartet of soloists was outstandingly competent. As usual the most rewarding opportunities fall to the soprano, and Sarah Fleming took complete advantage of them. She has an easy, powerful voice and her breath control was exceptional. She was ably aided by Doris Okerson, contralto, Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass.

* * *

AMONG the 3,000 who listened from the lawns and the adjacent vantage points was an infant exactly two weeks old, whose young mother carried her in her arms while the father held a market-type basket in which they planned to rest the baby once installed in a comfortable spot. The ticket taker at the gate, obeying instructions, required a full-priced ticket of admission for the infant, the policy of the management being that a small baby has only one possible value at a concert, that of disturbing its neighbors. The man who kept time by tapping the back of my chair with his foot was not made to pay a supplement. The young soprano who anticipated Ross' best and sang an "Amen," where silence was intended to reign was not charged a fee. The lady of indeterminate years who arrived in proper female attire but chose to emulate those who came in Bermuda and scantier shorts by rearranging her skirts for the full sun treatment was not charged for disgusting other females in her vicinity and interesting, in various degrees, those of the opposite sex. Maybe our young parents actually save some money. How much does a baby-sitter cost from 2 to 5 on a sunny Sunday afternoon?

Town Times
OAKVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,290

JUL 17 1958

Mozart Program Is Delightful Event In Berkshire Festival

Those optimists who disregarded the scattered thunderstorms and downpours Saturday evening to hopefully journey to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., were rewarded with a most pleasing concert as well as an armistice on the part of the elements.

The respite in the weather gave Charles Munch and his Boston Symphony orchestra musicians the opportunity to present a most pleasing program devoted to Mozart works without the accompaniment of extra - curricular Sturm und Drang.

The refined vivacity of the elegant "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik or "Serenade for String Orchestra, K. 525," was the first musical dish to be set before the audience. Dr. Munch directed the piece with consummate understanding of the spirit of the piece and its times.

A high point of the evening was the work of the talented and nimble fingers of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss in a performance of the Mozart "Concerto in E-flat Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra, K. 365." As Maestro Munch expertly guided the orchestra through the varying moods of the work, the fingers of the soloists fairly sparkled with brilliance as they rebuilt the imposing Mozartian structure and attained the stirring climax of the Rondo.

The "Serenade in B-flat Major for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361," was the first post-intermission offering. Under the master touch of Dr. Munch and members of the wind sections of the orchestra, listeners did not need too much imagination to find themselves suddenly transported to eighteenth century Europe under the spell of colorful music, perhaps to linger pleasantly at a garden party given by a Bavarian noble with his personal ensemble of skilled instrumentalists providing the musical background.

The final presentation on the program was the familiar "Symphony in G minor, No. 40, K. 550." As with all the presentations of the evening, the work was well-played, well-conducted, and well-received by the substantial audience present under the huge Music Shed at Tanglewood.

L.F.M.

Shed Concerts Begin

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood ,Lenox, Massachusetts on July 18 and 19 at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire Orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

Friday

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

Saturday

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by Hugh Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cook DeVaron.

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert. She has just returned from engagements in Europe. Mr. Gramm needs no introduction to Tanglewood audiences; having appeared a number of times at the Festival. He will also be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the final concert of the season on August 10th, his 35th appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra .

Sunday

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be solost in Brahm's Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka", a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affinity. Leon Fleisher, a pupil of Artur Schnaebl, made his official orchestral debut under Pierre Monteux with the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. He won the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition in Brussels at the age of 24 and this year has been invited to return there to appear at the Brussels World's Fair.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
Circ. D. 361,379 - S. 576,176

JUL 14 1958

MUSIC

PAUL HENRY LANG

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; Two-Piano Concerto K. 365 (soloists: Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin); Serenade No. 10 in flat for Winds; Symphony No. 40 in G minor, Mozart.
Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross conducting. The program: "Haffner" Symphony; Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467; Kyrie K. 341; Graduale, K. 273; "Coronation" Mass (soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelsi). Mozart.

LENOX, Mass., July 13.—Tanglewood's Mozart week end culminated in the Sunday afternoon concert which presented a rich and substantial program. A welcome feature of this final event was the variety brought into the proceedings by the appearance of the festival chorus under the expert direction of Hugh Ross. Mozart without vocal music is a very incomplete Mozart, and we might add that Mozart without church music is a very incomplete vocal composer.

The Mass in C Major (K. 317), better known as the "Coronation" Mass, is perhaps the most popular of Mozart's many liturgic works, while the tremendous "Kyrie," a great torso of a mass (K. 341), and the "Graduale" (K. 273) are little known. The selection was intelligent and felicitous, for it showed that Mozart was well acquainted with the works of the great Italians while at the same time he was fully aware of the requirements of the Salzburg tradition.

The "Kyrie" is a very passionate work, yet liturgic in feeling. The "Graduale" is entirely different in texture, purely vocal, with the orchestra in a subordinate role. Both works express very personal confessions which in those days was expected of a church composer. They were well performed and impressed the audience with their intimate tone.

The "Coronation" mass was a shade less successful. Occasionally one felt that the performance tended toward the vigorous "oratorio style" of the north, whereas this is the dramatic-lyric style of Austro-Italian Catholicism, but on the whole everyone enjoyed the spirited singing of this fresh and melodious music. Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, and Lawrence Chelsi were the soloists.

And now we come to the real heroes of the day: Charles Munch and Seymour Lipkin. When Mr. Munch catches fire it's a five-alarm affair, and so it was today. The "Haffner" symphony is a towering work in which Mozart is revealed as one of the greatest symphonists of all time. Mr. Munch played it with extraordinary vigor, but it was the kind of vigor this work calls for. The spirit was contagious and every man in the orchestra played with enthusiasm, precision, and brilliance. The elaborate contrapuntal convolutions came out with utter clarity, the slow movement sang with abandon and the finale was breathtaking without being hurried.

Mr. Munch's role in the great concerto in C (K.467) was taken with equal brilliance, though of course here the lion's share belongs to Seymour Lipkin. After the wonderful introduction the soloist entered as a member of the team, and the give and take was absolutely delightful. Mr. Lipkin played his part with reverence, authority, and imagination, three attributes that seldom are found united.

The day before, Mr. Lipkin teamed up with Lukas Foss in a very enjoyable performance of Mozart's concerto for two pianos (k. 365), an engaging and demanding work. It was interesting to watch these two excellent musicians. Mr. Foss, obviously a first class all round musician, played well and very elegantly, but he is a bit mannered and superficial. Mr. Lipkin, at the other piano, was all business, thoroughly, professional, and uncompromising.

The rest of the program, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and the Great G Minor Symphony, was well played if without undue distinction.

However, the seldom-heard "Serenade" for thirteen wind instruments caused some heartache. Almost half of it was omitted. This is no little serenade but a major work of considerable proportions. It is seldom performed by such outstanding instrumentalists, a fact which made the loss of the excised parts doubly painful.

The Boston Symphony players are masters on their instruments, and they regaled the audience with the most exquisite color combinations. All of them were excellent, but I must single out Richard Plaster, the contra-bassoon player, for his incredibly smooth and fluent playing of that difficult instrument.

Seymour Lipkin

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUL 14 1958

Mozart Mass Featured At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 14—The week end of all Mozart music at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood closed on a note of triumph yesterday afternoon with the performance of his "Coronation" Mass in C major with the festival chorus and soloist performing before a large Sunday audience favored in every way including the weather..

Saturday evening's "little concert" in the pre-season Shed concerts which began Friday drew an audience of 6,333 for a brilliant concert in which Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss were the pianists in the "Concerto in B-flat Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra." The program which began with "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" found Charles Munch conducting the charming, spirited "Serenade in B-flat Major for 13 Wind Instruments" in an unusual treat for all. He concluded with "Symphony in G. Minor."

The opening Mozart concert Friday evening drew 2,225 despite rain which has come at inauspicious times this festival season. Sunday's concert found Mr. Lipkin back as piano soloist in "Concerto in C major for Piano and Orchestra" with Mr. Munch conducting the first half of the concert, Hugs Ross conducted the second portion with two Mozart selections.

The annual trek to the Berkshire Musical Festival which yearly rolls up new attendance records for the four week-ends of concerts of the major festival will begin this Friday with the music of Brahms feautred for the opening Saturday evening when the "Requiem" will be conducted by Munch in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, and again for the Sunday afternoon concert when Pierre Monteux will be back as guest conductor. The Festival Chorus will sing the "Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, Leon Fleisher will be soloist Sunday in the performance of Brahm's "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor."

At 8:30 p. m. Wednesday the famous New York Pro Musica Antiqua will perform a chamber music concert of the music of Flanders and Spain, including works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others.

S.M.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 14 1958

MOZART SERIES ENDED AT LENOX

Seldom-Heard Choral Works Led by Hugh Ross—Lipkin Soloist in 2 Concertos

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG
Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 13—The Mozart week-end of the Berkshire Festival concluded this afternoon with the most interesting of the three concerts. The program was divided between Charles Munch and Hugh Ross, and the latter, with the Festival Chorus and a fine group of soloists, conducted several seldom-heard choral works.

Mozart's "Coronation Mass" may be familiar to record collectors, but it is hardly ever heard in New York concert halls, two other short choral works, the D minor Kyrie (K. 341) and the "Graduale ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis" (K. 273) are familiar not even to record collectors. All three are magnificent works—the Kyrie somber and powerful; the Graduale, just about five minutes long, expectionally melodious, and the "Coronation" typically Mozartean in its grace, fluency and elegance.

The Festival Chorus numbers about fifty mixed voices. It is a clear-voiced, well-trained group that always sings in tune. At one or two spots it was a little over-eager, anticipating an entrance. Otherwise it was a pleasure to hear.

Soprano, Tenor Excel

So were the soloists. In the "Coronation," they were Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto; Richard Gilley, tenor, and Lawrence Chelsi, bass. Mozart has given most of the opportunities in this work to soprano and tenor, so it is not surprising that they made the most favorable impression.

Mr. Ross conducted with spirit and superb rhythm. His approach was entirely direct, without over-interpretation or romantic interpolations.

On the first half of the program, Mr. Munch led the Boston Symphony in the "Haffner" Symphony and the C major Piano Concerto (K. 467) with Seymour Lipkin as soloist. The symphony was forceful and occasionally a little eccentric in interpretation, as in the strange slow-up of the Trio in the Minuet.

As piano soloist, Mr. Lipkin was musicianly, clear, and the possessor of a perpetually singing tone. Never was their a percussive sound or an ugly patch. Mr. Lipkin did display a tendency to rush scale passages, but he never let things get out of control, and Mr. Munch was with him at every moment.

In the first movement there was a slight memory lapse. Ordinarily one would not mention it, except that it showed the musicianship of all concerned. Mr. Lipkin went astray in a difficult passage. He did not lose his head but improvised two measures. Mr. Munch stopped beating and calmly waited. The orchestra listened intently. As soon as Mr. Lipkin found the sequence, Mr. Munch brought his baton down, and the orchestra picked up as one man. One would wager that many in the audience did not notice the lapse. The recovery was a tribute to fast thinking and complete teamwork.

Mr. Lipkin played his own cadenzas. They were short, tasteful and ingenious. This pianist has been absent too long from the New York scene, and our local and incoming orchestras should do something about it.

Two Pianists Heard

Saturday evening's program also found Mr. Lipkin a participant. He and Lukas Foss were soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto. Both young men are fine musicians and were well-matched tonally. Mr. Lipkin, however, has more in his fingers at the present time than Mr. Foss, who glided over some passages on a wing and a prayer.

The concert as a whole was not one of the more exhilerating events of the summer season. Mr. Munch often seems more interested in how his orchestra plays than in the meaning of what it plays. His ideas about the G minor Symphony and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" were, on the whole, conventional, and there was little to find stimulating. And in one case there was something to grow indignant about.

This concerned the great Serenade in B flat for thirteen winds. Mr. Munch omitted three of the movements, which is bad enough. In the second Minuet, he not only ignored all of the repeats but omitted completely the first Trio. Then, in the final Rondo, he led his brilliant Boston Symphony soloists at such a pace that the musical content was left far behind. A presentation like this is inexcusable from a great orchestra at a major music festival.

Mozart did very well by the Berkshire Festival. The audience for the three concerts numbered 12,771, a turnout that pleases the officials exceedingly. Perhaps the success of the week-end may stimulate the program-makers here more in the direction of major choral works and seldom-heard masterpieces and less in the direction of Beethoven and Brahms symphonies, which are among the noblest of works but not entirely missing from Boston Symphony programs during the concert season.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
Circ. D. 61,009 - S. 119,412

JUL 13 1958

Music and the Dance

Munch Conducts Mozart Program

The all-Mozart program by the Boston Symphony Chamber Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch this afternoon at Tanglewood at 2:30 P. M. will include the Haffner Symphony, the piano concerto in C-major with Seymour Lipkin as soloist, a group of choral works conducted by Hugh Ross. The first in the series of four weekend programs by the full orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch in the 6,000-seat Music Shed Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon will feature the music of Brahms.

For the opening concert, Friday, July 18, at 8:30 P. M. Dr. Munch will conduct the ensemble of 104 instrumentalists in Brahms Serenade, No. 1, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations and the Brahm's Fourth Symphony

The Saturday evening concert, July 19, will be in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center. Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra and festival chorus in a performance of Brahms "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano who was heard in Albany three years ago as soloist with the Civic Music Association, and Donald Gramm, baritone.

Pierre Monteux, who shares the direction of the festival with Dr. Munch, will conduct the orchestra Sunday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. He will open his program with Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture." The Young American pianist, Leon Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto, No. 1. Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka." The orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19 at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

Transcript-Telegram
HOLYOKE,
Independent Republica
Circ. 26,937

14 195

cess Atte l Boston

ch-Mozart concerts le major part of Festival at Ta nox, have been with unusual su hese programs draw large iences every year. The M roup, performed Friday aturday nights and Sunday
rnoon, had a total attendan
2,771. The concerts, once n the concert-theatre hall, ow held in the big Music S vhich fortunately has the a ics to cope with the hamber instrumental group

On Friday night Charles M conducted the orchestra in Musikalischer Spass," a m joke that delighted the audi Ruth Posselt and Joseph de quale, long associated with glewood, presented Sinfonia certante for violin and viola the program was rounded with the Symphony in C ma

On Saturday night, in a shed surprisingly well fille with the lawns well populate an attendance of more than a pleasant instrumental was provided within the M confines. The chamber orch composed of Boston Sym orchestra members—the f
Boston strings—played
Kleine Nachtmusik, Serena
String Orchestra" with sure
Mr. Munch is being heavily cized for his handling of M this season, raising partic the question of pace. In first piece, balance was ach
In a later one, Serenade flat major for 13 wind ments, a composition of tonal beauty which was pr ed only in part, things did to a breakneck rondo ony in G minor
d soaring strings
e gratitude for opportunities to n inclination to high point of the S concert, however,
f Seymour Lipkin ss in the Concert for two pianos
. Here the incom

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker New
Circ. D. 53,170
JUL 1 4 19

Three

Three full days of M ended yesterday at the B shire Festival. Mr. M and his musicians we excellent form and, to th light of the hundreds of li ers who sprawled on the be tifully-manicured Tangle lawns, the weather Satu night and yesterday after was perfect.

Unless you have a kn edge of music approachin expert, you are bound to the Tanglewood perform
just about impeccable.
even the experts, it seems, little to quibble about. For rest of us, though, our actions vary according to tastes and our familiarity w the music. If you happen own a recording of a p on the program, for insta you may find that selec

Dance ondu rogra

erre Monteux, who es the direction of the ival with Dr. Munch conduct the orchestra day afternoon at 2:30
I. He will open his pron with Brahms' "Aca-ic Festival Overture."
Young American ist, Leon Fleisher will oloist in Brahms' Piano certo, No. 1. Mr. Mon-will close the program Stravinsky's "Petro-a." The orchestra re-sal of Saturday morn-
July 19 at 10 o'clock be open to the public the benefit of the or-
Pension Fund.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 14 1958

Success Attends Tanglewood Concerts, Full Boston Symphony Starts On Friday

The Bach-Mozart concerts preceding the major part of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been completed, with unusual success. These programs draw larger audiences every year. The Mozart group, performed Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon, had a total attendance of 2,771. The concerts, once held in the concert-theatre hall, are now held in the big Music Shed, which fortunately has the acoustics to cope with the smaller chamber instrumental groups.

On Friday night Charles Munch conducted the orchestra in "Ein Musikalischer Spass," a musical joke that delighted the audience. Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, long associated with Tanglewood, presented Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola, and the program was rounded out with the Symphony in C major.

On Saturday night, in a music shed surprisingly well filled and with the lawns well populated for an attendance of more than 6,000, a pleasant instrumental variety was provided within the Mozart confines. The chamber orchestra, composed of Boston Symphony orchestra members—the famous Boston strings—played "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Serenade for String Orchestra" with sure taste. Mr. Munch is being heavily criticized for his handling of Mozart this season, raising particularly the question of pace. In this first piece, balance was achieved. In a later one, Serenade in B-flat major for 13 wind instruments, a composition of great tonal beauty which was presented only in part, things did work up to a breakneck rondo. The Symphony in G minor with its splendid soaring strings prompted more gratitude for Tanglewood's opportunities to hear Mozart than inclination to argue.

The high point of the Saturday night concert, however, was the work of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss in the Concerto in E-flat major for two pianos and orchestra. Here the incomparable sparkle of Mozart was radiantly brought out by graceful interpretation and first rate teamwork. The pianists by their own attitude brought warmth to the performance; at times they themselves seemed carried away by the elegance of the andante movement.

The Sunday afternoon program found Hugh Ross, conductor of the Berkshire Festival chorus, sharing the podium with Mr. Munch. The Haffner Symphony opened the program, followed by the Concerto in C major with Mr. Lipkin as piano soloist, both directed by Mr. Munch. The second section of the program was presented by the chorus: Kyrie in D Minor, Graduale ad festum beatae Mariae Virginis, and Mass in C major with Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley and Laurence Chelsi as soloists.

The full Boston Symphony will arrive this week, and the big Shed concerts start Friday night. There will be special attention to Brahms in the first three concerts.

A. B. M.

HARTFORD CONN. TIMES

JUL 12 1958

Ruth Posselt, DePasquale Are Soloists at Tanglewood

By GEORGE W. STOWE

Lenox, Mass. — The Mozart week at Tanglewood had an auspicious beginning last night with a program that revealed the composer in a frivolous as well as a serious mood.

From all indications this is the season for Mozart's "A Musical Joke" (K. 522), which was heard at the Hartford Festival of Music only last Wednesday. It is a wonderful musical lampoon of the 18th Century would-be composer, particularly when set forth as brilliantly as it was last night.

The Boston horns were an utter delight, carrying the off-key performance to ridiculous lengths, overblowing and awkwardly trilling their way through this parody. Charles Munch kept his string players alert to all the humorous ramifications and concertmaster Richard Burgin elicited a few hearty guffaws with a cadenza to end all cadenzas.

* * *

AFTER THIS it was a little difficult to settle down to the more sober felicities of the Sinfonie Concertante for violin and viola, which featured Ruth Posselt and Joseph De Pasquale in the solo parts.

Fortunately, this is a work that is abundant in its melodism and lyric charm and nowhere has the composer shown his fondness for the viola as he has here. Not only did Mozart meticulously observe an equality in the solo parts, he arranged it so the violist could tune his instrument a half-tone higher for a more brilliant effect.

It was only in the slow movement, however, that very much Mozarartean grace and refinement was allowed to shine through. The opening was hardly "allegro maestoso" in its unseemly haste, and the finale suffered from an accelerated tempo that resulted in scratchy tone and a lack of clean articulation on the part of the soloists.

* * *

ALL COULD BE FORGIVEN, though, in the finely tempered performance of the so-called "Linz" Symphony last night. Mr. Munch stressed the lyric line, yet imbued it with an intensity that transfigured this familiar work. There is no fussiness to his concept and performance; it glows with unquenchable ardor and at the same time never departs from the Mozartean frame.

Since showers had saturated the ground, the concert was moved from the Theater-Concert Hall to the large Shed, where some 1,500 persons gathered for the initial Mozart concert of the weekend.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUL 14 1958

Chamber-Sized Symphony Program At Tanglewood

The Saturday concert of last week's Mozart portion of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood was moved from the previously announced theater concert hall to the cavernous music shed.

The move, of course, made for much better listening for the 6,333 who attended. It also served to detract considerably from the charm, elegance and intimate grace of Wolfgang Amadeus.

Mr. Munch was conducting a chamber-sized Boston Symphony. Mr. Munch was ~~alternately~~ subdued and expressive in his gestures and directing. Unfortunately, many times it seemed as if his waving configurations had little to do with the music at hand.

Be that as it may, the program included the exquisite "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," which retained some of its feathery lightness and delicacy, even in that hall. The string section played this serenade with tender and loving care, and what beautiful sounds were produced! But sounds were not all, for here Mr. Munch sustained his followers at an ethereal and sublimated pitch.

Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss were the soloists in the Concerto in E Flat Major for Two Pianos. It was a skillful collaboration on what is one of the master's minor works. Simple, yet lovely in its simplicity, it was well served by both pianists, though Mr. Foss added excessive manner while Mr. Lipkin performed with a musicianly straightforwardness. They received excellent assist from Mr. Munch and the orchestra, who matched the soloists' rapport with sympathetic concord. Here, too, Mozart's fine-spun beauty was not disfigured by size of the shed.

It was the Serenade for Thirteen Wind Instruments which was battered beyond all recognition, mostly by the building itself, though Mr. Munch was guilty of over-conducting. His wide and furious arm flinging seemed more appropriate for a full 100 pieces than for a mere 13. He pulled and rushed these expert players, until the serenade took on the proportions of Strauss tone poem. Looking at the program before the concert, one would have chosen this to be the high spot of the evening. After all, it is rare when musicians of the caliber of the Boston group are assembled to give service to these lesser works (not in stature, but in size).

And the Symphony in G Minor the familiar No. 40, was not well treated either. The first two movements were ponderous, though things did lighten up considerably for the minuet and the dashing last movement.

It was not a very exhilarating or satisfying evening. One is sure that neither Mozart nor Mr. Munch should have been pleased after their latest encounter.

This week, Brahms will be the featured composer when the festival moves officially to the shed. — B. D.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 18 1958

Soprano Soloist Is Tanglewood Highlight

Miss Fleming's Agnus Dei Delights Listeners

To this listener, the highlight of Sunday's all-Mozart concert at the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood was the Coronation Mass in C major, with the Festival Chorus and orchestra conducted by Hugh Ross, and the most exciting part of the Mass was the exquisite soprano solo in the Agnus Dei by Sarah Fleming.

The Agnus Dei is operatic in character, truly an aria, which is practically a twin of the "Dove sono" aria of the Countess in "Figaro", which Mozart wrote seven years later, and it is a marvelous composition for the soprano voice, tender vibrant, with the most delicate phrasings, expressive of either the deepest religious spirit or noblest human love. To be sung properly there must be a perfect blending of a fine, controlled voice, rich in tone, flexible and supple, capable of the soaring exaltation and the almost pianissimo delicacy through which the aria ranges, and sensitive interpretation.

Miss Fleming not only fulfilled these requirements, but to my mind surpassed them. Not only was her technique superb and her voice glorious, but her interpretation of the beautiful music was impeccable. That she is also lovely to look at compounded the delight. She was ably supported by the chorus and orchestra. I was not quite as happy over the other soloists, with the exception of a very good contralto, Doris Okerson. The tenor, Richard Gilley and the bass, Lawrence Chelsi, both gave the impression of singing with mouthsful of oatmeal.

The Mass was the final number on the afternoon's program, preceded in this second half of the concert by the Graduale ad festum beatae Mariae Virginis and the Kyrie in D minor, sung by the chorus and the four soloists and highly satisfactory.

The concert opened with a spirited reading of the Symphony in D minor No. 35, the "Haffner" symphony, followed by the Concerto in C major for piano and orchestra, with Seymour Lipkin as soloist. Charles Munch conducted both numbers. Lipkin, a former student of Rudolf Serkin, performed the rather short, melodic concerto brilliantly, with true Mozartian sparkle and grace.

The concert hall was packed and the lawns were crowded with the usual devoted Tanglewood aficiondos lying on blankets or sitting on folding chairs, with toddlers tumbling on the grass and babies being walked by young fathers. Perfect weather, clear sunny, warm without humidity, brought out a near record crowd.

Next week's Berkshire Festival program at Lennox, Mass., includes: Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall chamber music of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, etc. by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua; Friday, 8:30 p.m. Brahms Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11; Copland's Variations for Orchestra, Brahms Symphony No. 4, Boston Symphony Orchestra, in the Music Shed, conducted by Charles Munch; Saturday, 8:30 p.m., Brahms Requiem in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, with the Festival Chorus and orchestra, in the Shed, conducted by Dr Munch; Sunday, in the Music Shed, at 2:30 p.m., Brahms Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor, with Leon Fleisher, soloist; Stravinsky's Petrouchka; conducted by Pierre Monteux.

—MBP

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

JUL 14 1958

Three Days of Mozart at Tanglewood

Three full days of Mozart ended yesterday at the Berkshire Festival. Mr. Munch and his musicians were in excellent form and, to the delight of the hundreds of listeners who sprawled on the beautifully-manicured Tanglewood lawns, the weather Saturday night and yesterday afternoon was perfect.

Unless you have a knowledge of music approaching the expert, you are bound to find the Tanglewood performances just about impeccable. And even the experts, it seems, find little to quibble about. For the rest of us, though, our reactions vary according to our tastes and our familiarity with the music. If you happen to own a recording of a piece on the program, for instance, you may find that selection more enjoyable than some of the others.

The all-Mozart programs Saturday and yesterday offered something for almost every taste — a serenade for strings ("Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"), a serenade for 13 wind instruments, Symphonies 35 and 40, a two-piano concerto, a piano concerto and choral works.

Saturday Highlight

The highlight of Saturday night's program was the concerto for two pianos, played by Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin. Mr. Foss, who seems to be one of the favorites of the Tanglewood crowds this summer, has a somewhat more straightforward style. Their timing in echoing, or, as it seemed, answering, each other's solos was flawless.

Mr. Lipkin, 31, returned yesterday afternoon to play the Concerto in C Major, which gave him more opportunity to display his remarkable gifts. He looks like a younger Rudolf Serkin, under whom he has studied, and he appears to involve himself a good deal with the music.

When he is waiting for his cue, Mr. Lipkin does not just sit still. He reacts emotionally to the music as any other listener might. And when he plays, he has a habit of swaying slightly and rolling his head which is not disconcerting.

Chorus Superb

The festival chorus, under Hugh Ross, concluded the Mozart weekend with the Mass in C Major, the Coronation Mass, which it performed superbly. The nice thing about Mozart's religious music is that it is not at all somber. The Coronation Mass, which the composer wrote at the age of 23, is just as lively as the rest of his music without seeming sacrilegious. Sarah Fleming, an attractive blonde soprano, was outstanding among the soloists.

While the program Saturday night was generally more appealing than yesterday's, the latter concert was in some ways superior simply because it took place in the theater-concert hall rather than the shed. The hall, being smaller, is more intimate and, since the seats are banked, it affords a much better view of the orchestra and Mr. Munch.

Mr. Munch himself is one of the delights of Tanglewood and it is exciting to watch him. He has wonderfully expressive movements. He has complete control without distracting attention with a single irrelevant motion. One feels he is a hard taskmaster but that his rehearsals are not unrelieved by light moments. The orchestra obviously has great respect and affection for him, and so does the audience.

Munch Peeved

Mr. Munch became peeved, and justifiably so, yesterday when a number of latecomers were seated between movements of the Haffner Symphony. The unscheduled intermission spoiled the effect of the contrast between a rousing movement and a slower one.

But incidents like that should not lessen your enjoyment of Tanglewood, which is an absolutely enchanting institution. Imagine driving for just 90 minutes, sitting under a tree and listening to the Boston Symphony play Mozart! (PBT)

[97]

MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK, N. Y.

AUG 1958

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL

■ Although there seems to be no completely satisfactory alternative solution, one still regrets that the opening two week-ends of the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra are not given exclusively in the intimate Concert Hall as they were in the past. For many persons these programs used to be the highlights of an entire year of music. It is not often that one can hear several programs by symphony orchestra first desk players under great leadership, and the opportunity for this experience, as initiated by Serge Koussevitzky and continued for some years by Charles Munch, resulted in some memorable programs.

As it is now, with larger attendance the rule for the former relatively private pre-season concerts, two of the three Friday-Saturday-Sunday concerts are scheduled for the Theater-Concert Hall with the third presented in the vast Shed. But since the weather is an ever-present factor in Tanglewood concerts, each ticket for the smaller hall programs also contains an alternative Shed seat number in case it has rained, is raining, or is threatening to rain.

Pianists LUKAS FOSS and SEYMOUR LIPKIN, soloists with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, July 12, in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto, K. 365.

■ It was only the complete unexpectedness of the downpour on opening night, July 4, that caused the concert to be presented in the Theater-Concert Hall. When one saw the plight of the outside listeners, huddling drenched under what shelter they could find, one could only endorse the management's rain-check policy. Still, the locale does make a difference, as the first two programs showed. With the week-end devoted to Bach, the opening program of the four Suites for Orchestra was delightful in every way. Not only was the music brilliantly conducted and expertly performed but the rapport between audience and players was perfectly established.

The following evening Dr. Munch and his players reached the same high level both in the accompaniment to the Keyboard Concerto in D Minor, with Lukas Foss an impeccable soloist, and in The Art of Fugue in the Pillney arrangement for Chamber Orchestra. But with the concert moved over to the Shed by uncertain weather conditions much of the effect was lost. The Mass in D Minor properly belongs in the Shed where a large audience gave deserved plaudits to G. Wallace Woodworth conducting the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with a distinguished solo list including Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

A witty rendition of "A Musical Joke" ushered in the all-Mozart week-end of July 11. Mr. Munch and the orchestra realized the score for laugh-provoking results. Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale teamed up for musicianly results in the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola in E-flat and the conductor's spirited reading of the "Linz" Symphony ended the Friday concert in exhilerating style.

Variety was the keynote for the Saturday program with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin soloists in the E-flat Two Piano Concerto, with the strings shining in "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," with the winds distinguishing themselves in the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, and with the whole chamber orchestra resilient in the G minor Symphony, K. 550.

For Sunday's close of the chamber concerts Dr. Munch conducted the "Haffner" Symphony, and the Concerto in C, K. 467, with Mr. Lipkin the soloist. Hugh Ross took over in the second half with the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341; the Graduale ad Festum, K. 273; and the "Coronation" Mass in C with the vocal forces including Sarah Fleming, soprano; Doris Okerson, contralto, Richard Gilley, tenor; Lawrence Chelsi, bass and the Festival Chorus.

JULES WOLFFERS

BLANK PAGE

Music Review

EAGLE 7/15/58

Fromm Foundation Concert

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE ANNUAL concert of contemporary music presented by the Fromm Music Foundation was played in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood last night. A fascinating program, organized for Paul Fromm by Aaron Copland, director of the Berkshire Music Center, stretched from Charles Ives, our old Connecticut neighbor, to another Nutmeg State scion, Robert Lombardo of Hartford.

This concert was the pinnacle of the grants of one kind or another that the Fromm Foundation has allocated to Tanglewood, and which have proved now for the second year to have been among the most stimulating factors in the whole schedule of activities. They are nearest in purpose and achievement to the ideas started in the Berkshires by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, and then taken up in turn by Serge Koussevitzky with the establishment of the Berkshire Music Center.

* * *

THE PERFORMERS last night were members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra assisted by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vesgerchian, who were heard in Ives' Sonata No. 2, for violin and piano, a medium in which he wrote five examples. This one, dating from 1907, can still fit into such a program easily although contemporary becomes the most difficult word in the English language to define accurately. Ives died only four years ago, but this sonata, while it has the significant features which place him in that band of pioneers that extended musical frontiers, also reeks of his own early contemporary MacDowell as much as Stravinsky. The performance was stunning and the homely simplicity of Shaker hymns, played without vibrato, and the strange pedal effects in piano were all evidences of his experimental curiosity.

* * *

THE MODEST HERO of the evening was Richard Burgin, concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony, who led all the larger pieces. What a conglomeration of rhythms the evening presented! There did not seem to be two successive bars in continuing rhythms yet Burgin kept his crack little band always tightly bound together.

Richard Burgin

The "ragtime" of Stravinsky dates from 1918 when all France, where Stravinsky at this time had come to join the near-fabulous regime of Diaghilev, was infected with the American virus, including both Ravel and the late Debussy. It also is the Russian's "Histoire d'un Soldat" year, and of the time he wrote the Etude for Pianola!

* * *

THE HINDEMITH piano concerto, Opus 36, No. 1., of 1924, was a down-to-earth, vigorous finale to the evening, and its spirit was wonderfully portrayed by Miss Vosgerchian. There is no attempt to be subtle here. This is music for a tractor after the mincing toe-dancing of some of the preceding music and it tasted good. Yet one can never be sure Hindemith is not winking an eye in some dark corner of the stage. These examples of Hindemith and also of Stravinsky were works of the years before either of them had come to the United States.

An "Ocho for Radio" of the Mexican Revueltas is a gay rhythmic combination of 3-4 and 6-8 and is of near the day of Aaron Copland's own "El Salon Mexico." Revueltas, a humorist, originally called this "8 x radio."

* * *

THE GREATEST interest of the evening centered on two commissions by the Fromm Foundation which were getting their first performances. By a remarkably strong coincidence, Robert Lombardo, born in 1932, and David Diamond, born in 1915, turned in quintets for an identical combination of wind instruments. Furthermore, they both worked on their projects, unknown to one another, in Florence.

Diamond's quintet is the more cohesive and homogeneous effort. On only bare acquaintance there seemed to be a unity in the material of the various three movements and a discernible character well identified by the designations. While reeds and a horn may not be as capable of emotional expression as their string colleagues, they have an accuracy of pitch and tone blending which has its own special compensation, and it is easy to see why composers turn to them as vehicles for their inspiration. The grace of the first movement was most successfully realized. Diamond used irregular rhythms but kept within unexpanded tonal limits as his experience would guide him. He is the winner previously of a commission from the Koussevitzky Foundation Fund.

* * *

LOMBARDO'S first movement had lyric warmth and a definite feeling for the instruments. There was much interchange of fragmentary phrases but they fitted not only in character but decidedly in tessitura. This was the most impressive of the four movements, although the second, a marcia giocosa, had a delightful sense of humor, exceeding in that respect the final scherzo. The canzona was a little consciously serious, but it gave the individual opportunities for long spun solo lines which the artists grasped with exceptional command. The performers in both quintets were Doriot Dwyer, flute, Ralph Gomberg, oboe, Gino Cioffi, clarinet, Sherman Walt, bassoon, and James Stagliano, horn.

It is impossible to assay the results or the profit of a single event such as last night's, but it is surely of inestimable value in the course of music and the encouragement it gives musicians in so many of the specialized channels to which they choose to devote themselves these days. The size of the audience which included practically all the student body of the Berkshire Music center as well as the members of the Boston Orchestra, and the cordial acclaim accorded the performers and Lombardo, the only composer on the program who was present, attested to the enjoyment and gratification experienced.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUL 12 1958

FrommConcertProgram At Tanglewood Monday

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at ~~Tanglewood~~ on Monday in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives, performed by Ruth Posselt and Loise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo will receive its first performance at this concert. "Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as ~~soloists~~.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

UL 15 1958

Lombardo's Work in Tanglewood Bow

By DANIEL W. GOTTLIEB

Tanglewood—A concert of contemporary chamber music here—performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and ~~guest artists~~, included the premiere of a young, Hartford composer's work.

* * *

THE PIECE, Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo, was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation. The audience Monday night in the Theatre-Concert Hall appeared to consist chiefly of the students and faculty of the Berkshire Music Center.

That Mr. Lombardo's work should be performed along with such established names as Ives, Stravinsky, Revueltas, Diamond and Hindemith is an honor in itself. Certainly he could ask for no finer performance than that which the Boston personnel under the direction of Associate Conductor Richard Burgin proffered.

Scored for flute, bassoon, French horn, clarinet and oboe, the 26-year-old's composition is in four movements, all relatively short. It is not a work that appeals on first hearing, but this was also true of Diamond's quintet for the same instruments which was also performed.

Both pieces can best be described as acclimatic, unless one considers building of rhythmic tension alone to be the goal of music. The thematic material is lean; the development of the movements episodic, and the consequent range for expression on the part of the players, very limited.

* * *

MR. LOMBARDO did show, however, considerable skill in contrasting the various instrumental timbres. The very paucity of works written to date for woodwind ensemble attests to the difficulty of the medium. Of the movements, the Marcia giocosa seemed the most consistent in mood and direction.

The composer, only recently graduated from the Hartt College of Music, having had the opportunity to write professionally in a rare medium, hear the work performed well, and acknowledge applause of a discerning audience, as he did last night, should be encouraged, regardless of whether this particular work succeeds or not in gaining an audience.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 5,451

JUL 12 1958

Tanglewood Sets Concert

LENOX, Mass. — A program of contemporary chamber music will be presented at Tanglewood on Monday, July 14, in the Theatre - Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, it will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with "Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2," by Charles Ives, performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. "Quintet for Winds" by Robert Lombardo, which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and "Ocho per Radio" (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revuletas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Richard Burgin.

First performance of "Woodwind Quintet" by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, will be followed by "Chamber Music No. 2," (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1, by Paul Hindemith, conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloists.

Music LOWELL SUN

Unique Concert Program At Berkshire Festival

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL—A unique concert is scheduled for Monday evening at the Berkshire Festival, when a program of contemporary music will be performed, with Richard Burgin, conductor, guest artists and members of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Two selections listed will be premiered. They have been commissioned by the Fromm Music foundation for the festival. The pieces to be heard include Robert Lombardo's "Quintet for Winds" and David Diamond's "Woodwind Quintet."

The remaining portions of the program include, "Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2" by Charles Ives. The soloists will be Ruth Posselt, violin and Luis Vosgerchian, piano. Igor Stavinsky's "Ragtime"; Silvestre Revueltas' "Ocho for Radio" and Paul Hindemith's "Chamber Music No. 2: Piano Concerto" with Luise Vosgerchain as soloist.

The Friday session of the seminar in contemporary music will include compositions by Elliott Carter and Milton Babbit with an introductory talk by Mr. Babbit. This will be the third program in the seminar series.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 12 1958

Contemporary Chamber Music At Lenox Monday

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday, July 14, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonato for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert. "Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloist. Members of the Boston Syphony Orchestra who will take part in the program include: Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Gino Cioffi, clarinet; Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet; Sherman Walt, bassoon; James Stagliano, horn; Rogert Voisin, trumpet; William Gibson, trombone; Everett Firth, percussion; Bernard Zighera, piano; Alfred Krips and George Zazofsky, violins; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; and Georges Moleux, bass.

Paul Fromm of Chicago, president of the Fromm Foundation, will be at Tanglewood for the concert.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Contemporary Chamber Music Program Listed

Moderns To Be Presented At Tanglewood July 14

The program is announced for theconcert of contemporary chamthe concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday, July 14, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo, which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloist.

[200]

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 10 1958

Program Announced For Fromm Concert

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at 8:30 Monday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives, performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert. "Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin.

The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloists.

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 17,740

JUL 10 1958

Work of Charles Ives On Tanglewood Program

Charles Ives' Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 will open the program for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Monday night at 8:30.

The work will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Richard Burgin, associate conductor, with Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian as guest soloists.

The concert is one of the Fromm Foundation series of contemporary chamber music and will be given in Tanglewood's Theatre-Concert Hall.

Charles Ives, American composer whom Danbury claims as a native son, was also the subject of the July 4 session of the current seminar in contemporary music being given at Tanglewood. Two groups of Ives' songs, his String Quartet No. 2 and "Emerson" from his Concord Sonata, were performed following an introductory talk given by John Kirkpatrick, outstanding exponent of Ives' music.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUL 11 1958

Chamber Music Program Listed

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood Monday in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8.30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Louise Vosgerchian as soloists.

Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who will take part in the program include: Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Gino Cioffi, clarinet; Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet; Sherman Walt, bassoon; James Stagliano, horn; Roger Voisin, trumpet; William Gibson, trombone; Everett Firth, percussion; Bernard Zighera, piano; Alfred Krips and George Zazofsky, violins; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; and Georges Moleux, bass.

Paul Fromm of Chicago, president of the Fromm Foundation, will be at Tanglewood for the concert.

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 103,521

JUL 10 1958

Local Composer Getting Premiere At Tanglewood

A Quintet For Winds by Hartford composer Robert M. Lombardo will be performed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Monday evening.

The work was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation Chicago, which annually sponsors premieres of compositions by two young Americans in the chamber music series at the Berkshire Festival.

The concert will be given in the theater-concert hall at 8:30. The other Fromm commission being given its first performance is David Diamond's Woodwind Quintet.

Also on the program is Charles Ives' Sonata For Violin And Piano No. 2, Stravinsky's "Ragtime," Ocho por Radio by Silvestre Revueltas and the Piano Concerto, Opus 36, no. 1, by Paul Hindemith.

Richard Burgin will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Piano and violin soloists will be Luise Vosgerchian and Ruth Posselt.

Lombardo, a graduate of Hartt College of Music, has recently been studying in Europe. A work written by him earlier this year received a Broadcast Music Incorporated prize of $750.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 10 1958

Fromm Concert At Tanglewood Slated Monday

Lenox, July 9—The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8.30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert. "Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin.

The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloist. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who will take part in the program include: Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Gino Cioffi, clarinet; Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet; Sherman Walt, bassoon; James Stagliano, horn; Roger Voisin, trumpet; William Gibson, trombone; Everett Firth, percussion; Bernard Zighera, piano; Alfred Krips and George Zazofsky, violins. Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; and George Moleux, bass.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

JUL 11 1958

Program Given For Tanglewood Concert Monday

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloists.

Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who will take part in the program include: Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Gino Cioffi, clarinet; Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet; Sherman Walt, bassoon; James Stagliano, horn; Roger Voisin, trumpet; William Gibson, trombone; Everett Firth, percussion; Bernard Zighera, piano; Alfred Krips and George Zazofsky, violins; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello, and George Moleux, bass.

Paul Fromm of Chicago, president of the Fromm Foundation, will be at Tanglewood for the concert.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 11 1958

Fromm Concert At Tanglewood Monday Night

TANGLEWOOD — The program for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood Monday at 8:30 in the theater-concert hall was announced today. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo, which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith, conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloists. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra who will take part in the program include: Doriot Anthony Dwyer, flute; Ralph Gomberg, oboe; Gino Cioffi, clarinet, Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet; Sherman Walt, bassoon; James Stagliano, horn; Roger Voisin, trumpet; William Gibson, trombone; Everett Firth, percussion; Bernard Zighera, piano; 'Alfred Krips and George Zazofsky, violins; Joseph de Pasquale, viola; Samuel Mayes, cello; and Georges Moleux, bass.

Paul Fromm of Chicago, president of the Fromm Foundation, will be at Tanglewood for the concert.

In Brief . . .

EAGLE 7/16/58

GE's announcement that the vacation shutdown will be limited to the two weeks originally scheduled is a little "Operation Upturn" for the workers by itself. It also confirms the opinion voiced by top officials that the back of the recession has been broken and the "bottoming-out" process is at hand . . . With no intention of aspersing the qualifications of the five Berkshire candidates unopposed in either the primaries or the final elections this fall, we might note that from the public's point of view a "white glove" campaign means even less airing of the issues than usual . . .

The big Shed concerts are generally considered the peak activities at Tanglewood, but as Jay C. Rosenfeld's review pointed out yesterday, there are many who consider the annual concert of contemporary works presented by the Fromm Music Foundation one of the real high lights of the season . . . In view of the disposition of big-machine operators to adopt a scorched-earth policy in any leveling and grading job, congratulations are in order for the city Public Works Department for the manner in which the new parking lot was constructed on the East Street city hall site. The trees and shrubs left standing make it about the most attractive parking place in town . . .

Newtown Bee - July 11

Contemporary Chamber Music Program Listed

Moderns To Be Presented At Tanglewood July 14

The program is announced for theconcert of contemporary chamthe concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday, July 14, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo, which was commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation, will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Music Foundation will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloist.

B. Herald - July 12

Fromm Concert Program At Tanglewood Monday

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music to be presented at Tanglewood on Monday in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives, performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo will receive its first performance at this concert. "Ragtime" by Igor Stravinsky and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2 (Piano Concert) Op. 36 No. 1 by Paul Hindemith conducted by Richard Burgin with Luise Vosgerchian as soloists.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 16 1958

Play at Tanglewood

The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, tonight at 8:30.

The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaac, Cabezon and Flecha.

B. Eagle - July 14

WEDNESDAY'S FEATURE of the chamber music concert series in the theater concert hall at Tanglewood will be the New York Pro Musica Antiqua group, founded in 1952. Under the direction of Noah Greenberg, its cofounder, this group of musicians is dedicated to bringing to life the long-forgotten music of composers who lived prior to the 18th century. This will mark the first time the group has performed at Tanglewood. Their previous performances were given in Stockbridge, Lenox, Williamstown and at South Mountain in Pittsfield. Wednesday night's concert will begin at 8:30.

Pro Musica Will Present 16th Century Music

LENOX—The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will appear at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood Wednesday evening in a program of 16th century Flemish and Spanish music.

Although the Pro Musica ensemble, specialists in vocal and instrumental music of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, has appeared in the Berkshires each summer since 1954, this program will mark their debut at Tanglewood. In past seasons they have presented concerts in Williamstown, Stockbridge, Lenox and at South Mountain.

The group was formed in 1952, and since their initial appearance in the Berkshires in 1954 they have traveled widely, presenting programs throughout the United States. After their Tanglewood appearance they will leave for Chicago and the Ravinia Festival there, and then will give concerts at the Candian Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Ontario. The group also has appeared at the American Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Conn.

The Tanglewood program Wednesday will feature music by two of the leading Flemish composers of the Renaissance, Heinrich Isaac and Joaquin des Pres. Spanish composers represented on the program are Christobal de Morales, Diego Ortiz and Alonso Mudarra.

Six Singers

The program includes sacred works, dances and chansons. In addition to six singers, the Pro Musica will present an ensemble of Renaissance instruments that were especially built for the group by makers throughout the world. As at past concerts, a set of viols, recorders and a harpsichord will be used. New additions to their unusual instrumental collection include a small minstrel's harp, a psaltery, a rebec (or medieval fiddle) and a portative organ.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 14 1958

Tanglewood Choir To Give Concert Tomorrow Night

Making its first appearance of the season, the Tanglewood Choir will initiate the first of two concerts tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Theater - Concert Hall. Each of these concerts is under the direction of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center Department of Choral Music. Hugh Ross is again the head of this department, and this year he is assisted by Lorna Cooke de Varon and Alfred Nash Patterson.

Ten student choral conductors will direct the 45 voices of the group in a program of sacred and secular music ranging from 1619 to the contemporary period In several of the works to be performed select voices from among the choir members have been chosen as soloists.

PROGRAM

Psalm 150 from Psalmen Davids	Schutz
Psalm 92	Schubert
Divine Poems of John Donne	Heiden
How Blessed They Are	Rameau
Le Chant Des Oyseaux	Janequin
From An Unknown Past	Rorem
Madrigal, Op. 35	Faure
Christmas Cantata	Pinkham

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 14 1958

Tanglewood Choir To Initiate First Concert Tomorrow

Making its first appearance of the season, the Tanglewood Choir will initiate the first of two concerts tomorrow at 8:30 in the Theatre.

Each of these concerts will have been prepared by the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center Department of Choral Music. Hugh Ross is again the head of this department, and this year he is assisted by Lorna Cooke de Varon and Alfred Nash Patterson.

The student choral conductors will direct the 45 voices of the group in a program of sacred and secular music ranging from 1619 to the contemporary period. In several of the works to be performed select voices from among the Choir members have been chosen as soloists.

The program follows: Schütz, Psalm 150 from Psalmen Davids; Schubert, Psalm 92; Heiden, Divine Poems of John Donne; Rameau, How Blessed They Are; Janequin, Le Chant Des Oyseaux; Rorem, From An Unknown Past; Faure, Madrigal, Op. 35, and Pinkham, Christmas Cantata.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 16 1958

Griswold Will Lead Tomorrow At Tanglewood

Thomas Griswold, instructor of music at Williams College, will be one of three student conductors at the third weekly concert of the Berkshire Music Center's Student Orchestra to be held at the Music Shed, Tanglewood, tomorrow night. Griswold will conduct the first movement of Bruckner's Ninth Symphony.

Mr. Griswold joined the staff of Williams College in 1956 as an instructor. He is a graduate of Yale University, where he received both his bachelor and master degrees in music. Mr. Griswold teaches music theory, and history, with some private teaching of piano and theory.

Last year Mr. Griswold presented a piano concert at Chapin Hall and has had other recitals locally. He is the director of the Berkshire Quindecem.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 16 1958

AT TANGLEWOOD

New York Pro Musica Featured In Concert Tonight

Lenox, July 15—The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the ~~Theater~~-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Wednesday night at 8.30.

The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaac, Josquin des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Flecha.

Members of the New York Pro Musica are Betty Wilson (soprano and recorder), Jean Hakes (soprano and percussion), Russel Oberlin (countertenor and percussion), Charles Bressler (tenor, percussion and portative organ), Gordon Myers (baritone), Brayton Lewis (brass and percussion), Paul Ehrlich (Treble viol, recorder, rebec), Martha Blackman (bass viol and minstrel's harp), Berknard Krainis (recorders), Paul Maynard (Harpsichord, portative organ, psaltery).

As will be noted from the many functions of each member of the group, the Pro Musica's concert will offer an opportunity to hear seldom performed music by a variety of vocal and instrumental combinations. Some of the instruments used by the group date back to the time when the music was writtn, while others are expert reproductions of the originals.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 15 1958

Pro Musica Group Tanglewood Debut Tomorrow Evening

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, which had its summer residence in Williamstown two years ago, will appear at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood tomorrow evening in a program of 16th century Flemish and Spanish music.

Tanglewood Debut

The ensemble, which specializes in vocal and instrumental music of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, has appeared in the Berkshires each summer since 1954, but tomorrow night will mark its debut at Tanglewood.

The group, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, was formed in 1952 and has since traveled widely throughout the country. After appearing at Tanglewood, its members will leave for Chicago and the Ravinia Festival there, and then will give concerts at the Canadian Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Ontario.

The Tanglewood program will include sacred works, dances and chansons. In addition to six singers, the Pro Musica includes an ensemble of Renaissance instruments especially built for the group by makers throughout the world.

The concert is scheduled at 8:30 in the theater-concert hall.

In Williamstown

Mr. Greenberg and his family are presently staying at the home of Prof. Winthrop H. Root of Williams College at 128 E. Main St. in Williamstown for the third summer while the Root family is away.

Mr. Greenberg has been in Williamstown since the middle of June working on the musical group's busiest schedule since it was formed. The co-founder of the group, Mr. Greenberg plans to leave the college town Saturday with his family and accompany the musical aggregation on its tour.

The director said today the schedule so far calls for 40 concerts from September through next spring. The schedule includes concerts in New England, the Mid West, the South and Canada. The tour in Canada will culminate in a radio-television broadcast over the Canadian Broadcasting Company in Montreal.

A new project will be undertaken by the Pro Musica Antiqua Nov. 30 when the male voices of the group will join the male choir at St. Thomas' Church in New York City for a special concert.

Trombones, reed and other instruments will be used by the group for its church presentation, in addition to its regular instruments.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 17 1958

RARE MUSICAL WORKS HAILED AT TANGLEWOOD

Audience of 1530 Enjoys Pro Musica Group in Concert

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 16 — The largest audience to attend a chamber music concert this season, 1530, was on hand tonight in the Theater-Concert Hall to hear one of those extraordinary concerts given by the New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg.

Enjoy Singing It

The 10 singers and instrumentalists, some are both, are a unique group who appear to love the music they sing and to enjoy hugely singing it. It takes a deal of curiosity to undertake the research which must go into the sort of program one heard tonight and it is to Mr. Greenberg's credit that he has discovered many works which, but for him, might go unheard.

The music tonight came from Flanders and Spain. The instrumental resources of the group are varied, ranging from recorders, treble viol, bass viol to a harpsichord and portative organ. Thus it was possible to listen to a very true and realistic performance of a set of delightful tunes by Tielman Susato, dances stately and grave, bouncy and gay.

Unusual Artistry

There was much to admire in the rare art of countertenor Russell Oberlin. His musicianship, enthusiasm and vocal quality was exactly right for the works he sang. Particularly, we remember Heinrichs Isaac's lovely song "Insbruch, Ich muss dich lassen." The "Tu Solas" by Josquin Der Pres, sung by a male quartet was one of the finest examples of this music heard tonight.

The ensemble is the important thing in a program such as this. Each singer must be a fine musician as well as singer and there must be a complete response to the conductor. We heard tonight singing which was remarkably flexible, accurate and often deeply affecting. Mr. Greenberg had his forces under complete control and his sensitivity and knowledge provided performances which may be classed as definitive.

One should hear this group of singers and instrumentalists often. Their repertoire is large, and to the ordinary concertgoer probably new. One need not fear monotony, for the music heard tonight, for example, had so many characteristics, such great charm and variety that one's interest never falters.

Excitement mounted and mounted as the concert continued and after practically every number there was prolonged applause and bravos. The success of this concert was complete.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 5,451

JUL 15 1958

Pro Musica To Appear

047

The New York Pro Musica, conducted by Noah Greenberg, will appear at the Berkshire Music Festival, Wednesday evening. This vocal and instrumental ensemble specialists in music of the middle ages in Renaissance, will present a program of 16th century Flemish and Spanish music.

Although the Pro Musica has appeared in the Berkshires each summer since 1954, this progam will be their debut at Tanglewood. In past seasons, they have presented concerts in Williamstown, South Mountain, Stockbridge and Lenox.

The Wednesday evening program will feature music by two of the leading Flemish composers of the Renaissance — Heinrich Isaac and Josquin Des Pres. Spanish composers represented on the program are Christobal de Morales, Diego Ortiz and Alonso Mudarra.

The program includes sacred works, dances and chansons.

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUL 17 1958

Pro Musica Group At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 17 — A program of 15th and 16th century music of Flanders and Spain rarely heard except in special concerts by the New York Pro Musica group gave an audience of more than 1500 at the theater auditorium at Tanglewood last evening a program instructive, charming and delightful.

Under the direction of Noah Greenberg the group sang in chorus and in solo beautifully in French, German and Spanish. They played rare old instruments as they sang or played solo instruments or sang a capella. It was all revealing and an unusual experience.

It was a far cry from the small portative organ which the musician plays with his right hand while his left hand works the bellows behind to the large modern organ of the Music Shed at Tanglewood. One heard the minstrel's harp held in the lap and played so beautifully by Martha Blackman who also played the bass viol. Bernard Krainis played the recorders and Paul Ehrlich the rebec. Each of the players doubled on several instruments, some of them also joined in the singing and together they made rare and unusual music.

One heard the music of Heinrich Isaac, Josquin Des Pres, and Tielman Susato and after intermission a program of Renaissance music of Spain that was another revelation. One heard the music of Cristobal De Morales, Diego Ortiz, Mateo Flecha and Alonso Mudarra and came away with a new understanding of the fore-runners both in music and instruments of the programs and composers heard here at Tanglewood most of the rest of the time.

Republican (m)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 21,034

JUL 18 1958

1,500 Enjoy Concert At Tanglewood

(Special to The Republican)

Lenox, Mass., July 17 — A program of 15th and 16th Century music of Flanders and Spain rarely heard except in special concerts by the New York Pro Musica group gave an audience of more than 1,500 at the theater auditorium at Tanglewood Wednesday evening a program instructive, charming and delightful.

Under the direction of Noah Greenberg the group sang in chorus and in solo beautifully in French, German and Spanish. They played rare old instruments as they sang or played solo instruments or sang a capella. It was all revealing and an unusual experience.

It was a far cry from the small portative organ which the musician plays with his right hand while his left hand works the bellows behind to the large modern organ of the Music Shed at Tanglewood. One heard the minstrel's harp held in the lap and played so beautifully by Martha Blackman who also played the bass viol. Bernard Krainis played the recorders and Paul Ehrlich the rebec. Each of the players doubled on several instruments, some of them also joined in the singing and together they made rare and unusual music.

One heard the music of Heinrich Isaac, Josquin Des Pres, and Tielman Susato and after intermission a program of Renaissance music of Spain that was another revelation. One heard the music of Cristobal De Morales, Diego Ortiz, Mateo Flecha and Alonso Mudarra and came away with a new understanding of the fore-runners both in music and instruments of the programs and composers heard here at Tanglewood most of the rest of the time.

7/13/58

THE SPRINGFIELD SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, M

In Concert Wednesday at Tanglewood

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, founded in 1952, will present the third in the series of Wednesday evening Chamber of Music Concerts in the Theater at Tanglewood, July 16 at 8.30. Under the direction of Noah Greenberg, its cofounder, this group of devoted musicians is dedicated to bringing to life the long forgotten music of composers who lived prior to the 18th century.

YWCA TO SPONSOR TRIP TO TANGLEWOOD

The Springfield YWCA will sponsor a trip to Tanglewood on Sunday, the 27th. The trip is open to nonmembers, both men and women. Conductor Charles Munch, joined by Pierre Monteux, who is making his annual visit as guest conductor, will lead the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a program of Debussy and Ravel. Zino Francescatti, world-famous violinist, will be guest artist.

The group will leave the YWCA at 11 and return right after the concert. The price covers the cost of transportation, admission and insurance. Reservations with a deposit should be made by Friday, the 18th. Further information may be obtained by calling the YWCA, 26 Howard St., RE 2-3121.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

JUL 13 1958

The New York Pro Musica, founded in 1952, will present the third in the series of evening Chamber Music Concerts in the theater at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. Under the direction of Noah Greenberg, its co-founder, this group of devoted musicians is dedicated to bringing to life the long forgotten music of composers who lived prior to the 18th century.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUL 15 1958

Pro Musica Bows At Tanglewood

Lenox, July 15—The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, tomorrow night at 8.30.

The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaac, Josquin des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Flecha.

Members of the New York Pro Musica are Betty Wilson (soprano and recorder), Jean Hakes (soprano and percussion), Russel Oberlin (countertenor and percussion), Charles Bressler (tenor, percussion and portative organ), Gordon Myers (baritone), Brayton Lewis (brass and percussion), Paul Ehrlich (Treble viol, recorder, rebec), Martha Blackman (bass viol and minstrel's harp), Berknard Krainis (recorders), Paul Maynard (Harpsichord, portative organ, psaltery).

As will be noted from the many functions of each member of the group, the Pro Musica's concert will offer a rare opportunity to hear seldom performed music by a variety of vocal and instrumental combinations. Some of the instruments used by the group date back to the time when the music was written, while others are expert reproductions of the originals.

Williams Instructor Is Student Conductor

TANGLEWOOD — A Williams College music instructor will be one of the conductors in the third weekly concert of the Berkshire Music Center's student orchestra tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed.

Thomas Griswold of Williamstown will be one of three student conductors on the program. He will conduct the first movement of Bruckner's ninth symphony.

The final work on the program will be conducted by Eleazar de Carvalho, head of the department of conducting at the center. He will lead the student orchestra in Dvorak's "New World Symphony," Symphony No. 5.

The program will open with Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe" conducted by Wonsik Lim of Korea. The first movement of the Lalo Cello Concerto will feature Olga Kwasniak of Toronto as soloist and will be conducted by Zubin Mehta of India.

EAGLE
7/16/58

Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood July 14, 16

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg.

This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be their first appearance at Tanglewood. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

The week will open on Monday, July 14, with the special concert of Contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre- Concert Hall.

NEWTOWN BEE 7/11

[102]

Music Review

New York Pro Musica

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE NEW YORK Pro Musica made its Tanglewood debut last night when it gave a program as the third event in the Wednesday chamber music series.

This unique organization has played in this vicinity frequently before, but the special character of their music makes the Tanglewood stage a natural for them, and the appreciative response they received showed that they were performing for an eagerly cordial audience.

* * *

NOAH GREENBERG, their director, had chosen a program divided between early Flemish masters and renaissance music of Spain. The first half devoted a great share of that portion to the great Josquin des Pres. As a matter of historical interest, this music of from four to five hundred years ago is more truly placed in its proper perspective when we recall that Josquin and Erasmus were contemporaries, and even landsleute. Furthermore the geographic distance of the two cultures is shortened when it is recalled that Spain ruled the Low Countries in that period, and most of last night's composers other than Josquin were contemporaries of the Count of Egmont; and also date from the era when Ferdinand and Isabella were subsidizing voyages of exploration westward.

In our enthusiasm for the limited spheres of the music and the research and the study that must long precede any such program one is apt to give less than due credit to the performers, six vocalists and four instrumentalists, who vary and alternate their functions so many times during the program that a mere catalogue would take columns. They are Betty Wilson and Jean Hakes, sopranos, Russell Oberlin, countertenor, Charles Bressler, tenor, Gordon Myers, baritone, Brayton Lewis, bass, Paul Ehrlich and Martha Blackman, treble and bass violists, respectively, Bernard Krainis, recorders, and Paul Maynard, harpsichord, portative organ and psaltery.

* * *

THIS MERE listing indicates the authenticity of the revival of that music. There was an equal division between music of religious application and of secular purposes. Indeed, in the latter was an abundance of gay to boisterous tunes and dances, with many a reference to matters less than solemn.

There was music sung a cappella, instrumental solos, vocal solos with accompaniment of all sorts and combinations, and a vast exposition of the scope of music and its state of advance in that day. The performers are all exceptionally able and specifically aware of the character of the music on which they have concentrated. The singers use all the attributes modern vocal training provides; the instrumentalists remain within the framework and limitations of their viols and recorders, supplying a vibratoless foil and accompaniment.

Noah Greenberg

* * *

FOR MANY hearing such a program for the first time curiosity is an important factor, but the large and increasing, faithful audiences this organization has acquired over its short few years of specialization give way to no others in their avid jubilation at every concert. The novelty soon recedes and makes place for the genuine beauty of the music and the exceptional degree of excellence with which it is presented.

The contrapuntal devices these ancient composers used and the rhythmic diversity, particularly in the Spanish music, are a continual revelation to any of us of this century who tend to become smug with our airs of superiority whenever we think of those it may please us to regard as "quaint." The subjects on which they choose to expound musically, and, within the limits of their instruments, the nature of its expression are less removed from us today than we usually are apt to juxtapose.

THE NEW YORK PRO MUSICA ANTIQUA, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, dedicated to performing music composed prior to the 18th century, presents the third evening in the Chamber Music Series at Tanglewood on Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

Berkshire Festival

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Fri. and Sat. evenings at 8:30 and Sun. afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

The week will open on Monday with the special concert of contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday at 8:30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events. The third lecture in Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3:15 on Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be held on Wednesday, at 3:15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteau, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance next Sunday afternoon. The B. S. O. rehearsal of next Sat. morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension Fund.

The complete programs for the week are as follows:

Wednesday, 8:30—Chamber Music, New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenberg, director; music of Flanders and Spain, works by Isaac, Des 'Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cavezon, Flecha. Friday, 8:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra Charles Munch, conducting; Brahms, Serendade No. 1, in D, Op. 11; Copland, Variations for Orchestra: Brahms, Symphony No. 4. Saturday, 8:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, Charles Munch, conducting; Brahms, A German Requiem; Soloists: Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, Baritone; Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross. Sunday, 2:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting; Brahms, Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, (soloist: Leon Fleisher); Stravinsky, Petrouchka.

WATERBURY

Pro Musica Group At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 17 — A program of 15th and 16th century music of Flanders and Spain rarely heard except in special concerts by the New York Pro Musica group gave an audience of more than 1500 at the theater auditorium at Tanglewood last evening a program instructive, charming and delightful.

Under the direction of Noah Greenberg the group sang in chorus and in solo beautifully in French, German and Spanish. They played rare old instruments as they sang or played solo instruments or sang a capella. It was all revealing and an unusual experience.

It was a far cry from the small portative organ which the musician plays with his right hand while his left hand works the bellows behind to the large modern organ of the Music Shed at Tanglewood. One heard the minstrel's harp held in the lap and played so beautifully by Martha Blackman who also played the bass viol. Bernard Krainis played the recorders and Paul Ehrlich the rebec. Each of the players doubled on several instruments, some of them also joined in the singing and together they made rare and unusual music.

One heard the music of Heinrich Isaac, Josquin Des Pres, and Tielman Susato and after intermission a program of Renaissance music of Spain that was another revelation. One heard the music of Cristobal De Morales, Diego Ortiz, Mateo Flecha and Alonso Mudarra and came away with a new understanding of the fore-runners both in music and instruments of the programs and composers heard here at Tanglewood most of the rest of the time.

S. M.

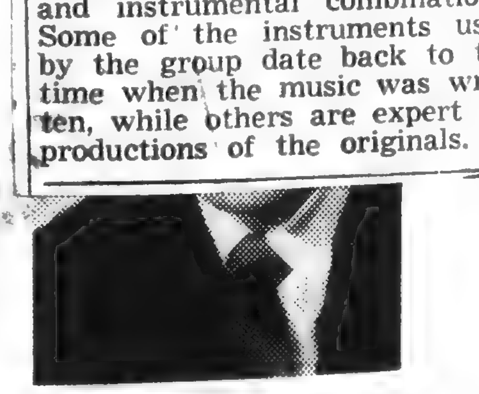
KINGSTON, N. Y.
FREEMAN
Circ. D. 15,969

JUL 16 1958

Pro Musica Scheduled For Tonight, 8:30 At Berkshire Festival

The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts tonight at 8:30. The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaac Josquin des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Flecha. Members of the New York Pro Musica are Betty Wilson (soprano and recorder, Jean Hakes (soprano and percussion), Russel Oberlin (countertenor and percussion), Charles Bressler (tenor, percussion and portative organ), Gordon Myers (baritone). Brayton Lewis (brass and percussion), Paul Ehrlich (Treble viol, recorder, rebec), Martha Blackman (bass viol and minstrel's harp), Berknard Krainis (recorders). Paul Maynard (Harpsichord, portative organ, psaltery).

As will be noted from the many functions of each member of the group, the Pro Musica's concert will offer a rare opportunity to hear seldom performed music by a variety of vocal and instrumental combinations. Some of the instruments used by the group date back to the time when the music was written, while others are expert reproductions of the originals.



DONALD GRAMM, bass-baritone, will be heard as guest soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Festival, in Lenox, in Brahms' "Requiem' this evening.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUL 16 1958

N.Y. Pro Musica at Tangle

The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts tonight at 8:30. The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaa, Josquin des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Flecha.

Members of the New York Pro Musica are Betty Wilson (soprano and recorder), Jean Hakes (soprano and percussion), Russel Oberlin (countertenor and percus-

---

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS
Circ. D. 2,156,137 - S. 3,586,789

JUL 1 1958

Tanglewood Reservations

Brooklyn music lovers have until July 16 to make reservations for the annual "Sunday at Tanglewood" all-day excursion July 20, the Brooklyn Academy of Music has announced. A Brahms-Stravinsky program will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra as part of the festival. The package trip includes railroad fare, a picnic lunch and admission to the festival.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 401,310

JUL 18 1958

SHED CONCERTS' SERIES OPEN

Tonight at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with music director Charles Munch conducting, will present the opening concert of the Shed Concerts' series by the full orchestra. Music of Brahms will be heard this weekend.

The 70 orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts have joined their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons tonight through Aug. 10.

Music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky will be featured next week. The third will be a Wagner weekend and the final weekend, Beethoven.

Tonight's concert will include Brahns' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert tomorrow night also will be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood July 14, 16

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg.

This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be their first appearance at Tanglewood. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

The week will open on Monday, July 14, with the special concert of Contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre- Concert Hall.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 46,025

JUL 13 1958

Berkshire Concerts Due This Week

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphny Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' [illegible] German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone.

[103]

Music Review

New York Pro Musica

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

Noah Greenberg

THE NEW YORK Pro Musica made its Tanglewood debut last night when it gave a program as the third event in the Wednesday chamber music series.

This unique organization has played in this vicinity frequently before, but the special character of their music makes the Tanglewood stage a natural for them, and the appreciative response they received showed that they were performing for an eagerly cordial audience.

* * *

NOAH GREENBERG, their director, had chosen a program divided between early Flemish masters and renaissance music of Spain. The first half devoted a great share of that portion to the great Josquin des Pres. As a matter of historical interest, this music of from four to five hundred years ago is more truly placed in its proper perspective when we recall that Josquin and Erasmus were contemporaries, and even landsleute. Furthermore the geographic distance of the two cultures is shortened when it is recalled that Spain ruled the Low Countries in that period, and most of last night's composers other than Josquin were contemporaries of the Count of Egmont; and also date from the era when Ferdinand and Isabella were subsidizing voyages of exploration westward.

In our enthusiasm for the limited spheres of the music and the research and the study that must long precede any such program one is apt to give less than due credit to the performers, six vocalists and four instrumentalists, who vary and alternate their functions so many times during the program that a mere catalogue would take columns. They are Betty Wilson and Jean Hakes, sopranos, Russell Oberlin, countertenor, Charles Bressler, tenor, Gordon Myers, baritone, Brayton Lewis, bass, Paul Ehrlich and Martha Blackman, treble and bass violists, respectively, Bernard Krainis, recorders, and Paul Maynard, harpsichord, portative organ and psaltery.

* * *

THIS MERE listing indicates the authenticity of the revival of that music. There was an equal division between music of religious application and of secular purposes. Indeed, in the latter was an abundance of gay to boisterous tunes and dances, with many a reference to matters less than solemn.

There was music sung a cappella, instrumental solos, vocal solos with accompaniment of all sorts and combinations, and a vast exposition of the scope of music and its state of advance in that day. The performers are all exceptionally able and specifically aware of the character of the music on which they have concentrated. The singers use all the attributes modern vocal training provides; the instrumentalists remain within the framework and limitations of their viols and recorders, supplying a vibratoless foil and accompaniment.

* * *

FOR MANY hearing such a program for the first time curiosity is an important factor, but the large and increasing, faithful audiences this organization has acquired over its short few years of specialization give way to no others in their avid jubilation at every concert. The novelty soon recedes and makes place for the genuine beauty of the music and the exceptional degree of excellence with which it is presented.

The contrapuntal devices these ancient composers used and the rhythmic diversity, particularly in the Spanish music, are a continual revelation to any of us of this century who tend to become smug with our airs of superiority whenever we think of those it may please us to regard as "quaint." The subjects on which they choose to expound musically, and, within the limits of their instruments, the nature of its expression are less removed from us today than we usually are apt to juxtapose.

Record (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 401,310

JUL 18 1958

THE NEW YORK PRO MUSICA ANTIQUA, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, dedicated to performing music composed prior to the 18th century, presents the third evening in the Chamber Music Series at Tanglewood on Wednesday at 8:30

Berkshire Festival

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Fri. and Sat. evenings at 8:30 and Sun. afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

The week will open on Monday with the special concert of contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday at 8:30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events. The third lecture in Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3:15 on Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be held on Wednesday, at 3:15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteau, who will share the direction of the Festival confi

Fu
T week
Wed sic, Ne
Greenbe
Flanders
Isaac, De
Morales,
zon. Flecha
Shed, Boston
Charles
Brahms, Seren
Op. 11; Coplan
Orchestra: Brahn
4. Saturday, 8:3
Boston Symphc
Koussevitzky Mem
Charles Munch,
Brahms, A German
Soloists: Hilde Gueden
Donald Gramm, Barito
val Chorus prepared
Ross. Sunday, 2:30—Mus
Boston Symphony Orc
Pierre Monteux, cond
Brahms, Academic Festival
ture, Piano Concerto No. 1 minor. (soloist: Leon Fleishe
Stravinsky, Petrouchka.

Herald (m)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 204,395

JUL 16 1958

WATERBURY

Pro Musica Group At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 17 — A program of 15th and 16th century music of Flanders and Spain rarely heard except in special concerts by the New York Pro Musica group gave an audience of more than 1500 at the theater auditorium at Tanglewood last evening a program instructive, charming and delightful.

Under the direction of Noah Greenberg the group sang in chorus and in solo beautifully in French, German and Spanish. They played rare old instruments as they sang or played solo instruments or sang a capella. It was all revealing and an unusual experience.

It was a far cry from the small portative organ which the musician plays with his right hand while his left hand works the bellows behind to the large nodern organ of the Music ned at Tanglewood. One heard minstrel's harp held in the and played so beautifully by ha Blackman who also d the bass viol. Bernard s played the recorders aul Ehrlich the rebec.
the players doubled on instruments, some of joined in the singing ner they made rare
music.
the music of Hein-
Josquin Des Pres.
Susato and after program of Ren-of Spain that evelation. One
f Cristobal De Ortiz, Mateo
Mudarra and new under-re-runners
struments mposers nd most

M.

N.Y. Pro Musica at Tanglewood Tonight

The New York Pro Musica, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will make its Tanglewood debut at a concert in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts tonight at 8:30. The program will feature music of early Flemish masters and Renaissance music of Spain and will include music by Isaa, Josquin des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Flecha.

Members of the New York Pro Musica are Betty Wilson (soprano and recorder), Jean Hakes (soprano and percussion), Russel Oberlin (countertenor and percussion), Charles Bressler (tenor, percussion and portative organ), Gordon Myers (baritone), Brayton Lewis (brass and percussion), Paul Ehrlich (Treble viol, recorder, rebec), Martha Blackman (bass viol and minstrel's harp), Berknard Krainis (recorders), Paul Maynard (Harpsichord, portative organ, psaltery).

SHED CONCERTS' SERIES OPEN

Tonight at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with music director Charles Munch conducting, will present the opening concert of the Shed Concerts' series by the full orchestra. Music of Brahms will be heard this weekend.

The 70 orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts have joined their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons tonight through Aug. 10.

Music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky will be featured next week. The third will be a Wagner weekend and the final weekend, Beethoven.

Tonight's concert will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert tomorrow night also will be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 4 - 1958

Chamber Music Concerts At Tanglewood July 14, 16

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg.

This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be their first appearance at Tanglewood. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

The week will open on Monday, July 14, with the special concert of Contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre- Concert Hall.

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 46,025

JUL 13 1958

Berkshire Concerts Due This Week

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphny Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS
Circ. D. 2,156,137 - S. 3,586,789

JUL 1 1958

Tanglewood Reservations

Brooklyn music lovers have until July 16 to make reservations for the annual "Sunday at Tanglewood" all-day excursion July 20, the Brooklyn Academy of Music has announced. A Brahms-Stravinsky program will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra as part of the festival. The package trip includes railroad fare, a picnic lunch and admission to the festival.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUL 19 1958

DONALD GRAMM, bass-baritone, will be heard as guest soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Tanglewood Festival, in Lenox, in Brahms' "Requiem' this evening.

[204]

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUL 13 1958

Major Music Festivals Presenting More Jazz

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

The increasing importance of jazz music in the summer musical scene is as remarkable as the unique and infectious nature of this indigenous American musical expression itself. In fact, not only is there a growing number of jazz festivals each year but many of our major music festivals throughout the country are now devoting a part of their schedules to jazz events. The latter innovation is perhaps the most significant development in the present musical picture and an indication of a growing trend in summer music festivals.

The Berkshire Music Festival is one of the few summer series at the present time which has made no concessions to jazz. However, it would not be surprising if the Tanglewood picture changed in this respect in the not too distant future. One notes with some interest, that the Boston Symphony is permitting its percussion section to perform in a jazz program to be given at the nearby Berkshire Music Barn on Aug. 9. Of course, the excellent series of programs at this jazz stronghold in Lenox precludes any necessity for a change in the traditional policy of the Berkshire Music Festival at the present time.

A number of major music festivals in both this country and Canada now, make jazz an integral part of their events. Two years ago Lewisohn Stadium in New York devoted an entire concert to jazz for the first time and that same season 10 jazz programs were inaugurated in the music festival at Stratford, Ontario. Jazz is to be included in the basic format of the new Vancouver Festival. Just to mention a few other festivals which will feature jazz programs this season, there are those at the Southern Vermont Art Center, Ravinia in Chicago, Red Rocks in Colorado, the Hollywood Bowl in California, and the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Washington.

The festivals devoted entirely to jazz are numerous. One of the country's biggest jazz festivals, that at Newport, R. I., has just completed its fourth annual series. A highlight of this year's series was the appearance of the so-called International Youth Band, with a personnel made up of young jazz artists from a number of European countries as well as the U. S. Incidentally, the successful outcome of last year's first jazz festival at the Oakdale Musical Theater in Wallingford has prompted another event this season, scheduled for Sunday, July 27. And, it hardly need be said, the plans for New Haven's second Festival of the Arts next year call for another evening of jazz.

It might be said that the echoing of tom toms and drums in many rural settings throughout the country is reminiscent of pioneer days. Our forefathers had cause to tremble and secure themselves behind barred doors when the war drums beat out their fearsome message. Happily all this is changed when the Gene Krupas punish their drums and our eardrums at current jazz festivals. The only thing nearby residents have to fear is a loss of sleep.

My experience with jazz festivals is, regrettably, somewhat limited. However, I do know that these delirious affairs engender an audience enthusiasm which represents a new phenomenon in the history of concert-going. When performers at a jazz program get warmed up — in the groove, as they say — the proceedings could go on indefinitely. Neither players nor listeners want to go home. For instance, last season's festival at Oakdale was still going strong after midnight and could have continued until morning if the promoters had not threatened to turn out the lights and chased everybody out. The best thing jazz performers like to play is encores which frequently outnumber the programmed offerings, if any! If you have never attended one of these affairs, you really have something to look forward to. Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms were "never like this."

STARLIGHT FESTIVAL OF CHAMBER MUSIC

The second concert of the fourth Starlight Festival of Chamber Music, which got under way two weeks ago in the courtyard of the Yale Art Gallery, will present a most interesting and appealing program on Tuesday evening at 8:30. The guest performers are to be three local artists and favorites of audiences here—Blanche Porto, mezzo-soprano, Michael Mennone, flute, and Harry Bartocetti, oboe.

Tuesday's program will, in fact, have an additional local flavor with regard to the first hearing here of "Landscapes," a work by David Kraehenbuehl of the Yale Music School faculty. Written in 1952 for the Summer Arts Festival at Colorado College, the work was performed the following winter by the Lasalle String Quartet with assisting artists. In five movements with a central theme, the work is based on a reportedly clever development of the melodic interest given out in the opening movement.

Kraehenbuehl is undoubtedly one of the most accomplished graduates of the Yale Music School to join its faculty in recent years. Since his matriculation at Yale a few years ago, his name has appeared here with a frequency that is the more amazing with regard to a revelation of his diversified talents. A former director of the New Haven Chorale, the young pedagogue's regular activities include the following: Program annotator for both the New Haven Symphony's regular series and the orchestra's high school concerts; editor of the new Journal of Music Theory, published by the Yale Music School; author of many erudite articles on music and composer of works in several categories. A capable performer on both the piano and flute, Kraehenbuehl played the latter instrument in the New Haven Symphony's recent performances of Stravinsky's "Rites of Spring." Currently he is working on a chamber music commission from the Harvard Musical Association and word is that the New Haven Symphony will perform one of his major works next season. Currently on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, Kraehenbuehl will lecture there on Wednesday afternoon of this week on "The Uses of Music Theory."

The regular string group of the festival will offer Mozart's "Hunt" Quartet and the Debussy Quartet, Opus 10, in Tuesday's concert. The string performers will be joined by the three guest artists for the performance of the Kraehenbuehl work which is written for soprano, Flute, oboe, and strings. Miss Porto, a graduate of Albertus Magnus, is a much in demand singer for solo roles in oratorio presentations and her latest engagement of note was that as guest artist at the recent Dartmouth Festival of 18th Century music. Bartocetti and Mennone, both recent graduates of the Yale Music School, are members of the New Haven Symphony.

In the event of rain, Tuesday's program will be given on the first clear evening following.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUN 25 1958

Tanglewood Calls Boro Music Lovers

The Brooklyn Academy of Music's second annual "Sunday at Tanglewood," an all-day musical excursion to the world-famed Berkshire Festival, has been set for Sunday, July 20.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform a Brahms-Stravinsky program, conducted by Pierre Monteux and with Leon Fleisher, brilliant young American pianist, as soloist.

The venerable Monteux, now in his eighties and more active than at any time in his long career, has selected the program.

OPEN WITH BRAHMS

He will open the concert with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, followed by Brahms' Concerto for piano and orchestra in D minor with Fleisher, first American to win the coveted Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, as soloist.

Following intermission, Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in his definitive interpretation of Igor Stravinsky's ballet, "Petrouchka", which Monteux directed in its history-making world premiere at Paris in 1911.

It has since become one of the great modern classics.

The Academy's special "Sunday at Tanglewood" excursion costs $10. It includes round-trip fare on the New Haven Railroad to Massachusetts a picnic lunch on the Tanglewood grounds, and admission to the grass lawn around the Music Shed where the concert is performed.

Should the concert-goer wish to obtain a seat, he may apply two dollars of the $10 package price toward reserved locations.

The Academy will arange for purchase of the reserved seats as a free service to the excursionists.

The "Sunday at Tanglewood" special excursion leaves Grand Central Terminal at 8:20 a.m., returning at 10:12 p.m.

Reservations are available through the Academy, 30 Lafayette ave., Brooklyn 17

Due to the limited capacity, reservation lists must be closed on Wednesday, July 16.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 13 1958

At Tanglewood Saturday

DONALD GRAMM HILDE GUEDEN

A performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem" will be heard in the Music Shed at Tanglewood next Saturday night. Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The concert is presented as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky.

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL TO COMMENCE

The major concert series at the Berkshire Music Festival will commence this week when the first three programs will feature the music of Brahms. The chamber orchestra of 35 Boston musicians, which has been heard during the past two weeks, will be joined by the other 70 musicians to give the orchestra its full complement for the remaining concerts of the festival.

The program for Friday evening's concert in the Music Shed will be conducted by Charles Munch. This concert will mark the first meeting of the conductor with his entire orchestra since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season in April. Friday's program will include the Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, the same composer's Fourth Symphony, and Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations.

Saturday evening's concert is to be given in Memory of the late conductor of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center, Serge Koussevitzky. The entire program will be devoted to a presentation of Brahms' "A German Requiem," with the Festival Chorus assisting the orchestra under the direction of Dr. Munch. The soloists are to be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who has just returned from a European concert tour, will make her first Tanglewood appearance on Saturday evening. Gramm has made a number of previous appearances at the Berkshire Festival.

Pierre Monteux will make his first guest appearance at the festival this season when, he takes the podium for next Sunday afternoon's concert. A program highlight is to be the performance of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 with the young American pianist, Leon Fleisher, as soloist. It is of note that the pianist made his official orchestral debut under the baton of Monteux in a concert by the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. The other works to be heard next Sunday are Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Other events of major interest at the festival this week will be a special concert of contemporary chamber music by Boston musicians tomorrow evening and the regular Wednesday evening concert in the Chamber Music Series. The celebrated Pro Musica Group of New York, directed by Noah Greenberg, will make its first festival appearance in the latter event.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 15 1958

Boston Symphony Will Open Shed Concerts This Friday

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox. Friday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

To Come from Boston

Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts of the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert Friday night, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

First Appearance

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert. She has just returned from engagements in Europe. Mr. Gramm has appeared a number of times at the Festival. He will also be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the final concert of the season on Aug. 10, and this will mark his 35th appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour.

Leon Fleisher, a pupil of Artur Schnabel, made his official orchestral debut under Pierre Monteux with the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. He won the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition in Brussels at the age of 24 and this year has been invited to return there to appear at the Brussels World's Fair.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series 16 at 8.30 Wednesday evening in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be its first appearance at Tanglewood. The program will include works by Isaac. Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

Student Performances

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir tonight at 8.30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8.30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday, and the Composer's Forum at 8.30 p.m. Sunday, both in the Chamber Music Hall.

The third lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3.15 Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be given Wednesday at 3.15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
World-Telegram & Sun
Circ. D. 569,290 - Sat. 232,097

JUN 25 1958

Academy Plans Tanglewood Trip

Pierre Monteux will conduct a Brahms-Strivinsky program July 20 when the Brooklyn Academy of Music will sponsor its second annual "Sunday at Tanglewood," an all-day excursion to the music festival in the Berkshires.

Mr. Monteux will lead th Boston Symphony in Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka." Mr. Monteux conducted this at its wold premiere in Paris in 1911.

The orchestra will also play Brahm's "Academic Festival" overture and his "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in D Minor." Leon Fleisher, the first American to win the important Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, will be soloist.

The $10 excursion fee includes round trip railroad fare, picnic lunch on the beautiful Tanglewood grounds and admission to the concert. Those who would rather have reserved seats than sit on the grass may get them for an ditional 50 cents to $3.50. servations must be made by il or phone—ST. 3-6700—by ly 16 or July 14 for those shing reserved seats.

The excursion train will ve Grand Central at 8:20 and return at 10:12 p.m st year, more than 200 made trip.

[204]

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUL 13 1958

Major Music Festivals Presenting More Jazz

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

The increasing importance of jazz music in the summer musical scene is as remarkable as the unique and infectious nature of this indigenous American musical expression itself. In fact, not only is there a growing number of jazz festivals each year but many of our major music festivals throughout the country are now devoting a part of their schedules to jazz events. The latter innovation is perhaps the most significant development in the present musical picture and an indication of a growing trend in summer music festivals.

The Berkshire Music Festival is one of the few summer series at the present time which has made no concessions to jazz. However, it would not be surprising if the Tanglewood picture changed in this respect in the not too distant future. One notes with some interest, that the Boston Symphony is permitting its percussion section to perform in a jazz program to be given at the nearby Berkshire Music Barn on Aug. 9. Of course, the excellent series of programs at this jazz stronghold in Lenox precludes any necessity for a change in the traditional policy of the Berkshire Music Festival at the present time.

A number of major music festivals in both this country and Canada now, make jazz an integral part of their events. Two years ago Lewisohn Stadium in New York devoted an entire concert to jazz for the first time and that same season 10 jazz programs were inaugurated in the music festival at Stratford, Ontario. Jazz is to be included in the basic format of the new Vancouver Festival. Just to mention a few other festivals which will feature jazz programs this season, there are those at the Southern Vermont Art Center, Ravinia in Chicago, Red Rocks in Colorado, the Hollywood Bowl in California, and the Carter Barron Amphitheater in Washington.

The festivals devoted entirely to jazz are numerous. One of the country's biggest jazz festivals, that at Newport, R. I., has just completed its fourth annual series. A highlight of this year's series was the appearance of the so-called International Youth Band, with a personnel made up of young jazz artists from a number of European countries as well as the U. S. Incidentally, the successful outcome of last year's first jazz festival at the Oakdale Musical Theater in Wallingford has prompted another event this season, scheduled for Sunday, July 27. And, it hardly need be said, the plans for New Haven's second Festival of the Arts next year call for another evening of jazz.

It might be said that the echoing of tom toms and drums in many rural settings throughout the country is reminiscent of pioneer days. Our forefathers had cause to tremble and secure themselves behind barred doors when the war drums beat out their fearsome message. Happily all this is changed when the Gene Krupas punish their drums and our eardrums at current jazz festivals. The only thing nearby residents have to fear is a loss of sleep.

My experience with jazz festivals is, regrettably, somewhat limited. However, I do know that these delirious affairs engender an audience enthusiasm which represents a new phenomenon in the history of concert-going. When performers at a jazz program get warmed up — in the groove, as they say — the proceedings could go on indefinitely. Neither players nor listeners want to go home. For instance, last season's festival at Oakdale was still going strong after midnight and could have continued until morning if the promoters had not threatened to turn out the lights and chased everybody out. The best thing jazz performers like to play is encores which frequently outnumber the programmed offerings, if any! If you have never attended one of these affairs, you really have something to look forward to. Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms were "never like this."

STARLIGHT FESTIVAL OF CHAMBER MUSIC

The second concert of the fourth Starlight Festival of Chamber Music, which got under way two weeks ago in the courtyard of the Yale Art Gallery, will present a most interesting and appealing program on Tuesday evening at 8:30. The guest performers are to be three local artists and favorites of audiences here—Blanche Porto, mezzo-soprano, Michael Mennone, flute, and Harry Bartocetti, oboe.

Tuesday's program will, in fact, have an additional local flavor with regard to the first hearing here of "Landscapes," a work by David Kraehenbuehl of the Yale Music School faculty. Written in 1952 for the Summer Arts Festival at Colorado College, the work was performed the following winter by the Lasalle String Quartet with assisting artists. In five movements with a central theme, the work is based on a reportedly clever development of the melodic interest given out in the opening movement.

Kraehenbuehl is undoubtedly one of the most accomplished graduates of the Yale Music School to join its faculty in recent years. Since his matriculation at Yale a few years ago, his name has appeared here with a frequency that is the more amazing with regard to a revelation of his diversified talents. A former director of the New Haven Chorale, the young pedagogue's regular activities include the following: Program annotator for both the New Haven Symphony's regular series and the orchestra's high school concerts; editor of the new Journal of Music Theory, published by the Yale Music School; author of many erudite articles on music and composer of works in several categories. A capable performer on both the piano and flute, Kraehenbuehl played the latter instrument in the New Haven Symphony's recent performances of Stravinsky's "Rites of Spring." Currently he is working on a chamber music commission from the Harvard Musical Association and word is that the New Haven Symphony will perform one of his major works next season. Currently on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, Kraehenbuehl will lecture there on Wednesday afternoon of this week on "The Uses of Music Theory."

The regular string group of the festival will offer Mozart's "Hunt" Quartet and the Debussy Quartet, Opus 10, in Tuesday's concert. The string performers will be joined by the three guest artists for the performance of the Kraehenbuehl work which is written for soprano, Flute, oboe, and strings. Miss Porto, a graduate of Albertus Magnus, is a much in demand singer for solo roles in oratorio presentations and her latest engagement of note was that as guest artist at the recent Dartmouth Festival of 18th Century music. Bartocetti and Mennone, both recent graduates of the Yale Music School, are members of the New Haven Symphony.

In the event of rain, Tuesday's program will be given on the first clear evening following.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUN 25 1958

Tanglewood Calls Boro Music Lovers

The Brooklyn Academy of Music's second annual "Sunday at Tanglewood," an all-day musical excursion to the world-famed Berkshire Festival, has been set for Sunday, July 20.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform a Brahms-Stravinsky program, conducted by Pierre Monteux and with Leon Fleisher, brilliant young American pianist, as soloist.

The venerable Monteux, now in his eighties and more active than at any time in his long career, has selected the program.

OPEN WITH BRAHMS

He will open the concert with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, followed by Brahms' Concerto for piano and orchestra in D minor with Fleisher, first American to win the coveted Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, as soloist.

Following intermission, Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony in his definitive interpretation of Igor Stravinsky's ballet, "Petrouchka", which Monteux directed in its history-making world premiere at Paris in 1911.

It has since become one of the great modern classics.

The Academy's special "Sunday at Tanglewood" excursion costs $10. It includes round-trip fare on the New Haven Railroad to Massachusetts a picnic lunch on the Tanglewood grounds, and admission to the grass lawn around the Music Shed where the concert is performed.

Should the concert-goer wish to obtain a seat, he may apply two dollars of the $10 package price toward reserved locations.

The Academy will arange for purchase of the reserved seats as a free service to the excursionists.

The "Sunday at Tanglewood" special excursion leaves Grand Central Terminal at 8:20 a.m., returning at 10:12 p.m.

Reservations are available through the Academy, 30 Lafayette ave., Brooklyn 17

Due to the limited capacity, reservation lists must be closed on Wednesday, July 16.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 13 1958

At Tanglewood Saturday

DONALD GRAMM HILDE GUEDEN

A performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem" will be heard in the Music Shed at Tanglewood next Saturday night. Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross. The concert is presented as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky.

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL TO COMMENCE

The major concert series at the Berkshire Music Festival will commence this week when the first three programs will feature music of Brahms. The chamber orchestra of 35 Boston musicians which has been heard during the past two weeks, will be joined by the other 70 musicians to give the orchestra its full complement for the remaining concerts of the festival.

The program for Friday evening's concert in the Music Shed will be conducted by Charles Munch. This concert will mark the first meeting of the conductor with his entire orchestra since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season in April. Friday's program will include the Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, the same composer's Fourth Symphony, and Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations.

Saturday evening's concert is to be given in Memory of the late conductor of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center, Serge Koussevitzky. The entire program will be devoted to a presentation of Brahms' "A German Requiem," with the Festival Chorus assisting the orchestra under the direction of Dr. Munch. The soloists are to be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who has just returned from a European concert tour, will make her first Tanglewood appearance on Saturday evening. Gramm has made a number of previous appearances at the Berkshire Festival.

Pierre Monteux will make his first guest appearance at the festival this season when, he takes the podium for next Sunday afternoon's concert. A program highlight is to be the performance of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 with the young American pianist, Leon Fleisher, as soloist. It is of note that the pianist made his official orchestral debut under the baton of Monteux in a concert by the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. The other works to be heard next Sunday are Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Other events of major interest at the festival this week will be a special concert of contemporary chamber music by Boston musicians tomorrow evening and the regular Wednesday evening concert in the Chamber Music Series. The celebrated Pro Musica Group of New York, directed by Noah Greenberg, will make its first festival appearance in the latter event.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 15 1958

Boston Symphony Will Open Shed Concerts This Friday

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox. Friday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

To Come from Boston

Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts of the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert Friday night, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

First Appearance

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert. She has just returned from engagements in Europe. Mr. Gramm has appeared a number of times at the Festival. He will also be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the final concert of the season on Aug. 10, and this will mark his 35th appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour.

Leon Fleisher, a pupil of Artur Schnabel, made his official orchestral debut under Pierre Monteux with the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. He won the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition in Brussels at the age of 24 and this year has been invited to return there to appear at the Brussels World's Fair.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series 16 at 8.30 Wednesday evening in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be its first appearance at Tanglewood. The program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

Student Performances

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir tonight at 8.30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8.30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday, and the Composer's Forum at 8.30 p.m. Sunday, both in the Chamber Music Hall.

The third lecture in the Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3.15 Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be given Wednesday at 3.15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
World-Telegram & Sun
Circ. D. 569,290 - Sat. 232,097

JUN 25 1958

Academy Plans Tanglewood Trip

Pierre Monteux will conduct a Brahms-Strivinsky program July 20 when the Brooklyn Academy of Music will sponsor its second annual "Sunday at Tanglewood," an all-day excursion to the music festival in the Berkshires.

Mr. Monteux will lead the Boston Symphony in Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka." Mr. Monteux conducted this at its wold premiere in Paris in 1911.

The orchestra will also play Brahm's "Academic Festival" overture and his "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in D Minor." Leon Fleisher, the first American to win the important Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, will be soloist.

The $10 excursion fee includes round trip railroad fare, picnic lunch on the beautiful Tanglewood grounds and admission to the concert. Those who would rather have reserved seats than sit on the grass may get them for an additional 50 cents to $3.50. Reservations must be made by mail or phone—ST. 3-6700—by July 16 or July 14 for those wishing reserved seats.

The excursion train will leave Grand Central at 8:20 a.m. and return at 10:12 p.m. Last year, more than 200 made the trip.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUL 18 1958

[105]

Boston Symphony Opens Lenox Shed Concert Season Tonight

The Boston Symphony Orchestra presents the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra tonight at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct.

The 70 orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade Concerts in Boston have joined their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week-ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons through Aug. 10.

Music of Brahms will be featured this week-end, next week music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky, the third week-end Wagner and the final week-end Beethoven.

Tonight's concert includes Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, chairman of the Faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present.

The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood.

Soloists in Brahms' "Requiem" will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the festival chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert.

His program will include Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

JUL 13 1958

A Kaleidoscope of Summer Activities

NEXT WEEKEND at the Berkshire Music Festival the first series of weekend concerts in the Music Shed will begin on Friday evening. Four series will be held with concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. The concerts are held at Tanglewood in Lenox in a beautiful outdoor setting in the Berkshire Hills. Programs are given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 16th season of this world-famous summer music festival. The programs next weekend will feature music by Brahms, with a performance of the Brahms Requiem on Saturday evening. Friday's concert will feature the composer's Fourth Symphony and Serenade No. 2 in A, and on Sunday the major work will be his Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist.

A local concert series will continue tonight with the second program in the Industrial Pops Concerts presented in Institute Park by the Worcester Orchestra under the direction of Harry Levenson. Weather permitting, the program will begin in the park at 7:30 tonight, and in case of rain will be rescheduled later in the week.

"Cinderella" will be the second attraction of the Toy Cupboard Theater in South Lancaster where weekly puppet shows give pleasure to youthful audiences. Two performances of marionettes in the beloved fairytale will be given on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at 3:30 p.m.

~~SPFLD REPUBLICAN~~
July 13, 1958

From Bullfights To Brahms Set For Berkshires

Pittsfield, July 12—Whether your forte is bullfights or Brahms, you will find the vacation entertainment to your liking this week in the Berkshire Hills, according to the Berkshire Hills Conference.

First of Four

"Bullfight" is this week's offering at the Williamstown Theater. The Brahms will be offered by the Boston Symphony Orchestra next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Tanglewood in Lenox. Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the Tanglewood concerts Friday and Saturday evenings, and Pierre Monteux will conduct the BSO next Sunday afternoon.

The week end BSO program will be the first of the four major Tanglewood week ends this season in the huge Music Shed. The annual Serge Koussevitsky memorial concert is scheduled for next Saturday evening at Tanglewood with Dr. Munch conducting. Hilde Gueden, soprano, Donald Gramm, baritone, and the Berkshire Festival Chorus in Braham's Requiem.

At the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox next Saturday afternoon the After Dinner Opera Company will perform Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti." And on the 20th, Wilbur deParis and his New Orleans Jazz Band will be featured at Music Barn.

For Small Fry

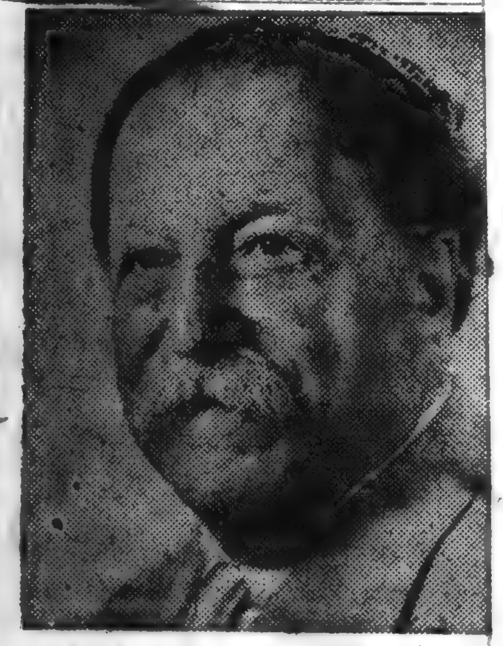
A speciality for the children this week will be "Rumpelstiltskin," presented at 10.30 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. Friday at the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield. This will be the first of a summer series of children's plays which will be presented by Pilgrim Productions Inc., of New York.

In addition to "Bullfight," the Berkshires' other straw hat circuit offering this week will be Deirdre Owens in "The Cocktail Party." This will open Tuesday evening at the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge.

In the field of the dance, Ted Shawn will offer Geoffrey Holder and Company, Ram Gopal and Sahomi Tachibana at Jacob's Pillow in Becket this week.

MILLERTON, N. Y.
NEWS-REPUBLICAN
Circ. W. 3,617

JUL 10 1958



Pierre Monteux will again be a guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra during the concerts of the Berkshire Festival thru August 10.

BERKSHIRE CALENDAR

S. Union - July 18

Varied Activities Are Scheduled for Summer Travelers

Activities in the Berkshires today include:

Lenox, Tanglewood, Chamber Music Hall, seminar in contemporary music, friends, 3.15. Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, 8.30.

Pittsfield, Berkshire Museum, "Rumpelstilskin, 10.30 and 2.30.

Pittsfield, South Mountain, New York Harp Trio, 3.

Stockbridge, Berkshire Playhouse, "The Cocktail Party" 8.45.

Williamstown, Williamstown Theater, "Bullfight" 8.45.

Becket, Jacob's Pillow, Geoffrey Holder and Company, Ram Gopal, Sahomi Fachi[illegible]ana, 4 and 9.

Pittsfield, Berkshire Museum, paintings by Thomas Blagden, sculpture by Elizabeth MacLean Smith and David Broudo, Tuesday-Saturday 10 to 5, Sunday 2 to 5. Closed Monday.

Stockbridge, Chesterwood Studios, half mile off Route 183 at Glendale. Casts and bronzes by Daniel Chester French. Daily 10 to 6. Nominal admission charge.

Wilbraham, Clark Art Institute, paintings of six centuries. Also sculptures, ceramics and silver. Tuesday through Sunday 10 to 5; closed Monday.

Pittsfield, Little Cinema, unusual foreign and American feature films, nightly at 8.15; Saturday's continuous from 7.

Stockbridge, Peggy Best Studio, paintings and drawings by Berkshire artists and students, 2 to 6 daily.

Stockbridge, Tanglewood Gallery, modern American Masters, Monday to Saturday 1 to 6.

Tyringham, Tyringham Galleries, art works by Berkshire and metropolitan artists, 10 to 5 and 6 to 8 daily. Nominal admission charge.

Ashley Falls, off Route 7, Bartholomew's Cobble, native ferns and flowers, guided tours; daily 9 to 5.

Berkshire Garden Center, at junction of Routes 183 and 102; Monday to Saturday 9 to 5; Sunday 10 to 12.30 and 2 to 5.30.

Stockbridge, Chesterwood Studio Gardens, flower displays, 10 to 6 daily. Nominal admission charge.

Stockbridge, Mission House Gardens, herbs, hedges, flowers and fruit trees. Trailside Museum, 10 to 5 daily, restaurant, open week days 11 to 8, Sunday 12 to 5.30; closed Monday.

Pittsfield, Berkshire Museum, center of Pittsfield, Tuesday to Saturday 10 to 5 Sunday 2 to 5, closed Monday.

Dalton, Crane Museum, exhibits in fine papermaking. Monday to Friday 2 to 5.

Stockbridge, Mission House, Monday to Saturday, 10 to 12.30 and 2 to 6; Sunday 2 to 6. Nominal admission charge.

Tanglewood Shed Concerts Open Tonight

Lenox, July 17—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its music director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra Friday night at 8.30 at Tanglewood.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus II, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece. The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 17 1958

Shed Concerts At Tanglewood Open Tonight

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra Friday at 8:30 at Tanglewood at Lenox.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10th Music of Brahms will be featured this week-end (July 18-1[illegible]); next weekend music of [illegible]ssy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27; the third weekend Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final weekend Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms's Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is Chairman of the Faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece. The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

B. Eagle - July 17

Major Concerts of Festival Begin Tomorrow at Tanglewood

Hilde Gueden

Donald Gramm

TANGLEWOOD — The big concerts of the 1958 Berkshire Festival start tomorrow—the first of the four Friday evening performances by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, designated as Berkshire Nights.

This weekend's concerts will feature the music of Brahms, performed by the full orchestra of the Boston Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Charles Munch, who is summering in Richmond.

During the week 70 members of the BSO came here from Boston after appearing at the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. They joined their 35 colleagues who have been at Tanglewood since the opening of the Berkshire Festival earlier in the month. With their families, the musicians from the BSO are scattered all over the Berkshires.

Berkshire Nights Plan

Last spring the management of the BSO offered again the residents living within easy driving distance of Tanglewood an opportunity to become a part of Berkshire Nights — a plan entitling ticket holders to the four Friday night concerts at a price equivalent to the price of three. Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna, 20 Warwick St., chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee, reported the response this season was more than 40 per cent ahead of last year, when the plan was inaugurated at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, a group of Berkshire residents.

Until Dr. Munch took over the reins of the BSO, the major concerts of the Berkshire Festival were presented on Thursday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. As an experiment a few years ago, Dr. Munch programmed the BSO concerts for Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, leaving the Thursday night spot free for concerts by the student orchestra, open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help support the school at Tanglewood, operated during the Festival season by the BSO. More than 400 students from all over the world are enrolled.

Tickets for the Friends' events during the festival season, which include performances by the student orchestra under the direction of Eleazar de Carvalho and guest conductors, opera, choral work, chamber music concerts and lectures, may be obtained at any time at the Friends' office at Tanglewood.

country for a concert tour of the West Coast before returning to the Metropolitan Opera in November.

Frequent Soloist Here

Mr. Gramm has been a frequent soloist at Tanglewood. He also will be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's 9th Symphony at the final BSO concert of the season, Aug. 10. This will mark his 35th appearance with the Boston Symphony.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance Sunday afternoon with the BSO.

The BSO rehearsal Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Tomorrow's Program

Tomorrow's opening concert of the Music Shed's major performances by the Boston Symphony will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D major, Op. 11, for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the BSO and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by Hugh Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke De Varon.

Metropolitan Soprano

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, is making her first appearance at Tanglewood at Saturday night's concert.

Miss Gueden, a long-time friend of Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Stockbridge, first and only president of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Inc., who spearheaded the Festival movement in the Berkshires back in 1934 is a [illegible] of Miss Robinson Smith du[illegible] her stay in the Berkshires.

Last night Miss Gueden was the honor guest at a dinner party given at Miss Robinson Smith's summer home, the Residence, attended by Dr. Munch, Zino Francescatti, the noted violinist, and his wife, summer residents of Monterey, Mrs. John Senior of Lenox, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller of Pittsfield, Mrs. Margaret French Cresson of Chesterwood, Stockbridge, Malcolm Vaughn of New York, former art critic of the Hearst newspapers and frequent contributor to the Reader's Digest, Mrs. Lyman Beecher Stowe, sister of Miss Robinson Smith, and Lacy Hermann husband of Miss Gueden.

Miss Gueden, a native of Vienna arrived in the Berkshires Monday night after appearing as a soloist at the Hollywood Bowl with Eugene Ormandy conducting the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra.

Miss Gueden will leave here Sunday morning to board a plane in Albany for Chicago, where she will give a concert that evening.

She will return to Europe in about a week for more concert engagements and will be back in this

---

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independ
Circ. 2,292

JUL 17 1958

TANGLE
IN FIRST

Boston Symph ra, conducted by C h, will present the f weekends of Ber
val concerts by th
stra in the Music Sh lewood next Friday day evenings at 8:3
ay afternoon at 2:30
rts will all featur of Brahms.
the opening conce
y, July 18, Dr. Munc uct the Orchest
ms' Serenade No. 1,
r, Op. 11 for chamb ra, followed by Aaron
s Orchestra Vari
ms' Fourth Symphon
the program.
e Saturday evening c
July 19 will be giv
ory of Serge Kousse
wenty-five years Mus
r of the Boston Sym estra and founder shire Music Cent
lewood. Dr. Munch uct the Boston Sym estra and Festival C

---

ristian Science
Monitor (e)
OSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

L 21 1958

Conce

XSACKIE, N. Y
UNION-NEWS
Circ. W. 1,977

JUL 11 1958

nglewood Shed Concert
The Boston Symphony Or ducted by its Music D arles Munch, will pres t of four weekends of B stival concerts by the full in the Music Shed at od, Lenox, Massachuset day and Saturday
ly 18-19) at 8:30 and ernoon (July 20) at 2:
certs will all feature th
Brahms. Some 70 mem
Boston Symphony O
join their 35 colleagues
Tanglewood for the con
Music Shed.

ENVILLE, N. Y.
LOCAL
Circ. W. 496

UL 16 1958

Concerts Thi
k At Tanglewo

oston Symphony Orche
ent the first of four w
Berkshire Festival conc ull orchestra in the M Tanglewood, this Friday evenings at 8:30 and noon at 2:30. The conc eature the music of Bra members of the Boston chestra have arrived here they have been app e 30th season of free
the Esplanade under th
Arthur Fiedler, to join gues already at Tangle oncerts in the Music
e opening concert on Charles Munch will con
estra in Brahms Seren
D major, Op. 11 for ch estra, followed by Aa
Orchestra Variatio
Fourth Symphony will cl am.
urday evening concert w n memory of Serge Kous r twenty-five years Mu
of the Boston Symphony
nd founder of the Berk nter at Tanglewood.
ll conduct the Orchestr
Chorus in a perform
A German Requiem

[106] ght

Festival

Tanglewoo

Donald Gramm

ry for a concert tour Coast before returning the politan Opera in November.

quent Soloist Here

Gramm has been a frequent t at Tanglewood. He also will oloist in the performance of hoven's 9th Symphony at the BSO concert of the season,
10. This will mark his 35th arance with the Boston Sym y.
rre Monteux, who will sha direction of the festival c with Dr. Munch, makes' guest appearance Sunday a on with the BSO.
he BSO rehearsal Saturday
ning will be open to the public the benefit of the orchestra's sion fund.

orrow's Program

orrow's opening concert of Music Shed's major perform-by the Boston Symphony
nclude Brahms' Serenade No.
major, Op. 11, for chamber tra, followed by Aaron Cop-Orchestra Variations.
ns' Fourth Symphony will
the program.
Saturday evening concert be given in memory of Dr.
Koussevitzky, for 25 years director of the BSO and der of the Berkshire Music
r at Tanglewood.
Munch will conduct the Bos-ymphony and Festival Chorus performance of Brahms' "A an Requiem." Soloists will Hilde Gueden, soprano, and ld Gramm, baritone. The chor-prepared by Hugh Ross, with ssistance of Alfred Nash Pat
n and Lorna Cooke De Varon

ropolitan Soprano ss Gueden, a leading soprano etropolitan Opera, is maki appearance at Tanglewo urday night's concert.

s Gueden, a long-time frie iss Gertrude Robinson Smith kbridge, first and only pr of the Berkshire Sympho ival Inc., who spearheaded ival movement in the B back in 1934, is a gues
Robinson Smith during in the Berkshires.
st night Miss Gueden was r guest at a dinner party g
Miss Robinson Smith's sum
, the Residence, attended Munch, Zino Francescatti, violinist, and his wife,
residents of Monterey,
Senior of Lenox, Mr. and ance K. Miller of Pitts
Margaret French Cress
rwood, Stockbridge,
Vaughn of New York, fo
ritic of the Hearst newspa frequent contributor to er's Digest, Mrs. Ly her Stowe, sister of Miss Smith, and Lacy Her nd of Miss Gueden.
s Gueden, a native of V ed in the Berkshires M after appearing as a Hollywood Bowl with ndy conducting the H
Orchestra. s Gueden will leave morning to board a y for Chicago, whe
a concert that eve will return to t a week for more ments and will be

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUL 17 1958

TANGLEWOOD PLAYS BRAHMS' MUSIC IN ST FULL ORCHESTRA CONCERTS hony Or-

Charles
c e first of Mu Berkshire fo the full Fes ic Shed at orc riday and
Tan 8:30 and Satu 2:30. The Sund feature the conc mus
For concert on Friday Munch will conduct estra in Brahms' No. 1, in D major, Op chamber orchestra, to Aaron Copland's O Variations.
Brahms' phony will close the
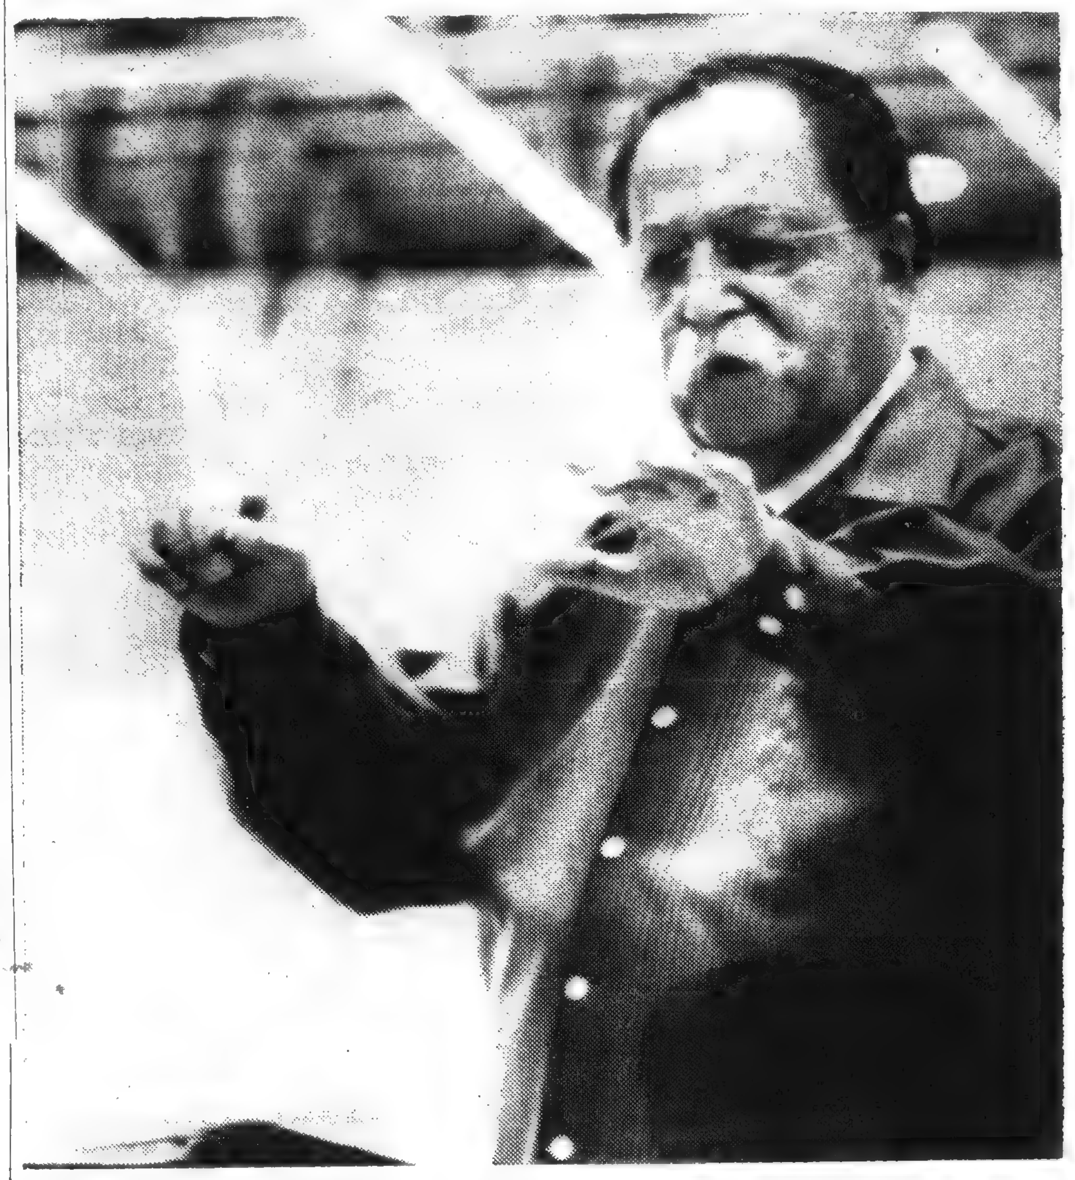
The Sat ing concert on July will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' A German Requiem. Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Adademic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leo Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's Petrouchka, a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affnity.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open

(Continued on Page 17)



GUEST CONDUCTOR . . . with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this weekend at Tanglewood will be Pierre Monteux. Mr. Monteux will conduct the Sunday afternoon performances of Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," and "Piano Concerto No. 1" and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 21 1958

Concerts at Tanglewood and Castle Hill

Brahms Music Conducted by Charles Munch

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

One rarely hears the Brahms Serenade No. 1 in D major, Op. 11, and the decision of Charles Munch to program it as the first work of a weekend devoted largely to the music of Brahms was both appropriate and welcome. Although Friday evening's concert opened the third series of the six-week Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, it was the first employing the full complement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Those who take pleasure in music nearly always show a curiosity about all aspects of the life and work of our greatest composers. Yet it is astonishing how seldom we get off the beaten track in programing. The immense treasure of riches left by Mozart, Haydn, and Bach go largely unclaimed, with conductors and performers preferring to play and replay those works that have become securely established in the repertory.

It is true that established works are normally the finest, but we may understand the often-heard compositions all the better and gain greater perspective when given opportunity to hear preparatory and surrounding works also.

One would be far from claiming greatness for the Serenade. Brahms's symphonic development was slow. At the age of 25 he had not yet composed for wind instruments, and his first symphony was still years ahead of him. Consequently there is a tentative and cautious feeling to the Serenade as compared to the sure mastery of the later orchestral works. But there are enough flashes of brilliance to make the work worth hearing in its own right, and its prophecy of what was to come adds enormous interest.

The performance itself was exceedingly well done, with Dr. Munch sympathetically aiding the composer by every resource of skill, art, and perception.

* * *

Dr. Munch also chose a relatively early work by a contemporary composer as a companion piece to the surrounding Brahms. Aaron Copland composed his Variations for Piano in 1930. With its use of the serial technique and with its treatment of unresolved dissonance it marks a significant milestone in the composer's development.

It is remarkable also for its striking treatment of piano timbres, and while this is necessarily lost in the orchestral version Mr. Copland has achieved equally striking orchestral effects in the revision.

Commissioned by the Louisville Orchestra in 1957, the work was first performed by that enterprising orchestra in March of this year. It is a tricky and complicated score to realize; and while there were a few minor slips, Dr. Munch and the players achieved excellent cohesion and remarkable sonorities. The composer was present to share the cordial reception given the work.

The program closed with an excellent performance of the Brahms Symphony No. 4.

* * *

Saturday evening's program was dedicated to the memory of Serge Koussevitzky, whose 25 years of leadership of the orchestra included so much of significant achievement at Tanglewood. The sole work on the program was the German Requiem for Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra, Op. 45.

This was a singularly touching performance, gently guided by the conductor and most expressively realized by all participants. Hilde Gueden sang beautifully in the soprano solo, and Donald Gramm achieved musicality and warmth in the baritone sections. Barring some initial difficulty with high passages, the Festival Chorus acquitted itself with distinction.

COXSACKIE, N. Y.
UNION-NEWS
Circ. W. 1,977

JUL 11 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

GREENVILLE, N. Y.
LOCAL
Circ. W. 496

JUL 16 1958

Shed Concerts This Week At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present the first of four week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, this Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30 The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra have arrived from Boston, where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts of the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteaux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka".

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series tomorrow at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952, spent their first summer here in Canaan, and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach.

Student performances of the week, include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir tonight at 8:30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a. m. on Sunday and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events.

RAVENA NY NEWS-HER
CAIRO HERALD

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
BROOKLYN DAILY
Circ. D. 36,575

JUL 16 1958

SUNDAY AT TANGLEWOOD

One of the best bargains ever offered music lovers anywhere is the "Sunday At Tanglewood" outing which is being readied for Brooklynites by our own famed Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Under the inspired leadership of William M. Martin, the new director of the Academy, special arrangements have been made so that you may visit the world-renowned Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires.

For the ~~single and minimum~~ "package price" of $10, you get a round-trip ticket to Tanglewood on the New Haven Railroad, admission to the concert grounds a picnic luncheon.

The date is this Sunday, July 20 and the excursion leaves Grand Central at 8:20 A.M., returning the same evening to New York at 10:12. You must make your reservations by the end of today. We heartily recommend this one-day outing to all boroughites. It will be a happy date in your memory for many seasons to come.

VALATIE, N. Y.
ROUGH NOTES
Circ. W. 1,000

JUL 11 1958

HILDE GUEDEN, soprano, will sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Musical Director, in the Brahms Requiem July 19 at 8:30 in the Shed at Tanglewood.

Tanglewood Begins First Shed Concerts

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings, July 18 19 at 8:30. and Sunday afternoon, July 20, at 2:30.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the BSO and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem".

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest apppearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

CHATHAM, N. Y.
COURIER
Cir. W. 3,500

JUL 10 1958

[106]

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

JUL 17 1958

TANGLEWOOD PLAYS BRAHMS' MUSIC IN FIRST FULL ORCHESTRA CONCERTS

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

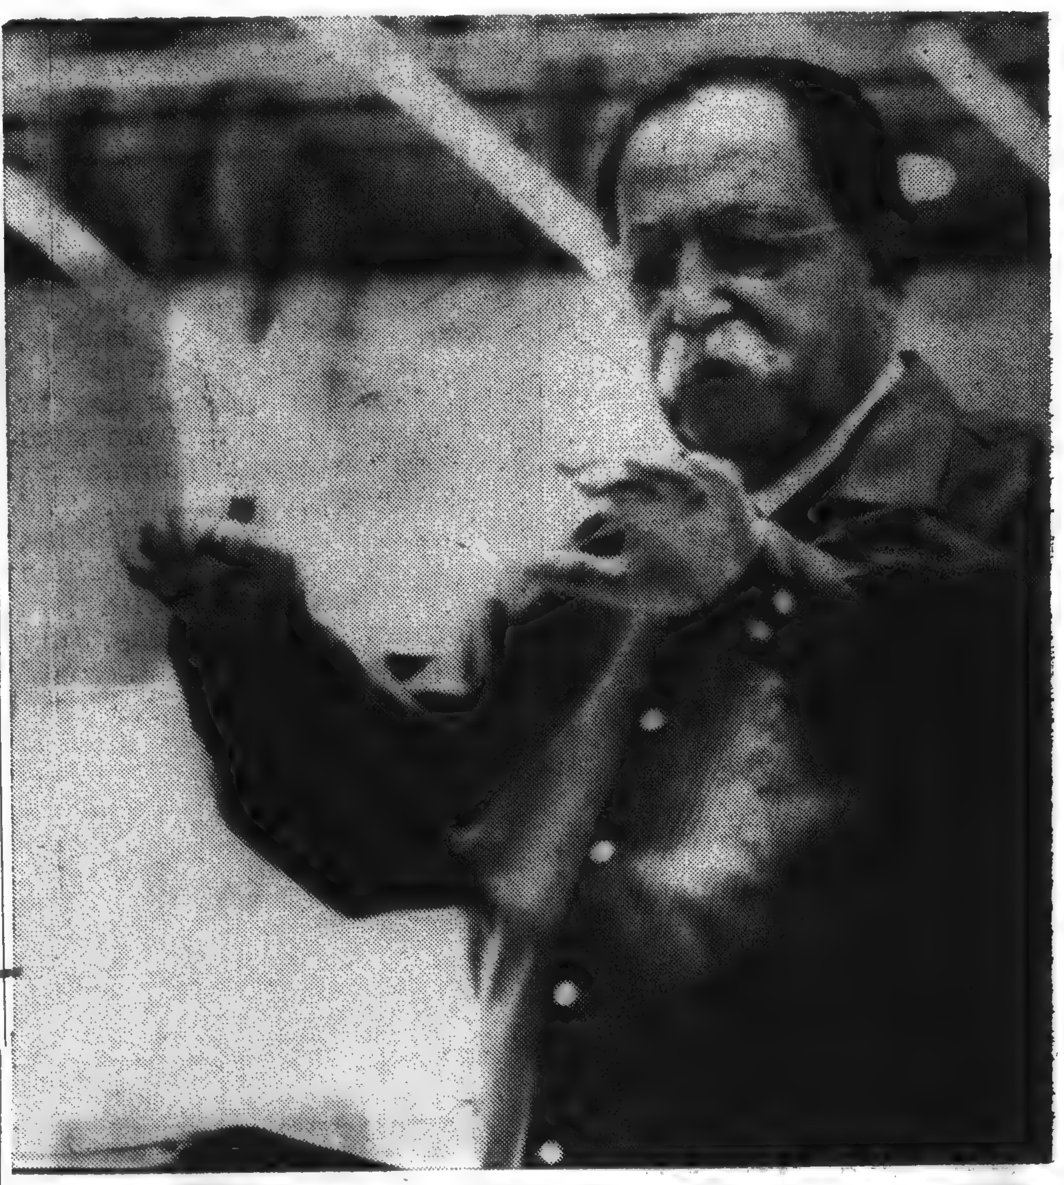
For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' A German Requiem. Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Adademic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leo Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's Petrouchka, a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affnity.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open

(Continued on Page 17) 2



GUEST CONDUCTOR . . . with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this weekend at Tanglewood will be Pierre Monteux. Mr. Monteux will conduct the Sunday afternoon performances of Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," and "Piano Concerto No. 1" and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

VALATIE, N. Y.
ROUGH NOTES
Circ. W. 1,000

JUL 11 1958

HILDE GUEDEN, soprano, will sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Musical Director, in the Brahms Requiem July 19 at 8:30 in the Shed at Tanglewood.

Tanglewood Begins First Shed Concerts

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings, July 18-19 at 8:30, and Sunday afternoon, July 20, at 2:30.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the BSO and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem".

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest apppearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher. will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

CHATHAM, N.Y.
COURIER
Cir. W. 3,500

JUL 10 1958

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 21 1958

Concerts at Tanglewood and Castle Hill

Brahms Music Conducted by Charles Munch

By Jules Wolffers

Lenox, Mass.

One rarely hears the Brahms Serenade No. 1 in D major, Op. 11, and the decision of Charles Munch to program it as the first work of a weekend devoted largely to the music of Brahms was both appropriate and welcome. Although Friday evening's concert opened the third series of the six-week Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, it was the first employing the full complement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Those who take pleasure in music nearly always show a curiosity about all aspects of the life and work of our greatest composers. Yet it is astonishing how seldom we get off the beaten track in programing. The immense treasure of riches left by Mozart, Haydn, and Bach go largely unclaimed, with conducters and performers preferring to play and replay those works that have become securely established in the repertory.

It is true that established works are normally the finest, but we may understand the often-heard compositions all the better and gain greater perspective when given opportunity to hear preparatory and surrounding works also.

One would be far from claiming greatness for the Serenade. Brahms's symphonic development was slow. At the age of 25 he had not yet composed for wind instruments, and his first symphony was still years ahead of him. Consequently there is a tentative and cautious feeling to the Serenade as compared to the sure mastery of the later orchestral works. But there are enough flashes of brilliance to make the work worth hearing in its own right, and its prophecy of what was to come adds enormous interest.

The performance itself was exceedingly well done, with Dr. Munch sympathetically aiding the composer by every resource of skill, art, and perception.

* * *

Dr. Munch also chose a relatively early work by a contemporary composer as a companion piece to the surrounding Brahms. Aaron Copland composed his Variations for Piano in 1930. With its use of the serial technique and with its treatment of unresolved dissonance it marks a significant milestone in the composer's development.

It is remarkable also for its striking treatment of piano timbres, and while this is necessarily lost in the orchestral version Mr. Copland has achieved equally striking orchestral effects in the revision.

Commissioned by the Louisville Orchestra in 1957, the work was first performed by that enterprising orchestra in March of this year. It is a tricky and complicated score to realize; and while there were a few minor slips, Dr. Munch and the players achieved excellent cohesion and remarkable sonorities. The composer was present to share the cordial reception given the work.

The program closed with an excellent performance of the Brahms Symphony No. 4.

* * *

Saturday evening's program was dedicated to the memory of Serge Koussevitzky, whose 25 years of leadership of the orchestra included so much of significant achievement at Tanglewood. The sole work on the program was the German Requiem for Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra, Op. 45.

This was a singularly touching performance, gently guided by the conductor and most expressively realized by all participants. Hilde Gueden sang beautifully in the soprano solo and Donald Gramm achieved musicality and warmth in the baritone sections. Barring some initial difficulty with high passages, the Festival Chorus acquitted itself with distinction.

COXSACKIE, N. Y.
UNION-NEWS
Circ. W. 1,977

JUL 11 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

GREENVILLE, N. Y.
LOCAL
Circ. W. 496

JUL 16 1958

Shed Concerts This Week At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will present the first of four week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, this Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra have arrived from Boston, where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts of the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteaux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka".

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series tomorrow at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952, spent their first summer here in Canaan, and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach.

Student performances of the week, include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir tonight at 8:30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a. m. on Sunday and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events.

RAVENA NY NEWS-HER
CAIRO HERALD

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
BROOKLYN DAILY
Circ. D. 36,575

JUL 16 1958

SUNDAY AT TANGLEWOOD

One of the best bargains ever offered music lovers anywhere is the "Sunday At Tanglewood" outing which is being readied for Brooklynites by our own famed Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Under the inspired leadership of William H. Martin, the new director of the Academy, special arrangements have been made so that you may visit the world-renowned Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires.

For the single and minimum "package price" of $10, you get a round-trip ticket to Tanglewood on the New Haven Railroad, admission to the concert grounds [illegible] a picnic luncheon.

The date is this Sunday, July 20 and the excursion leaves Grand Central at 8:20 A.M., returning the same evening to New York at 10:12. You must make your reservations by the end of today. We heartily recommend this one-day outing to all boroughites. It will be a happy date in your memory for many seasons to come.

[2077]

Berkshire Dance and Concert News

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Indep. Republican
Circ. 305,271

JUL 13 1958

Berkshire Festival

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Fri. and Sat. evenings at 8:30 and Sun. afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

The week will open on Monday with the special concert of contemporary Chamber Music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday at 8:30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events. The third lecture in Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3:15 on Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be held on Wednesday, at 3:15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for twenty-five years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Pierre Monteau, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance next Sunday afternoon. The B. S. O. rehearsal of next Sat. morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension Fund.

The complete programs for the week are as follows:

Wednesday, 8:30—Chamber Music, New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenberg, director; music of Flanders and Spain, works by Isaac, Des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cavezon, Flecha. Friday, 8:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra Charles Munch, conducting; Brahms, Serendade No. 1, in D, Op. 11; Copland, Variations for Orchestra: Brahms, Symphony No. 4. Saturday, 8:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, Charles Munch, conducting; Brahms, A German Requiem; Soloists: Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, Baritone; Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross. Sunday, 2:30—Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting; Brahms, Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, (soloist: Leon Fleisher); Stravinsky, Petrouchka.

Christian Science Monitor
July 12

Brahms Music Listed For Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will feature the music of Brahms.

For the Friday concert Dr. Munch will conduct Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D major, Op. 11, for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestral Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

* * *

The Saturday concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by Hugh Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke deVaron.

Pierre Monteux, who shares the direction of the festival concerts with Dr. Munch, will make his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. Leon Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," a work he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour.

* * *

The Boston Symphony rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open to the public for the benefit of the Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening chamber music series on July 16 will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach. The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be their first appearance at Tanglewood. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Près, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon, and Glecha.

* * *

Fromm Concert Monday

The program is announced for the concert of contemporary chamber music, to be presented at Tanglewood Monday night in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30. Sponsored by the Fromm Foundation of Chicago, the concert will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists.

The program will open with the Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 2 by Charles Ives, performed by Ruth Posselt and Luise Vosgerchian. The Quintet for Winds by Robert Lombardo, commissioned by the Fromm Foundation, will receive its first performance at this concert.

"Ragtime," by Igor Stravinsky, and Ocho per Radio (Radio Octet) by Silvestre Revueltas will be performed by members of the Boston Symphony, conducted by Richard Burgin. The first performance of Woodwind Quintet by David Diamond, commissioned by the Fromm Foundation, will be followed by Chamber Music No. 2, by Paul Hindemith, conducted by Richard Burgin with Miss Vosgerchian as soloist.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

JUL 17 1958

Coming Events

July 14-19—"The Cocktail Party" with William Roerick and Diedre Owens, Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, 8:45 p.m. Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays at 2:30.

July 18-20—Series "A" concerts Music Shed, Tanglewood, Lenox, by Boston Symphony Orchestra.

July 19—Public ham loaf supper, Housatonic Methodist church, 5:00 p.m., sponsored by the W. S. C. S.

July 19—Summer fair and luncheon, St. James' church, 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Luncheon served at 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m.

July 19—Bean Hole supper, Umpachene Grange Hall, Hartsville, from 4:00 to 8:00 p.m., to be followed with a round and square dance.

July 21-26—"The Mousetrap" with Paul Hinxman and Barbara Brady, Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, 8:45 p.m. Matinees Wednesday and Saturdays at 2:30.

July 21-31—Great Barrington Art Show, sponsored by the Thursday Morning Club, Berkshire Inn Ball room, 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily. Reception open to the public Monday evening at 8:30.

July 24—Summer fair and supper, Ladies' Aid Hall, Southfield. Sale at 2:00 p.m. Supper at 6:00 and 7:00 p.m. Sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of Southfield church.

July 26—Annual bazaar and smorgasbord, Housatonic Congregational church parish house. Bazaar at 1:30 p.m., supper at 5:30 p.m., sponsored by the Pilgrim Circle.

July 26—Annual sale and snack bar, South Egremont Congregational church parlors, 11:00 a.m., sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society.

July 26—Food sale, Mill River library Lawn, 2:00 to 4:00 p.m., sponsored by the ladies of the Immaculate Conception church.

July 29—Annual public steak fry, sponsored by Sheffield Kiwanis, at Berkshire Trout Farm, Route 41, Undermountain road, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Rain or shine.

July 30—Summer sale and luncheon, First Congregational church rooms. Sale at 10:00 a.m. Luncheon at 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., sponsored by the Women's Guild.

Aug. 3—Chicken barbecue, Seeley's Grove, Housatonic, 1:00 p.m. Sponsored by the men of the Housatonic Congregational church.

Aug. 7—Annual summer fair, Monterey Congregational church, Monterey library lawn, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., sponsored by the Monterey Ladies' Aid Society.

Aug. 16—Food sale, North Egremont Baptist church lawn, 9:30 a.m., sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society.

Aug. 23—Annual summer bazaar and card party, Walker Hall. Bazaar, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Card party at 2:00 p.m. Sponsored by the ladies of St. Peter's church.

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Cir. 2,498

JUL 17 1958

Festival Concerts Go Into High Gear

Entire Boston Symphony Will Be Heard Friday

First Week-end of Music Shed Concerts Will Be Devoted to Music of Brahms.—Saturday Program Will Honor Memory of Serge Koussevitzky, Founder of Music Center.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four week-ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday and Saturday evenings, July 18 and 19, at 8:30, and Sunday afternoon, July 20, at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by Hugh Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert. She has just returned from engagements in Europe. Mr. Gramm needs no introduction to Tanglewood audiences, having appeared a number of times at the festival. He will also be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at the final concert of the season on August 10, and this will mark his 35th appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first appearance on Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist, Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka", a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affinity.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 18 1958

Plan Third Concert Of Chamber Music Sunday, Tanglewood

The Department of Chamber Music at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, will present its third concert on Sunday at 10 o'clock in the Chamber Music Hall. The concert will be under the auspices of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

The program will include Beethoven's Quartet in C Major, Opus 59, No. 3, prepared under the direction of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The program also includes a modern work, the Quintet for Wind Instruments, Opus 24, No. 2, by Paul Hindemith, which has been prepared under the supervision of James Stagliano, principal horn of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Concluding the program will be Dohnany's Quintet for Piano and Strings in C minor, Opus 1. This piece has been prepared under the direction of William Kroll, leader of the Kroll Quartet and a member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty for many years.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 5,451

JUL 19 1958

AT TANGLEWOOD
LENOX, MASS.

Saturday, July 19

10:00 a.m., Shed, Open Rehearsal of Boston Symphony Orchestra.

8:30 p.m., Shed, Boston Symphony Orch. in memorial program to Serge Koussevitzky, "Brahms Requiem." Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, baritone Festival Chorus; Conductor Charles Munch.

Herald
CHICOPEE, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,662

JUL 10 1958

Lenox Music Shed Concerts To Open

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted ~~by its~~ Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Friday and Saturday evenings, July 18 and 19 at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon, July 20 at 2:30.

The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphonic Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since last April.

Waterbury Republican
July 13

Berkshire Concerts Due This Week

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphny Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed. Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone.

News-Times (e)
DANBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 17,740

JUL 18 1958

Music Shed Concerts Begin This Weekend at Tanglewood

This weekend will mark the first appearance this season of the entire Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts will be held tonight at 8:30 with Dr. Charles Munch conducting. Concerts are also scheduled for Saturday night at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and will feature the music of Brahms. The featured number on tonight's program is the Brahms' Fourth Symphony.

Tomorrow night the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus will perform Brahms' "German Requiem" at a concert to be given in memory of the late Serge Koussevitzky. former music director of the orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Soloists will be Hilde Guedon. soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, Dr. Munch will conduct.

Leon Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 which will feature the concert on Sunday afternoon. Pierre Monteux, making his first guest appearance this season at Tanglewood, will conduct. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and will close it with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Second Thoughts On Music

Variety of Mozart Works Performed at Tanglewood

Three Symphonies, Two Piano Concertos, Mass in C, 'Eine Kleine Nachtmusik' On Programs; Beaux Arts Trio Heard in Chamber Music

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 19 — Tanglewood echoed to the music of Mozart during last week end and the master of Salzburg was well served by the musicians of the Boston Symphony Orcestra and conductor Dr. Charles Munch, along with conductor Hugh Ross and the Festival Chorus.

There was much to admire in the performances, notably the choice of works, the excellence of the performances and the charm of the proceedings. Among the high lights of the three concerts was the beautifully proportioned performance of the "Sinfonia Concertante" for violin and viola with Ruth Posselt, violinist, Joseph de Pasquale, violist, as the soloists. It was a thoroughly musical and finely detailed performance.

Then there was "A Musical Joke," that rare bit of ribbing which Mozart undertook for a single time. Re shall not soon forget that blazing performance of the violin cadenza by Richard Burgin. In this work Mozart went against all his beliefs ad the result is a piece of music as hilarious as any ever written. The audience was convulsed.

Two Concertos

Dr. Munch conducted one of the finest performances of "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" we have ever heard. It had a miraculous clarity and beauty of sound. Then there was a splendid performance of the "Serenate in B-fat major for 13 wind instruments" played by the virtuosi of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. What wonderful tonal textures were created!

There were two piano concertos, the first for two pianos with Lukas Foss and Seymour Lipkin the pianists. Both were admirable and the ensemble was well nigh flawless. The second work, Concerti in C-major for piano and orchestra served to bring Seymour Lipkin back again. This fine pianist was at his very best and that means we heard a deeply felt, musically and scholarly performance, admirably supported by Dr. Munch and the orchestra.

Dr. Munch was at his interpretive best in three Mozart symphonies, the Symphony in C minor, No. 36 (Linz), the Symphony in G minor, No. 40 and the Symphony in D major, No. 35 (Haffner). Fine performances, all of them.

Although Hugh Ross has had better chorus material in past years, he was able to provide some exciting performances. There was for example, the stunning performance of the "Kyrie in D minor," and a work of tremendous depth and strength. The "Mass in C major" ("Coronation") provided a hearing for one of the finest soprano voices we have heard here. Sarah Fleming, a former Tanglewood pupil, has progressed far in her art and her singing in the Mass was of superior quality.

Another fine singer was tenor Richard Gilley. The contralto and bass were heard only in ensembles but Doris Okerson and Lawrence Chelsi have fine voices and should be heard here again. The chorus sang with immense enthusiasm, projecting the spirit of the work admirably.

Chamber Music Concert

The second in the series of chamber music recitals provided another hearing of the Beaux Arts Trio, of New York. Its members are Manahem Pressler, pianist; Daniel Guilet, violinist, and Bernard Greenhouse, cellist. Having played together several seasons, the trio is now a well integrated group with a unity of feeling and style. The finest playing of the evening was heard during the performances of Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1 No. 1. It was a stimulating performance, well integrated and imaginative. Again, Mr. Pressler seemed the dominating figure, but less so than on other occasions when we have heard him.

Other works on the program were the Faure Trio in D minor and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, No. 2 Op. 66. The Mendelssohn went less well than the Faure or Beethoven. There was not the unity one expected or the balance needed for clear unfolding of the work. During the evening, Mr. Greenhouse was apparently unable to balance with the other players, although in solo passages his instrument sang beautifully.

Student Orchestra Concert

The Berkshire Center has a fine student orchestra this year and its second concert introduced three uncommonly talented student conductors. Claudio Abbado, who hails from Milan, conducted a well conceived performance of Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony. Most exciting was a performance of Webern's "Six Orchestral Pieces" conducted by Joseph Kreines. The music is exciting and young. Mr. Kreines knew just what he was doing all the time.

William Schuman's "New England Triptych" has its moments, but the composer has done better work. David Zinman did about all that could be done with it. The concert concluded with a stunning performance of the first symphony of Shostakovitch, conducted by Richard Burgin.

Din Cut for Phoning

Cambridge — A table model acoustical phone booth for use in noisy plants and offices is offered by a Cambridge manufacturer. It can cut noise levels 60 per cent, the firm says, and enable anyone to speak with privacy—in a normal tone regardless of surrounding din.

118 SHIPS LAID UP

Oslo—Norway's moth-ball fleet consists at present of 118 ships, totaling 515,731 gross tons.

BENNY GOODMAN IS GUEST TODAY AT FALLS VILLAGE

Pianist Ulanowsky Also With Berkshire Quartet

Falls Village, Conn., July 19—Benny Goodman, Clarinetist, and Paul Ulanowsky, pianist, will be the assisting artists with the Berkshire Quartet in the fourth concert of the 29th season of chamber music concerts at Music Mountain, here tomorrow at 4 p. m. The program will include the Quartet in G Major, Opus 77, No. 1 by Haydn; the "Rhapsody" for clarinet and piano by Debussy; and the Trio for piano, clarinet, and cello in A minor, Opus 114 by Brahms.

BENNY GOODMAN

While Goodman has realized wide acceptance as one of the foremost men of jazz, acclaim of critics for his appearances in classical music recital and concert marks him an eminent musician in the area for which his early music training prepared him.

The program for the fifth concert on Sunday, the 27th, will present Richard Dyer-Bennett, folk singer, and Natasha Magg, pianist, in a program which will include the Quartet in D Major, Opus 18, No. 3 by Beethoven; Scottish and Irish songs for voice, piano, violin and cello; the Quartet in E flat major, Opus 51, by Dvorak; and a group of songs sung by Dyer-Bennett to his guital accompaniment.

Members of the Berkshire Quartet are Urico Rossi, first violin; Albert Lazan, second violin; David Dawson, viola; and Fritz Magg, cello. Chamber music concerts will be presented by the Berkshire Quartet at Music Mountain every Sunday at 4 p. m. through Aug. 31.

RUSSIAN CONDUCTOR MAY APPEAR AT MET

New York, July 19—The good impression Kiril Kondrashin made in his American appearances with Van Cliburn has led to a return engagement for the Soviet conductor in America next season. The announcement telling of his return in October and November refers both to "opera and orchestral engagements," which may mean he will be the first citizen of the USSR to perform at the Metropolitan Opera.

According to expectations, Cliburn appeared during the American "National Days" at the Brussels Fair, with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra. However, the local public had an even earlier taste of American pianistic talent when Byron Janis of Pittsburgh won a hatful of good notices for his appearance.

Morton Gould Arranges For Stereophonic Medium

New York, July 19 — Morton Gould, not at all surprisingly, has gone on record as the first musician to create music specifically for the medium of stereophonic reproduction. Utilizing two string ensembles, one muted, the other "open," Gould has created a series of arrangements of music by Fritz Kreisler and Jerome Kern which, he believes, embodies values never possible without such electronic aid.

It's easy to agree with his thesis that the distinctions of sound that can be realized in the reproduction of such ensembles could never be done otherwise; the question is: What will it sound like? We'll know better when we hear RCA Victor's "Batons and Bows."

10 Top Records

Popular

"Purple People Eaters," Sheb Wooley. (M-G-M).

"All I Have to Do Is Dream," Everly Bros. (Cadence).

"Secretly," Jimmy Rodgers. (Roulette).

"Return to Me," Dean Martin. (Capitol).

"Patricia," Perez Prado. (RCA Victor).

Classical

Concerto (Tchaikovsky), Van Cliburn, piano (RCA Victor).

"Art of Galli Curci" (Camden).

"Medea," Maria Callas, etc. (Mercury).

"Partitas" (Bach, Glen Gould (Columbia).

"Andrea Chenier," R. Tebaldi-M. Del Monaco (London).

Team Up Today

PIERRE MONTEUX LEON FLEISHER

A venerable conductor and a young pianist will team up at Tanglewood this afternoon when Pierre Monteux leads the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as guest soloist. This will be Mr. Monteux' first appearance of the season in the Music Shed. Mr. Fleisher is a past winner of the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition.

Young American Pianists At Tanglewood This Week

Leon Fleisher to Perform Brahms' First Concerto Today, Byron Janis in Rachmaninoff's Third Saturday; Adele Addison Recital Wednesday

Today's concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, marks the close of the first week end of concerts by the full orchestra. It will be under the direction of Pierre Monteux and features Leon Fleisher as soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1. Other works on the program, which will begin at 2.30, include Brahms "Academic Festival" Overture and Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Guest Soloists

Featured soloists in the second week end of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra will be the pianist Byron Janis, performing Rachmaninoff's third piano concerto, Saturday and Zino Francescatti, who will perform the Tchaikovsky violin concerto Sunday afternoon, the 27th. The concert of Friday evening, at 8.30, will be conducted by Pierre Monteux, and the concerts of Saturday evening, at 8.30, and Sunday afternoon, the 27th, at 2.30, will be under the direction of Charles Munch.

Mr. Monteux will open his program Friday night with Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla." Following Tchaikovsky's fourth symphony the second half of the program, devoted to French music, will include the overture to Act III of Milhaud's "Les Eumenides," Debussy's "Nocturnes" (including "Nuages," "Fetes" and "Sirenes") and "La Valse" by Ravel. The choral part in "Sirenes" will be performed by the women of the Festival Chorus, prepared by Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

On Saturday Dr. Munch will conduct Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum," a work which was performed by the women of the Fes-Tanglewood last summer. Soloists will include Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus, prepared by Hugh Ross.

Tanglewood Debut

Byron Janis, young American pianist who will make his Tanglewood debut at this concert, has performed with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston on several previous occasions, including last season. He will be heard in the third piano concerto of Rachmaninoff, a work which he has recorded with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The concert will close with Debussy's "La Mer."

For the program next Sunday, the 27th, Dr. Munch will conduct Bartok's "Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta," the second suite from "Daphnis and Chloe' by Ravel and Tchaikovsky's violin concerto with the noted French violinist Zino Francescatti as soloist.

The orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning at 10 will be open to the public for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pension Fund. Admission is $1.

Addison Recital

Adele Addison, the popular young soprano, will be heard in a song recital Wednesday evening at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Miss Addison, a native of Springfield, has been heard frequently at Tanglewood both in Berkshire Festival concerts as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and in operas during her years as student in the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department.

As a former student of the school, Miss Addison is generously donating her services for this concert, which will benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund. She will be accompanied by James Payne at the piano and the program will include four songs by Alessandro Scarlatti, four songs by Schubert, the "Frauenliebe und Leben" of Robert Schumann, three songs by Paul Hindemith, Debussy's "Songs of Bilitis" and works by Sessions, Strilko, Copland and Ives.

WEEK'S PROGRAMS AT TANGLEWOOD

Programs for the week at Tanglewood are as follows:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 8:30

Chamber music—Adele Addison, soprano; James Payne, piano

"O pace del mio cor"
"Si, si, tornero con lingue d'odori"
"Lontananza crudele"
"Bramo che le ferite"
.... Scarlatti
"Lachen und weinen"
"Erlafsee"
"Suleika No. 1 and No. 2"
.... Schubert
"Frauenliebe und Leben" .... Schumann
"On Hearing the Last Rose of Summer"
"The Whistlin' Thief"
"La Belle Dame sans Merci"
.... Hindemith
"Chansons de Bilitis" .... Debussy
"On the Beach at Fontana" .... Sessions
"Pandora" .... Strilko
"Dirge in the Woods" .... Copland
"The See'r Walking" .... Ives

FRIDAY, JULY 25, 8:30

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed
Pierre Monteux, conductor
Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" ..
.... Glinka
Symphony No. 4 .... Tchaikovsky
Overture to "Les Eumenides" .. Milhaud
Three Nocturnes .... Debussy
"La Valse" .... Ravel

SATURDAY, JULY 26, 8:30

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed
Charles Munch, conductor
Canticum Sacrum .... Stravinsky (Soloists: Blake Stern, tenor; Donald Gramm, baritone)
Piano Concerto No. 3 .... Rachmaninoff
Soloist: Byron Janis)
La Mer .... Debussy

SUNDAY, JULY 27, 2:30

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Music Shed
Charles Munch, conductor
Music for Strings, Percussion & Celesta
.... Bartok
"Daphnis & Chloe" .... Ravel
Violin Concerto .... Tchaikovsky
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)

Students at Central School in Fort William, Ontario, Canada spent their hours after school collecting 35,000 coat hangers which they sold to cleaning firms for one cent each.

At Tanglewood Saturday

Byron Janis, pianist, plays the Piano Concerto No. 3 of Rachmaninoff with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra Saturday, July 26, at 8.30 in the Shed. Mr. Janis is the fourth of the young American pianists to be featured at Tanglewood this season. He has played with the major orchestras of this country, and has had widely acclaimed American and European tours.

STUDENT OPERA AT TANGLEWOOD TOMORROW NIGHT

'Romeo and Juliet', 'Don Pasquale' Music to Be Heard

The first of the Berkshire Music Center student events for Tanglewood's fourth week will be an evening of opera scenes tomorrow night at 8.30 in the Theater-Concert Hall. Members of the opera department, under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, will present excerpts from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" and Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" complete. The opera department is this season maintained through the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater and the program of opera is open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Another evening of opera scenes will be held on Monday, the 28th, with the production of Rossini's "Count Ory" on Aug. 4 and 5.

Student Orchestra

The weekly concert of the student orchestra will be held on Thursday at 8.30 p. m., in the Music Shed, and the student chamber music concert on Sunday at 10 a. m. in the Chamber Music Hall. A composer's forum will be held on Sunday evening at 8.30, also in the Chamber Music Hall.

Marc Blitzstein will speak on Friday afternoon, July 25, at 3.15 in the fourth seminar in contemporary music at the Chamber Music Hall. Blitzstein will speak on his own music and musical illustrations following his talk will include a complete one-act opera "Triple Sec," the first movement of his "Serenade for String Quartet," a piano sonata, songs from "The Cradle Will Rock" and "Regina," and three Offenbach songs, performed by Fromm Fellowship students and students from other Berkshire Music Center departments. Blitzstein himself will play and sing excerpts from "The Three Penny Opera" and "Juno."

The seminar, under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation, and the other student events of the week are open to Friends of the school. Further information may be obtained from the Friends office, Tanglewood.

FLEISHER BOOKED TWICE AT RAVINIA

New York, July 19 — Pianist Leon Fleisher will have the unusual honor of two appearances, under two different conductors, at this season's Ravinia Festival at the summer home of the Chicago Symphony on Lake Michigan's North Shore. On Saturday night, the 26th, he will play the B-flat minor concerto of Tchaikovsky with Igor Markevitch directing; on Tuesday, the 29th, he will soloist in the Rachmaninoff "Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini" with George Solti directing.

Fleisher will preface this double duty with a Tanglewood appearance tomorrow playing the D-minor concerto of Brahms. He will on this occasion resume an old association with Pierre Monteux, who was director of the San Francisco Symphony in 1943 when Fleisher made his debut as a teen-aged prodigy.

RECORD ROUNDUP

Classical

"Hi Fi Fiedler." Despite the suspicious title, the performances of Rossini's "William Tell" Overture, Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slav" and a suite from Rimsky-Korsakov's "Coq d'Or" are standard Boston Pops-Arthur Fiedler quality. This is RCA's first stero disk, but only a suggestion of the possibilities the technique contains. (RCA Victor.)

Suite Opus 14 (Bartok). George Solchany, a native of the composer's Hungary, shows a lively comprehension of Bartok's pianistic purpose in this work, also in his six "Rumanian Dances." Included are excerpts from "Mikrokosmos" and "For Children." (Angel.)

Symphonies Nos. 35 and 41 (Mozart). Josef Krips and the Israel Philharmonic form a congenial partnership in these works, though each, individually, has had superior treatment on records. (London.)

Serenade (Shapero). An attractive work for string ensemble by one of the most gifted among young American composers, with an especially attractive slow movement. Arthur Winograd leads the sympathetic performance. (M-G-M.)

Popular

"Seems Like Old Times." Unintentionally ironic, the title reminds us of the glowing smoothness of the late Tommy Dorsey's trombone, though the man responsible is a little-known, offheard musician named Sy Shaffer. His instrument is the one that ushers in the Arthur Godfrey Show, but he gives an excellent show of his own in a dozen fine tunes from "I'll Get By" to "How Deep Is the Ocean?" Superior sound. (Westminster.)

"Lady in Red." Helen Grayco's supple voice and fine style are aptly employed in the title tune and such other Latin-tinged numbers as "Frenesi," "Besame Mucho," "Perfidia" and "Temptation." Excellent orchestral backgrounds also. (Verve.)

"The Art of Chevalier." A compendium of not so recent material by the great chanteur, apparently put together to profit from his "Gigi" success. Aside from "A Las Vegas," the titles signify little, the French texts no contribution to understanding. (London.)

"Sorcery." Presumably these efforts of Sabu and a percussion ensemble are meant to suggest the "East," but the woods they suggest are closer to Beverly Hills than Burma. (Columbia.)

I. K.

(Copyright 1958, the Saturday Review)

In Tanglewood Song Recital Wednesday

Adele Addison, a native of Springfield and a former Berkshire Music Center pupil, will appear in a song recital in the fourth of the series of Wednesday evening Chamber Music Concerts at Tanglewood. The concert will be held in the Theater, July 23, at 8.30 p. m. Miss Addison has donated her services to the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center.

Tanglewood Topics

A meeting of old friends will take place at today's Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood when Leon Fleisher, pianist, will perform the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with the Boston Slmphony Orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux. Leon Fleisher made his official debut at the age of 15 with the San Francisco Orchestra under Mr. Monteux and a year later played his first concert with the New York Philharmonic, again with Monteux, who called him "the pianistic find of the century."

He made a special trip to Boston to appear in a concert given by the Boston Symphony in April, 1955, to celebrate Mr. Monteaux' 80th birthday. Fleisher, who was a pupil of Artur Schnabel, was the first American to win the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium International Music Competition, competing with 71 artists from 28 countries. Each year Fleisher plays a recital in Brussels, where he is regarded almost as an adopted son, and this summer was invited to appear at the Brussels World Fair.

* * *

Another reunion will take place at Tanglewood Friday when composer Marc Blitzstein arrives to give a lecture on his own music in the Seminar in Contemporary Music. He will meet with his nephews, Paul Voynow, who is one of this summer's Tanglewood guides. A popular feature of Blitzstein's lecture will be his own performance at the piano of songs from his "Three Penny Opera."

* * *

Adele Addison, the popular young soprano from Springfield, will be heard in a song recital at Tanglewood on Wednesday evening. Miss Addison, who was recently married to Norman Berger of New York, will also appear as soloist in the final concert of th festival season Aug. 10 in Beethoven's ninth symphony.

* * *

Seymour Lipkin, a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, has just been appointed one of the regular conductors of the New York City Opera Co. where he recently directed performances of Leonard Bernstein's opera "Trouble in Tahiti." It was Lipkin who conducted the opera in its 1951 Tanglewood performance. He has been a member of the Music Center faculty for 10 years, and prior to that was a student of conducting under Serge Koussevitsky.

* * *

Roger Toureau, chauffeur of Charles Munch, the music director of the Boston Symphony, has been spending his few free hours trout fishing in a private pond on the property Dr. Munch has rented near Tanglewood for the summer. Mme. Toreau, Dr. Munch's housekeeper, has been initiated into the mysteries of the American freezer, dishwasher and other household conveniences which she hopes Dr. Munch will wish to install in his winter home at Milton.

* * *

Ralph Berkowitz, pianist and dean of the Berkshire Music Center, is also a painter of considerable note. Some of his works are now on display in the glass exhibition room at Tanglewood's main gate. The sculpture, also on display, is by Elizabeth MacLean Smith of Boston.

* * *

The choral department of the Berkshre Music Center will be even busier than usual this week preparing for appearances at two Festival concerts Friday and Saturday, a special group from the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross for the very taxing choral part in Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum" for performance on the 26th, while Lorna Cooke DeVaron will coach a group of girls for the wordless choral part in Debussy's "Sirenes" to be conducted by Pierre Monteaux on Friday Alfred Nash Patterson, also of the choral faculty, will appear as organist in the "Canticum Sacrum."

VOCAL WINNER AT STOCKBRIDGE

New York, July 19—Clyde E. Bantz, 17-year-old Cumberland, Md., high school junior, is announced by the summer scholarships chairman of the National Federation of Music Clubs, as the winner of the Francis Rogers vocal scholarship, which entitles him to attend the six-week summer session at Indian Hill Workshop in Stockbridge, Mass.

Linda Jean Speck, 16-year-old violist of Raleigh, North Carolina, has been awarded the 1958 Hinda Honigman Scholarship of the Federation at Transylvania Music Camp, Brevard, N. C., replacing Doris Horst, 17-year-old clarinetist of Lancaster, Pa., who was originally chosen for the honor, but was unable to accept.

Bantz will be a senior at the Alleghany High School in his home city next year. He has taken vocal lessons for the past two years, and has sung with a number of choral organizations in Cumberland and nearby Maryland cities. He had the unusual distinction this spring of being offered three scholarships, a University of Maryland Scholarship; a scholarship at Inspiration Point, Eureka Springs, Ark., and the Francis Rogers Scholarship, which he accepted.

American Premiere

New York, July 19 — This seasons' Empire State Music Festival at Ellenville, N. Y., may not be a lengthy one, but it promises to leave a mark with the announcement of one ambitious project it will undertake. This will be the first performance in America of Ildebrando Pizzetti's setting of T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," which had a successful premiere in La Scala, Milan, last winter.

Performances are scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 14, and Sunday, Aug. 17. Cast and conductor will be announced shortly.

At Westfield Tonight

The Siwinski sisters, Jane, who plays the accordion, and Ann, who plays the guitar, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Siwinski of this city, will be heard in vocal and instrumental duets at Stanley Park, Westfield, tonight when the Pizzitola Plectro-Accordion Orchestra plays in the current Sunday evening series. The program will open at 6.30 p. m. and will be under the direction of Joseph F. Pizzitola.

AARON COPLAND WILL APPEAR IN OWN CONCERTO

Boston Pops Also Booked For Tanglewood-On-Parade, Aug. 7

Lenox, July 19—The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces the program for its gala concert at Tanglewood-on-Parade Thursday evening, Aug. 7, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood. The concert is the climax of the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school of music.

Copland Soloist

Three members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty will be heard in the first half of the program. Eleazar de Carvalho, head of the department of conducting, will direct a performance of Falla's "El Amor Brujo." Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony and member of the faculty of the orchestral department of the school, will conduct Aaron Copland's piano concerto with the composer appearing as soloist. Copland is chairman of the faculty and head of the department of composition at the school.

Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra will present a program of Pops favorites in the second half of the program. Fiedler's annual visit to Tanglewood is eagerly anticipated and this year his announced program will include Offenbach's "Gaite Parisienne," the "Dance of Wheat" and "Malambo" from "Estancia" by Ginastera, a selection from Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story," an arrangement of dance tunes by Richard Hayman entitled "Dancing Through the Years" and "76 Trombones" from "The Music Man" by Meredith Wilson. Fiedler will also present the traditional Pops encores.

Ticket holders for the evening concert are invited to attend performances by the various departments of the Berkshire Music Center, beginning at 6 p. m. Tickets for Tanglewood-on-Parade will be available at the Tanglewood box office after Monday.

George Eliot chose her name pseudonym to write her "Romola" and other great novels so that her feminine sex would not affect her literary reputation. Her name was really Mary Ann Evans.

NEW ZENITH
"Challenger"
EYEGLASS HEARING AID
AT $145.00

MODEL FOR MODEL,
YOU CAN'T BUY BETTER QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE AT ANY PRICE!

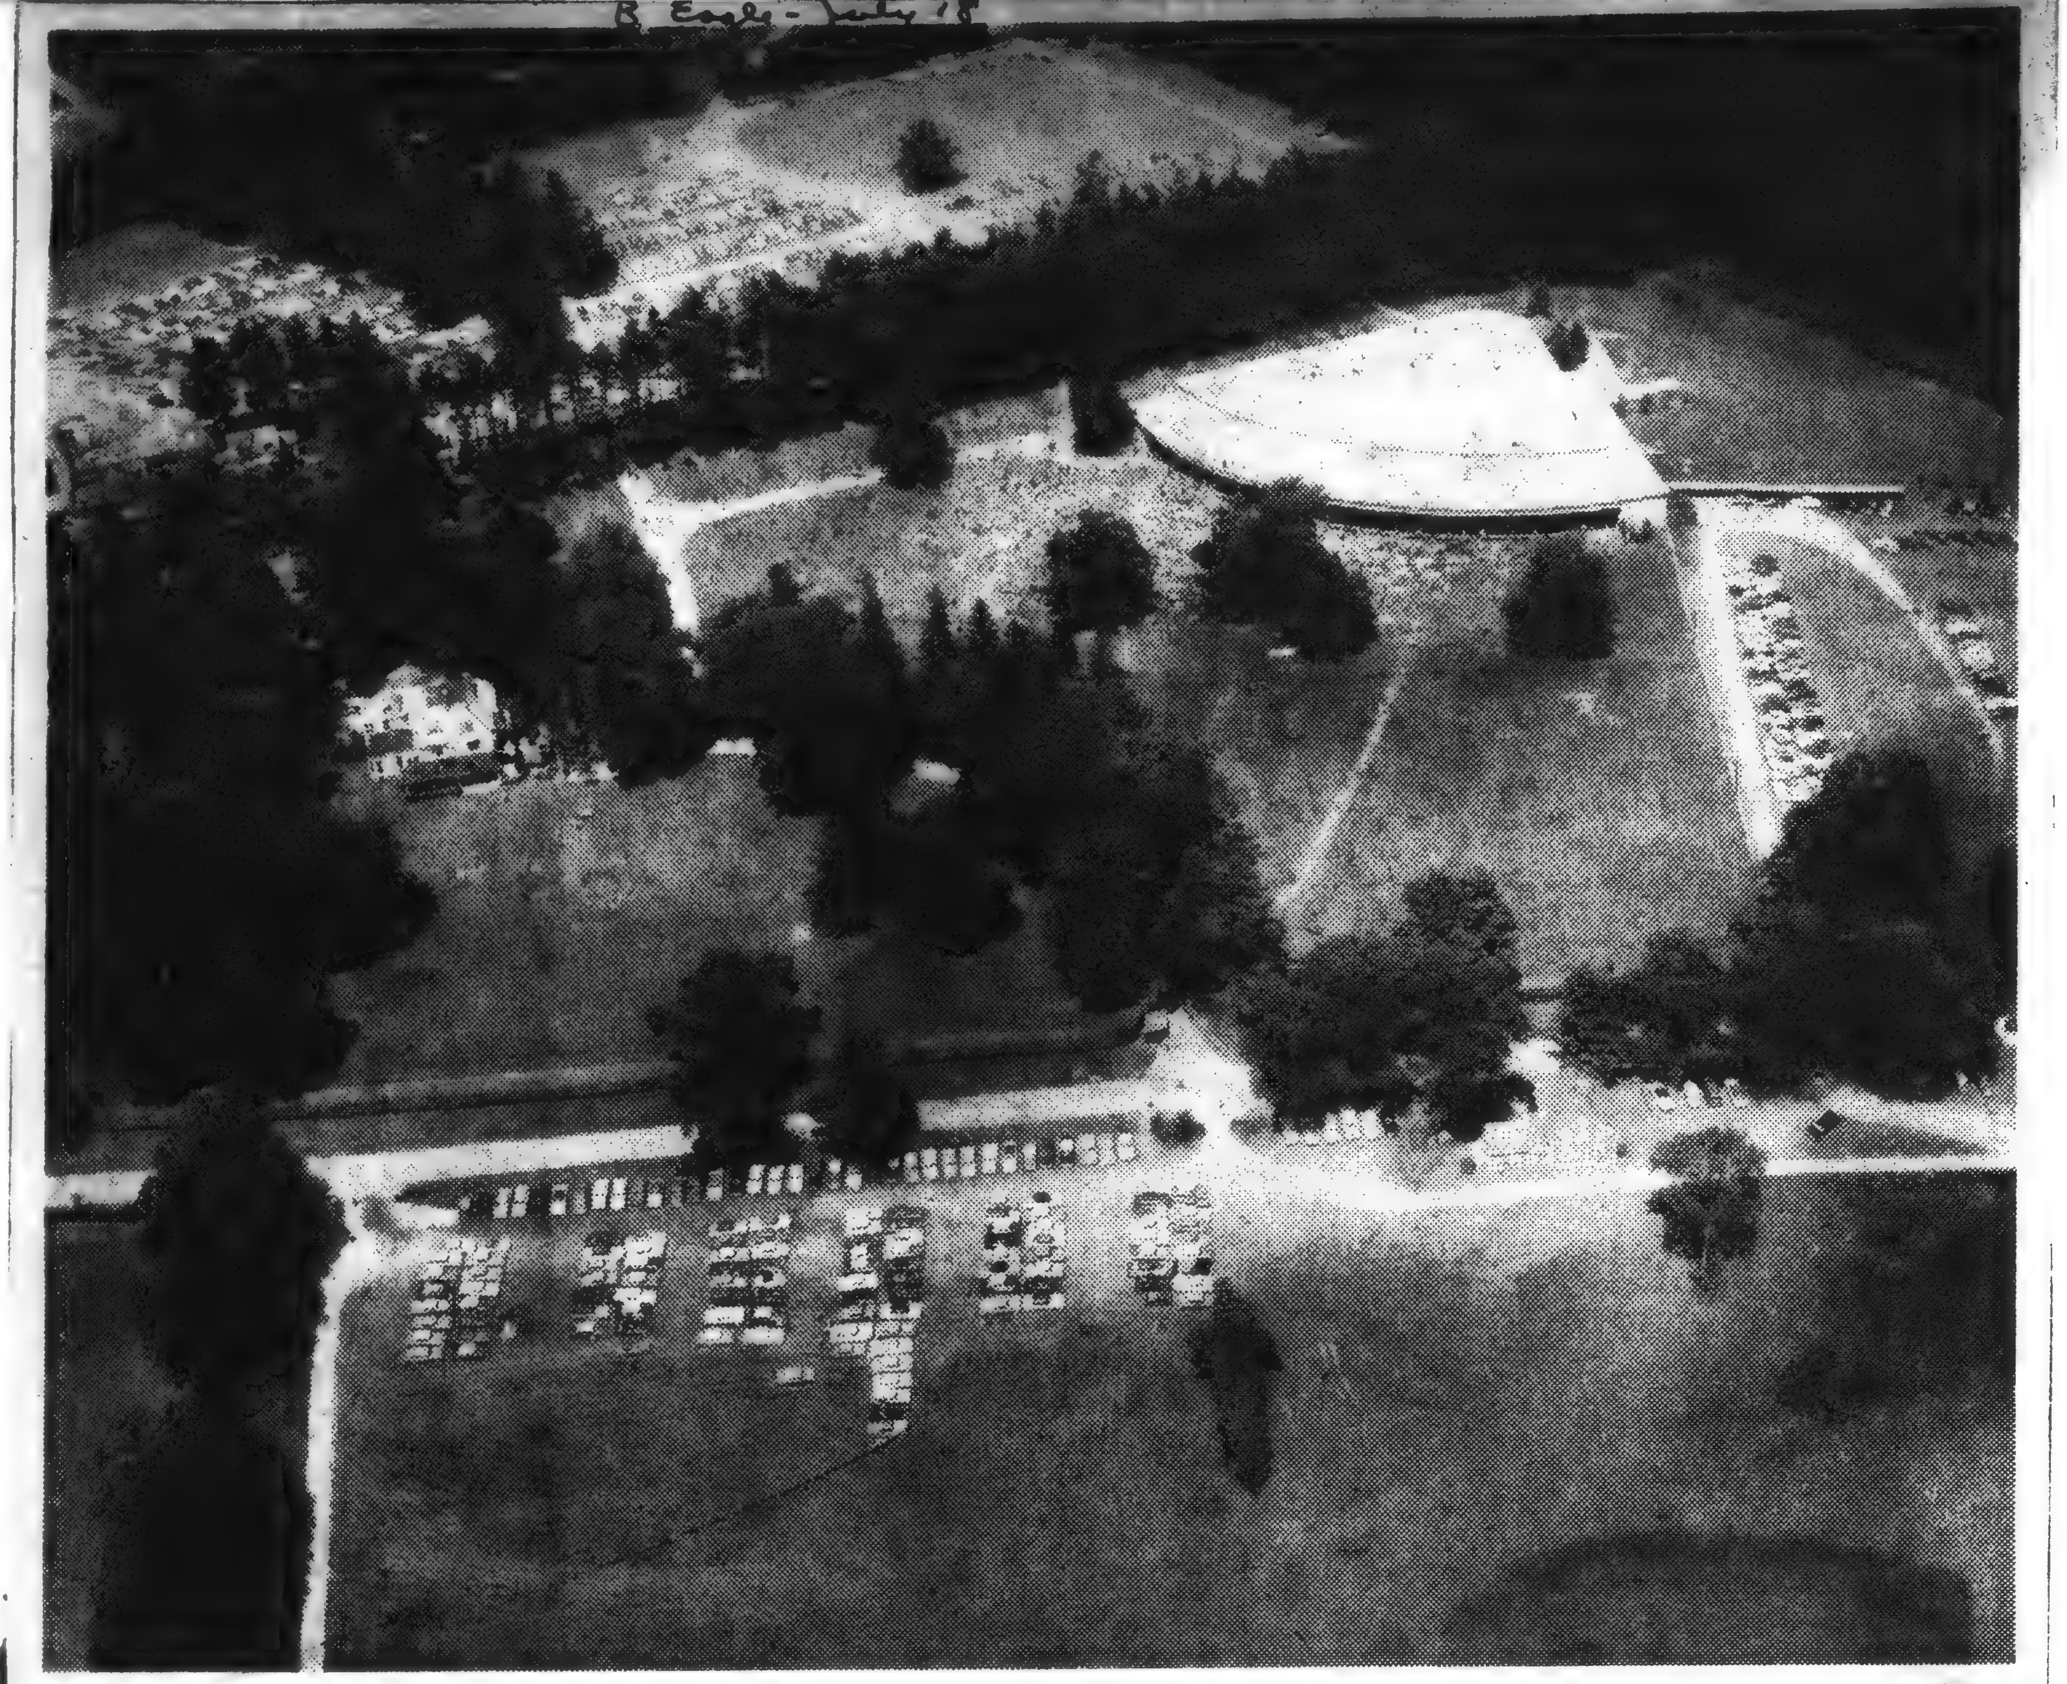
- 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee!
- 1-Year Warranty, proof of Quality!

*You purchase lenses and frame of your choice from your own Eyeglass Specialist.

FREE DEMONSTRATION
COME IN TODAY!

HEARING AID SALON
by Morrison Optician
298 WORTHINGTON ST.
ST 8-4212
Also at Morrison Optician.
243 Main St., Northampton
JU 4-4450

B. Eagle - July 18



Babbitt

MORE PARKING FACILITIES have been added at Tanglewood off of Hawthorne Street, behind the replica of Nathanial Hawthorne's "Little Red House." The enlarged lot in the foreground will provide easy access to the Festival for motorists coming from Stockbridge via Lake Mahkeenac, from Lenox via Court House Hill and Hawthorne Street and for those driving from Interlaken and West Stockbridge. The first of the major concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open tonight in the Music Shed at 8:30. Other concerts will be given tomorrow evening and Sunday afternoon.

News (e)
SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 5,083

JUL 18 1958

Where to Go This Weekend

Following is a compilation of noteworthy events being held within driving distance of Southbridge and surrounding communities:

Westover Air Force Base, Chicopee, will hold its annual Visitors Day Saturday from 9 a. m. to noon. Among aircrafts that will be on display is th Stratotanker which recently broke speed records across the Atlantic and other SAC long-range jet bombers. Open to the public.

* * * *

Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood, Lenox, will feature the Boston Symphony orchestra playing the works of Brahms, Saturday night at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

* * * *

Marblehead's Race Week opens Saturday. Sunday's program includes the Pleon, junior regatta for skippers and crews under 21 years of age.

* * * *

The Worcester orchestra presents a "Pops" Summer Concert Sunday evening at 8:30 p. m. at Institute Park. Should rain postpone the performance, it will be rescheduled for the Monday night.

* * * *

The Bay State Open Water Ski Invitation Tournament will be held at Memorial Beach in Webster Sunday at 11 a. m. Some of the top water skiers in the country will be on hand for the competition. No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken during the all day affair for the benefit of the Nipmuck Club and Webster Jaycees.

* * * *

Webster Sons of Italy will hold its annual picnic Sunday at the Webster Fish and Game club grounds with Italian-American food and entertainment.

* * * *

Selected paintings from the 1958 Boston Arts Festival will be on exhibition at the Worcester Arts Museum Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m.

* * * *

Tonight, the Westboro Speedway celebrates its 10th anniversary with a gigantic 45-minute display of fireworks in addition to the regular stock car show.

* * * *

Boston Herald-Traveler Water Show held on Lake Winnepesaukee in New Hampshire last month will be repeated on the Charles River in Boston Saturday afternoon. Spectators may see the show on the banks of the Charles between Harvard Bridge and Boston University Bridge.

* * * *

George Constantine of Southbridge will be among the drivers competing in the two-mile ova race at Thompson Speedway Sunday afternoon. More than 100 drivers, members of the Sports Ca Club of America, will be hittin

---

HILDE GUEDEN, soprano, will sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Musical Director, in the Brahms Requiem, July 19 at 8:30 in the Shed at Tanglewood. Miss Gueden, born in Vienna, is a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera as well as the Vienna State Opera and La Scala, Milan.

DONALD GRAMM, bass-baritone, appears with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Musical Director, in the performance of Brahms Requiem. This program, to be in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, is in the Shed at Tanglewood at 8:30, July 19. Mr. Gramm has sung with the New York City Opera Company and appeared as soloist with this and many other orchestras.

Schenectady Gazette - July 15

1st Weekend Shed Concert To Be Held at Tanglewood

The first of four weekends of Shed concerts with the full 105-member Boston Symphony playing will be presented this weekend at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

* * *

MUSIC OF BRAHMS will be featured and Charles Munch will direct the concerts of Friday and Saturday evenings with Pierre Monteux conducting the Sunday afternoon program. Evening programs are at 8:30 o'clock and afternoon programs at 2:30 o'clock.

The Friday evening program will include the Brahms "Serenade number 1, in D major, opus 11" for chamber orchestra; Aaron Copland's "Orchestra Variations" and the Brahms "Fourth Symphony."

The Saturday evening program will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood and director for 25 years of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The program will feature Brahms' "A German Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, as soloists. Hugh Ross has prepared the chorus.

* * *

THE SUNDAY afternoon program will include the Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," the Brahms' "Piano Concerto number 1" with Leon Fleisher as soloist and will close with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

Music of Flanders and Spain will be presented tomorrow evening by the New York Pro Musica group under the direction of Noah Greenberg. Works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Glecha will be included in the program.

CATSKILL, N. Y.
Examiner Recorder
Circ. W. 2,245

JUL 10 1958

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.
NEW YORKER
D. 27.999 S. 28.943

JUL 13 1958

Full Orchestra To Play at Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood Lenox, Mass., Friday and Saturday nights. The programs are set for 8:30 o'clock and on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock.

More than 100 musicians will appear in the orchestra and the concerts will feature the music of Brahms. For the opening concert Friday night, the program will include "Serenade No. 1, in D Major, Op. 11 for Chamber Orchestra," after which Aaron Copland's "Orchestra Variations" will be heard, and the "Fourth Symphony," Brahms will be the final number. Saturday night the concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

Post
WALLINGFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,408

JUL 10 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concerts Feature Brahms' Music

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18—19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka".

KINGSTON, N. Y.
PRESS

JUL 10 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 13 1958

Seymour Lipkin Soloist In Piano Concerto Today

Last of Mozart Concert Series at Tanglewood; Full Boston Symphony in First Music Shed Program Friday, Hilde Gueden Soloist Saturday

Today's Berkshire Festival concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, marks the close of the series of Bach-Mozart concerts by a small orchestra of Boston Symphony players. The concert will include Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 (Soloist: Seymour Lipkin) conducted by Charles Munch. The second half of the program, consisting of choral works by Mozart, will be conducted by Hugh Ross and will include the Kyrie in D minor, K. 341, the Graduale, K. 273 and the Coronation Mass in C major, K. 317.

Full Orchestra to Play

Friday night the full Boston Symphony Orchestra will assemble under Dr. Munch to open the series of four week ends of concerts in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Seventy orchestra members will come to Tanglewood from Boston, where they have been appearing in the 30th season of Esplanade concerts under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the Bach-Mozart series.

The week end concerts on Friday and Saturday enenigs at 8.30 conducted by Dr. Munch and Sunday afternoon, July 20, at 2.30 under the direction of Pierre Monteux will feature music of Brahms. For the Friday concert Dr. Munch will present the Brahms "Serenade" No. 1 in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, Aaron Copland's "Orchestral Variations" and Brahms' fourth symphony.

The concert on Saturday evening to be presented as a memorial to Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orch. and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, will be devoted to a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, and the Festival Chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron.

Tanglewood Debut

Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first Tanglewood appearance at this concert. Mr. Gramm needs no introduction to Tanglewood audiences, having been a soloist in a number of Festival performances. The final concert of the present season, Beethoven's ninth symphony on Aug. 10, will mark Mr. Gramm's 35th appearance as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Berkshire Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, the 20th. He will open his program with Brahms' "Academic Festival" Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka", a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affinity. Leon Fleisher was a pupil of Artur Schnabel and makes his first visit to Tanglewood for this concert.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal on Saturday morning, the 19th, at 10 will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

Chamber Music

The third concert in the Wednesday evening chamber music series, on the 16th at at 8.30 in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall, will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists was founded in 1952 and has devoted itself to performance of music before the time of Bach.

The ensemble has been heard often in the Berkshire area, but this will be their first appearance at Tanglewood. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Glecha.

The week will open tomorrow with the special concert of contemporary chamber music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Student Events

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday at 8.30, the Student Orchestra in the Shed on Thursday at 8.30, the student chamber music concert at 10 on Sunday, the 20th, and the Composer's Forum at 8.30 the same day, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events.

The third lecture in Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3.15 p. m. on Friday. Milton Babbitt will speak and music by Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be held on Wednesday, at 3.15 p. m. by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory".

WEEK'S PROGRAMS AT TANGLEWOOD

Complete programs for the week at Tanglewood are as follows.

Wednesday, July 16, 8.30—Chamber Music, New York Pro Musical Noah Greenberg, director; Music of Flanders and Spain, works by Isaac, Des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cavezon, Flecha.

Friday, July 18, 8.30—Music Shed Boston Symphony Orchestra Charles Munch Conducting.

"Serenade No. 1, in D, Op. 11," Brahms; "Variations for Orchestra," Copland; "Symphony No. 4," Brahms.

Saturday, July 19, 8.30—Music Shed Boston Symphony Orchestra Koussevitsky Memorial Concert, Charles Munch, conducting.

"A German Requiem," Brahms; Soloists: Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, baritone; Festival chorus prepared by Hugh Ross.

Sunday, July 20, 2.30 p. m.—Music Shed Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting.

"Academic Festival Overture," "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor," Brahms; "Petrouchka," Stravinsky.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 18 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concerts Open Tonight

Lenox, July 17—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its music director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra Friday night at 8.30 at Tanglewood.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus II, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece. The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

---

[110]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729
JUL 12 1958

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under Noah Greenberg (far left), will give a concert of pre-18th-century music at Tanglewood in the Berkshires of Massachusetts on July 16.

NEWTOWN BEE 7/11

Brahms Is Featured At Music Festival

Shed Concerts Open At Tanglewood Friday

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed concerts by the full orchestra, Friday, July 18, at 8:30 p.m. at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end, music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner, (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Friday's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert Saturday evening will also be under Dr Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Pierre Monteaux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

SAUGERTIES, N. Y.
POST
10 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concert

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charlds Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

Constantine Manos

Pierre Monteux will conduct the concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood on July 20, 25, Aug. 3 and 9.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 5,451

JUL 19 1958

AT TANGLEWOOD
LENOX, MASS.

Sunday, July 21
2:30 p.m., Shed, Boston Symphony Orch. in concert of Brahms music.

Wednesday, July 23
8:30 p.m., Theatre, Chamber Musix Concert. Featuring Margaret Harshaw, soprano.

Thursday, July 24
8:30 p.m., Shed, Berkshire Music Center Orchestra.

Friday, July 25
3:15 p.m., Chamber Music Hall, Seminar in Contemporary Music.
8:30 p.m., Shed, Boston Symphony Orch. performing selections by Glinka, Tchaikovsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel.

Saturday, July 26
10:00 a.m., Shed, Open rehearsal of Boston Symphony Orch.
8:30 p.m., Shed, Boston Symphony Orch. in selections of Stravinsky. Rachmaninoff (Byron Janis, pianist, soloist;) and Debus

---

Chamber Concert Set for Sunday

Sunday at 10 a.m. in the Chamber Music Hall the Department of Chamber Music will present its third chamber music concert of the Berkshire Music Center season. The concert will be under the auspices of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

The program includes the Quartet in C Major, Opus 59, No. 3, of Beethoven, prepared under the direction of Richard Burgin, concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. A modern work, the Quintet for Wind Instruments, Opus 24, No. 2, of Paul Hindemith, was prepared under the supervision of James Stagliano, principal horn of the Boston Symphony.

Concluding the program will be the Quintet for Piano and Strings in C Minor, Opus 1, by Dohnany. William Kroll, leader of the Kroll Quartet and a member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty for many years, has directed the players during the preparation of this piece.

[111]

UTICA, N. Y.
PRESS
Circ. D. 26,881

JUL 14 1958

News from the Music World

Berkshire Emphasis On Brahms

The first of four musical weekends of Berkshire Music Festival Concerts will open Friday evening at the Tanglewood grounds at Lenox, Mass. The full 105-member complement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will arrive at Lenox this week to open the four week series.

Friday and Saturday evening concerts beginning at 8:30, as well as the Sunday afternoon (2:30 p.m.) concert this coming weekend will feature works of Brahms.

For the opening concert Friday evening, Dr. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Araon Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center. Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem."

Soloists for requiem will will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is directed by High Ross. Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be making her first appearance at Tanglewood. She has just returned from a European concert tour. Gramm, a frequent performer at Tanglewood, will also be soloist in the performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, to be presented at the closing concert of the season on Aug. 10.

DONALD GRAMM

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance next Sunday afternoon. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist, Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stavinsky's "Petrouchka," a work for which he has a special affinity.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal on Saturday morning will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund. A nominal admission is charged.

Banner (e)
BENNINGTON, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 5,451

JUL 18 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concert Season Opens

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under ~~its Music Director~~, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full Orchestra tonight a 8:30 a Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Seventy Orchestre members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10.

Music of Brahms will be featured this weekend (July 18-19-20) next weekned Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final weekend Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahm's Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's variations for orchestra and Brahm's Fourth Symphony.

Mr. Copland, who is Chairman of the Faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece. The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood.

Soloist in Brahm's Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert.

His program will include Brahm's Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinski's ballet "Petrouchka."

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 183,539

JUL 13 1958

Boston Symphony Readies 1st of Tanglewood Concert Weekends

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, conducted by Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts of the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brams' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Guedon, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture.

The young American pianist Leon Fleisher will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," a work which he conducted with the Boston Symphony last season in Boston and on tour with great success, and for which he has a special affinity.

Mr. Fleisher, a pupil of Artur Schnabel, made his official orchestral debut under Mr. Monteux with the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. He won the Queen Elizabeth of Belgium International Music Competition in Brussels at the age of 24 and this year has been invited to return there to appear at the Brussels World's Fair.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg.

The week will open tomorrow with a special concert of contemporary chamber music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Forum Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Student performances of the week including a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday, July 15 at 8:30, the student orchestra in the Shed on Thursday, July 17 at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. Sunday, July 20, and the composer's forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall.

Millbrook Round Table - July 10

Shed Concerts Begin Next Fri. at Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Friday and Saturday evenings (July 18-19) at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon (July 20) at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D maj., Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahm's Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem". Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by Hugh Ross. Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert. Mr. Gramm needs no introduction to Tanglewood audiences having appeared a number of times at the Festival.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Straxinsky's "Petrouchka".

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica Society under the direction of Noah Greenberg. This will be their first appearance at Tanglewood.

B. Herald - July 18

Shed Opens Tonight at Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Cooncerts by the full Orchestra tonight at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will inclule Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms's Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is Chairman of the Faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, wilil be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hidle Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Pierre Monteux will make the first of four quest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 18 1958

Brahms Is Featured At Music Festival

Shed Concerts Open At Tanglewood Friday

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under ~~its Music Director~~, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed concerts by the full orchestra, Friday, July 18, at 8:30 p.m. at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end, music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner, (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Friday's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert Saturday evening will also be under Dr Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Pierre Monteaux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 26,550

JUL 17 1958

Shed Concerts at Tanglewood To Open

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its music director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full Orchestra Friday evening at 8:30 at Tanglewood in Lenox.

Seventy Orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, this Friday through Aug. 10.

This Friday's concert will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 1, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert Saturday evening will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearance conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms' Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky ballet, "Petrouchka."

[112]

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 12 1958

Boston Symphony Concerts At Lenox Start Friday

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts wil all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert on July 19 will be given in memory of Serge Kousesevitzky, for 25 years Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Syphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash Patterson and Lorna Cooke DeVaron. Miss Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, makes her first appearance at Tanglewood at this concert.

Pierre Monteux, who will share the direction of the Festival concerts with Dr. Munch, makes his first guest appearance on Sunday afternoon, July 20. He will open his program with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture. The young American pianist Leon Fleisher, will be soloist in Brahms Piano Concerto No. 1 and Mr. Monteux will close the program with Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra rehearsal of Saturday morning, July 19, will be open to the public for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The third concert in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music Series on July 16 at 8:30 in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert Hall will feature music of Flanders and Spain by the New York Pro Musica under the direction of Noah Greenberg. Their program will include works by Isaac, Des Pres, Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cabezon and Glecna.

The week will open on Monday, July 14, with the special concert of contemporary chamber music by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest artists under the auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation. The public is invited to attend this concert at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Student performances of the week include a concert of the Tanglewood Choir on Tuesday, July 15 at 8:30, the student orchestra in the Shed on Thursday, July 17 at 8:30, the student chamber music concert at 10 a.m. on Sunday, July 20 and the Composer's Forum at 8:30 on Sunday, both held in the Chamber Music Hall. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend all events. The third lecture in Seminar on Contemporary Music will be held at 3:15 on Friday, July 18. Milton Babbitt will speak and music of Mr. Babbitt and Elliott Carter will be performed. Another lecture will be held on Wednesday, July 16 at 3:15, by David Kraehenbuehl of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. His topic will be "The Uses of Music Theory."

Jackson Hts., N.Y.
Flushing, N.Y.
June 26, 1958

Jackson Hts., N.Y.
Fresh Meadows
Townsman
June 26, 1958

Jackson Hts., N.Y.
Queens Observer
June 26, 1958

Jackson Heights, N. Y.
RECORD
Circ. W. 9,000

JUN 26 1958

Brooklyn Academy of Music to Sponsor 'Sunday at Tanglewood'

The Brooklyn Academy of Music will sponsor its second annual "Sunday at Tanglewood," an all-day musical excursion to the world-famed Berkshire Festival on Sunday, July 20. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform a Brahms-Stravinsky program, to be conducted by Pierre Monteux and with Leon Fleisher, brilliant young American pianist, as soloisto.

The venerable Monteux, now in his eighties and more active than at any time in his long carees, has selected a program of musical interest and significance. He will open the concert with Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, followed by Brahms' Concerto for piano and orchestra in D minor with Fleisher, first American to win the important Queen Elisabeth International Music Competition, as soloist. Following the intermission, Monteux will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in his definitive interpretation of Igor Stravinsky's ballet, "Petrouchka," which Manteux directed in its history-making world premiere at Paris in 1911 and which has since become one of the great modern classics.

The Academy's special "Sunday at Tanglewood" excursion costs only ten dollars ($10) and includes round trip fare on the New Haven Railroad, a picnic lunch on the Tanglewood grounds, and admission to the grass lawn around the Music Shed where the concert is performed. Should the concert-goer wish to obtain a seat, he may apply two dollars of the $10 package price toward reserved locations at $2.50, $3.00, $4.00 and $5.50. The Academy will arrange for purchase of the reserved seats as a free service to the excursionists.

The Academy "Sunday at Tanglewood" special excursion leaves Grand Central Terminal Sunday, July 20 at 8:20 A.M. (DST), returning at 10:12 P.M. Reservations may be made through the Brooklyn Academy of Music, 30 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn 17, N.Y. (STerling 3-6000). Due to the limited capacity, reservation lists must be closed on Wednesday, July 16. Orders for reserved seats must be filed two days earlier, on July 14.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUL 14 1958

MUSIC OF BRAHMS IN TANGLEWOOD SHED

Lenox, July 14—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms. Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fieldler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

Dr. Munch will meet with his entire Orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday, July 18, Dr. Munch will conduct the Orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

News (e)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Democratic
Circ. 95,535

JUL 18 1958

Shed Concerts Open Tonight

Lenox, July 18—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its music director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra tonight at 8.30 at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10th. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood.

Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 281,019

JUL 14 1958

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Lenox Shed Concerts Open Friday

The full complement of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be on hand Friday for the first time this season to open four weeks of concert-giving in the 6,000-seat Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Though the Berkshire Festival has been operating for two weeks, only a chamber orchestra from the Boston Symphony has officiated for the three all-Bach and three all-Mozart programs.

While the music of Brahms will be featured at each of the coming three events, Aaron Copland's "Variations for Orchestra" will also be heard Friday night, while Sunday afternoon's concert includes Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Music director Charles Munch conducts Friday's program, which includes the Fourth Symphony and the Serenade No. 1 in D, Op. 11.

The "Requiem" will be the program Saturday night, with soprano Hilde Gueden and baritone Donald Gramm as soloists. The Festival Chorus has been prepared by Hugh Ross, but Munch will lead the concert.

Leon Fleisher, young American pianist, is soloist Sunday afternoon, playing the Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor. The program, which opens with the Academic Festival Overture, will be conducted by Pierre Monteux.

ADELE ADDISON

Addison to Sing July 23

Young Negro soprano Adele Addison, a former student at the Berkshire Music Center, will be heard in a song recital in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood Wednesday night, July 23. She will be accompanied by James Payne in a program that includes Schuman's "Frauenliebe und Leben" and Debussy's "Chansons de Bilitie."

Miss Addison, who replaces Margaret Harshaw, previously announced, will donate her services for the concert—a benefit for the Center's Tanglewood Revolving Fund.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

JUL 18 1958

WEEKLY CALENDAR

A schedule of places to go and things to do in The Bee's area

Plays

"Bus Stop," prize-winning comedy by William Inge, will be presented at the Sharon Playhouse, July 21 through 26.

"No Time For Sergeants" opened at the Starlight Theatre, Pawling, N.Y. Tuesday and will run through Sunday, July 20, to be followed on July 22 by "Inherit the Wind."

Next week's repertory schedule at the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre includes: July 22, Midsummer Night's Dream; July 23, matinee, Hamlet; evening, Winter's Tale; July 24, Dream; July 25, Winter's Take; July 26, matinee, Winter's Tale; evening, Hamlet; July 27, matinee, Dream. Playing this week end are: Friday, Winter's Tale; Saturday matinee, Dream; evening, Winter's Tale; Sunday, matinee, Winter's Tale.

"Damn Yankees" opens at the Rye Music Theatre, N.Y. on Tuesday, July 22, for a two-week engagement through August 3. The current show at Rye is "Show Boat," which will close on Sunday.

phony Orchestra, when students in the summer music workshop will perform.

Two short operas by Offenbach will be presented by the After Dinner Opera Company at the White Barn Theatre, Westport, Sunday evening, July 20. The operas are "RSVP" and "66."

The week end's program at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., includes: Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Shed, Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D, Opus 11; Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms Symphony No. 4; Saturday, in the shed, 8:30 p.m., Brahms Requiem; Charles Munch conducting both evenings; Sunday, at the shed at 2:30 p.m., Brahms Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, with Leon Fleisher as soloist; Stravinsky's Petrouchka; conducted by Pierre Monteux. Next Wednesday evening in the concert hall, Adele Addison, soprano, will be heard in a song recital.

Times
NEW MILFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,786

JUL 17 1958

Munch to Open Tanglewood Series

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra Friday at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Seventy orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 18 through August 10th. Music of Brahms will be featured this weekend, next weekend music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky, the third weekend Wagner, and the final weekend Beethoven.

[113]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566

JUL 17 1958

Bender

Leon Fleisher will be piano soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux conducting, at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 14 1958

Tanglewood Symphony

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its music director, Charles Munch, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The concerts will all feature the music of Brahms.

Some 70 members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will journey from Boston, where they have been appearing in the 30th season of free concerts on the Esplanade under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood for the concerts in the Music Shed.

Dr. Munch will meet with his entire orchestra for the first time since the close of the Boston Symphony's winter season last April.

For the opening concert on Friday, Dr. Munch will conduct the orchestra in Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D major, Op. 11 for chamber orchestra, followed by Aaron Copland's Orchestra Variations. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will close the program.

The Saturday evening concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Dr. Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Festival Chorus in a performance of Brahms' "A German Requiem." Soloists will be Hilde Gueden, soprano and Donald Gramm, baritone. The chorus is prepared by High Ross, with the assistance of Alfred Nash.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
STAR
Circ. D. 250,086 - S. 278,877

JUL 13 1958

Bullfight or Brahms? You Take Your Pick

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (Special)—Which do you prefer—bullfight or Brahms?

The people here report you can have your pick this week in the Berkshire Hills.

"Bullfight" is the offering at the Williamstown Theater. The Brahms comes more stately from the Boston Symphony Orchestra this Friday, Saturday and next Sunday at Tanglewood in Lenox. Dr. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct.

The week end program is the first in four major Tanglewood week ends. The annual Serge Koussevitzky memorial concert is set for next Saturday evening.

At the Berkshire Music Barn on Saturday afternoon the After Dinner Opera Company will perform Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti." And a week from today, Wilbur de Paris and his New Orleans Jazz Band will be a feature at Music Barn.

A specialty for the youngsters is "Rumplestiltskin," presented morning and afternoon Friday at the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield. This is the first of a summer series of children's plays presented by a New York group.

In addition to "Bullfight," the Berkshires' other straw hat circuit offering this week will be Deirdre Owens in "The Cocktail Party." This opens Tuesday at the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge.

In the field of dance, Ted Shawn will offer Geoffrey Holden and company. Ram Gopal and Sahomi Tachibana will be at Jacob's Pillow in Becket this week.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

JUL 13 1958

Full-Scale Berkshire Festival

The full-scale portion of the Berkshire Festival will begin next week-end with the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra playing under Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The week-end will feature the music of Brahms, and his A German Requiem will be performed Saturday night in memory of Serge Koussevitzky.

Programs of the week will be as follows:

Today at 2:30, Theater — Concert Hall. Charles Munch conducting: Mozart: "Haffner" Symphony; Piano Concerto in C major (K. 467), soloist: Seymour Lipkin. Hugh Ross conducting: Mozart: Kyrie (K. 341); Graduale (K. 273); "Coronation" Mass; soloists: Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley, Lawrence Chelsi.

Wednesday at 8:30, Theater—Concert Hall. Chamber music of Flanders and Spain, presented by the New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenberg, director.

Friday at 8:30, Music Shed. Charles Munch conducting. Brahms: Serenade No. 1 in D; Aaron Copland: Variations for Orchestra; Brahms: Fourth Symphony.

Saturday at 8:30, Music Shed. Charles Munch conducting. Koussevitzky Memorial Concert. Brahms: A German Requiem. Soloists: Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass-baritone. Berkshire Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross.

Sunday, July 20, at 2:30, Music Shed. Pierre Monteux conducting. Brahms: "Academic Festival" Overture; Piano Concerto No. 1, in D minor, soloist: Leon Fleisher; Stravinsky: "Petrouchka."

Courant (m)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 103,521

JUL 14 1958

Main Concerts Open On Friday At Tanglewood

The main concert series of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Nenox, Mass., opens this weekend when performances will be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The series will continue the following three weekends, closing Sunday August 10.

The initial group of concerts will be devoted mainly to music of Brahms. Friday, Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony, will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 1; Opus 11, Aaron Copland's Variation For Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony.

Saturday's performance will be a memorial program dedicated to the late Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony. Mr. Munch and the orchestra will give Brahms' Requiem. Soloists wil be Hilde Gueden, soprano, Donald Gramm, baritone. The Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross, will take part.

Sunday, Pierre Monteux, director of the San Francisco Symphony, will guest - conduct the Boston Symphony in Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," the Brahms' First Piano Concerto with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's score for the ballet "Petrouchka."

Earlier in the week, on Wednesday night, the New York Pro Musica Antiqua instrumentalists and singers will give a chamber concert of works from Flanders and Spain. Noah Greenberg will conduct.

All evening concerts will be at 8:30. The Sunday performance is at 2:30.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 18 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concerts Are to Open This Evening

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its music director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full orchestra tonight at 8.30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Join Colleagues

The 70 orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10th. Music of Brahms will be featured this weekend (July 18-19-20); next weekend music of Debussy, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third weekend Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final weekend Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Tonight's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahm's Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

Munch to Direct

The concert tomorrow evening will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus. Pierre Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

S. Union
July 14

Week's Concerts At Tanglewood

Lenox, July 13—Four concerts will be featured at Tanglewood this week. Wednesday, the music of Spain and Flanders will be presented while Friday, Saturday and Sunday will see the Boston Symphony Orchestra perform at the Berkshire Festival.

Wednesday, July 16, 8.30 p. m. Chamber Music New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenbert, Director.

Music of Flanders and Spain
Works by Isaac, Des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cavezon, Flecha.

Friday, July 18, 8.30 p. m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting.

Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D, Op. 11
Copland Variations for Orchestra
Brahms Symphony No. 4

Saturday, July 19, 8.30, Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, Charles Munch, conducting.

Brahms A German Requiem, soloists Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, baritone; Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross.

Sunday, July 20, 2.30 p. m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting.

Brahms, Academic Festival Overture
Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, soloist Leon Fleisher
Stravinsky Petrouchka

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443

JUL 17 1958

-:- AT TANGLEWOOD -:-

DONALD GRAMM

Mr. Gramm, bass-baritone, appears with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, musical director, in the performance of Brahms Requiem. This program, to be in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, is in the Shed at Tanglewood at 8:30 p. m., July 19. Mr Gramm has sung with the New York City Oper Company and appeared as soloist with this and many other orchestras.

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318

JUL 18 1958

Shed Concerts Start

Tonight at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with music director Charles Munch

Music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky will be featured next week. The third will be a Wagner weekend and the final weekend, Beethoven.

Tonight's concert will include Brahns' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Fourth Symphony. Mr. Copland, who is chairman of the faculty at Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center, will be present for the performance of his piece.

The concert tomorrow night also will be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Soloist in Brahms' Requiem will be Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, with the Festival Chorus.

conducting, will present the opening concert of the Shed Concerts' series by the full orchestra. Music of Brahms will be heard this weekend.

The 70 orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts have joined their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four weekends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons tonight through Aug. 10.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.
NEW YORKER
D. 27,999 S. 28,943

JUL 13 1958

Full Orchestra To Play at Tanglewood

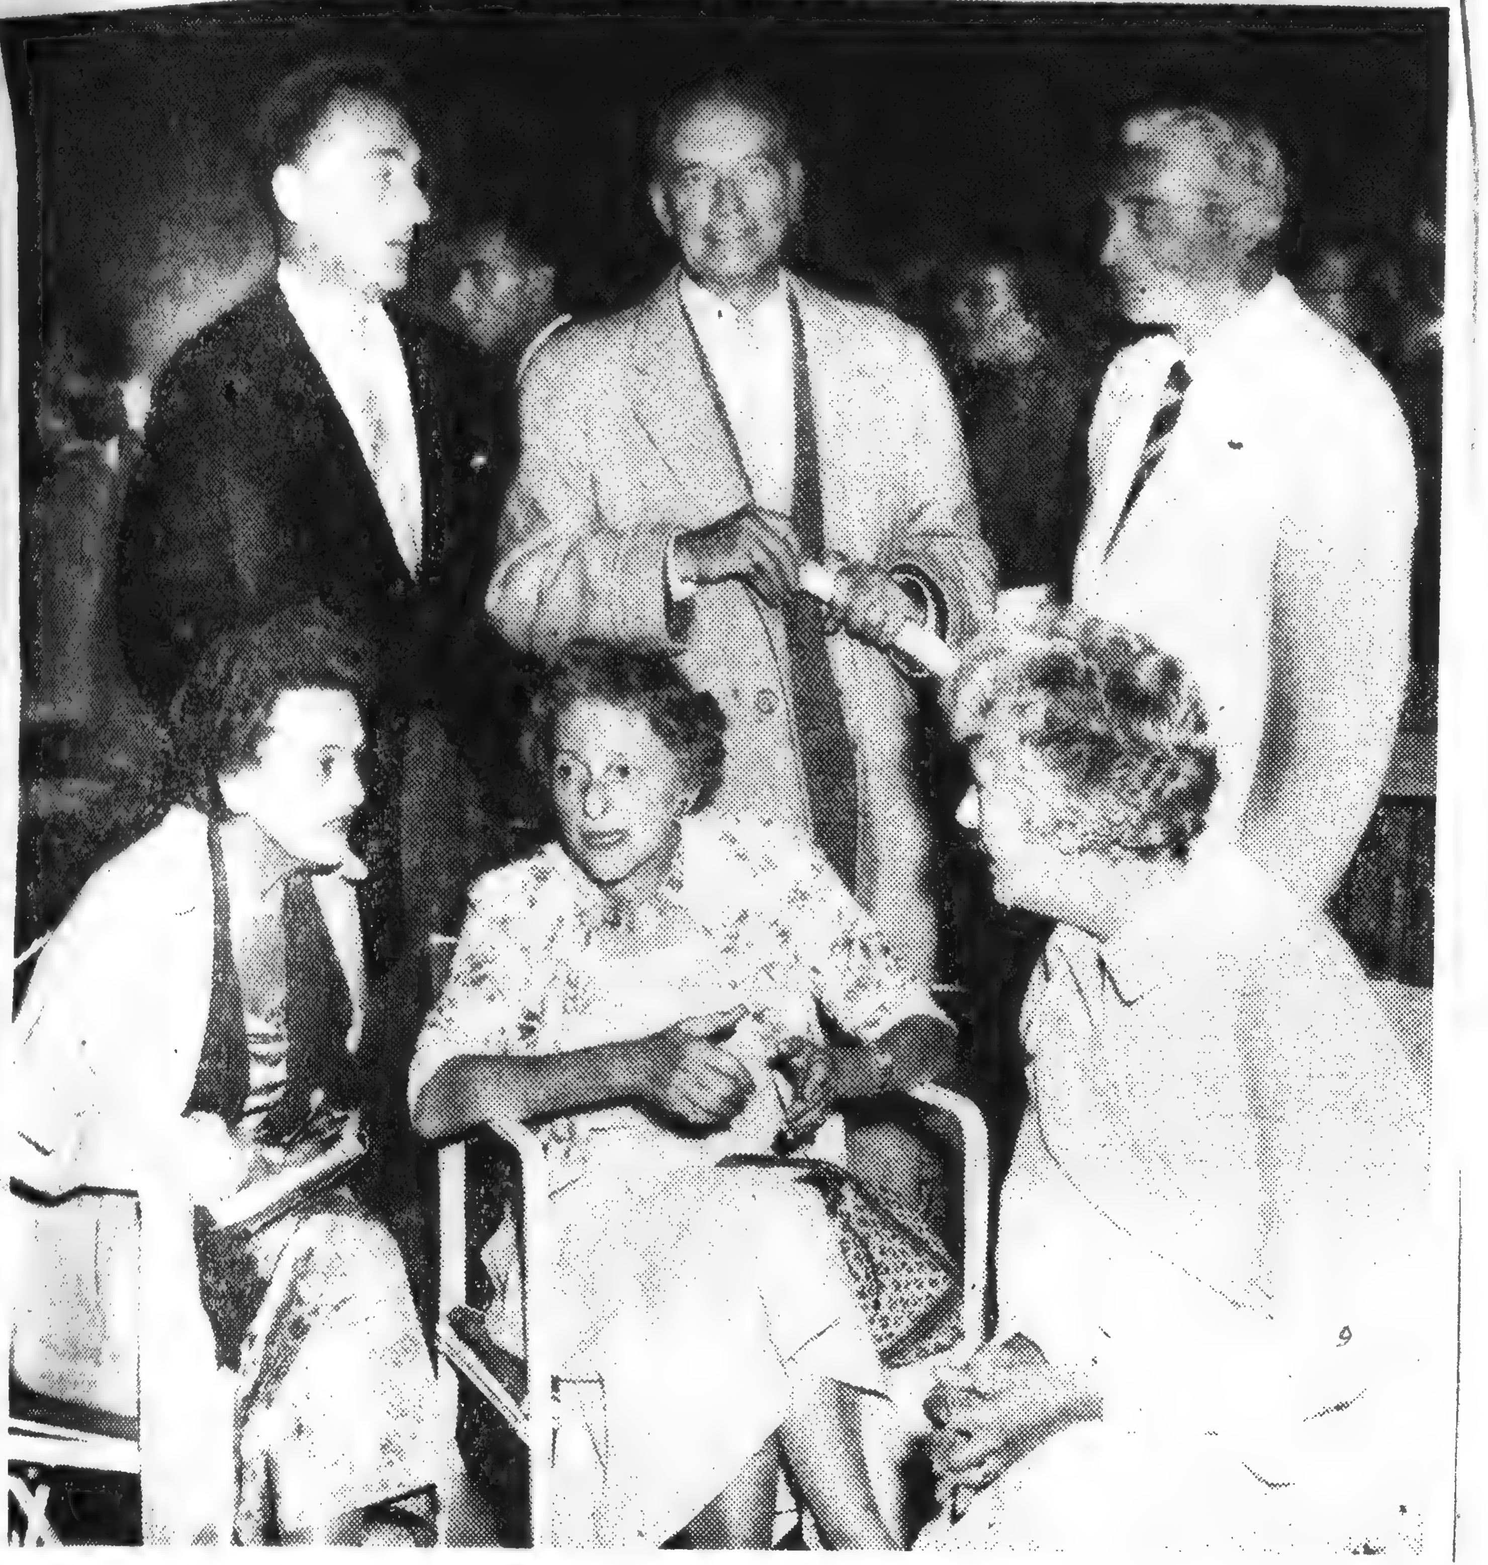
The Boston Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor, will present the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood Lenox, Mass., Friday and Saturday nights. The programs are set for 8:30 o'clock and on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock.

More than 100 musicians will appear in the orchestra and the concerts will feature the music of Brahms. For the opening concert Friday night, the program will include "Serenade No. 1, in D Major, Op. 11 for Chamber Orchestra," after which Aaron Copland's "Orchestra Variations" will be heard, and the "Fourth Symphony," Brahms will be the final number. Saturday night the concert will be given in memory of Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

[114]

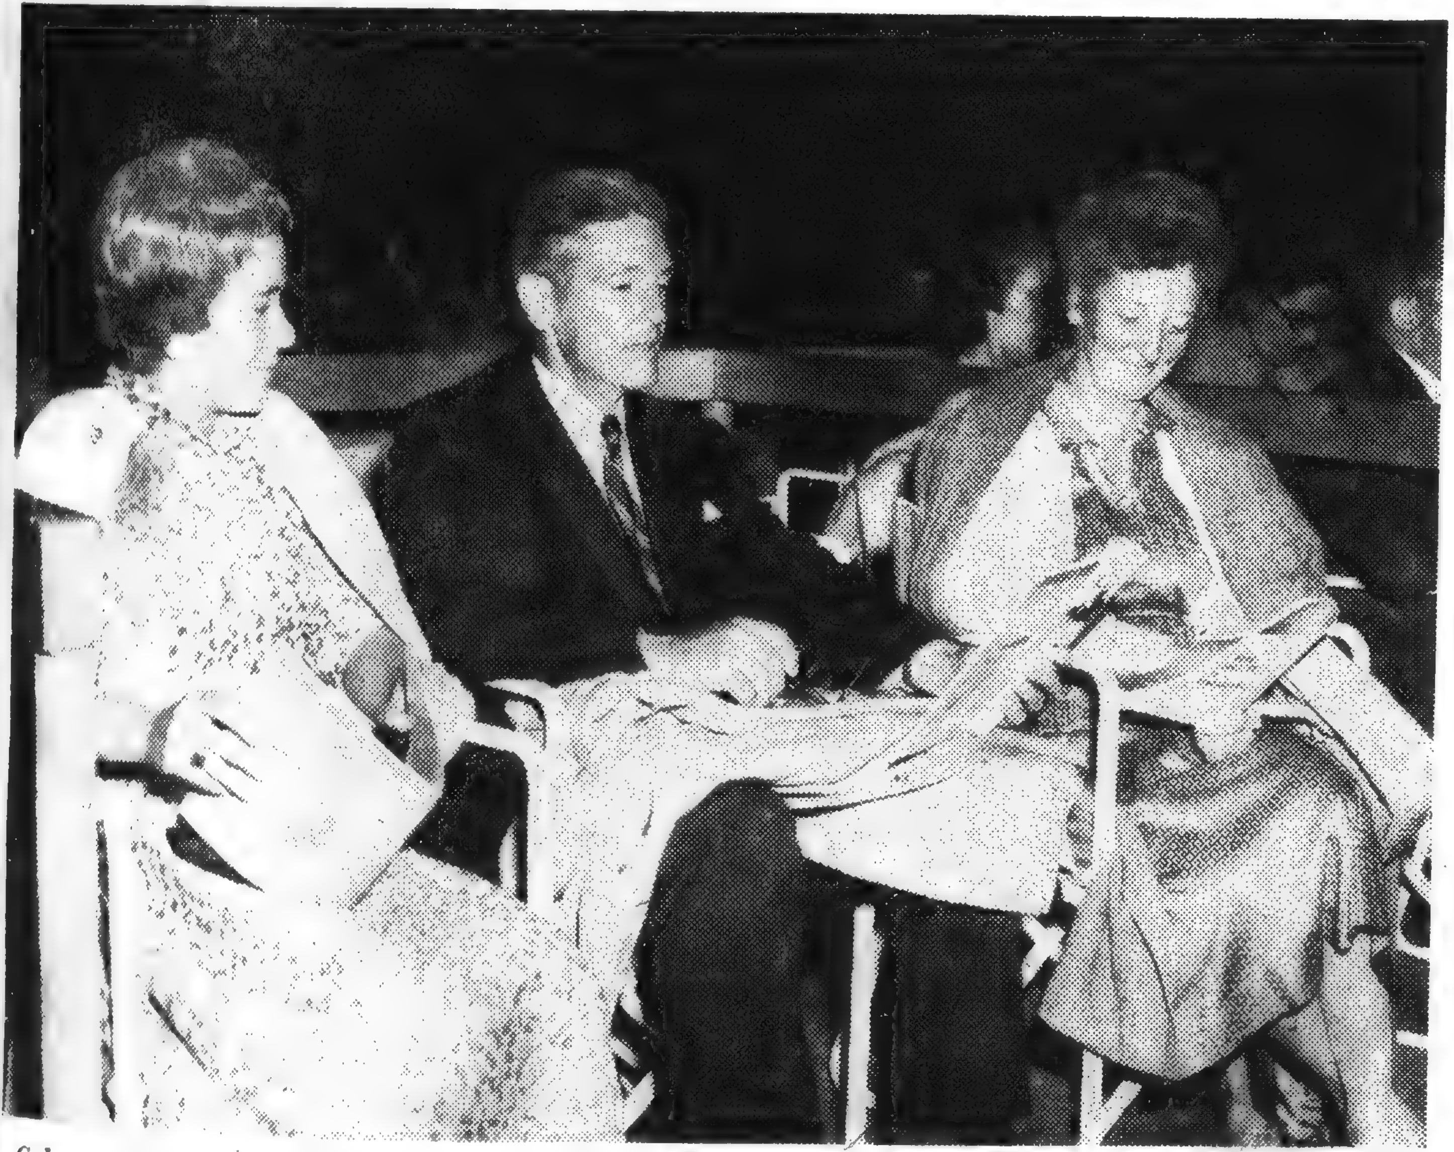
At Berkshire Festival Concerts This Weekend

B Eagle - July 21



Mitchell

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Lorant of Lenox in the Lorant box at Tanglewood. Seated are Actress Florence Eldridge, wife of stage star Frederic March, Mrs. Jack Leon of New Milford, Conn., and Mrs. Lorant. Standing are Mr. Lorant, Mr. March and Mr. Leon.



Mitchell

Col. and Mrs. H. George Wilde of High Lawn Farm, Lenox, with their daughter, Lila, at left. Miss Wilde, a 1958 Smith College graduate, will teach at Westover School next fall.

B Eagle - July 19

Koussevitzky Service in Lenox Tomorrow at 10

Rev. J. Herbert Owen

LENOX — The Rev. J. Herbert Owen, former pastor of the Congregational Church-on-the-Hill, now of Florida, will officiate tomorrow morning at 10 at the Church on the Hill for memorial services for the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who died in 1951.

Mr. Owen will replace the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Harry Trust, who was injured in a fall at his home this week.

Mr. Owen is now pastor of the First Congregational Church of Melbourne, Fla. He officiated at the wedding of Dr. Koussevitzky and his wife, Olga, in 1947 and assisted in the burial services for the late BSO conductor in 1951. He was pastor of the Lenox church from 1942 to 1952.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen are spending the summer in Pittsfield with Mr. and Mrs. Dana McNay of Burke Avenue.

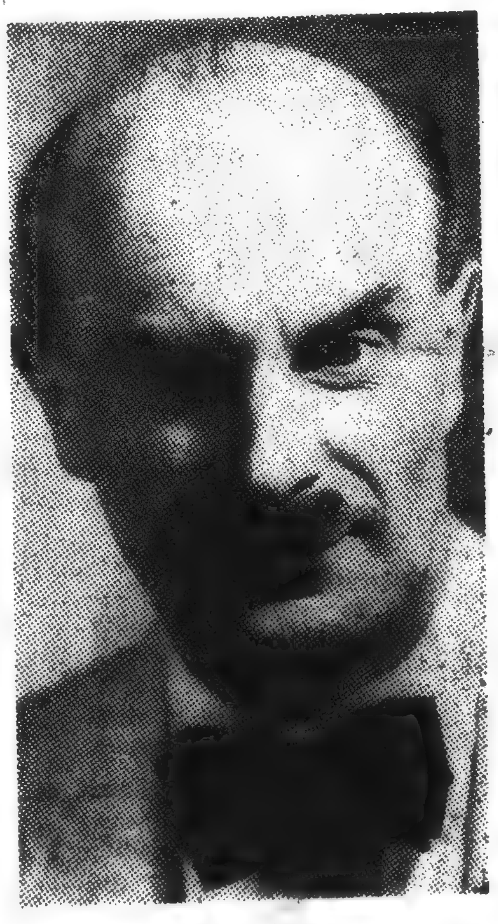
At tomorrow's annual memorial service the chorus from the Berkshire Music Center, under the direction of Hugh Ross, will sing and Alfred Nash Patterson, BSO organist, will preside at the organ.

Tonight's concert by the BSO in the Music Shed at Tanglewood will be presented in memory of Dr. Koussevitzky.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 16 1958

Koussevitzky Service Sunday At 10 in Lenox



Hugh Ross

LENOX — The annual memorial service for Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, will be held Sunday morning at 10 at the Church-on-the-Hill, Congregational.

The chorus from Tanglewood, under the direction of Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the Music Center, will sing Schubert's Psalm 92; "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place," from Brahms' Requiem, and Rameau's "Beati." Alfred Nash Patterson, organist with the Boston Symphony, will be at the organ.

Dr. Harry Trust, pastor of the Church-on-the-Hill, will conduct the memorial service.

Dr. Koussevitzky died June 4, 1951, a short time before the opening of the Berkshire Festival. Since that time memorial services have been held at the Church-on-the-Hill at about the time of the anniversary of his birthday, June 26.

Lenox

B. Eagle July 21

Tel. Eagle Office Lee 683-W or Lenox 881

Koussevitzky Service Fills Church on Hill

LENOX—The Church-on-the-Hill was filled yesterday for memorial services for Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who died in 1951.

Following the services, about 150 persons attended ceremonies at Dr. Koussevitzky's grave in the Cemetery-on-the-Hill. Mrs. Koussevitzky spoke briefly at the graveside ceremonies. She presented a birthday cake to members of the Tanglewood chorus who sang at the service.

The church service was conducted by the Rev. J. Herbert Owen, former pastor of the Church-on-the-Hill. He replaced the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Harry Trust, who was injured in a fall at his home last week. Mr. Owen is now pastor of the First Congregational Church of Melbourne, Fla.

Hugh Ross conducted the choir in three numbers in the church. They also sang Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" at the grave. Alfred Nash Patterson, BSO organist, played at the service.

Millbrook Round Table, July 17

Shed Concerts Open Friday At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under its Music Director, Charles Munch, will present the opening concert of the series of Shed Concerts by the full Orchestra Friday at 8:30 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

70 Orchestra members who have been playing at the Esplanade concerts in Boston join their 35 colleagues at Tanglewood for four week ends of concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, today through August 10th. Music of Brahms will be featured this week end (July 18-19-20); next week end music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky (July 25-26-27); the third week end Wagner (August 1-2-3); and the final week end Beethoven (August 8-9-10).

Friday's concert conducted by Charles Munch will include Brahms' Serenade No. 1 in D, Opus 11, for String Orchestra; Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahm's Fourth Symphony. The concert Saturday evening, a performance of Brahm's Requiem, will also be under Dr. Munch's direction and will be presented in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the school at Tanglewood. Piere Monteux will make the first of four guest appearances conducting Sunday afternoon's concert. His program will include Brahms Academic Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka".

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

JUL 14 1958

Week's Concerts At Tanglewood

Lenox, July 13—Four concerts will be featured at Tanglewood this week. Wednesday, the music of Spain and Flanders will be presented while Friday, Saturday and Sunday will see the Boston Symphony Orchestra perform at the Berkshire Festival.

Wednesday, July 16, 8:30 p. m. Chamber Music New York Pro Musica, Noah Greenbert, Director.

Music of Flanders and Spain
Works by Issac, Des Pres, Tielman Susato, Morales, Ortiz, Mudarra, Cavezon, Flecha.

Friday, July 18, 8.30 p. m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting.

Brahms Serenade No. 1, in D, Op. 11
Copland Variations for Orchestra
Brahms Symphony No. 4

Saturday, July 19, 8.30, Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, Charles Munch, conducting.

Brahms A German Requiem, soloists Hilde Gueden, soprano; Donald Gramm, baritone; Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross.

Sunday, July 20, 2.30 p. m., Music Shed, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conducting.

Brahms, Academic Festival Overture
Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, soloist Leon Fleisher
Stravinsky Petrouchka

Wilton Bulletin
WILTON, Conn.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 1,804

JUL 16 1958

HILDE GUEDEN, soprano, will sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles ~~Munch, musi-~~cal director, in the Brahms Requiem, July 19 at 8:30 in the Shed at Tanglewood. Miss Gueden, born in Vienna, is a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera as well as the Vienna State Opera and La Scala, Milan.

AT BERKSHIRE NIGHTS CONCERT, the first of the 1958 Friday night series, are Chester D. Hebb, Mrs. John D. Cox Jr., Mrs. Alexander A. D'Angelo Jr., Mrs. Hebb, Mr. Cox and Mr. D'Angelo, all of Pittsfield. The Berkshire Nights plan, offered to residents within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, entitles ticket holders to four Friday concerts at price of three. Last night marked opening of big festival concerts.

1958 COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Mrs. John G. W. Mahanna attends concert with Hilde Gueden, Metropolitan Opera soprano, who will make her Tanglewood debut tonight; Mrs. Zino Francescatti of Monterey and Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale, president of Berkshire Symphonic Festival, Inc. Standing are Lacy Hermann, Miss Gueden's husband, and noted violinist Zino Francescatti, soloist July 27.

Music Review B. Eagle - July 19

Brahms, New Copland Work Are Featured at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE FIRST Tanglewood concert of the season in which the entire Boston Symphony orchestra participated was played in the Shed last night under the direction of Charles Munch. The three concerts of this weekend are to be predominantly the music of Brahms. Last night there were his first and last orchestral works: the D major Serenade and the 4th Symphony "Orchestral Variations" of Aaron Copland was inserted as a division and a diversion.

Only four movements of the serenade were played, the adagio and the scherzo being omitted. This is pleasant and respectable music with many little devices popping up which Brahms used with greater maturity in some of his later orchestral and ensemble music writing. The short little minuet has charm by virtue of a graceful melody and its relative daintiness as an interlude. Brahms uses only clarinets and a bassoon at first and then substitutes plucked celli for the bassoon. The second minuet uses only thin strings, a restful contrast from the surrounding movements.

* * *

THE COPLANDS and the Brahms fourth are both up Munch's alley. The tolerances of the brass and percussion in the Copland which he permitted was less valid in the Brahms, and his apparent indifference to small details of balance robbed us of some of the symphony's most beautiful effects. Gericke, the first conductor of the Boston orchestra, is reported to have cautioned the brass "I want to see no red faces, gentlemen."

The initial theme of the symphony is one of extremely feminine pathos and the ascending complementary arpeggios which start in the celli can be so eloquent as they continue to cilmb in the violas. The second theme is so fervent a supplication when the celli are allowed to be heard and are not overpowered by the horn, playing in unison. And why was the interchange of pizzicatti in the strings with the reeds so distorted by accenting the fourth beat of these measures.

* * *

THE SECOND theme of the andante is in the manner of Beethoven of the last quartets. What an unforgettable experience it was to hear the Boston strings play this last night. We could have departed with this memory in our heads at this point and we were sorry the evening was not warmer so that Munch would have had to mop his brow and thus further delay breaking the spell with the earsplitting enusing allegro giocoso.

Who in the audience could not have been moved by the breadth of the song in the last movement, once the introductory bars were read. Brahms displays his genius in no other place to greater advantage than in this theme, in its register in the violins and in its rhythm. This was lofty music.

* * *

COPLAND'S "Orchestral Variations" is a stunning work. It is thickly orchestrated and its massive cacophonies accumulate and persist until by sheer power a listener is overwhelmed by the relentless stimulation. The theme is announced in the violas and the Boston violas stated it with their usual, but always exceptional, sonority. The theme then proceeds through many variations. The brass and percussion are used without reservation and often leap upward from rocky, barren heights to piercing crags of sound.

The theme itself is a simple sequence of four notes in which a step of a major third contracts concentrically. Copland, one of our most erudite composers, as well as one of our most inspired and venturesome, is basically a classicist. His acquaintance with Bach's Art of the Fugue, if not his study of it, could well have been a pattern or a point of departure when he wrote this piece originally for piano. The present version was a commission from the Louisville orchestra and the score shows its date of completion as Dec. 31, 1957.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 17 1958

Koussevitzky Memorial Sunday

LENOX — The annual memorial service for Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, will be held Sunday morning at 10 at the Church-on-the-Hill, Congregational.

The chorus from Tanglewood, under the direction of Hugh Ross, head of the choral department of the Music Center, will sing.

Alfred Nash Patterson, organist with the Boston Symphony, will be at the organ.

Dr. Harry Trust, pastor of the Church-on-the-Hill, will conduct the memorial service.

Dr. Koussevitzky died June 4, 1951, a short time before the opening of the Berkshire Festival. Since that time memorial services have been held at the Church-on-the-Hill at about the time of the anniversary of his birthday, June 26.

* * *

C1157

Mitchell

RENEWING ACQUAINTANCE at intermission are Mrs. Norman Simpson of Lee, Mrs. Edward H. Cumpston Jr. of Schenectady, formerly of Pittsfield, an unidentified young man, Mrs. Robert L. Gibson, Mr. Gibson and Mr. Cumpston. Mrs. Cumpston was chairman of the Berkshire Nights Committee last year when the plan was inaugurated at the suggestion of the Tanglewood Advisory Committee, county residents.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 26 1958

County Headlines

BERKSHIRE [illegible]

TO NO ONE'S surprise the Pittsfield Weather Station reported that last month was the coldest June in nearly a quarter of a century and that July (with about six inches of rainfall already) promises to be the wettest of recent record. . . , Despite the uncooperative weather, tourist business appeared to be running a bit ahead of last year. The first of the four major Tanglewood weekends, though hobbled by a rainy Saturday which discouraged lawn loungers, drew a total attendance of 23,776. . . . Crane & Company's annual contract to supply the U.S. Treasury with currency and savings bond paper came through on schedule, totaling $2,834,657 for 4,438,000 pounds of paper. Despite a reduction in the government's bond paper purchases (due to a change-over of Series E bonds to IBM cards) this year's contract calls for about 15 per cent more paper than last year's. . . . At Guilder Pond, near the summit of Mount Everett, Russell and Ezra Whitbeck found the body of Otis E. Wilson of West Stockbridge, 49-year-old father of 15 children, who had left his home five days earlier, ostensibly for kitchen employment at Camp Tanglewood in Mount Washington. Pending an autopsy, and in the absence of any indications of external injury, death was attributed to accidental drowning.

B. Eagle - July 18.

Tanglewood Baritone To Sing Here Sunday

GREAT BARRINGTON — Baritone Ken Hudson of the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, will be guest soloist at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

He will sing "The Lord Is My Light" by Allitsen at the 11 a.m. service. Mr. Hudson, who will be soloist at the church during the four remaining weeks of the Tanglewood season, will be accompanied by Harold E. Thompson, church pianist.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 21 1958

First Shed Concert Weekend Draws 17,400 to Tanglewood

The first weekend series of shed concerts in the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival attracted some 17,400 persons to Tanglewood Saturday evening and yesterday afternoon. The two programs were devoted mainly to the music of Johannes Brahms.

Kousseitzky Memorial

Saturday night's concert, devoted in its entirety to Brahms' "German Requiem," was presented in memory of the late Serge Koussevitzky, founder of the festival. Charles Munch conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Festival Chorus, and soloists were Hilda Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramn, bass.

Yesterday afternoon 83-year-old Pierre Monteux was on the podium for his first guest appearance of the season. The program opened with Brahm's "Academic Festival Overture." Leon Fleisher was soloist in Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor," and the final work was Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

Opera Tonight

Opera scenes commence in the theater-concert hall this evening under the direction of Boris Goldovsky. A complete "Don Pasquale" is slated and also excerpts from "Romeo and Juliet."

The festival continues this week with the usual Wednesday evening chamber music program in the theater concert hall and concerts by the full Boston Symphony Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon.

B. Eagle - July 19

Weather Report 'Favorable' For Concerts at Tanglewood

Crowd of 6,350 at First Berkshire Nights Series—Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm With Chorus Tonight—Monteux on Tomorrow

TANGLEWOOD — Although the weather was a bit on the chilly side last night for the opening of the major concerts in the Music Shed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the weatherman today made a "favorable" prediction for the rest of the weekend.

A crowd of 6,350 attended last night's opening concert with Dr. Munch conducting the first of four Friday evening Berkshire Nights performances by the BSO.

Sunny Tomorrow

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported this morning the weather will clear as the day wears on, but suggests those attending tonight's concert be prepared for a cool evening. Tomorrow the prediction is "sunny skies and pleasant temperatures."

Dr. Munch, who was given a standing ovation as he returned to the podium last night for the opening of the four weekend concerts, will return tonight at 8:30 to direct the Boston Symphony in a concert in memory of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, former conductor of the BSO and founder of the Berkshire Music Center here.

Soloists in the Brahms' "Requiem" will be Hilde Gueden, a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Donald Gramm, a baritone, who will be heard with the Festival chorus, trained by Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the school.

Pierre Monteux, former conductor of the Boston Symphony and guest conductor of the orchestra for several years, will make the first of four guest appearances at Tanglewood tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. His program will include Brahms Academix Festival Overture and Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor with Leon Fleisher as soloist, and Stravinsky's ballet "Petrouchka."

Leon Fleisher

Movie Actor Here

Among those attending the weekend concerts with Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Lorant of Lenox are the movie actor, Frederic March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Leon of New Milford, Conn.

The first evening of opera scenes to be presented by students of the Berkshire Music Center is scheduled for Monday at 8:30 in the theater concert hall. Members of the opera department, under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, will present excerpts from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" and Donizetti's "Don Pasquale," complete.

Opera Open to Friends

The opera department is this season maintained through the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater. The program of opera is open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, who may obtain membership tickets at the Friends office next to the main box office here.

Another evening of opera scenes will be held on Monday, July 28, and the production of Rossini's "Count Ory" on Aug. 4 and 5 should be requested from the Friends office.

Song Recital Wednesday

Wednesday evening at 8:30, Adele Addison, who has appeared frequently at Tanglewood as soprano soloist with the BSO and in opera performances during her years as a student at the Berkshire Music Center, will be heard in a song recital. She is donating her services for this concert, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund.

Miss Addison's regular accompanist, James Payne will be at the piano. Her program includes four songs by Alessandro Scarlatti, four songs by Schubert, the "Frauenliebe und Leben," of Robert Schumann, three songs by Paul Hindemith, Debussy's "Songs of Bilitis," and works by Sessions, Striklo, Copland and Ives.

Manos

REHEARSING this morning in the Music Shed at Tanglewood in preparation for tomorrow afternoon's concert by the BSO, is Pierre Monteux, who will be making the first of his four guest appearances at the Berkshire Festival this season. Featured on the program with him will be Leon Fleisher, a pupil of Arthur Schnabel, who made his official orchestral debut under Mr. Monteux with the San Francisco Symphony in 1943. He will also play at the World's Fair.

EAGLE July 21, 1958

Area Weekend Business Good Despite Unpleasant Saturday

Despite adverse weather which cut down the Tanglewood overflow crowd Saturday, Berkshire County tourist establishments enjoyed excellent business over the weekend, John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference, reported today.

Mr. Downing said a spot check throughout the county showed business equal to or better than the same weekend last year, which was one of the all-time highs.

Total attendance at the first of the four major Tanglewood weekends was 23,776 compared to 27,480 on the same weekend last year and 18,951 for the same weekend in 1956. The Tanglewood box office reported 6,350 cash customers Friday evening, 8,272 Saturday evening and 9,154 yesterday afternoon.

Over Capacity

The Tanglewood Saturday turnout was about 2,700 less than the same day last year, but was still well over the 6,000 seating capacity of the Shed. The rainy, cool weather apparently discouraged many of the lawn loungers.

Tanglewood's Lenox neighbors, Music Inn and Music Barn, are beating last year's figures, according to a report from Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Barber, owners.

Mrs. Barber said the 140-bed inn was fully booked in advance of the weekend. She said Music Inn business is about 20 per cent ahead of last year and attendance at the Music Barn programs is up 15 per cent.

In Lenox, the Kiwanis tourist information center reported that every registered room was rented by Saturday night. Traffic in Lenox was heavy with the usual post-concert snarls around the Patterson monument at Main and West Streets.

Makeshift Bedrooms

The Curtis Hotel in Lenox reported all rooms filled by Friday night. Downstairs parlors were used as extra bedrooms Saturday.

Actor Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, had dinner at the Curtis with Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Lorant of Lenox after Saturday evening's concert. Mr. and Mrs. March were weekend guests of the Lorants.

Personnel at the Southern Berkshire Chamber of Commerce information booth in Great Barrington reported crowds were not as heavy as the same weekend last year.

In Williamstown, the Board of Trade information booth reported that most motel and inn rooms were filled by early Saturday evening, and many guest houses also had a brisk business. One factor contributing to the crowd was "visiting weekend" at area camps, which brought many parents into the county.

Weather Blamed

M. Warren Quadland, president of the Williamstown Board of Trade, said the general unfavorable weather continues to hold down crowds, although business is "improving." He pointed out that Williamstown is affected only by the biggest Tanglewood crowds.

"Most people feel that business is improving, getting a little closer to what it should be, but it's still not up to last year's volume," Mr. Quadland said.

Following are a few of the reports from the Berkshire Hills Conference:

Wigwam Motel and Cabins, Mohawk Trail. Motel filled, cabins off a little, gift shop very busy yesterday. A good crowd of tourists out yesterday despite chilly 39-degree temperature in the morning.

Elwal Pines, Williamstown. Motel and restaurant. Packed solid over the weekend. Dining room business running about 10 per cent ahead of 1957.

The Springs, New Ashford. Business averaging 15 per cent ahead of last year.

Hotel Busy

Hotel Wendell-Sherwood, Pittsfield. Near capacity Friday night, sold out all 300 rooms Saturday. Near record crowd of 370 at Saturday night smorgasbord. Dining business 10 per cent ahead of last year.

Pittsfield Motel, West Housatonic Street, Pittsfield. Filled to capacity every night for past two weeks.

Holly-K Motel, Route 20, Pittsfield. Running 10 per cent ahead of last year.

Red Lion Inn, Stockbridge. Business about 10 per cent ahead of 1957. House count somewhat lower but guests are staying longer this year. Dining room business a good 20 per cent ahead of last year.

Lost Wilderness Dude Ranch, New Boston. About 10 per cent ahead of 1957.

Berkshire Inn, Great Barrington. Running about 85 per cent of capacity. Meal business is up about 30 per cent. Booked solid next weekend. Booked solid with convention business from Labor Day to Oct. 25, except for two days.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

JUL 19 1958

Tanglewood Shed Concerts Draw 6,350 for Opening

Under the direction of Dr. Charles Munch, the full Boston ~~Symphony Orchestra~~ last night presented the first of a series of week-end concerts to be held in the Shed at Tanglewood.

About 6,350 people were on hand to hear the orchestra play music by Johannes Brahms and Aaron Copland. The concert opened with "Serenade No. 1, in D Major" by Brahms. This was followed by Coplands "Orchestral Variations" and the program concluded with Brahms' "Fourth Symphony."

The second Shed concert tonight will feature Brahms' "Requiem" and will have Hilde Gueden as soprano and Donald Gramm as baritone along with the festival chorus, conducted by Charles Munch.

On Sunday afternoon Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture" and "Piano Concerto No. 1, in D Minor" will be presented, with soloist Leon Fleisher, followed by Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" conducted by Pierre Monteux.

7/16/58

Can't Be Forgotten

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

Last night [July 12] while listening to the discourse between your representative (as I think I may call him) and the representative of the New York Times, during the interval of the concert at Tanglewood, it being largely about the origin of the Tanglewood concerts, I expected to hear the name of Mrs. Rosamond Brooks, who had been Miss Rosamond Dixey of Lenox.

I was shocked that no reference, during the interval, was made to the lady who gave Tanglewood, the house and property which had been in her mother's family for generations, gave it all outright, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra for its summer festival and all-round work. If Mr. Koussevitzky were still alive I am sure he would regret this omission as, no doubt, do many others.

Mr. Koussevitzky knew also how much this same lady did to further the cause of young or unrecognized musicians. Her interest in music never flagged, and her help when needed never failed. I think it fair to say that Rosamond Dixey Brooks held a great place in the development of the musical life of this country. Her name should not be overlooked. It cannot be forgotten.

(Mrs.) GEORGETTE WINTHROP.
74 Irving Pl.,
New York 3, N.Y.

---

[116]

Reformer &
Vermont Phoenix (e)
BRATTLEBORO, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 7,268

JUL 14 1958

Ten Russians Begin Visit

Spending First Day at Putney

047

Ten youthful Russians, some of the very first Soviet citizens to visit America as tourists since the Bolshevik Revolution, began their tour of the Brattleboro area this morning with a visit to the summer work camp at the Putney School.

The party of eight men and two women strolled over the school's extensive lawns and walks, took in the broad mountain scenery, the barns and pastures where the students did their farm chores.

They surrounded Larry Titus, farm manager for the Putney School, to ask about milk productin, pasturage and feeding. Inside the barn pretty Valentina Shvedkova, a 28-year-old postgraduate in American economics, timidly fed a baby calf from a suckling pail. Marina Zhuravleva, a teacher, was curious about school costs and curriculum in America, and offered some statistics about Soviet education. The Russian party, with cameras and dressed in casual clothes, then went to milk-lunch with the teen-age campers, chatted with them and presented their greetings from the youth of the Soviet Union.

The Reformer was barred from further coverage of the Russian visit under terms of a U. S.-Soviet agreement restricting press contact with Russian groups traveling in America and U. S. students touring the Soviet Union.

This afternoon the Russian group, headed by Evgenni Bugrov, 32, president of the Student Council of the Soviet Union, will visit the Putney Creative Work Camp, where they will observe dancing, painting and sculpture classes in progress.

They will be guests tonight at a meeting of the Brattleboro Board of Selectmen at 7:30 in Municipal Hall. They will retire for the night to the Brattleboro area homes where they will be staying during their visit.

The Soviet party arrived last night from Lenox, Mass., where they took in a Tanglewood concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. They spent the night in pairs at the homes of Mrs. Clifford Allen and Mrs. Lester Barber of the Experiment for International Living; John Hooper, editor of The Reformer; George Kempton of Dummerston, and Rev. Fred E. Miller. Mary Potter, their American guide and interpreter was the guest of Dr. John Wallace.

Tomorrow the Russians will visit the Eastern States Farmers Exchange, Brattlebro's downtown where they will be treated to a concert of Russian music and informal bull sessions with students at the Russian Institute there. They will return to Brattleboro for the Wednesday evening meal.

On Thursday the Soviet tourists will visit the Marlboro School of Music at 9:30 a.m. to engage in conversation and hear student performances. They will lunch with their host families before driving to Albany, N. Y., where they will entrain for Chicago.

The Russian tour is being sponsored by the Experiment in International Living, which has its national headquarters in Putney. The Experiment is represented in Russia this summer by a group of 10 touring Americans.

The 10 Russians visiting Brattleboro make up one of 4 groups now in the United States. Their itinerary also includes trips to Chicago, the Urbana campus of the University of Illinois, St. Louis, the University of North Carolina and Washington, D. C.

The seven members of the group unmentioned before are Vladimir Belousov, 32, an architect studying at the Moscow Institute; Abdul-Rakman Bezirov, 28, an oil extraction engineer from Azerbaidjan, a small southern republic of the U.S.S.R.; Georgi Danilov, 24, a student of English and linguistics at the Moscow Institute; Dr. Grant Demirchoglyan, 32, an Armenian physiologist; Salakhitdin Nazarov, a historian from the small southern republic of Uzbek; Boris Ponomarev, assistant secretary of the Soviet Youth Committee, and Dmitri Chekanikov, an agricultural chemist.

Berkshire Week

A summer supplement of The Berkshire Eagle

July 13–19, 1958

Constantine Manos

Dr. Charles Munch rehearsing Boston Symphony Orchestra

HIGHLIGHTS:

CHARLES MUNCH

Conducting Boston Symphony Orchestra in all-Mozart program Sunday at 2:30 in Tanglewood Shed.

BERKSHIRE QUARTET

Playing chamber music assisted by Albert Sprague Coolidge Sunday at 4 at Music Mountain.

SUMMER THEATERS

Opening Monday: "The Cocktail Party" at 8:45 at Berkshire Playhouse, "Visit to a Small Planet" at 8:40 at Sharon Playhouse. Opening Tuesday: "Inherit the Wind" at 8:45 at Malden Bridge Playhouse, "Bullfight" at 8:40 at Williamstown, "Kiss Me Kate" at 8:40 at Colonie Musical Theater.

GEOFFREY HOLDER

Ethnic dancer accompanied by his group and Ram Gopal and Sahomi Tachibana opening Tuesday at 9 at Jacob's Pillow.

PRO MUSICA ANTIQUA

Performing music of Flanders and Spain Wednesday at 8:30 in Tanglewood Theater.

NEW YORK HARP TRIO

Playing Friday at 3 at South Mountain.

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Conducted by Charles Munch in Brahms-Copland program Friday at 8:30 in Tanglewood Shed.

'TROUBLE IN TAHITI'

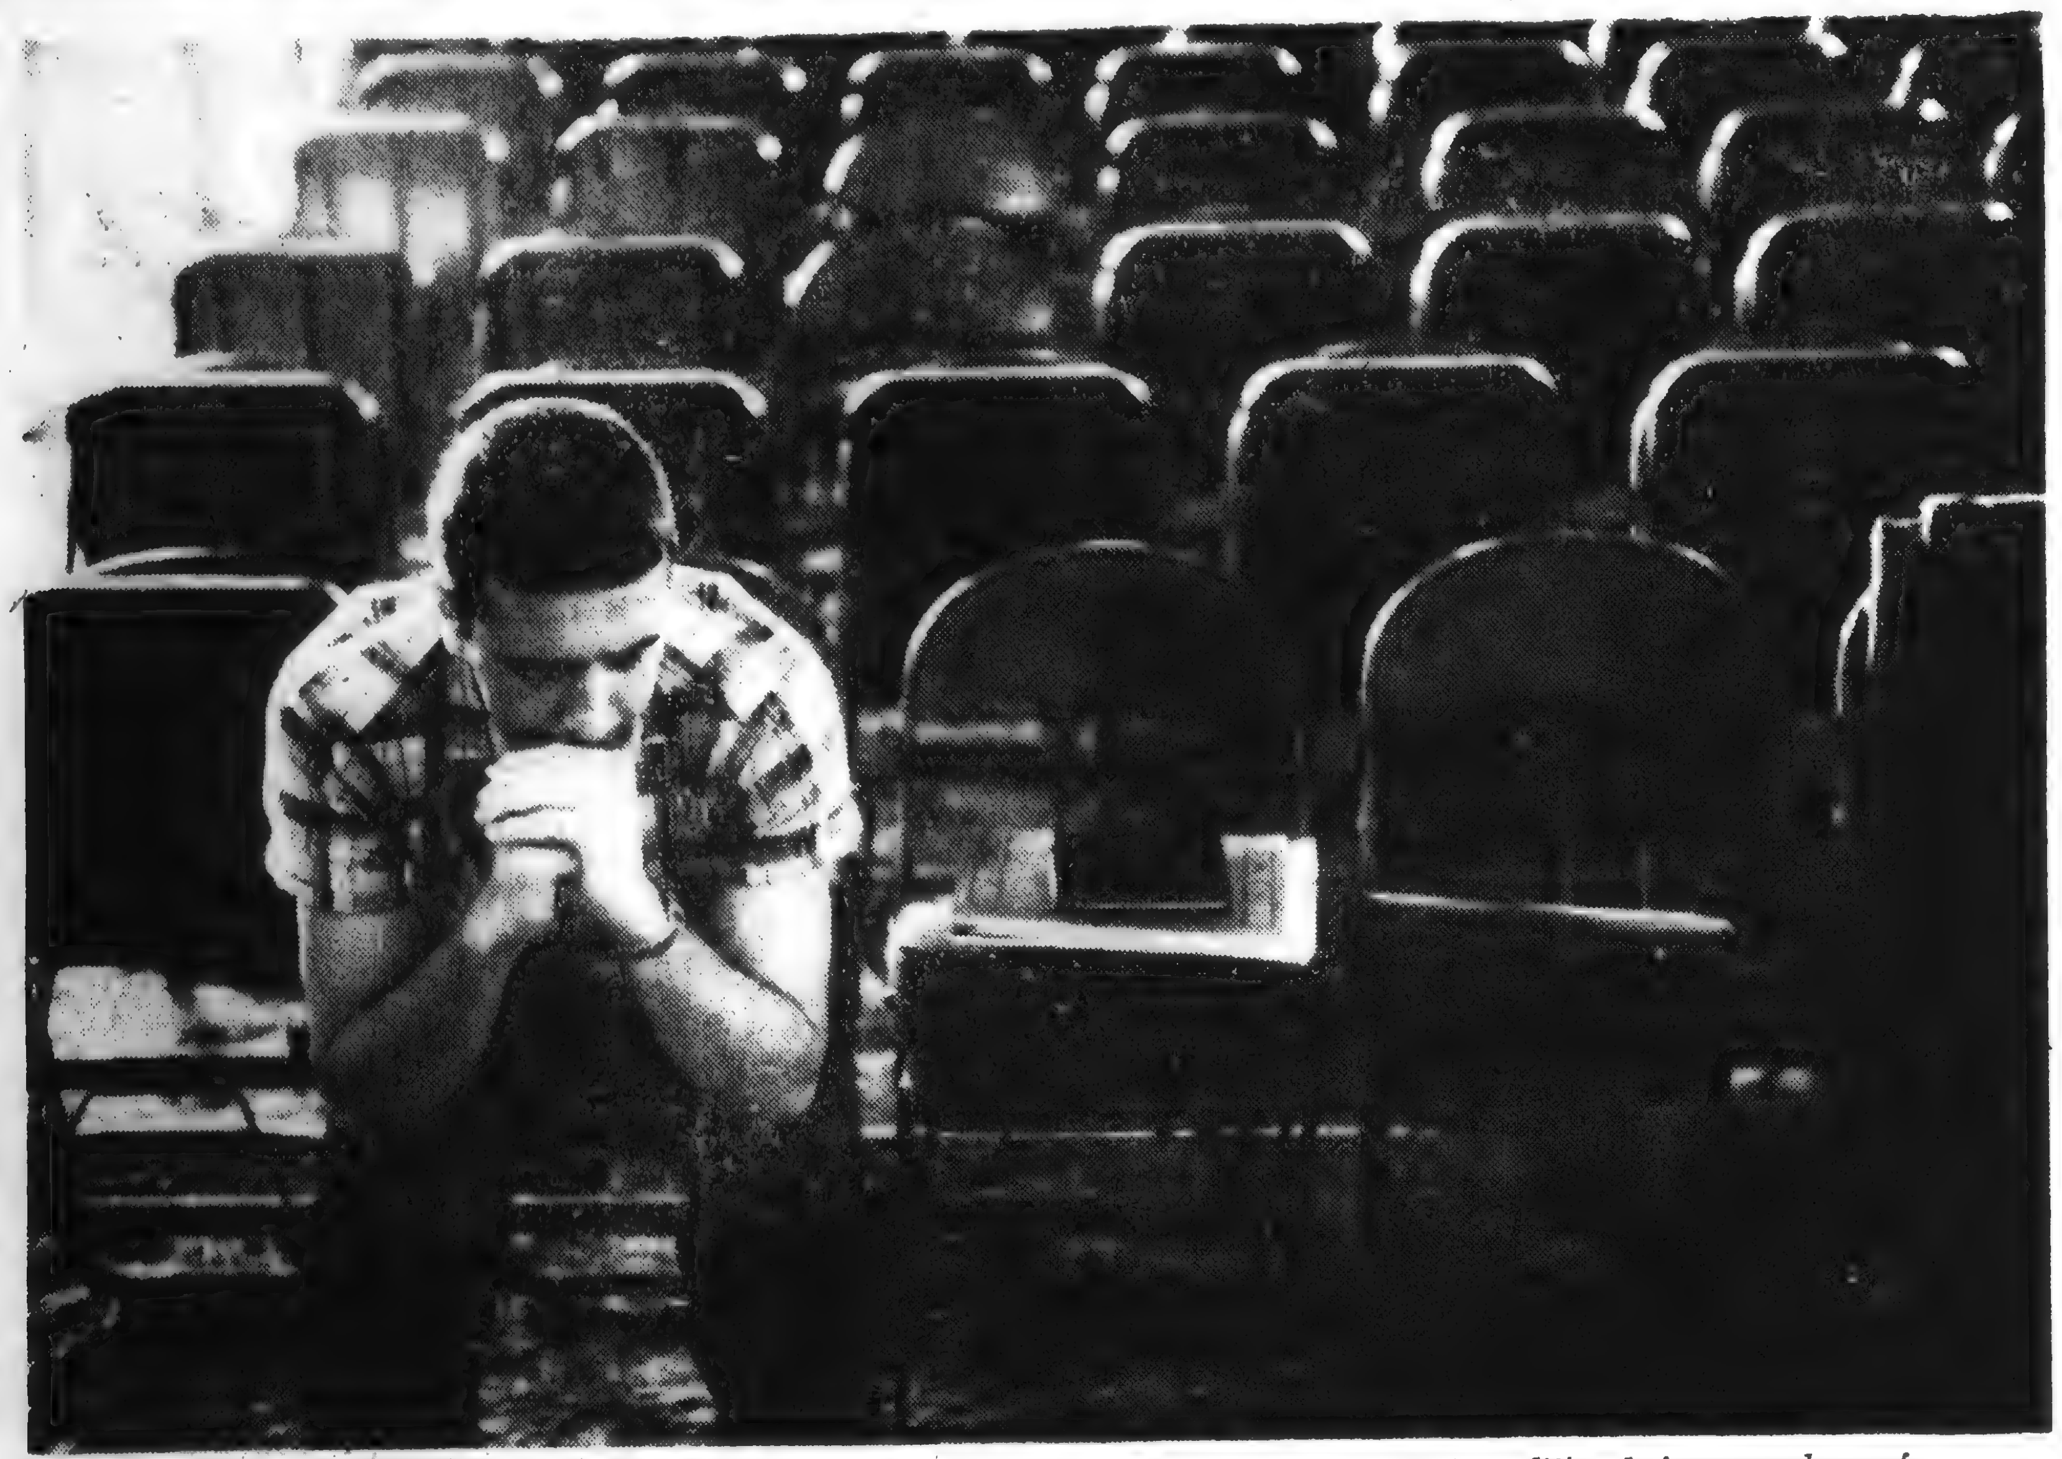
Leonard Bernstein's opera performed by After Dinner Opera Company Saturday at 3:30 at Berkshire Music Barn.

KOUSSEVITZKY MEMORIAL

Charles Munch conducting soloists Hilde Gueden and Donald Gramm with Festival Chorus and Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' "Requiem," Saturday at 8:30 in Tanglewood Shed.

In This Issue:

- PUBLIC SWIMMING, details on 30 spots PAGE 2A
- ART ON EXHIBIT, museum and gallery shows PAGE 2A
- NATURAL WONDERS, Berkshire phenomena PAGE 2A
- FISHING AND GOLF, directories of where to go PAGES 2A, 11A
- VACATION MAP, roads to fun and entertainment PAGE 3A
- NATURAL BRIDGE, a scenic wonder PAGE 4A
- SEVENTY PIANOS, a Tanglewood Tale PAGE 5A
- SUMMER CALENDAR, music, dance, drama PAGES 6A, 7A
- TANGLEWOOD ROUTES, follow the dotted line PAGE 8A
- BERKSHIRE SKETCHES, 3: the Bowwow Cemetery PAGE 9A
- ON BERKSHIRE STAGES, the week's playbill PAGE 10A
- TENNIS COURTS, details on 23 courts PAGE 11A
- GUIDE TO FOOD, recommended restaurants PAGE 11A
- EAGLE EYE, pictures at random PAGE 12A



Violinist Don Haines of Joliet, Ill., appears dejected as he ponders the outcome of his audition before members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, including Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Under considerable strain, singer Patricia Capone of Wakefield, Mass., listens carefully to piano passage before repeating it for Hugh Ross, choral director at Tanglewood.

Musicians on Trial

Pictures and Text

By Constantine Manos

Somebody has just cracked a joke, easing the tension for flute player Jean-Louis Kashy of Houston, Tex.

FOR THE STUDENT of music, the road to fame, success, or just a job consists of a series of harrowing ordeals—auditions. At Tanglewood, where 325 young musicians from 36 states and 17 foreign countries are studying, the auditions for positions in the student musical organizations start the summer's work. The auditors are the teachers for the summer, veteran musicians of the Boston Symphony and other distinguished faculty members of the Berkshire Music Center. Having already passed the rigorous entrance examinations held in the spring, the auditioning students are select talent from such diverse places as Gladewater, Texas, and Ankara, Turkey. Fidgeting with their instruments or softly singing scales to themselves, the nervous young musicians wait their turn outside a closed door. The door opens, a finger beckons. Muttering apologies about not having had time to practice, one of the students enters. The auditor sympathizes, rubs his hands together, and asks for a prepared solo. Usually he digs out some obscure, difficult score to test the student's sight-reading ability. When the competition is keen, the hearing is prolonged. But it is usually over in a few minutes, the buildup and letdown being more wearing on the nerves than the audition itself.

Wide-eyed with surprise, Joanne Cohen of Baltimore struggles to match the playing of teacher William Kroll, who suddenly began to accompany her during test.

Bassoonist Sue Bourns of Milford, Mich. (above), and oboist Dorothy Kidney of Appleton, N.Y. (below), make surreptitious last tests of their instruments' delicate double reeds before going in for auditions.

Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, listens intently to the selection of a student violist. Another waits his turn. Auditions determine positions in student musical groups.

EAGLE July 22

Our Berkshires

Tanglewood Reverie

By Katharine H. Annin

THE OTHER NIGHT at Tanglewood the woman in the next seat turned to me at intermission and asked pleasantly, "Have you been here before?" I trust I did not betray the state of mental confusion into which I was thrown by her simple question; which actually hit me like a bombshell. I heard my voice, as from a vast distance, making conversation which I hope was coherent, the while I was figuratively picking myself up off the floor of the Shed and trying to regain my composure.

* * *

FOR THE QUESTION suddenly set off in my mind a chain of further questions: What if I never had been to Tanglewood before? What if Tanglewood had never existed, and all my Tanglewood experiences of the last 30 years were wiped out of my memory? What a terrible loss it would be! At once I began to visualize, as in a series of flashbacks, some of the high lights of my Tanglewood recollections.

First I thought of the very first outdoor concert, in the pre-Boston Symphony days, when Henry Hadley conducted the New York Orchestra at the Hanna Farm. Never had Beethoven's Fifth made such an impression on me as that night when the moon was full and the mists began to gather at the foot of the mountains. I have never heard the Fifth Symphony since without closing my eyes and seeing again that utterly enchanting scene, to which that over-used phrase "out of this world" could legitimately apply. I know we are warned not to make more out of an experience than the experience warrants, for that way sentimentality lies; but that concert was one that has had continuing influence on other concerts through the years.

* * *

I MISSED the "$100,00 thunderstorm," in 1937, that was responsible for the building of the Shed. I was up in Maine listening to the program over the radio, when it was announced that atmospheric conditions prevented the continuation of the broadcast. Later I heard about it from my mother-in-law who was an eye witness of the proceedings under the swaying tent, and who declared she had been able to live through it only by keeping a firm grip on the thought, "Well, I have had a long and reasonably happy life, and if this is to be the end of it, I must just bear it calmly."

Nevertheless, in spite of the obvious need of an adequate shelter, there was a good deal of opposition, I remember, when the call for subscriptions went out. "Just one more thing for the public to support," I heard said, and "No such big crowds as they talk of could possibly come way up here." These comments need not have worried me, but I know I was distressed at the time, because to me having a great music center established practically at my front door supplied the one thing needful to make our move from New York to the Berkshires completely satisfactory. Having known the joy of Dr. Frank Damrosch's Young Peoples' Concerts all through my childhood, I was worried as to whether I could get my children down to New York often enough to fill their musical needs. We never did get them to New York, but Boston came to us.

* * *

PERHAPS the most vivid of all my flashbacks was of the season when Koussevitzky invited the Berkshire Choral Society to sing with the orchestra. This was before there was any student body at the Music Center to supply a large chorus as needed, and also before the stage of the Shed had been extended to its present depth. We were squeezed in behind the instrumentalists in the closest possible ranks, and being in the front row I had to dodge a trombone every time it shot out for a low note. Fortunately it was only at the rehearsal that one of our members fell off the front of the stage, landing full length on the keyboard of a grand piano.

My mind flits over countless impressions of season following season; of the promising young musicians, now so firmly established, Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leonard Bernstein; of guests from afar like Hiendemith, Honegger, Sanroma, Carvalho; of the familiar faces in the orchestra, and the familiar figures that walk through the aisles during intermission. And all these visual impressions blend with the mental satisfaction of finding pleasure in more and more kinds of music as my ear becomes accustomed to the newer idioms, and with the delight of hearing things I have missed previously in familiar compositions.

Have I ever been to Tanglewood? How thankful I am that Tanglewood has been there so that my answer can be "Yes."

American (e)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 40,029

JUL 21 1958

24,000 Hear Concerts At Tanglewood

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 21—Brahms programs at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood brought nearly 24,000 music lovers for the three concerts which included the performance of Leon Fleisher, soloist, in the "Piano Concerto No. 1, in D minor" before 9,200 at the Sunday afternoon concert yesterday.

Saturday evening's performance of the Brahms "Requiem" in memory of Serge Koussevitzky drew 8,300 for a moving concert under the direction of Charles Munch with the Festival Chorus and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone. The opening concert of the Shed season Friday night brought 6,350 for Munch's conducting of two Brahms numbers and Copeland's "Orchestral Variations."

Sunday's concert brought Pierre Monteux as guest conductor for a program of Brahms and Stravinsky which was pure delight. Leon Fleisher as soloist in the Brahm "Piano Concerto" showed considerable accomplishment for one so young. Pierre Monteux's conducting and the orchestra's playing of the delightfully colorful Stravinsky "Petrouchka" gave the perfect touch to what was an ideal afternoon for summer listening on the lawns at Tanglewood. The burlesque for the people's fair at Shrovetide with its hurdy-gurdy effects was perfect programming for the thousands spread on blankets on the lawns with picnic baskets beside them. Monteux, cherubic in his 80's, beamed upon his orchestra as he conducted and threw kisses to the appreciative audience as it applauded. He will conduct on Friday evening in a program to include music of Glinka, Tchaikovsky, Ravel, Milhaud and Debussy.

Munch will conduct Saturday and Sunday in a wide selection including Stravinsky, Rachmaninoff and Debussy on Saturday and Bartok, Ravel, and Tchaikovsky on Sunday. Byron Janis will be soloist Saturday in the Rachmaninoff "Piano Concerto" and Zino Francescatti, one of Tanglewood's most popular attractions each year, will be soloist in Tchaikovsky's "Violin Concerto" Sunday afternoon.

Springfield Union - July 19

BRAHMS' WORKS CHARM THRONG AT TANGLEWOOD

Munch, Monteux Week-End Conductors of Boston Symphony

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Lenox, July 18—Perfect weather ushered in the first of the series of week-end concerts by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra under direction of Dr. Charles Munch. Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux will share direction this week end, the eminent and venerable Frenchman conducting Sunday night.

6350 Hear Concert

The music of Johannes Brahms was paired with that of Aaron Copland and Brahms gained considerably thereby. An estimated 6350 people were on hand.

The program opened with an admirable performance of "Serenade No. 1, in D Major" by Brahms. This is a gusty, ebullient piece with plenty of romance. The opening movement was boisterous, the scherzo of charm, and the two minuets delightfully humorous. The final rondo brings the piece to a brilliant conclusion. The performance was wonderfully vital.

Aaron Copland's "Orchestral Variations" were commissioned by the Louisville Symphony Orchestra which, during the years, has provided opportunity for many new compositions to be heard. Mr. Copland took his "Piano Variations" composed in 1930 and transcribed them for orchestra. Hence a new work was born. The orchestral work was completed in 1957.

These "Orchestral Variations" must be the percussionists' delight for they are continually banging and clanging this and that. In fact, there is scarcely a quiet moment in the entire work. Mr. Copland knows his orchestra and how to combine instruments to make the texture he wants. It is sometimes hard on the ears, but definitely worthwhile. Mr. Munch conducted with enormous vitality, so much so that we feared he might fall off the podium. If a hi-fi recording has not yet been made of this work, it should be and with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Brahms' "Fourth Symphony" concluded the program. We heard a finely detailed performance; one rich in tonal colors and contrasts.

It was a straight-forward reading which let much of the music speak for itself, which it did eloquently. There is incomparable strength from first to last in this symphony. It is rock-like in its firmness. The performance tonight was worthy of the music.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 13 1958

Tanglewood Topics

Pierre Monteux, 83-year-old guest conductor at this season's Berkshire Festival, has just returned from a busy round of conducting engagements in Europe. The critic of the London Times said of Mr. Monteux, echoing the feeling of many regular Tanglewood visitors for this beloved conductor:

"He stands firmly erect, his old fashioned Gallic moustachios radiating confidence, a monument to stability. He does not need to coax, let alone intimidate, an orchestra into response; he exercises mastery in serenity, with a narrow beat that is as clear as a bell, and left-hand gestures that do not beckon nor inveigh, but merely jog a player's conscience."

• • •

A popular feature of the Tanglewood season are the Saturday morning open rehearsals by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The opportunity of hearing the orchestra at work preparing for one of the week-end programs in an informal atmosphere is enjoyed by many people each week. A modest admission charge of $1 is donated to the Orchestra's Pension Fund.

• • •

Much-Traveled Man

Harry Ellis Dickson, first violinist of the Boston Symphony and assistant conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, is probably the most-traveled man in the orchestra these days. Between rehearsals at Tanglewood for the Bach-Mozart concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the mornings and conducting concerts on Boston's Esplanade in the evenings, Mr. Dickson has probably set a record for trips between Lenox and Boston. He has made a round trip almost every day.

• • •

Mr. Dickson and his colleagues, about 70 of them, arrive at Tanglewood in the coming week when the entire orchestra of 105 men is asssembled for the four weeks of Music Shed concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Dr. Charles Munch, who has not seen his entire orchestra together since the close of its winter season in April, will meet with them at the first rehearsal on Wednesday afternoon.

• • •

George Humphrey, viola, and Karl Zeise, cello, both members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have recently arrived at Tanglewood after a trip to Iceland. Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Zeise visited Iceland several years ago, and when their plane was grounded in Reykjavik they passed the time playing informal chamber music with two colleagues, both violinists in the National Symphony Orchestra of Iceland.

• • •

On their recent trip, made with the co-operation of the State Department, the four players toured Iceland for three weeks, playing quartets. Mr. Humphrey reports that they were most cordially received everywhere and that their most enthusiastic audiences were in small towns where live chamber music, or indeed music of any kind, is a rarity.

• • •

Back From Europe

Hilde Gueden, Metropolitan opera soprano, who arrives tomorrow for rehearsals in preparation for her performance in the Brahms Requiem Saturday evening at the Berkshire Festival, has just returned from Europe. While there she was presented with the Silver Rose, awarded by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra for "outstanding artistic achievements." Miss Gueden is noted for her performances in Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier." the opera in which the original silver rose is presented to her in her role as Sophie.

• • •

Serge Koussevitzky, for 25 years conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, whose name is closely associated with Tanglewood and all its activities will be honored at the Berkshire Festival concert on Saturday evening. Dr. Charles Munch will conduct a performance of the Brahms Requiem inmemory of his predecessor.

• • •

Joanne Smith, 12-year-old daughter of the Boston Esplanade Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler. Joanne, who will attend Ted Mack's camp in the Berkshires this summer, performed the first movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 1 in C.

• • •

David Lloyd, tenor, a former student of the Berkshires Music Center who has since become well known throughout the country for his many performances in opera and concert, has returned to the opera department, where he was once a student himself. He will coach students in diction.

Newtown Bee July 25

Brahms Requiem Is Treat At Tanglewood

Superb Performance Given Saturday Evening

Saturday night's performance at Tanglewood of the Deutsches Requiem of Johannes Brahms by the Festival Chorus and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, was another unforgettable experience for Berkshire Festival followers. It was a glowing, soaring performance of this poignantly beautiful requiem, and clearly reiterated the position of Dr Munch as one of the finest conductors in this country. Certainly, there is no one who can weld orchestra, chorus and solo voices together so perfectly that it is as if voices and orchestra were one superb instrument.

The requiem was performed at Tanglewood in memory of Serge Koussevitsky, initiator and first director of the Berkshire Music Center, and was a fitting tribute to the late great conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the post now so brilliantly held by Dr Munch.

Unlike most requiems, the Brahms work is not in the form of a Mass, but is based upon moving passages concerning death and the spiritual comfort of God's love from both the Old and New Testaments.

The music is an exquisite and noble interpretation of the Scriptural words, tender and personal, gently elegiac, but with an exaltation and transcendancy that lifts the heart and spirit.

The two soloists, Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, baritone, both richly endowed with spendid voices, gave flawless performances, both from the standpoint of technique and interpretation.

The Festival Chorus, which to my mind, is one of the most perfectly coordinated choruses I have ever heard, was no less satisfying than the soloists. The orchestra was an eloquent and sensitive part of the lovely pattern woven with such mastery by the conductor.

Pierre Monteux will conduct this Friday's concert, which will include the music of Glinka, Tschaikovsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel. Charles Munch will be on the podium for the Saturday and Sunday concerts. Stravinsky, Rachmaninoff and Debussy will be featured Saturday, with Bartok, Tavel and Tschaikovsky scheduled on Sunday's program, when Zino Francescatti is soloist in the Tschaikovsky violin concerto.

MBP

[119]

[120]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 12 1958

Maida Makes the Pitch at Tanglewood

By RICHARD V. HAPPEL

IS IT possible that one, lone man is caretaker, tuner and technician for all 70 pianos at Tanglewood during the entire festival season? We thought not, but to make certain, we made an appointment, and met Armondo Maida the other day outside the chamber music hall. He carried a medic-type black bag of instruments, and introduced himself. "Mr. Maida," he said briskly. "Spelled like 'Aida.' " Our talk thus was launched on a high musical level

A Friends concert filled the air with music, so we repaired to a hard wooden bench on the Tappan mansion porch overlooking Stockbridge Bowl. Mr. Maida chewed on a smoked-out bit of cigar, as he dropped names of his clients like a hailstorm; Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copland, Mrs Serge Koussevitzky, Lukas Foss, Richard Burgin, Zino Francescatti, Eleazar de Carvalho and too many more, here and in New York. "Don't forget," he admonished frequently, "to say I work for the Baldwin Piano Company," which we promised to do, and probably will presently.

Manos

Armondo Maida sitting at one of his 70 Baldwins.

Complicated Job

Then, rather delicately, we asked how he keeps 70 pianos in tune and perfect working order. "It's very hard on my feet," he said, to our astonishment. Testing the pedal action? we wondered, before he answered our unspoken question.

"Those pianos are located all over the grounds here," said he, "They're in rehearsal halls, in the Shed, the chamber music hall, in rehearsal rooms clear down to the barn in back of the Little Red House! I have to walk to every one." Sixteen of the 70 pianos assigned to Tanglewood are off the reservation, in the artists' homes. Mr. Maida services those, too, but they are no problem: He drives up to the door.

Added to his endless pilgrimage in search of faulty instruments is the obvious fact that he cannot work on a piano while it is being played. "Maybe I get to the theater-concert hall, and someone's rehearsing. I hike to the Shed; same thing. Maybe I wind up at the Red House. That's a lot of hiking to get to one instrument." He sighed.

Early Bird

Mr. Maida has been tuning at Tanglewood 10 years. He leaves his quarters in the Lenox Village Inn at 6:30 a.m. and tunes two pianos before breakfast, a task the average tuner could scarcely face. Tanglewood, he noted in passing, receives all brand new pianos every season, but this doesn't lighten Mr. Maida's task; rather, it compounds it. "New strings," he explained, "have more give than old ones. I have to keep after them all the time."

To start the season, he arrived at Tanglewood with the 70 new pianos, and spent a week before the opening, tuning every one, starting with the instrument for Charles Munch. "Practice instruments have a 440 pitch," he told us, "and pianos that go with the Boston Symphony are 444. It's the only orchestra which uses that pitch."

The 440 and 444, we recalled, refer to the number of vibrations per second for Middle C, on which tuning is based. The higher number of vibrations, resulting in a higher pitch for the whole BSO, creates the brilliance desired by the late Koussevitzky.

Special Attention

When a solo pianist is to play with the orchestra, Mr. Maida tunes the instrument within an inch of its life. Then he stays with it. If it must be moved, as occurred when Lukas Foss' concert was moved from the theater-concert hall to the Shed, he moves with it, and rechecks it on the stage.

But even that isn't all. He remains backstage during the performance in case of emergency, and at intermission checks with the artist on the condition of the instrument. If anything is amiss he can correct it before the second half, although during his entire 10 years this has never happened.

As may be imagined, the greatest enemy of pianos at Tanglewood is the atmosphere, especially humidity. It causes swelling of the precision wooden parts of the action: Keys, felts, hammers and pedals.

Piano Bakery

"Sometimes I have to bake the piano," he said, leaving us agape. Not the whole piano, it developed, but just the action, comprised of the keyboard, connecting ferules, hammers and felts which, we learned, may be readily slipped from the instrument as a unit. This is placed on a shelf in a simple, wooden cabinet with a canvas-curtain front and an ordinary electric heater and fan in the bottom. Thirty minutes to an hour under low heat usually takes the bind out of the mechanism.

A couple of summers ago the three-piano Mozart concerto was scheduled, and Mr. Maida baked all three pianos at moderate heat for nearly an hour. "I didn't want to take any chances," he said gravely. "It was Friday, the 13th." If there was a hoodoo in the woods, the baking fixed him. The concert was a triumph.

Mr. Maida was born in Naples, Italy, was brought to the Bronx when one year old, and still lives there. His wife stays home, preferring movies and television to the Tanglewood concerts, none of which has she attended. Her husband loves classical music, and has heard every Tanglewood program the past decade. He has a piano at home, "but when I'm up here," he admitted, "I freeze. I only play by ear, and I'm outclassed. It takes a couple of weeks for me to thaw out after I get home."

Card Index

With all those pianos on his hands, Mr. Maida has worked out a card system on servicing. He tapes a pasteboard to each instrument, and dates it each time he works on the piano. Some will have a half-dozen dates during the season, especially in the practice rooms which are more open to the climate than the concert halls.

Mr. Maida's day is a long one. From 6:30 a.m., to 10 p.m. is not unusual. And during his long hikes from job to job, he is forever listening, and may detect a faulty instrument even before the player is aware of it. And a piano being played that is out of tune causes him almost physical pain. He is only dimly aware of the beauties of the Berkshires, since his work takes all his time and interest. Once he brought his wife back for a week after Tanglewood, and was astonished at the picturesque landscape.

Oh yes, the name of the company for which Mr. Maida works; the firm whose pianos are played exclusively at Tanglewood, and by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It is the . . . um . . . ahhh . . . h'm . . . shucks. Well, never mind.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 12 1958

Whitestone

TANGLEWOOD TRAFFIC was the topic being discussed by these men this week as they met in Lenox to coordinate their police forces for the anticipated heavy traffic next weekend, when the big concerts open in the Music Shed. Talking with James J. Brosnahan, assistant treasurer of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at right, are left to right, Chief of Police William J. Collins of Stockbridge, William Brown, chairman of the Lee Board of Selectmen; Selectman and Chief of Police George L. Hughes of Lenox, and Lt. M. Roy Anderson of headquarters, Troop B, Massachusetts state police.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 14 1958

Notes and Footnotes

SMOKE RINGS: Of all things, Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky almost couldn't get into Tanglewood the other day. New man at the gate didn't know her, and relented only when she showed him her purse on which her husband's own handwriting in gold was the name "Serge Koussevitzky." . . . Press booth at the horse show at the Barrington Fairgrounds last week was reporter John Von Hartz's vast Cadillac seven-passenger car. Pulled down tonneau jump seats for typewriter rests and rattled off results as fast as announced. Recommended for all sporting events. . . . A couple we know of picked up two girl hitchhikers en route to Tanglewood, and as a means of launching conversation the youngsters asked, "Are you natives?" Couple scarce knew how to answer, but were tempted to give some tribal warwhoops. . . . Local obstetrician and long-time habitué of the Bridge Lunch where he joshes one and all became so involved in wisecracks one noon that he found he had lit two fresh cigars almost at the same moment. . . . Art in Vermont on the upswing. The Manchester Art Center reports all activities up 50 per cent over last year. . . . Real estate broker Gus Dohoney of Lee sends us prospectus of the Bing Crosby estate in Idaho which he has listed as representative of Previews Inc. Selling price $95,000 furnished. Such a bargain. . . . Darren McGavin of "Mike Hammer" television show flattened by food poisoning believed caught at a caviar dinner at the Russian Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair. The Reds will stop at nothing.

[121]

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUL 27 1958

Second Thoughts On Music

Boston Symphony Performs Major Works by Brahms

Fourth Symphony, First Piano Concerto, 'German' Reguiem Heard in Music Shed at Tanglewood; 'Petrouchka' Presented in Entirety

By WILLARD M. CLARK

